Prefatory Remarks.

The object of the present work, is to supply in a collective form, most of the scattered records and notices of various families bearing the ancient surname of Edgar, in order that genealogists may find, ready to hand, materials, for the most part extracted, during a long course of investigation, from the Public Archives of Scotland; and which may be found to throw some light on the origin of the Edgars of Wedderlie, in Berwickshire, and on their numerous offshoots, which have gradually fallen into comparative decay.

Except in a few instances, the compiler's researches have not extended to a period later than the middle of the eighteenth century; his aim having been, rather to point out the early Cadets of Wedderlie, from whom descents may yet be traced, by those who may have an object in doing so.

As all the materials used in the tabulation of the Pedigree of Edgar of Wedderlie are to be found detailed in this volume, the reader will experience no difficulty in testing the compiler's accuracy; and on the other hand, the latter expects equally authentic evidence to be produced in refutation of any statements that may appear erroneous.

It may here be observed, that amongst the voluminous records of the General Register House, Edinburgh, it would be well nigh impossible for one person entirely to exhaust the notices of a particular Surname which may occur in deeds, &c., registered under other names, and without special clues certain obscure points in the present work must await collateral assistance of this description.

Of the nine hundred and fifty-two parish registers of Scotland mentioned in the Registrar General's Report, comparatively few are older than the commencement of last century—and, so far as the compiler has been able to discover, the Surname Edgar is to be found in only about twenty. Thus the present collection necessarily bears no proportion to the mass of records from which it has been derived, and the information obtained, in some instances, may be thought too trivial; yet we cannot altogether ignore the remark of a reviewer* of "the Historical records of the Family of Leslie," that "no one can say at what time the smallest particle of information may not become valuable" in giving "help for historic purposes." †

* In "The Scotsman."

† This applies to notices from Newspapers, without which, sometimes, a clue would be entirely lost.

The motive which led the compiler to undertake his task, was a distrust of Family Traditions, which although sometimes useful as clues, are quite as often the sources of the strangest delusions and pretensions. Impressed with this pardonable scepticism, he has endeavoured to act up to the principle inculcated in "the Curiosities of Literature," that "what we can ascertain, it would be a dereliction of duty to conceal."

Few notices of Edgars occur in published works; and in those of the present century, in which the name is found, such notices often betray their origin, and cannot stand the test of the public records.

Technical difficulties have prevented the use of the forms of Latin abbreviations, to be found in old charters, &c., but it is hoped that little inconvenience will arise from their omission in these pages.

In conclusion, the compiler begs respectfully to acknowledge his obligation to the Custodians of the Public Records of Scotland—and more especially to GEORGE BURNETT, Esq., Lyon King of Arms, R. R. STODART, Esq., Lyon Clerk Depute, and THOMAS DICKSON, Esq., Curator of the Historical Department, Register House, Edinburgh. He has also received valuable assistance from private sources, for which a similar acknowledgement is due. Nor is he altogether disobliged—in a literary point of view—by the use made of a portion of his materials by "a Committee of the Grampian Club," in the recent anticipatory volume, which has been published in disregard of his prohibition.

THE PRINCIPAL FAMILIES OF EDGAR.

Edgar of Wedderlie.

EDGAR is an old and peculiar surname. One might suppose that, even at the present day, it would be common, at any rate about large cities, and in those districts whose characteristics are still, to a certain extent, more especially Saxon. When, however, we come to inquire narrowly, and refer to Directories, we find it of rare occurrence. For example, if we take the diocese of Winchester, and run over the index of wills in its Probate Court, from 1498 down to the present time, or, at any rate to the close of the last century, among numerous Saxon names, that of Edgar occurs but thrice; and in two of these wills, oddly enough, we meet with the same corrupt spelling of the name which, in the contemporaneous registers of the northern kingdom, was so prevalent.

It is doubtful whether, prior to the present century, even where Scottish patronymics were largely infused, there were any persons of this name in the sister isle.*

In England, an ancient family of the name settled in Berkshire at an early period. That, and the Edgar family in Suffolk, may have had a common ancestor; and it may not be saying too much to suggest their descent from one or other of the Edgars who appear in the pedigrees of the Saxon Earls of Northumbria.

A few persons named Edgar † seem to have been in attendance upon, or connected with, the courts of several of the ancient kings of Scotland. One named "Gilbert, son of Edgar, was witness to the execution of a charter by William the Lion, about 1176. Another, named "Edgar, son of Henry," was witness to a charter by King David, about 1208. Another, "Gilbert, son of Edgar," was witness to a charter in 1200; and "Walter, son of Edgar," was witness to a charter of the lands of Scrogges, in 1208.

In Rymer's "Fœdera" three notices of this name are to be found. 1. In the 24th Edward I. (1296),—"Walterus Edger persona de Penicok vicecomiti de Edenburgh." 2. 1st Edward II. (1308),—"De vadiis prisonibus Scotiæ," &c., "habere facias Galfrido Edger.....in castro nostro Ebor." 3. 7th Edward II. (1314)....."quod Isabella de Brus in Castro prædicto sub custodia vestra, de mandata nostro, jam existens, habeat secum, ut de familia suâ, Elenam Edger, Johannem de Claydon, Samuelem de Lynford et Willielmum de Preston," &c., &c.

Besides these, we find a notice of a Sir Patrick Edgar, ("Ric de Barneby Domino Patricio Edgar Militi") in 1272, in the Chronicle of Lanercost; and in the reign of King John, (Abbrev.

* There is at present a family of the name in Belfast; they came from Dumfries.

† "Verstigan derives the name from EAD an oath, and TAP to keep." Bayley's "Etym. Dict.," Edin., 1789.

