This work gives a concise account of every battle on the Colours of the British and Indian Armies; to each action being added a list of the regiments engaged, severally distinguished by their old Numbers, and present Territorial titles.

Appended, also, are a selection of important and decisive actions not, as yet, on the Colours; the whole forming a historical record of 200 engagements, from the year 1689, to the Boer War of 1899-1902.

At the end of the book is a list of all Cavalry and Infantry Regiments, with the dates of their respective origins.

PREFACE.

---

IN bringing out this work, my main object has been to preserve and perpetuate the identity of the glorious old regiments of the British and Indian Armies. In the year 1881 the numbers of all Infantry regiments in the British Army were abolished, and, with the exception of the Cavalry, the first twenty-five regiments of the Line, the King's Royal Rifles, the Rifle Brigade, and the Cameron Highlanders, all the remainder were linked in twos together, without regard to tradition and former history, and were given territorial titles; in other words, eighty-four regiments, some of which had been in existence for upwards of two centuries and most for upwards of one, were merged into others, under fresh titles, the distinctions gained by each of the two linked regiments being credited to both. It thus became almost impossible, without the deepest research, to ascertain which battalion of a Link had taken part in any particular battle inscribed on the Colours of both.

The Battles of the British and Indian Armies from Inniskilling, 1689, to the Boer War, 1902, and the Regiments that fought them have been written with a view to rectifying this state of things, and to preserve the ancient records of individual regiments from falling into oblivion.

The first part deals with the battles inscribed on the Colours of the British and Indian Regiments, jointly; with a short description of each action, date, place, etc., and the actual corps engaged.

The second treats of engagements in which only Native Indian Regiments were employed, and which are solely to be found on the Colours of the Indian Army; these actions, also, are briefly noted and ascribed to the various regiments that took part in them.

Lastly, I have appended the record of a few important and decisive battles which are not on the Colours of any regiment, although several of these might well be so commemorated, and probably will be later on.

In carrying out this pleasing and congenial task I have to acknowledge the great help I have received from such authors as Orme, Malleon, Innes, Napier, and others, and especially from Mr. W. Ralston Balch's "Ready Reference." I have also to tender my best thanks to Sir James Westland, K.C.S.I., Member of the Indian Council, to Colonel Miles, Commandant of the Staff College, for his kind permission to make use of the splendid Library of that Institution, as well as to Mr. Payne of the Paymaster's Office of the Royal Military College, Sandhurst, for his valuable assistance, and to many other officers, non-commissioned officers and friends who have kindly supplied me with information.

The glorious deeds of our soldiers must be of interest to all true and loyal Britons, and if by associating the various regiments with the celebrated actions in which they have taken part I shall succeed in enhancing that interest, my reward will be great.

G. J. HARCOURT.

BRITISH AND INDIAN BATTLES.

---

INNISKILLING.

APRIL 20th, 1689.

All Ireland, excepting Enniskillen and Londonderry, had declared for James II.; the latter place had closed its gates against Lord Antrim, and many Protestants had taken refuge there. King James appeared before the town with his Irish and French troops. The siege lasted 105 days; the most desperate in the Annals of the British Isles. The loss of the garrison was 3,000, and of the blockading force fully 8,000 are supposed to have died. On July 28th the besiegers set fire to their camp and departed.

GIBRALTAR.

JULY 24th, 1704.

This fortress, situated at the southernmost extremity of Spain, was captured by Sir George Rooke, Sir John Leake, Admiral Byng, and Sir Cloudesley Shovel. On July 20th, 1,800 men landed on the Isthmus under the Prince of Hesse-Darmstadt. The Spanish Governor was the Marquis de Salines, who had only 150 soldiers under him; he made a most heroic defence, but was defeated. The terms of capitulation were concluded on July 24th.

On June 12th, 1727, the Spaniards, under the Conde de las Torres, attempted to recapture Gibraltar, having opened fire on the 3rd of the previous March, but on June 12th, a general peace was declared and hostilities ended.

The garrison lost 300 officers and men killed and wounded; the Spaniards nearly 3,000.

From 1781 to 1783 the Spaniards, aided by the French, again attempted the capture of this fortress. For 3 years it was desperately defended by General Elliott, afterwards Lord Heathfield. The long blockade terminated on February 2nd, 1783.

BLLENHEIM.

AUGUST 2nd, 1704.

A village 23 miles north-north-west of Augsburg, Bavaria. This battle was fought by the British, under the Duke of Marlborough, with an Army of 18,252 men, to which were added the forces of Prince Eugene of Saxony, 30,000 men. The French forces, consisting of 66,000 men, were commanded by Tallard, and the Elector of Bavaria.

The French were completely routed, losing about 40,000 men killed, wounded, and prisoners, besides 100 pieces of cannon, 24 mortars, 129 Infantry Colours, 171 Cavalry Standards, all tents, coaches, and baggage animals. The English had: killed 4,435 men, wounded 7,525, and 273 made prisoners.

RAMILLIES.

MAY 23rd, 1706.

This town is 15 miles from Namur in Belgium. The Duke of Marlborough here defeated the French, Spaniards, and Bavarians under Marshal de Villeroy, and the Elector of Bavaria. Marlborough's Army comprised 60,000 men; that of the French 62,000.

The French lost 13,000 men killed or taken, the Allies had 1,066 killed, including Prince Louis of Hesse-Cassel, and 82 officers, and 2,567 wounded.

OUDENARDE.

JULY 11th, 1708.

A small town on the Scheldt about 20 miles from Ghent. The Duke of Marlborough and Prince Eugene here defeated the French. The Army of the Allies (British) consisted of 112 regiments, and 180 squadrons, with 113 guns. The French Army, of 124 regiments, 197 squadrons, and a great park of Artillery.

