ladies; and his latest design of figured velveten boots for ladies is much admired for its originality. The plainer shoes shown by him seem contrived for the purpose of relieving the oppression of a people which, according to Carlyle, "suffers much in its feet," and show that there are capable soutars elsewhere than in the classic precincts of Selkirk.

From the Shoe and Leather Record.

One of the strongest features in Mr GRANT'S samples and goods generally is the formation and finish of the heels on all his goods. They are models in appearance, and the manner in which the nailing of the heels is done indicates the very great care that has been exercised in putting the boots together. The quality of the material used at this factory is above the ordinary average; and this fact alone will be proof of the high excellence and reputation the boots have obtained in the several markets catered for; in fact, wherever Mr GRANT has got a hold it is an extremely difficult matter for others to even get a share of the trade done. Low-priced boots are not aimed at at all, the samples being from medium to best boots, and are made in the several classes. The production of such goods as those of Mr GRANT has done more to lessen the hand-sewn bespoke trade in many districts than anything else, as in many respects the factory goods are above the average country-made goods both in style and finish. This first-rate show of best quality factory-made goods contrasts well with the genuine hand-sewn bespoke article.

BY HAVE A GOOD VIEW OF THE CASE WHEN 1661
 not be forgotten that at the Edinburgh Exhibition Mr took the highest award in the boot department, a gold medal occupies a prominent place at the end of t its owner being justly proud of its possession. T several pairs of boots shown here which were made i burgh, and it speaks volumes for the skill which p together that they should come out after all that time looking one bit the worse. In the new goods there the same skill shown in the making as in the form and it is seldom one sees such specimens of good those now brought together here. Amongst the h so of samples that are shown the number of shoes is noticeable. These are in all materials and in all sty finished in a variety of ways, fiddle waists being pi adopted. In the ladies' heels the pin-pointing of the burgs is prettily done, and in many of the gentlemen the top pieces are put on in a strikingly regular both when all steel is used or when brass is int The breasting of the heels is another capital featu finishing of these goods. The closing of the uppers pleasing to examine, especially in some of the Light Taken as a whole, this exhibit is completely sati and will be certain to attract a large amount of attent the trade.

For 1891.

THE ARBROATH YEAR BOOK for 1891 needs little introduction. It has secured a place for itself as a valuable book of reference in the great majority of houses in Arbroath and District. From all Business Men it has received a most hearty welcome as a labour-saving volume. It is used nearly every working day during the whole year in a thousand offices, shops, warehouses, hotels, reading-rooms, &c. The Publishers have this year included the LIST OF HOUSEHOLDERS IN CARNOUSTIE, and other important additions have been made, and they hope that the 1891 edition will be found even more useful than that for 1890. They promise that improvement and extension will continue in future editions. Some FIFTY or SIXTY THOUSAND eyes examine the pages of the Year Book. They will, doubtless, discover many errors and omissions. Will the possessors kindly send a note of their discoveries to the Herald Office, and they will greatly oblige

❖ JAMES DOIG, ❖

Family Grocer, Tea, Wine, and Spirit Merchant.

Opinions of the Press—

DOIG'S TEA.—The Mercantile Age of April 16th says:—Mr JAMES DOIG is a great believer in Indian, Assam, and Ceylon Teas; and rightly so, for not only has he, but all the most competent judges, proved their superiority over those Teas grown in China. There is a uniformity of body in DOIG'S TEAS as well as a richness of Quality, and analytic tests prove that there is little mineral matter, the tannin, nitrogen, and other properties being excellently balanced, so as to avoid undesirable astringency. I am glad to know that an appreciative public very highly value Mr JAMES DOIG'S Teas. His annual returns show a very marked increase in the sales, and I am quite convinced that, if he continues to keep up the standard of quality—which he seems determined to do—he will some day ere long occupy a foremost position as a tea-dealer in Scotland. His policy is a generous one; he has entered upon and is pursuing a safe enterprise, one calculated to benefit himself as well as the public, and I am glad to know of his success—a success highly merited.

Doig's Whisky, Beer, &c.—The Mercantile Age of April 16th, says:—DOIG'S Malt, Wine, and Spirit Cellars are, on the whole, the best I have seen north of Glasgow—and I have visited hundreds of Establishments—very lofty, have an abundance of light, and the temperature is very carefully regulated for maturing and conditioning the valuable stock of Malt Liquors. The Bottling cellar is fitted with hot and cold water, and other appurtenances for effectually cleansing the bottles, and filling in a cleanly manner from the casks, Barclay Perkin's Stouts and Bass & Co.'s Ales. Proceeding to the Spirit Department, I found a Whisky, a surprisingly good blend of pure old Scotch Whisky, known as "Doig's Family Blend." This blend of Whisky deserves to be extremely popular. It is a very old, pure Whisky, free from fusel oil, smoke, or wild flavour, and to connoisseurs of Whisky, as well as those whose health requires this article, I can confidently recommend it as a pleasant, honest stimulant of good age and purity. (See Public Analyst's Opinion on Page 108.)

Doig's Provisions, Feeding Stuff, &c.—The Mercantile Age says:—DOIG'S stock and management of his establishment displayed many evidences of good and experienced generalship. Everywhere energy and order seem to have been happily combined. The Goods seemed fresh throughout, and chosen from the markets and manufacturing centres that I have visited a hundred and one times, and know, therefore, their pure, dietary properties. The third storey of DOIG'S Warehouses is used as a general reserve-stock warehouse for fruit, jellies, jams, biscuits, &c. Mr Doig also conducts a very large trade for feeding stuffs, such as Oats, Barley, Oilcake, &c.

HAND SEWN BOOTS NO LONGER A NECESSITY.

KELTIC BOOTS & SHOES,

Recognised Standard of Fine Foot Wear.

KELTIC WELTS relieve the public of the expense and necessity of Hand Sewn Boots, which they are rapidly displacing all over the Kingdom. Since their introduction in the Summer of 1890, the most gratifying and flattering testimony to their excellence has reached us from all parts of the World; and practical Bootmakers frankly admit that Keltic Welts have sealed the fate of Hand Sewn Boots. We ask for them only ONE TRIAL, and Keltic Welts will claim you as their own. For Ease, Flexibility, and Comfort they are equal to the Finest Hand Sewn Boots ever made. The principle on which they are made is IDENTICALLY THE SAME AS HAND SEWN—only, instead of the in-seam being put in and the Welt stitched by hand, it is done by the most marvellously perfect Machines the Shoe Trade has ever seen. Machinery has long ago superseded hand labour on the UPPERS of Boots; it has now done so on the BOTTOMS.

Read the Annexed Description of the Advantages of Keltic Welts.

KELTIC WELTS have no Tacks or Wax to destroy or soil the Stockings.

KELTIC WELTS have a perfectly smooth inner sole.

KELTIC WELTS are Light and Flexible, and cannot be distinguished from Hand Sewn.

KELTIC WELTS are Damp-Proof and Perfectly Noiseless.

KELTIC WELTS are better than the majority of Hand Sewn Boots.

KELTIC WELTS cost little more than ordinary Machine Sewn, and are as easy and comfortable to wear as Hand Sewn.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Gentlemen bringing their own Lasts can have their Boots made on them on the Welted principle, and in thanking for their patronage those numerous Gentlemen who have already availed themselves of this privilege, we desire to call public attention to the manifest Advantages of the New System, and to recommend those who have not done so to give it an early trial.