Placit.) "Edgar avuncul. Comitum Waldevi patris comit? Patricii fuit seisis in Dñico suo sicut de feudo de Villa de Bewic." &c.—But to proceed.

"In the shire of Berwick," says Nisbet, "besides the Homes, there were other ancient families of different surnames, who carried lions rampant in variation of tinctures, from the old Earls of Dunbar and March; whether upon the account of descent from that eminent family, or, as vassals, carried lions in imitation of those of their patrons, I shall not be positive, as the Hepburns, Rentons, and of the name of Edgar who held their lands of the old Earls of Dunbar.

"The principal family of the name of Edgar there, is Edgar of Wadderlie, yet extant, who carried for their proper arms—Sable, a lion rampant argent.

"As for the antiquity of the name, I shall here vouch a charter of Earl Patrick, son of Waldeve, Earl of Dunbar, who grants to the monks of Durham, the church and lands of Edram for prayers to be said for the soul of his father and mother, of King Malcolm, his sons, King Edgar, King Alexander, King David, and his son Earl Henry, and King Malcolm, and for the safety of his brother David, and for himself, wife, and children. The charter has no date, but is granted in the reign of King William, and in it are many witnesses, among whom are many barons in the shire of Berwick, as 'Stephen Papedie, Robert de Bonaire, Gilbert de Hume, Henrie de Prenderghest, Edward de Aldcambus, Alan de Suyntoun, Willielm de Nesbit, and Willielm filius Edgari.'

"The last-mentioned William, son of Edgar, I take to be one of the progenitors of Edgar of Wadderlie.

"The aforesaid principal charter is fully repeated in the charter of confirmation of King Robert the Bruce, dated at Berwick, the 15th day of November, in the 21st year of his reign.

"Richard Edgar,* in the reign of King Robert the Bruce, married the eldest daughter and coheir of Ross of Sanquhar, and William Crichton married the other sister. . . . King Robert confirms to Richard and his son Donald Edgar, the half of the lands of Sanquhar, with the manor place as the charter bears:—'De capitali mannerio in Baronia de Sanquehar cum medi [et] ate ejusdem Barronie ad ipsum mannerium pertinen.' It appears that Edgar of Wedderlie is descended of this Richard.

"I have seen a resignation in the custody of Edgar of Wedderlie, by Richard Edgar, son of Richard Edgar of the lands of Wedderlie, in favour of Robert Edgar Dominus de Wedderlie, in the year 1376, and confirmed to his son, John Edgar of Wedderlie, 1384.

"And beside the Arms of Wedderlie are quartered with figures like to these of Ross of Sanquhar—three water budgets or, much defaced, as on an old stone on the house of Wedderlie, supported by two greyhounds; and for crest, a dexter hand holding a dagger, point downwards. Motto: 'Man (maun) do it,' and on a compartment below, 'Salutem disponit Deus.'

"It has been remarked, with reference to the origin of our Peerage, that two great Houses,†

* Unlike the majority of noble surnames this is not territorial—twice only is an Edgar named (William) "de Wedderlie."

† "The family of Cospatrick, a powerful Northumbrian nobleman, took refuge in Scotland after the death of Harold at Hastings, and in 1072 had extensive lands in the Merse and Lothian gifted them by Malcolm Canmore. They continued to be one of the most opulent and powerful Houses in the east of Scotland for a considerable period, as evinced by their donations, noted in the chartularies of Coldingham, Newbottle, Dryburgh, Kelso, one English, one Scottish, sprang from the best Saxon aristocracy. Of the old Earls of Northumberland, one named Cospatrick left England after the Conquest, and settled in Scotland. He was ancestor of the Earls of Dunbar, of whom the Homes, and we believe the Edgars, are cadets. From him the Nevilles of Raby, in England, are also descended."

According to Douglas ("Peerage of Scotland:" ed. Wood, ii. 107) the descent is stated thus:—

I. Cospatrick, son of Maldred, by Algetha, daughter and heiress of Uchtred, Prince of Northumbria, by Elgiva, daughter of Ethelred, King of England, was father of Dolfyn and,—

II. Cospatrick, 1st Earl of Dunbar, whose son,—

III. Cospatrick, 2nd Earl, died in 1147, leaving 1. Cospatrick (3rd Earl). 2. Edward. 3. Edgar ("who appears to have been ancestor of those of the surname Edgar.") 4. Uchtred.

In Surtees' "Durham," we find, with many other collateral descents, the following:—

Waltheof (circa A.D. 969) father of Uchtred, who was thrice married, and had by his 2nd wife, Elgiva, a daughter, Aldgetha, who married Maldred, and was mother of Cospatrick, whose issue follows:—

1. Cospatrick, father of Cospatrick and Patrick.

2. Dolfyn (vis. 1120).

3. Waldeve.

4. Edgar.

5. Gunil, who married Orme, son of Kettel, and had Cospatrick, Dominus de Wokington, father of Thomas (ob. 1152), father of Patrick.

Waltheof (circa 969), by his 3rd wife, Sigen, had Cospatrick, the father of Uchtred, father of Dolfyn (1131), father of Maldred and Patrick. This Maldred was father of five children, viz.:

1. Robert, who married Isabella, daughter of G. de Neville. 2. Gilbert, 3. John. 4. Gilbert, 5. Richard.

In his version of the pedigree of the House of Dunbar, &c., many references are given by the author, to the sources of his information; it contains likewise the name of Siward, the Giant Earl of Northumberland, who is stated to have married Aelfied, the great granddaughter of Waltheof, the founder (?) of these families.

The territory once in possession of the Wedderlie family, appears to have extended in a broken chain from the coast of Berwickshire to the Mull of Galloway. Yet many small landowners bearing the name, who were settled under a peculiar tenure* in the royal patrimony at Lochmaben, may have had no distinct legitimate connection with the chief House, but at the same time it is probable there was but one family of the name.