The French General, Vendôme, and the Duke of Burgundy, finding all was lost, retreated with 20,000 men.

The British loss was about 5,000 men; the French 20,000, including 5,000 killed, 9,000 taken prisoners, and 6,000 deserted.

ARCOT.

AUGUST 31st, 1751.

This town and fortress is situated about 68 miles south-west of Madras. On August 31st it was captured by Captain (afterwards Lord) Clive, with 8 officers and 200 soldiers of the Madras European Regiment, 300 Sepoys, 4 field guns; and on September 5th the garrison was besieged by Rajah Sahib and the French with an overwhelming force.

The siege of 1751 lasted from September 5th to November 14th, when the fortress was invested by the enemy. Clive repulsed a determined attack on the 5th, as also on September 14th. On the 24th, an immense Army under Chunda Sahib, Nawab of Arcot, who had with him a French regiment 1,000 strong, assisted in the investment of Arcot, and daily and hourly attacked it, sometimes employing elephants with iron plates on their heads to batter the walls; but on November 14th, 1751, after a siege of 50 days, the enemy were driven off with a loss of 400 men, and the siege was raised.

During the siege Clive lost 120 English Soldiers, and 180 Sepoys; and the survivors, 80 English Soldiers and 120 Sepoys, on September 14th served 5 guns and fired 12,000 cartridges.

It was during this famous siege that the Sepoys gave their daily rations of rice to their European comrades, themselves subsisting on the water in which it was boiled.

“ Arcot ” is on the Colours of the—
102nd Foot, 1st R. Dub. Fus.

PLASSEY.

JUNE 23rd, 1757.

A village 90 miles north of Calcutta, where Clive defeated Surajah Dowla, the Nawab of Bengal, and his French auxiliaries. Colonel Clive's force consisted of 950 British Infantry, made up a detachment of H.M.'s 39th Regiment, a detachment of the Madras European Regiment, 2 Companies of the Bombay European Regiment, a few men of the Bengal Europeans, 100 British Gunners, 2,100 Sepoys, and 10 guns. The Nawab's Army was composed of 35,000 Infantry, 1,500 Cavalry, 50 Frenchmen, and 53 heavy guns.

“ Plassey may not have been a great battle, as it was won by treachery in the enemy's camp, but as a victory, was, in its consequences, perhaps the greatest ever gained.”—Malleson.

LOUISBERG.

JULY 26th, 1758.

A battle at this place in North America, fought by Generals Amherst and Wolfe and Admiral Boscawen against the French, secured to the British Crown the islands of Cape Breton and St. Jean—now called Prince Edward's Island.

“ Louisberg ” is on the Colours of the—

CONDORE.

DECEMBER 9th, 1758.

Colonel Forde defeated the French under General Conflans at this village, which is near the mouth of the Godavery river, on the coast north of Madras. Conflans' army consisted of 500 Frenchmen, 6,000 Sepoys, 500 Native Cavalry, and 30 guns. Colonel Forde had under him 500 men of the Madras European Regiment and Bengal Europeans, 2,000 Sepoys, 6 six-pounder guns, and a small battering train.

The victory was complete, and the British captured 13 guns, as well as the whole of the enemy's camp with its ordnance, ammunition, and stores.

The total French losses were 32 cannon and 156 French soldiers, including officers, killed, wounded, and prisoners, besides many Sepoys. The British loss was 44 English soldiers and five officers killed and wounded, also many Sepoys.

N.B.—The 102nd Foot is also entitled to this distinction.

WANDIWASH.

JANUARY 22nd, 1760.

This is a fortress 58 miles south-west of Madras, and it was here that Sir Eyre Coote with 1,700 men of the Madras European Regiment, now the 1st Royal Dublin Fusiliers, the 79th or Draper's Regiment, and the 84th or Coote's Regiment (the two latter since disbanded), together with 2,100 Sepoys, 16 guns, and 1,250 Native Cavalry, defeated 2,250 French soldiers, 300 Caffres, 6,000 Sepoys, with 20 guns, and 3,000 Native Cavalry, under the Marquis de Bussy and General Lally.

The British captured 24 guns and all stores, 200 French were killed, 160 were taken prisoners, 6 officers were killed, and 20 taken prisoners, and many men were wounded. The British loss was 63 men killed, and 124 wounded, inclusive of officers.

Wandiwash was the decisive battle of India, and, as at Quebec in 1759, secured to the British in the East Indies that supremacy over the French which they have ever since maintained.

“Wandiwash” is on the Colours of the—
102nd Foot, 1st R. Dub. Fus.

MASULIPATAM.

APRIL 7th, 1760.

Colonel Forde invested this fortress situated on the east coast of India north of Madras, on March 7th. The garrison was composed of 700 French soldiers and 2,537 Sepoys, under General Conflans. Forde's force consisted of 500 men of the Madras European Regiment and the Bengal Europeans, 2,000 Sepoys, and a due proportion of guns.

The final assault took place on April 7th, and the French were driven from every post; General Conflans surrendered at discretion. Forde lost 72 men killed, and 112 wounded, but captured 120 guns, besides military and other stores.

“Masulipatam” is on the Colours of the—

PONDICHERRY.

JANUARY 16th, 1761.

Pondicherry is a French fortress on the south-east coast of India, 100 miles south of Madras, and was besieged by Colonel Monson from September 2nd, 1760, until January 16th, 1761, when it was finally captured by the British. The troops under Monson's command consisted of Draper's and Coote's regiments, i.e., the then 79th and 84th Foot, each 1,000 strong, 200 British Marines from the Fleet, 150 of the 73rd Highlanders, 800 of the Madras European Regiment, now the 1st Royal Dublin Fusiliers, two companies of foreigners, 350 of the Bombay European Regiment, now the 2nd Royal Dublin Fusiliers, and 1,100 Sepoys.