It is evident that in the fourteenth century the House of Wedderlie was more powerfully

Melrose, and Soltra. Founded on a steep, rugged rock, within sea-mark, and communicating with the land through a covered passage, the castle of Dunbar might well, before the invention of gunpowder, have been deemed impregnable. It was often the theatre of warlike contention, and two great battles were fought in its immediate neighbourhood,—the first in 1296, when Earl Warrene defeated the army of Scotland sent for its relief; and the second in 1650, when Leslie was overthrown by Cromwell. It was often besieged, and as often bravely defended; but perhaps never so brilliantly as by Black Agnes against the Earl of Salisbury in 1337." — Quarterly Review, Jan. 1858.

* Existing likewise in the Orkneys.

represented in Nithsdale than in its native county ; and it is a question whether the representation of the family early in the seventeenth century did not revert to the head of the House settled in the former locality.

Towards the close of the thirteenth century an Edgar, Laird of Wedderlie, appears to have been married to a Countess of Home ; and immediately afterwards, the fortune of this House seems to have reached the summit of its prosperity, in the reign of King Robert the Bruce, at whose marriage Richard Edgar was a witness. One of the latter's four sons was placed by David Bruce, at the head of the Clan McGowan ; and Wedderlie itself seems to have been resigned to a younger brother,—probably the king's godson.

The Laird of Wedderlie, as co-representative of Robert de Ros, Lord of Sanquhar,—through his wife, a daughter of the latter,—was allied to the family of one of the competitors for the crown of Scotland in 1292.* Thus his position must have been among the foremost.

Yet it seems strange, that when a distinction came gradually to be made between territorial and titular barons, no Edgar should have acquired the latter rank ; thus losing for his descendants a nominal status, which, like many powerful barons, they perhaps undervalued, during the season of material prosperity, and before the encroachments of men inferior by birth, but more ambitious, had reduced,—by taking advantage of their inaptitude for business, or by marriage with their daughters,—the once noble possessions of the family, to comparatively a few acres.

Moreover, “they were among the few families who disobeyed the Act of James VI., c. 21, in not having their arms matriculated in the Lyon Register then established.”

Then again, the direct succession seems to have been more than once broken ; and, like certain other families of cognate origin, there is a period of obscurity midway in the descent ; and although it is incontrovertible, that even during the most troublous times, Wedderlie never was held but by an Edgar, still, the laird of that period may have been short-sighted, or ignorant of the intention of the act referred to, and content [having himself no doubt of his pedigree] to leave well alone.”

Of the Edgars of Wedderlie, in the fifteenth century, little is known, although it is evident that they must have continued to maintain considerable influence in their native county. In the following century, it is probable, that cadets of the house established themselves in Edinburgh.

The heads of the family seem to have been turbulent in the seventeenth century. The Laird of Wedderlie was, in 1679, a rebel. In 1661, George Edgar of Newtown, a cadet, was proceeded against, in the Court of Session, for oppressing Ker of Mersington and his servants, and preventing them cultivating their lands, and attending to peaceful occupations.

Towards the close of the seventeenth century, the irregularities of another laird brought him into frequent bad odour with the rigid Presbyterians of his parish, whose interference he resisted for a while ; but he was obliged eventually to yield to them.

In this latter century flourished the Edgars of Peffermyln.†

The lands of Wedderlie continued in the possession of the Edgar family until 1733—4, when they passed by sale to Robert, Lord Blantyre. So late, however, as the 25th July, 1736, John Edgar, the last in possession, marked the exodus of his race from their ancient patrimony, by the gift to his native parish of Westruther, of a Bible "bound in blue Turkey leather, for which the Session appoints the minister, Mr. Scott, to return thanks to Wadderlie."

* William de Ros, great grandson of Isabella, said to have been eldest daughter of William the Lion—Hailes' "Annals," 1776, v. p. 209.

From a reference to the title deeds, it would appear that the older muniments have either perished, or gone astray among other collections, for the earliest is a crown charter granted in the year 1619, to John Edgar, eldest son of Robert Edgar of Wedderlie. This is a curious coincidence, inasmuch as the succession of this Robert Edgar is one of the obscure links of the pedigree of Wedderlie.

Before the Reformation, the Edgars were buried in their own chapel at Wedderlie; from the Reformation to 1649, at Bassendean; and subsequently, at Westruther; all their tombstones, however, have unfortunately disappeared, with one exception, on which the last resident Laird of Wedderlie has left a memorial of himself, in his native parish, which, from its quaintness, seems characteristic of the sad and somewhat sarcastic spirit of its author.

An apocryphal story is told of the departure of the Edgars of Wedderlie, from their ancient inheritance. The family were fallen and obliged to sell their estates, and in the words of the narrator,—“The auld laird and leddy drove out in their carriage and four horses at mid-day; but the young laird (their only child) was broken-hearted at the thocht o' leaving the auld place, and he waited till the darkening; for he said the sun should na shine when he left his hame.”* The preserver of this anecdote was a very aged woman, named Eppy Forsyth, who died about 1840. She remembered seeing the young laird riding down the avenue alone; and said, “It was a dark nicht when the last Edgar rode out of Wedderlie.”

The death of the last recognised male heir of Wedderlie is thus recorded; and one of the many examples of the same kind of error is here repeated.

“1817, Feb. 12th, . . . In Bedford Street, Bedford Square, London, aged 80, Rear Admiral Alexander Edgar, the last male descendant of the Scottish family of Edgar of Wedderlie.”†

There are no complete pedigrees on record of the various families of Edgar in Scotland, and it would be a somewhat bold assertion to make, that there may not, at the present day, be many descendants in the male line, of the numerous cadets of the house of Wedderlie, in the sixteenth, seventeenth, and earlier centuries.‡

It is quite certain, for example, that the branch of the Wedderlie family, planted at Newtown de Birgham, in Berwickshire, flourished there until the death of Lieut.Colonel Hunter Edgar, in 1807.

But there is a probability of nearer cadets of Wedderlie being in existence. Beside the “Edgars of Evelaw, and of Westruther,” local records show, that at the opening of the eighteenth century, Edgars were still numerous in the neighbourhood of Wedderlie, and several families of the name lived there—some as lairds, others as “kindly tenants”—around the chief of their house.

* The ancient manor house, once styled a fortalice, and about 6,000 acres, chiefly moorland, picturesquely extending towards the Lammermoor Hills, now represent the lordly possessions of this once powerful family.

† Gent's Mag. 1817. “Last Male” is a common error in many genealogies.

‡ “C. W.” in Notes and Queries. 1861.

It would be difficult, perhaps impossible, to ascertain their relationship to him, considering that the last Laird of Wedderlie had no fewer than five sons, of whom the Admiral was one; it does seem remarkable that none of them should have left any known male descendants.

On a reference to the records of the Commissariat of Lauder, and of Edinburgh, where the Wills of Edgars of, from, or at Wedderlie, are recorded, it is at once perceived, that there have been extensive offshoots, whose descendants have never been traced.

In the "Bride of Lammermoor" there are a few marked, and curious coincidences between the family of Ravenswood, and that of Edgar of Wedderlie. Both were of the Merse, and Wedderlie is situated at the foot of the Lammermoor Hills. The Master of Ravenswood is named Edgar. Against the "Wolf's Crag," of the romance we have "Wolfstruther," afterwards Westruther, the parish of Wedderlie. Edgar Ravenswood was related to the Humes and Douglasses; so likewise was Edgar of Wedderlie; but what is still more remarkable, both families were connected with that of Cheisly, and at the same period. The Ravenswoods were involved in a litigation, in which Cheisly was implicated; while in the Public Records (Decisions of the Court of Session) at the period of the romance, Edgar of Wedderlie had a bitter lawsuit with Cheisly, the tutor of his father's younger children. Edgar of Wedderlie was impoverished by his opposition to the Presbyterian church, just as Edgar Ravenswood opposed its minister, at his father's funeral. Both families were turbulent, and both were brought to ruin by espousing the losing cause.

POSTSCRIPT.

The well-known Twinlaw cairns, (not far from Wedderlie), composed of two large piles of stones, and visible from a great distance, are the rude memorials of two persons named Edgar, who fell in single combat, according to the following tradition, as repeated in a work, already quoted, on Scotch Topography.

"A battle is said to have taken place here between the Anglo-Saxons and Scots. On this occasion a challenge given by one of the Saxon chieftains to decide the contest by single combat was accepted by Edgar, the only son of an aged Scottish warrior, and whose twin brother had been carried off captive in his infancy by the Saxons in a former battle. The Saxon chieftain was killed and Edgar himself severely wounded. After the combat, an aged Saxon lamenting the death of the chieftain, whom he eulogized as the bravest of the Edgars, and bewailed as his adopted son, betrayed the secret of his Scottish birth, and Edgar, frantic with remorse, tore the bandages from his wounds, and expired on the corpse of his brother."

The contest at the place now known as the Twin Law Cairns, or the Cairns of the Twin Edgars, is thus celebrated in a ballad which has been known for at least a century and a half :—

In days of yore, when deeds were rife,
And wars on banks and braes,
And nought but strife on every side,
Which brought on dule and waes,

The Anglo-Saxons restless band
Had crossed the river Tweed :
Up for the hills of Lammermuir,
Their hosts marched on with speed.

Our Scottish warriors on the heath,
In close battalion stood,
Resolved to set their country free,
Or shed their dearest blood.

A chieftain from the Saxon band,
Exulting in his might,
Defied the bravest of the Scots
To come to single fight.

Old Edgar had a youthful son,
Who led the Scottish band;
He with the Saxon did agree
To fight it hand to hand.

The armies stood in deep suspense,
The combat for to view;
While aged Edgar stepped forth,
To bid his son adieu.

"Adieu! adieu! my darling son,
I fear that ye be lost;
For yester night my troubled mind,
With fearful dreams was toss'd.

"I dream'd your mother's parted shade
Between two armies stood,
A lovely youth on either hand,
Their bosoms streaming blood.

"My heart will break if you should fall,
My only prop and stay;
Your brother when in infant years
The Saxons stole away."

"Delay it not," young Edgar said,
"But let the trumpets blow;
You soon shall see me prove your son,
And lay you boaster low."

The trumpets raised with deafening clang,
The fearful onset blew;
And then the chieftains stepped forth,
Their shining swords they drew,

Like lions in a furious fight,
Their steeled falchions gleam,
Till from the Scottish warriors side
Fast flowed a crimson stream.

With deafening din the coats of mail
The deadly blows resound;
At last the Saxon warrior
Did breathless press the ground.

An aged Saxon came to view
The body of his chief;
His streaming eyes and downcast look,
Bespoke a heart of grief.

"He's dead," he cried, "the bravest youth
E'er sprung from Edgar's line;
I bore him from the Scottish coast,
And made him pass for mine.

"And in the days of youthful prime,
He was my pride and boast;
For oft to victory he has Led on the Saxon host."

Old Edgar heard the Saxon's moan,
His cheeks grew deadly pale,
A great convulsion shook his frame,
His nerves began to fail.