During this long siege many severe encounters between the French and British took place with heavy casualties on both sides including the loss, owing to a wound, of Colonel Monson himself, who was succeeded in command by Colonel Eyre Coote. On January 16th, 1761, the whole of the Grenadiers of the British occupied the different gates, and on the afternoon of the same day, the French garrison having surrendered, paraded in front of the citadel for Colonel Coote's inspection. There were but 1,100 of them, worn down by famine, fatigue, and disease.

On the following day, the British flag was hoisted and saluted with 1,000 guns. 2,072 prisoners were taken, and 600 guns. The British loss was 32 officers and 500 rank and file killed and wounded; that of the enemy considerably greater. Pondicherry was finally restored to the French in 1816.

ASSAYE.

SEPTEMBER 23rd, 1803.

The village of Assaye is situated on a branch of the river Purneah, in southern India. Sir Arthur Wellesley here defeated the Mahrattas under Dowlut Rao Scindia and Rajah Bhonsle, whose combined armies amounted to 30,000 cavalry, and immense masses of Infantry and Artillery, 10,000 of the Infantry having been trained on the European system. The Artillery was a magnificent force. The British troops comprised but 4,500 men, of whom one regiment of Cavalry, and two of Infantry, were English, the rest natives; also 5,000 Mahratta and Mysore horsemen.

MONTE VIDEO.

FEBRUARY 3rd, 1807.

In Uruguay ; stormed by Sir Samuel Auchmuty and captured from the Spaniards. Monte Video is near Buenos Ayres. In March, Sir Home Popham, and General Beresford determined to attack it, but afterwards changed to Moldonado, a maritime town in Banda Oriental, 78 miles from Monte Video. Lieut.-Colonel Vassal with 400 men landed and, with Colonel Backhouse, entered at the point of the bayonet, killing and wounding 50 of the enemy. The Spaniards fled. Sir James Auchmuty then arrived and operations on Monte Video were resolved on.

The enemy numbered 6,000 men in Monte Video, with many guns ; the British stormed and captured the place on February 3rd. Of the enemy 8,000 were killed, and 400 wounded, 24 guns were taken, and 2,000 officers and men, with the Governor, made prisoners. The British lost 600 men.

DOURO.

MAY 12th, 1809.

Lord Wellesley, taking Sir John Cradock's command at Lisbon, marched northwards, crossed the river Douro, and recaptured Oporto.

No exploit in Spain was more brilliant, glorious, and successful than the passage of the Douro (300 yards wide), the opposite bank being defended by 10,000 veterans. Three German regiments fought on the British side, and crossed the river with a portion of the British troops under General Murray. The 14th Lt. Dragoons, under General Steward and Major Harvey, made a gallant charge on the disorganized and retreating French, but not being supported by Murray, had to fight their way back with loss. The total British loss was 20 men killed and one General and 100 men wounded.

The French lost one General and 500 men killed and wounded, and 1,000 abandoned in the Hospitals; also 55 guns captured by the Allies.

BARROSA.

MARCH 5th, 1811.

A village 16 miles south-east of Cadiz. It was here that Sir Thomas Graham, afterwards Lord Lynedoch, defeated the French under Marshal Victor.

The fierce, rapid, and prolonged charge of the 87th Royal Irish Fusiliers overthrew the first line of the French. The enemy had 14 guns and 9,000 men commanded by Laval, Ruffin, and Villatte. Generals Ruffin and Chaudron-Rousseau fell mortally wounded, and the French were driven from the hill with the loss of three guns. The fight lasted 1½ hours, the British loss being 50 officers, 60 sergeants, and 110 rank and file. More than 2,000 of the French were killed or wounded, and six guns, an eagle, and 400 prisoners were taken.

ALBUHERA.

MAY 16th, 1811.

At Albuhera, in the province of Estremadura, Spain, Marshal Beresford defeated the French under Marshal Soult. Beresford had with him 32,000 men, of whom 7,000 were English, and 10,000 Portuguese, the rest being Spaniards. The cavalry numbered 2,000 and there were 38 guns. One thousand five hundred brave Britons were all that remained of 6,000 before whom an army on the eve of victory, fled in disorder.

“Modern history presents no example of an action so obstinately disputed.”—General Picton.

The 57th Regiment out of 570 men lost 23 officers and upwards of 400 men; 7,000 bodies occupied the space of a few hundred feet, and the Artillery averted their faces in passing over them. From this action the 57th derived the soubriquet of the “Die-hard’s.”

TARIFA.

JANUARY 5th, 1812.

Tarifa is 20 miles west of Gibraltar. While assisting the Spaniards to hold this place, the English were besieged by the French under General Laval. The enemy were finally repulsed.

The English Garrison under Colonel Skerrett, including 600 Spanish Infantry and 100 Horse, amounted to 2,500 men. On December 20th, 1811, the place was invested, the breach being held by the 87th under Colonel the late Lord Gough.

At the assault on January 4th, 1812, the Allies lost 5 officers wounded, and 31 men killed or hurt. The French dead covered the slopes in front of the rampart, and choked the bed of the river. Ten wounded officers, of whom only one survived, were brought in by the breach.

The siege ended at daylight on January 5th, 1812; Laval destroyed his guns, and retreated; the expedition having cost him 1000 men. The Allies lost in all 150 men killed and wounded, and one officer killed.

CIUDAD RODRIGO.

JANUARY 19th, 1812.

This fortress is 140 miles west of Madrid in Spain. It was stormed and captured by Generals McKinnon and Crawford. Both Generals were killed.

Ciudad Rodrigo, founded by Count Roderick in 1170 (the Mirobriga of the ancients), is a barrier fortification on the side of Portugal; it has seven gates and is defended by a wall, deep fosse, and strong citadel. Lieutenant Mackie and 20 men of the 88th Regiment formed the “Forlorn Hope,” to whom the enemy surrendered after a stubborn resistance.

Three hundred of the French fell, and 1,500 prisoners were taken; also 150 guns and immense stores of ammunition. The allies lost 1,200 men and 90 officers; of these 650 men and 60 officers fell in the breaches. The siege lasted 12 days.

ST. SEBASTIAN.

AUGUST 31st, 1813.

St. Sebastian is 30 miles west-south-west of Bayonne. Lord Wellington sent General Sir Thomas Graham to storm this town, which was defended by the French, under Emmanuel Rey. The British casualties were 2,500 men and officers.

"The Governor and 500 men were wounded during the siege; he had only 1,300 men fit for duty, with 800 prisoners to guard, 10 guns alone were fit for service, and of these three faced the sea; there was little water in the place, and his soldiers had to lie on the naked rocks, exposed to our fire.

"The Governor surrendered, and with all honors of war, drums beating and colours flying, saluted by British troops, the gallant French officer marched from the place he had defended so well, at the head of a garrison reduced to one third of its original numbers, and thus after 63 days of open trenches, terminated the siege of San Sebastian."—Napier.

MEANEE.

FEBRUARY 17th, 1843.

This is a village in Scinde. Sir Charles Napier here defeated the Ameers of Hyderabad, Khyrpore, and Meerpore.

The British Army under Napier consisted of 2,600 men. In front of the enemy's position lay a natural ravine. They had 5,000 Cavalry and more than 30,000 Infantry, entirely Beloochies, also 15 guns. Their guns opened fire at 15 paces; our men charged, but halted and staggered back at the flashing forest of sword blades that glittered in their front. A charge of our Cavalry made by Colonel Pattle on the Scindian right gave us the battle, but the fighting lasted for three hours, and our losses were six European officers, 60 sergeants and privates killed, 14 officers and 200 privates wounded. Six thousand of the Beloochies were slain.

KHARTOUM.

SEPTEMBER 2nd, 1898.

At Khartoum, the Capital of the Soudan in Egypt, Lord Kitchener defeated the dervishes, under the Khalifa, with great slaughter. It was here that the 21st Lancers made the famous charge, on account of which Her Majesty Queen Victoria conferred on the regiment the title of "Empress of India's Lancers."

AMBOOR.

DECEMBER 6th, 1767.

Amboor is a fort in the Madras Presidency, not far from Arcot; situated on an almost impregnable rock. In 1767 it was attacked by Hyder Ali, Nawab of Mysore, and gallantly defended, for over a month, by 15 men of the Madras European Regiment, now the 1st Royal Dublin Fusiliers, and 500 of the 10th Madras Native Infantry, under Major Calvert. The siege was raised on December 6th by Colonel Joseph Smith with the Madras European Regiment, from Vellore, on whose approach the enemy retired.

“Amboor” is on the Colours of the—
10th Madras Infantry

COCHIN.

OCTOBER 20th, 1795.

Cochin is on the Malabar Coast of India. The town was besieged and captured from the Dutch, under Governor Vanspal, by Major Petrie. In 1814 Cochin was formally ceded to the English by treaty.

“Cochin” is on the Colours of the—
33rd Madras Infantry

SEEDASEER.

MARCH 6th, 1799.

This town is on the boundary of the province of Coorg in Southern India. Early in 1799 a force under General Stuart, co-operating with the troops under General Harris, against Tippoo Sultan, advanced from Cannanoro on the south-west coast to Seedaseer, and on the morning of March 6th the enemy, 12,000 strong, attacked them, but the British brigade, though consisting of only 2,000 of all ranks, held their ground, and repulsed every attack until nearly 3 p.m., when they were supported by H.M. 77th Regiment and two companies of the 75th, who charged the enemy vigorously, and after a smart engagement of nearly half-an-hour drove them off in confusion.

SEETABULDEE.

NOVEMBER 26th-27th, 1817. •

The battlefield and cantonment of Seetabuldee are near Nagpore in the Central Province of India. The war in 1817 was against the Mahrattas under Appa Sahib, and the final fight took place on November 26th and 27th, when the enemy were routed.

KOREGAUM.

JANUARY 1st, 1818.

This was as brilliant an action as was ever fought. The troops engaged were a few (300) auxiliary cavalry, now the 4th Bombay Cavalry, 600 men of the 2nd Bombay Infantry, and a few of the Madras Artillery, with two 6-pounder guns. These were attacked by the Peishwa of Poonah, with 20,000 cavalry, 8,000 infantry, and 2 guns. The attack lasted from noon until 9 p.m., when the enemy were forced to abandon the siege with great loss. Assistant-Surgeon Wylie of the Madras Army greatly distinguished himself. Three British officers were killed, 2 died of wounds, and 2 were wounded and recovered, and a proportionate number of men were killed and wounded.

NOWAH.

This place in the Hyderabad country was the stronghold of a rebel named Nowsajee Naik, who held it with a number of Arabs and refused to surrender. A force of cavalry, artillery, and infantry, with siege guns, under Major Doveton, invested Nowah and after a most gallant attack, which lasted for over a month, succeeded in capturing the fort at a cost of 24 men killed and 180 wounded, including six English officers.

PERSIAN GULF.

1819-20.

In November, 1819, a force under Sir William Grant Keir proceeded to the Persian Gulf for the purpose of reducing the piratical states in that quarter. The fort of Rasool Khyma was attacked and reduced, and the troops returned to Bombay in March, 1820.