Frantic he tore his aged locks,
With time and trouble grey;
And faintly crying, "My son, my son!"
His spirit passed away.

The Scottish chief as his father fell,
He raised his fading eye,
And tore the bandage off his wounds,
To let life's stream run dry.

He kissed his sire and his brother's wounds,
That ghastly were and deep;
And closed him in his folding arms,
And fell on his long, long sleep.

Descent of the Edgar Lairds of Wedderlie.

THE compilation of the history of a family claiming, from time immemorial, descent from the ancient Earls of Dunbar and March, but whose records have been scattered or never collected, and whose very name, except in works of heraldry and genealogy, is almost forgotten,—presents a difficult task to a writer of the present century, who finding nothing to hand, must grope laboriously amongst the most obscure records; and for one fact rescued from the ‘speechless past,’ he has no return for the folios of unprofitable matter through which he has had to explore, without any better clue than is afforded by the surname itself.

It is not the purpose of the author, to start with the lineage of the Princely House of Dunbar, but to proceed at once to ascertain when, and where, cadets of that house, bearing the name of Edgar, are earliest to be found.

Accordingly, we must turn, in the first place, to Northumbrian Chartularies, such as that of Tynemouth, (already well known to the public through the labours of a local historian); the Chronicle of Lanercost, and others.

Then the Pipe, and Chancery Rolls of Henry II., John, and Henry III., throw a very considerable light on the subject, as will be hereafter shown.

At a slightly later period, the Scottish Chartularies of Kelso, Coldstream, Coldingham, Arbroath, &c., still further elucidate the question of the origin of the Edgars of Wedderlie.

Turning to the History of the Monastery of Tynemouth, for the earliest information regarding the English progenitors of this family, we meet with the following:—

(Page 48.) “Abbot Richard, whose decease occurred in A.D. 1119, is stated, in the Lives of the Abbots of St. Albans, to have granted Archimorrell in fee farm to Cospatrick, (son of Earl Cospatrick) and his son (probably the *Aedgar and Alexander about to be mentioned) for their lives.”

“In the lifetime of Geoffery Abbot of S. Albans, (who died in 1146), Aedgar, son of Cospatrick, swore upon the shrine of S. Alban, to observe a certain contract with the Abbot and Monks, regarding the said ‘land of Archimorrell, to wit, Bewic,† and to this agreement Cospatrick, and his son Adam were parties.”

(Page 50.) “This Adam is, in letters under seal of John, Archdeacon of Durham, relative to the church of ‘Eglingham,’ styled Adam de Dunbar, son of Cospatric.”

(Page 54.) “Aedgar . . . seems to have joined the King’s enemies in the wars with the Scottish disturbers of his kingdom, and to have taken flight into Scotland; whereupon Henry (II.) seized those possessions, actually then church lands, as if they had been the fee and inheritance of Aedgar.”

(Page 73.) In the 11th John (Rolls of the Pleas of Easter, Rot. 15.—Northumberland) “a jury was summoned to ascertain whether Aedgar (the above)” the uncle of Waldeve, the father of Earl Patrick, was seised in his demeane, as in fee of the Vills of Bewic, and of Elingham, and of Lilleburn . . . and whether he was thereof disseised, which lands the Abbot of S. Albans, and the Prior of Tynemouth now hold, who say that the jury ought not to be held . . . and that the aforesaid Aedgar hath a son now living who ought to claim a right to the lands."

(Page 149.) "The latter was Alexander, son and heir of Aedgar, who had previously confirmed the grant of Edlingham Church to the Abbot of Tynemouth."

The following is a translation of the charter given by Aedgar to the Monks of Tynemouth, concerning the Church of Edlingham, and to which is appended his seal, (as given in the work at present referred to, and in Laing's "Ancient Scottish Seals,") namely, a dragon, with the legend elsewhere in these pages described:—

"Aedgar, son of Cospatric, to all whom these letters shall come, greeting. Know all of you, that I have granted, and by my present charter confirmed, to the Abbot of S. Albans and the Monastery of S. Oswin of Tinemuthe, and the Monks there serving God, the Church of Edlungham, which my father Cospatric granted to the same monastery Alexander, my son and heir, made this grant along with me." &c.

In the Chancery Rolls, A.D. 1201-2, (II. John) it is stated—" *William de Forde oweth one hundred marks for having the King's peace, for Earl Patrick. He oweth ten marks whether for their oaths, having the oaths of twelve free and lawful men of the venue of Bewic, and Elingham, Middleton, and Reddam whether Aedgar, the uncle of Earl Waldevo, the father of Earl Patrick, was seised of the service of Liulph."

Turning now to Hodgson's Northumberland, † we find additional suggestive matter, on the above subjects, taken chiefly from ancient records, as follows:—

Roger de Merley appears in a charter of Henry II. along with Edgarus filius Gospatricii. ‡ (V. II. P. III. page 125.) Carta Regis Henrici II. de Eglevingham §—"propter rugam Adgari in Scotiam werram Regis Scotie."

From the foregoing, one is inclined to draw the inference, that the question of the service of Lyulph and the suretyship of William de Forde, (whose territorial designation was derived from a Northumbrian locality, very close to Coldstream, and almost opposite, on the English side of the border), show a special connection between the Earl of Dunbar and the Knight of Forde; and again, between the latter, and the fugitive Edgar, in connection with Laynal or Coldstream; and it seems more than probable, that the latter place was given by the Earl to his kinsman, in lieu of what he had lost in England.

* N.B. Forde is one of the nearest points of note, on the English border, to Coldstream.

§ Variouslly spelt.