"Persian Gulf" is emblazoned on the Colours of—

KEMMENDINE.

NOVEMBER 30th to DECEMBER 9th, 1824.

Kemmendine was a fortified stockade situated on the Irrawaddy river, north of Rangoon, Burmah. The garrison, under Major Yates, during the first Burmese war consisted of a few European and Native Artillery, 87 men of the Madras European Regiment, now the 1st Royal Dublin Fusiliers, and the 26th Madras Native Infantry. On November 30th the enemy approached, and on December 2nd made a determined attempt to escalate, but were repulsed with severe loss. At 8 p.m. they again attacked on all sides at once and were again beaten back. Numerous other attacks were made on subsequent days, and heavy firing was kept up day and night, giving the troops no rest, until December 9th when the enemy retired and ended the siege. The Burmese loss was great, that of the garrison several men killed and wounded, and one officer killed.

No troops could have behaved with greater gallantry, and nothing could have surpassed the conduct of the men of the 26th Madras Native Infantry who, for their bravery during the siege, well merit the honour conferred upon them of bearing "Kemmendine" on their Colours.

"Kemmendine" is on the Colours of the—

ARRACAN.

1826.

This is a district in Burmah, east of the Bay of Bengal. It was annexed by Great Britain in 1826, and the Kingdom formed into a province under the Bengal Government.

"Arracan" is on the Standards and Colours of the—

KAHUN.

MAY to SEPTEMBER, 1840.

This is a fortified town in Beloochistan near the Nafusk Pass.

A force under Captain Brown, consisting of 250 men of the 5th Bombay Infantry, accompanied by Lieutenant Clarke and 40 men of the Scind Horse, together with 50 additional men of the 5th Bombay Infantry, attached for the purpose of escorting back the baggage animals to headquarters at Lehree, took possession of Kahun without opposition on May 11th.

On the 14th, the Scind Horse and baggage detachment of 50 men started on the return march, but Captain Brown, having heard that the enemy (the Murrees) were in force in his vicinity, sent an additional 80 men with them, with orders to remain with Lieutenant Clarke, commanding the party, until clear of the Nafusk Pass.

Lieutenant Clarke, however, after proceeding 12 miles, directed the 80 men to return to Kahun and these on their way back were surrounded in a Pass and killed to a man, after a most gallant and stubborn resistance

Subsequently Lieutenant Clarke's party was also attacked and all his force but 12 (who managed to escape) were killed after a heroic defence and a final brilliant charge, the total losses for the day being, Lieutenant Clarke, three Native officers, and 147 rank and file killed.

The fort was now invested by the enemy, and on August 31st a convoy under Major Clibborn which attempted its relief was driven back with heavy loss. On September 27th, Captain Brown, by orders from the Government, negotiated with the Murree Chief, evacuated the fort, and returned to head quarters at Lehree.

KHELAT I GILZAI.

MAY 21st, 1842.

This is a fortress in Afghanistan, between Candahar and Ghuznee, and here, in 1842, a garrison consisting of the 36th Bengal Infantry (now the 12th) under Major Craigie were beleaguered by the Gilzai tribe 2,000 strong. On the 21st the enemy assaulted the fort and attempted three times in the most gallant manner to take it by escalade, many of them being bayoneted on the ramparts, but they were always nobly repulsed, and after an hour's fighting left 100 of their dead at the foot of the works, and 500 men in all killed and wounded during the siege. Not a man of the garrison was killed and they were relieved the same day by a Brigade from Candahar, under Major Wymer.

“Khelat i Gilzai” is on the Colours of the—
12th Bengal Infantry

ARRAH.

JULY 27th to AUGUST 3rd, 1857.

Arrah is a town in Bengal, 36 miles west of Patna. The mutinous Sepoys marched to Arrah and laid siege to the little band of 12 Europeans and 50 Sikhs stationed there. The garrison gallantly held two buildings (called the Judge's houses) against the rebels under Koer Singh for 8 days, from July 27th to August 3rd, 1857, when they were relieved by Major Vincent Eyre with 4 guns, 60 English gunners, 100 men of the 78th Highlanders, and 150 men of the 5th Fusiliers.

Major Eyre's party charged the enemy, consisting of 2,000 Sepoys, and four times that number of armed rebels, and utterly routed them, the guns at the same time pouring volleys of grape into the retreating masses.

“Arrah” is on the Colours of the—

AFRICA (BRITISH EAST).

1897 to 1899.

The above distinction was granted for an expedition under Major Martyr against the Ogaden Somalis, the Soudanese mutineers, and the Waganda rebels, which proceeded northwards from Uganda.

The chief result was the establishment of effective occupation as far north as Rejaf.

“British East Africa, 1899” is on the Colours of the—

SARMANA.

SEPTEMBER 12th to 14th, 1897.

This action was one of the most gallant defences known in war. Fort Gulistan, on the Sarmana range of mountains, near the frontier of Afghanistan, was in September garrisoned by a force of 166 men of the 36th Sikhs under Major Des Vœux, and on the 12th it was attacked by some 10,000 Afredi tribesmen. On the 13th a mere handful of the garrison made a sortie and captured several standards, putting their opponents to flight. On the 14th after a three days' strenuous beleaguering, they were relieved by General Yeatman Biggs, when the enemy were driven off.

The garrison lost 2 killed and 40 wounded; of the enemy 200 were killed and wounded.

Twenty men of this regiment held the fort of Saragari close by fort Gulistan, and perished to a man rather than surrender; their noble deed has been commemorated by the erection of a monument at Amritsar.

BATTLES NOT ON COLOURS.

CRESSY.

AUGUST 26th, 1346.

“Fought by Edward III., with about 30,000 men, against Philip of France with 120,000. The French were defeated with terrible loss; besides the Count D’Alençon, the Kings of Bohemia and Majorca, several Dukes, Counts, and 1,200 Knights, there were 30,000 soldiers slain. The English lost so few the number has never been authoritatively stated. The French lost 80 Standards; among these, the King of Bohemia’s banners, with the motto “Ich Dien,” now the Prince of Wales’s.”
—Balch.

Four cannon were used at this battle by the English.

POICTIERS.

SEPTEMBER 19th, 1356.

“Fought between the Black Prince (Prince of Wales, son of Edward III.), with 14,000 men, against John I. of France, with 60,000 men. The French were defeated, losing 8,000 men, while the King, Prince Philip, 13 Counts, one Archbishop, 70 Barons and Baronets, 2000 men-at-arms, and a vast multitude of inferior soldiers, remained prisoners in the hands of the Prince of Wales. The French King died some years later in the Savoy Palace in the Strand, London.”—Balch

AGINCOURT.

OCTOBER 25th, 1415.

"Fought between Henry V. of England, with about 14,500 men, and the French, led by Charles D'Albert, Comte de Dreux, the Dukes of Bar and D'Alençon, and the Lords Marle and Falconberg, with 100,000 men. The French were defeated, losing the Comte de Dreux, the Dukes of Alençon and Brabant, the Count de Nevers, the Duke of Bar, the Counts of Vaudemont, Marle, Roussi, and Falconberg, more than 100 of different ranks who had banners borne before them, 1,500 Knights, and 7,000 soldiers. The English lost only the Duke of York, the Earl of Suffolk, and, if English historians are to be believed, only four Knights, one Squire, and 1,600 men."—Balch.

NAMUR.

AUGUST 20th, 1695.

"Fought between William of Orange (King of England), with the Allied Army, well trained, and Louis XIV. of France. The French garrison numbered 16,000, commanded by Marshal Boufflers. The fortress was considered almost impregnable, but on July 24th, after being attacked for 16 days, the French surrendered, having lost 5,000 men in the defence of the city, and 4,000 by desertion. Marshal Boufflers withdrew into the Citadel. The siege continued, and on August 20th the grand assault ensued. On this day the Allied Army lost 2,000 men. Marshal Boufflers finally signed the terms of capitulation, the first ever signed by a Marshal of France. The Allies lost during the siege 12,000 men. The garrison was reduced to 5,000.

"The 18th Foot, the Royal Irish Regiment, received its motto, "Virtutis Namurcensis Præmium," for its storming the Castle of Namur in 1695."—Balch.

KAUVERIPAK.

FEBRUARY 23rd, 1752.

This place is not far from Arcot, Madras, and here a French force was strongly entrenched to oppose the advance of Captain Clive. The French Commander (name unknown) had with him 400 French soldiers, 2,000 Sepoys, 2,500 Cavalry, 9 guns, and 3 mortars. Clive with 380 men of his corps, the Madras European Regiment, 1,300 Sepoys, and 6 guns, attacked the position at sunset, and after desperate fighting succeeded in entering the entrenchment at about midnight, when he drove the French out and gained a complete victory, capturing all their guns, and taking many prisoners.

Fifty Frenchmen and 300 of their Sepoys lay dead on the field, and many more were wounded.

"This battle, the first in the open (in India) against the French, founded the reputation of the British Army in India. Materially and morally, it was a very decisive battle."—Malleson's Decisive Battles of India.

The Madras European Regiment is now known as the 1st Battalion of the Royal Dublin Fusiliers.

BAHOOR.

AUGUST 26th, 1752.

The vicinity of this town, which is near Trichinopoly, Madras, is famous for a battle which in Military annals is one of the very few actions on record where bayonets were crossed.

The British regiment (the Madras European Regiment) under the celebrated Colonel Stringer Lawrence, on August the 26th, crossed bayonets fairly with one of the French regiments then in India. The French regiment, momentarily, stood the charge, but speedily broke and fled, with the loss of 100 killed (by the bayonet alone), the capture of four commandants, 15 junior officers, 100 men, and the whole of their artillery munitions, tumbrils, and stores.

The Madras European Regiment lost one officer killed, four wounded, and 78 men killed and wounded, mostly by bayonet thrusts, which proved the gallant resistance of the enemy.

The Madras European Regiment is now known as the 1st Battalion of the Royal Dublin Fusiliers.

TRICHINOPOLY.

1752 to 1757.

Trichinopoly, a strong fortress in Southern India, was captured from the French by Captain (afterwards Lord) Clive of the Madras European Regiment on June 3rd, 1752, when 800 French soldiers and 35 officers surrendered. The fortress was then garrisoned by the British, and it subsequently, until 1757, withstood many a siege and witnessed many a severe encounter outside its walls.

On September 30th, 1753, Lieutenant Harrison of the Madras European Regiment successfully opposed an attack by the French, taking 360 prisoners, and killing 100 of the enemy.

On April 13th, 1754, Captain Calliaud of the Madras European Regiment, with 350 of his men and 1,500 Sepoys defeated 700 Frenchmen, 50 French Dragoons, 500 Sepoys, and 10,000 Native Cavalry outside Trichinopoly. The siege was raised in 1757.

The Madras European Regiment is now the 1st Battalion of the Royal Dublin Fusiliers.

FORT ST. GEORGE.

DECEMBER 14th, 1758, to FEBRUARY 16th, 1759.