Edgar, son of Earl Cospatrick III., and who is said to have married a daughter of Ivo and Agnes,* was succeeded by his son Alexander, but he had probably two other sons named Edgar and Patrick, as suggested by the peculiar significance of such names, amongst witnesses to these ancient charters, as Patricius "dictus Edgar," Walterus dictus Edgar, thus distinguishing a surname from a mere baptismal name.

These questions will probably be ultimately set at rest by discoveries amongst the private muniments of ancient Berwickshire families; in the meantime, there can be no doubt that Edgar, son of Cospatrick III., had, at any rate, a son named Alexander, and that Sir Patrick Edgar, Knight of Laynal (Coldstream), † was, in all probability, his son or grandson.

Sir Patrick is also mentioned, in the Chronicle of Lanercost, with reference to a certain high ecclesiastic—"Richardus † de Barneby dictus. . . apud Gysburne. . . (Ghisburne, in Domesday Book, described as, in terra Rogerii Pictavensis,) in regno Scotiae notus. . . de Celkou (Kelso) clericus,"—who gives the tutelage of his nephew to Sir Patrick—"Domino Patricio Edgar Militi," (A.D. 1272).

Amongst a variety of witnesses to the Charters of Coldstream, Kelso, &c., Sir Patrick and Sir Walter, also dictus Edgar, are apparently the only Knights without a territorial designation, and their place amongst these witnesses is highly suggestive of their relationship to the Earl of Dunbar.

It is not the purpose, or even desire, of the writer, to urge circumstantial evidence in favour of the traditional descent assigned to the Edgars of Wedderlie, as he prefers to rely on the facts gleaned from the public archives, &c., now, for the first time brought together in this work, and which must be judged on their own merits.

On a reference to the Chartulary of Coldstream, which Douglas quotes as his authority, it will be seen that Maryota de Homes' second husband's name was "Patrick Edgar," not "de Edgar." Elsewhere, in the same Chartulary, another member of the same family is described, "dictus Edgar," as though the object were in a marked manner to create a true sir-name, of which this, by the way, is one of the best early instances.

Sir Patrick Edgar forfeited, by "defect of service," his lands of Coldstream, to the then Earl of Dunbar, who, on the former's renunciation, granted them to the Church of Leynal (Coldstream). Some years subsequently, Sir Patrick Edgar married the widow of William de Home, and, at this period (earlier or later) the Manor of Wedderlie was held by Robert de Polwarth; but in the next generation, Sir Richard Edgar, the assumed son of Sir Patrick, (who had lost his lands of † (Vol. 2, P. 111, p. 127.) In a charter "Udardi de Nunnewich Ade fil suo in terris de Nunnewich," mention is made of Coldstream, by the name of Linehalsh "una acra." S. V. Swinb. MSS. 112.

(Vol. 2, P. 111, p. 74.) In another place the name is spelt Lynhalsh. Laynal, Lennel, &c., are forms found in the Chartulary of Coldstream.

Sir Patrick is frequently mentioned, and in a conspicuous manner, in the Chartulary of Coldstream, to which monastery his lands on being surrendered, about 1272-3, pro defectu servitio, were granted by the Earl of Dunbar.

‡ Hence, perhaps, the origin of the baptismal name of Sir Richard Edgar, first of Wedderlie, Coldstream), appears as the first Edgar of Wedderlie.

The question arises incidentally—Was Maryota, widow of William de Home, and wife, secondly, of Sir P. Edgar, a Polwarth?

This is mere conjecture; yet not without interest.

In those days (thirteenth century and earlier), Coldstream, or Leynal, must have been a place of great strategical importance—the charge of which was not likely to have been entrusted to a knight of no special distinction.

There is a common argument based upon the use of the word “consanguineus,” in ancient charters; but a comparison of the names and designations of witnesses, and others mentioned in these, with each other; and again, with proofs derived from other sources, would sometimes show, that the absence of any allusion to relationship is not conclusive against the latter.

Besides the Chartulary of Coldstream, which throws a considerable light on the family of Edgar, (subsequently of Wedderlie?) the relative place assigned to “Edgar,” of the same family, amongst witnesses to successive charters, granted by successive Earls of Dunbar, to the monks of Coldingham, points to the conclusion arrived at, by all the Scottish genealogists, who have mentioned this family.

In Charter CVI. (Coldingham), Earl Patrick’s grant is witnessed by a William Edgar—“Willo filio Edgari.”

In Charter CXLVI, the first witness in order, to a Charter by the Earl of Dunbar, is Sir Patrick Edgar, followed by Sir Robert, the Earl’s uncle—“D’no patoio Edgar senescallo meo Dno Robto avunculo meo.”

In Charter CXXXIX. By Earl Patrick, son of Patrick, Earl of Dunbar, the witnesses include, in the following order, Sir Patrick Edgar—

“Dno Patoio Edgar senescallo meo Dno Robto Avunculo meo Dno Robto de Powelorths.”

In one of the Charters of Kelso Abbey, we have as a witness, about the year 1250-2, Sir Patrick, son of Sir Walter of Laynal.

In the Chartulary of Arbroath (1178—1214), at a period between Edgar, son of Earl Cospatrick, his heir Alexander, and Sir Patrick Edgar, of Coldstream, occur as witnesses: Robert, son of Edgar, and Thomas his son. While in the Kelso Chartulary, 1250, we find Sir Patrick, son of Sir Walter, of Coldstream. A William fil Edgari also occurs.

Whether Polwarth was an early cadet of Dunbar and March, is a question for which there is a certain amount of suggestive matter, in the Charters already quoted, and to which reference has been made.

From the Chartulary of Kelso, as just stated, it appears that in the time of Sir Patrick Edgar, Wedderlie was a possession of the Polwarth family. In 1240, to the Chapel of Wedderlie, there is the confirmation of a grant; and in 1258, Sir Patrick Edgar appears as a witness to a Charter, granting three acres in the territory of Wedderlie, by Sir Robert de Polwarth, to the Church of St. Mary, Kelso.