Fort St. George, Madras, was on December 14th, 1758, besieged by M. M. Lally, Bussy, and Soupire, with a force consisting of 2,000 French Dragoons, 3,000 French Infantry, 10,000 Sepoys, and a powerful artillery. The garrison, commanded by the Governor, Mr. Pigot, assisted by Colonel Stringer Lawrence, was composed of a battalion and a half of the Madras European Regiment, and Draper's Regiment, the 79th Foot, the two numbering 1,669 men, 64 European Gunners of the Royal and Madras Artillery, 89 Caffres, 2,220 Sepoys, and 24 English troopers.

"During the siege, which lasted for 63 days, the English fired 26,554 rounds from their guns, 7,502 shells from mortars; the Infantry expending 200,000 rounds of Cartridges, while 30 guns and 5 mortars were dismantled, and 8,000 shells were fired by the enemy into the fort. Thirteen officers were killed, 16 officers were wounded or died of sickness, and four were taken prisoners during sorties; 198 English soldiers were killed, 52 died in hospital, 122 were taken prisoners, and 167 were wounded; 114 Sepoys were killed, 217 wounded, and 440 deserted.

"The siege was raised on February 16th, 1759, on the approach of reinforcements by sea."—Mill.

The Madras European Regiment is now the 1st Battalion of the Royal Dublin Fusiliers; the present 79th Foot were raised in 1793.

UNDWAH NULLA.

SEPTEMBER 5th, 1763.

"This action was fought between the British and the troops under Mir Cassim, Nawab of Bengal, assisted by the French

"Major John Adams had under him 1,000 British Infantry, made up of H.M.'s 84th, the Madras European Regiment, the Bengal Europeans, and 4,000 Sepoys. Mir Cassim's Army comprised 40,000 men, including a powerful Artillery.

"The strong fortress of Undwah Nulla, rendered all but impregnable, being surrounded by a morass, is not far from Patna in Bengal, and here the enemy were posted. A deserter from the enemy pointed out a pathway across the morass, otherwise the siege would have had to be raised, but with this information an attack was determined on, and on the early morning of the 5th the Grenadiers of the British Regiments, assisted by two regiments of Sepoys, led the assault, which was followed by the rest of the troops. It was entirely successful, the enemy fled paralyzed, leaving 100 guns behind them. The capture of Undwah Nulla was the most glorious, daring, and successful feat of arms ever achieved."—Malleson's Decisive Battles of India.

The 84th Foot is now the 2nd York and Lancaster Regiment; the Madras European Regiment is now the 1st Royal Dublin Fusiliers; the Bengal Europeans, constituted a regiment in 1766, are now the 1st Royal Munster Fusiliers.

PORTO NOVO.

JULY 1st, 1781.

“Porto Novo is a town north of Pondicherry on the south-east coast of India, and it was here that Sir Eyre Coote, with 8,476 men, of whom only 2,070 were Europeans, encountered the renowned Hyder Ali, Nawab of Mysore, who had under him an army of 80,000 men.

“The battle commenced at 7 a.m., and was fiercely contested until 4 p.m., when Hyder fled with all his guns.

“The enemy's loss is unknown, but must have been great; it was estimated at 10,000 men. The British loss was 587 killed and wounded, of whom 17 were officers.

“Porto Novo was one of the most decisive battles ever fought. It broke the spell formed by the defeat of Colonel Baillie and the events of that disastrous campaign.”—Malleson's Decisive Battles of India.

The troops employed were—the 73rd Highlanders, now the 74th, or 2nd Battalion Highland Light Infantry; the Bengal European Regiment, now the 1st Battalion the Royal Munster Fusiliers, and the Madras European Regiment, now the 1st Battalion the Royal Dublin Fusiliers, besides many Sepoy Regiments, including the 2nd Madras Cavalry, and the 2nd, 9th, 15th, 16th, and 21st Madras Infantry.

POLLILORE.

SEPTEMBER 27th, 1781.

Pollilore is a village near Conjeveram in the Madras Presidency, and it was here that Sir Eyre Coote defeated Hyder Ali, the Nawab of Mysore.

“The enemy were now encamped on the same ground at Pollilore on which Colonel Baillie's detachment was cut up the year before. This ground Hyder Ali had examined with great care, and determined to offer Sir Eyre Coote battle on the same spot and on the same day of the year. On the morning of the 27th the army advanced at about 8 o'clock, and discovered the enemy drawn up in order of battle. The first line under Sir Hector Munroe advanced and formed up in position steadily, under a fire from 8 or 10 guns. The second line under General Stewart moved to the left. A heavy cannonade was opened upon both their flanks. Monroe's division, forming on the right of the second line, the movement brought them on the same spot of ground where Colonel Baillie had made his last stand. The fragments of bones, legs, arms, and skulls of their slaughtered comrades, strewed unburied over the position, brought the bloody tragedy of last September to their minds, and excited feelings of the most deadly vengeance against the enemy. As the British approached, Hyder withdrew and retired, leaving Sir Eyre Coote master of the field. The English loss was very heavy, that of the enemy something less than 2,000. 600 of the British were killed or wounded, almost all desperately."

The troops engaged were the—

CUDDALORE.

JUNE 12th, 1783, to JULY 1st, 1783.

"Cuddalore is a strong fortress south of Pondicherry, the French settlement on the S.E. coast of India. The garrison consisted of the Marquis de Bussy with 3,000 French infantry, 3,500 Caffres and French Sepoys, together with 2,000 cavalry and 3,000 infantry belonging to the army of Tippoo Sahib Nawab of Mysore.

"On June 12th the British Forces under General Stuart composed of 1,160 European Soldiers, made up from H.M.'s 73rd and 78th Regiments, the 101st Hanoverian Regiment, the Bengal and Madras European Regiments, 8,000 Sepoys, and 1,000 Native Cavalry, stormed and captured the outposts, the battle lasting the whole day and resulting in the capture of 17 guns and 50 prisoners, but the British loss was 1,030 men killed and wounded, the French being about the same.