Wedderlie* appears to have come into the possession of the Edgar family between 1273 and

* From a Charter the Church of Fogo, about A. D. 1240, it would appear that Westruther the Parish of Wedderlie had the name Westvcht-Stuther—West-Sheepfold-in-the-meadow, or plain?

1327, but of Sir Richard Edgar, who held it in the latter year, and transmitted it to his second son, and his heirs, with whom it remained for above four hundred and six years, until 1733,—there is no record which distinctly shows, by what means the acquisition was made.

There is nothing to show that Sir Richard Edgar, presumed to have been the first of his family who possessed Wedderlie, was a son of Sir Patrick Edgar, but it is reasonable to suppose that he was, although Nisbet suggests a William as the immediate ancestor of the Lairds of Wedderlie. On reference to the Charters already mentioned, a question arises, whether Sir Patrick Edgar had not a son named William, and a son or brother Walter; and whether he was not himself the son of Walter, son of Alexander, son of the first Edgar (of Bewie).

SIR RICHARD EDGAR, of Wedderlie, appears amongst the witnesses at the second marriage of King Robert the Bruce. He himself, subsequently, (as shown more fully elsewhere in this work) by his marriage with the elder of the two co-heiresses of Robert de Ros, Lord of Sanquhar, acquired a moiety of that barony, including the castle of Sanquhar, and thus established himself powerfully in Nithsdale and the adjacent country.*

In consequence of this alliance, the Edgars quartered the arms of Ros of Sanquhar, namely Asure, † three water budgets, or, as might have been seen until a comparatively recent period, sculptured over the entrance to the manor house of Wedderlie,—but whether facing the Lammermoor, or the Moorfoot hills, is uncertain, owing to the alterations which have been made in the edifice. ‡

Richard, the eldest son of the foregoing, on inheriting the patrimony of his mother, seems, with two of his four brothers, to have removed entirely to the South Western Counties, after having renounced the succession to Wedderlie, in favour of his second brother Robert.

The names of the other two brothers, given with slight variations in different records, might lead to the erroneous inference, that they were identical with the princely Galwegian family, in which Edgar occurs—but simply as a baptismal name.

ROBERT EDGAR succeeded his father Sir Richard, in Wedderlie. The name of his wife is uncertain, but his son and heir, John Edgar, is named, in 1384, in the confirmation charter of the renunciation of Wedderlie, previously made in 1376.

JOHN EDGAR. Nothing is known of him; and from the year 1384,—although no other family had possession of Wedderlie,—we find no mention of the Edgars there § until 1476, when occurs the contention, between the Abbot of Dryburgh, and Adam Edgar, of Wedderlie, concerning the lands of Knockfeld.

* Probably the dispersion of the ancient inheritance of the Edgars in Dumfries may be explained in the records of the Priory Seal, but the labour of tracing these changes amongst other names throughout a period of obscurity, and under curious variations and corruptions of this surname itself, would be disproportionate to the object in view.

† The spelling Adzare, Adyare, Edgare, and even Adouere, for Edgar, is of frequent occurrence in the records of the Dumfriesshire and Kirkcudbright Edgars; in Berwickshire and the South Eastern Counties, Edgar and Edger; while in Midlothian, and more particularly in the city of Edinburgh, the name is found frequently as Eggar; and the perpetuation of these corruptions has originated many modern names supposed to be of an entirely different origin; and in this respect, even Nisbet seems to have fallen into error.

‡ Wedderlie is two miles from Westruther, formerly part of the ancient parish of Gordon.

§ It seems doubtful whether the William Wedderlie, of Dunse, mentioned in the Acts of the Lords of Council, was an Edgar of Wedderlie, and therefore he has not been included in the summary of the succession.

ADAM EDGAR, of Wedderlie, was probably the grandson of the preceding John Edgar, son of another John, and uncle or father of his successor Robert. He was alive in 1496, and was apparently succeeded by

ROBERT EDGAR, mentioned in the Privy Seal Register as of Wedderlie, in 1497. The next in succession, of whom anything is known, was

RICHARD EDGAR, of Wedderlie. Here the order of descent becomes entangled. It is certain, however, that Richard had four sons, named Oliver, Robert, James, and John, the eldest, who continued the line; but whether Richard was preceded by a John Edgar, of Wedderlie, (whose son, Robert Edgar, is styled in a Charter of 1542, also of Wedderlie,) is not quite clear. Richard Edgar, of Wedderlie, was succeeded by—

JOHN EDGAR, of Wedderlie, who married in 1553, Ann or Agnes Cranstoun, and was succeeded by their son—

ROBERT EDGAR, of Wedderlie, who married Mary Douglas, and was succeeded, in 1619, by his elder son (he had a younger named James—vide Reg. M. Sigil. 1643).—

JOHN EDGAR, of Wedderlie, who married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir William Cranstoun, first Baron Cranstoun, by his wife "the Lady Sara."

They had a daughter, and probably co-heiress, who married John, son of Nichol Edgar, merchant of Edinburgh. Three other sisters of John Edgar are mentioned, in public records of the period; but whether they were sisters of Elizabeth, or of her husband, is not quite clear.