"On June 14th a French Squadron arrived and landed 1,700 men, and on June 24th an additional 2,400, all from France.

During the night of June 25th the French, thus reinforced, made a determined sortie on the British position, but were repulsed with heavy loss, Colonel Damas and 100 French Soldiers being made prisoners, amongst them a sergeant named Bernadotte, who afterwards became a Marshal of France, and ultimately King of Sweden, where his descendants still reign.

On July 1st the French raised a flag of truce, as a French ship had just arrived bringing the news that peace between Great Britain and France had been concluded. The war against the French was thus at an end."—Orme.

BANGALORE.

MARCH 21st, 1791.

"The siege of this fortress in the Madras Presidency by Lord Cornwallis commenced on March 5th.

• "On the 7th the town of Bangalore was assaulted and taken after severe street fighting, and the enemy driven out with great slaughter, having lost nearly 2,000 in killed and wounded.

"On the 8th the batteries were directed against the Fort and operations continued until the 21st, during which time the besiegers were constantly threatened by the entire Mysore Army 100,000 strong under Tippoo Sultan.

"On the morning of the 21st Lord Cornwallis struck his camp and marched out determined to assault that night. At 11 o'clock on a bright moonlight night the British advanced silently to the assault; the breach was obstinately contested, but the energy and firmness of the British soon prevailed, and the ramparts were gained. The Killedar (Governor) was killed fighting gallantly at his post. The slaughter of the enemy was great, the Mysore gate being quite choked up with the dead, and nearly 1,500 bodies were buried next day, but the number of wounded was never exactly known. The majority fell by the bayonet; 300 prisoners were taken. The British lost 500 in killed and wounded."—Orme.

ARGAUM.

SEPTEMBER 29th, 1803.

"In this action Lord Wellesley again opposed the Armies of Daolut Rao Sindhia and the Bhonslé, which were drawn up on the plain covering the village which gave name to the battle. The enemy's line showed a front of five miles in length, and contained nearly the same number of men who fought at Assaye a few days previously, i.e., about 30,000 Cavalry and 40,000 foot soldiers. The action commenced at 4 p.m., and as the English line advanced a body of Infantry 500 strong, called Persian, but really Arabs, dashed forward to meet it; the 74th and 78th regiments received them with steadiness, and marching calmly forward, swept them almost to a man, into eternity. The three regiments of Madras Cavalry, the 4th, 5th, and 7th, led by Wellesley in person, galloped up and met the dense masses of the enemy's cavalry in full shock, causing the Mahratta horsemen to recoil disheartened and in disorder before the British-led troopers of Madras.

"This charge, and the simultaneous destruction of the Arab Cohort, decided the battle; the enemy's long line broke and fled. The enemy lost 38 guns, their camp equipage, their confidence, their hope, and their Army dispersed, never to meet again

"Argaum, won with the loss of 15 Europeans and 31 Sepoys killed, and less than 200 wounded, was the complement to Assaye, it finished the war in Southern and Western India"—Malleson.

Troops employed—

British: the 74th and 78th Regiments.

Indian: the 4th, 5th, and 7th Madras Cavalry.

ASSEERGHUR.

APRIL 8th, 1819.

Asseerghur is a hill fort in the Mahratta country, situated on the top of a precipitous rock about 700 feet high, accessible in two places only, and these fortified in the strongest manner. On March 17th General Doveton took up his position before Asseerghur; his army consisting of the Hyderabad subsidiary force, partly composed of foot artillery, H.M.'s 1st and 30th Foot, the Madras European Regiment, and three Sepoy regiments. Sir John Malcolm's Division and the Bombay Brigade composed of Bombay Foot Artillery, H.M.'s 57th Foot, three Sepoy regiments, and Pioneers.

On the 18th at daylight the pettah was stormed and taken. On April 7th the breaching batteries opened fire, and before evening made a practicable breach; by 11 a.m. next day the garrison accepted terms. Early on the morning of the 9th the British flag was hoisted on the western tower of the upper fort, under a Royal Salute from all the batteries, and the garrison, consisting of 12,000 men, surrendered their arms.

Of the enemy 43 only were killed and 95 wounded. The loss on the side of the British was eleven European officers, four Native officers, 95 English soldiers, and 113 Native non-commissioned officers and rank and file killed and wounded. The fall of Asseerghur closed the Mahratta campaign.

The British troops engaged were the—1st Foot, R. Scots.

30th Foot, 1st E. Lanc.
57th Foot, 1st Middx.

THE BOER WAR.

OCTOBER 11th, 1899, to MAY 31st, 1902.

President Kruger of the Transvaal and President Steyn of the Orange Free State declared war against Great Britain and invaded British territory in Natal and Cape Colony. The British Army under Lords Roberts and Kitchener took the field, and after nearly three years fighting defeated the Boers, took possession of their capitals, and annexed their country. The British losses amounted to 22,062 men. Peace was signed on May 31st, 1902.

CHINA.

AUGUST 14th, 1900.

Early in this year an anti-foreign movement, known as the Boxer outbreak, began in Shantung and spread in the northern provinces. Massacres of Native Christians, Missionaries, and foreigners took place, together with great destruction of property. The movement was supported by Prince Tuan, and encouraged by the Empress. Tientsin was invested and the Legations at Peking were besieged. A joint force of over 100,000 troops was sent by the Powers, who retook Tientsin and relieved Peking on August 14th, 1900. General Sir Arthur Gaselee commanded the British troops numbering 20,000 men. The war ended in September, 1901.