By a settlement recorded (as will be seen amongst the "Extracts" which follow) in 1643, on the demise of John Edgar, he was succeeded by his daughter Elizabeth, and her husband, JOHN EDGAR, of Wedderlie. He died in 1657, and, in 1664, the executors of himself and wife, were his brother, Nichol Edgar, merchant of Edinburgh, and Alexander Edgar, who was probably another brother. John and Elizabeth Edgar had four sons, and two daughters: 1. John, his successor; 2. Alexander, of Dunse, one of the founders of the Royal College of Surgeons, Edinburgh, who left a son named John, also a surgeon, and who survived his father's death in 1713-14, eight years; 3. Thomas, surgeon, of Edinburgh, (and also a landowner at Dunse, &c.), who was, probably, father of John Edgar,* advocate, author of "Decisions of the Court of Session," who married Jean, daughter of James Bruce, of Kennet; † 4. Nichol, minister of Hopkirk.

The Edgars of Wedderlie seem to have declined in the reign of James VI.; and the marriage of its heiress with John Edgar (probably of the old branch or family, of the same name, found in connection with lands at Lymphoy, Water of Leith, &c., near Edinburgh, in the Inquisitiones Gen. & Sp.) seem to have hastened its fall. At the same time, the middle of the seventeenth century, was an eminently transitional period, when new professions were beginning to start up, and there were unusual inducements to emigration amongst the better families; therefore, the Edgars of Wedderlie, having lost, apparently, the "initial velocity" that often keeps alive old families, and being without a talented head, naturally succumbed to the force of circumstances.

It can scarcely be doubted that many branches of this family still exist, in the male, as well as in the female line, and in humble life; but, although in a philosophical spirit, it might be interesting to trace their vicissitudes, it is better to leave the task to each, as its fortunes begin to revive,—and partly indeed, with this aim has the present collection been made.

* Alexander Edgar, of Netherhouses, also of Auchingramont, after the death of John Edgar, had seisin of the latter's "tenement of land" in Wardrop's Court, Edinburgh.—See Burgh Seisins, Edin.

JOHN EDGAR,* of Wedderlie, on succeeding to his father, about 1663, appears to have been involved in litigation with Mr. Chiealie, surgeon, of Dunse, for the maintenance of his younger brother, Alexander Edgar. He resided chiefly in Edinburgh, and married Jean, or Joanna, daughter of Thomas Robertson, merchant of Edinburgh, and of Lochbank, by whom he had a numerous issue, accounted for in the annexed tabulated pedigree. He was succeeded by his eldest son, born in 1682.

JOHN EDGAR, of Wedderlie. He married, in 1718, Mary Home (daughter of G. Home,† of Chirnside), and had, with other issue, given in the tabulated pedigree, John, his eldest son, of whom nothing is known; Alexander, his fourth and youngest son, an admiral in the British navy, who died in the year 1817, leaving an only daughter and sole heiress, now represented by Major Francis Pemberton Campbell.

But it is not quite clear that Joseph Edgar, late of Weymouth, who died at Yeatley, Hants, in April, 1798, aged 75, was not identical with Joseph (the elder brother of the admiral), son of John Edgar and Mary Home, whose baptism is recorded in 1724. Another brother, Michael, has likewise never been accounted for.

John Edgar, with consent of his wife, Mary Home, having conveyed the ancient inheritance of Wedderlie to Robert, Lord Blantyre, in 1733, subsequently settling it, by a deed of entail, on the latter and his heirs, was thus the last laird of Wedderlie.

Whether it was he, or his eldest son John, (who never, of course, succeeded to Wedderlie,) who is described, in 1736, as "John Edgar, of Watherley," made burgess and "guild brother" of Edinburgh, does not appear; and, from the latter date, nothing certain is known of any of the four sons of the last laird, with the exception of Alexander.

Cadets of Wedderlie.

By a careful collation of the various scattered references, (in the annexed Extracts from the public records of Scotland), to the Edgars of Newton de Birgham, of Eyemouth, including Farneyrigg, Edinburgh, Melrose, Dunse, Swinton, and other localities in connection with these, the frequent recurrence of other surnames associated peculiarly with the one in question, tends to diffuse a certain, although not always a strong light, on the common origin of the latter.

* He was a staunch Royalist, and opposed the party of the Covenanters.

† George Home, of Chirnside, married Catharine Hume, of Ninewells, (aunt of David Hume, the historian). Their daughter Margaret, married, in 1743, Robert Robertson, of Prendergust, whose granddaughter Mary, married Hugh Veitch, of Stewartfield, (son of Veitch, of Eliock), and had issue: 1. James, ob. s. p. 1872; 2. Henry, Lieut. 25th Regt., ob. s. p. 1848; and five daughters—of whom, PHILADELPHIA married W. N. Fraser, of Tornaveen; DOROTHEA, married Major Ferguson-Home, of Bassindean; ANNE, married Robert MacQueen, of Braxfield.

For example, we find Pringle,* Murray, Handisyde, Brown, Elliot Dickson, and Ellis, &c., in connection with the Edgars of Wedderlie,—of Dunse and of Grueldykes,—of Melrose, and of Edinburgh,—of Haliburton, Swinton, &c.

The parish registers, although in themselves insufficient, to establish certain genealogical links at an early period, nevertheless, often elucidate certain inferences to be drawn from the grouping of names in the older records; and it is sometimes only by a general survey of the former, that the full significance of these local groupings of certain surnames can be observed.

Amongst the earlier cadets of Wedderlie, of whom there are any records, may be accounted the following :—

1. George Edgar, whose escheat, in 1542, was granted to Edgar of Wedderlie.
2. Robert Edgar, in Swinton, to whom Edgar of Wedderlie sold lands in Grueldykes.
3. James Edgar, † of Grueldykes (1581), and his son Robert (1581), and grandson George (1606).
4. Richard Edgar (Newton de Birgham). Probably also, William of Westruther (will of O. Edgar).
5. James, son of Robert Edgar, of Wedderlie, and Mary Douglas, his wife.

Of Richard Edgar, father of Oliver, of Newton de Birgham, the descendants have been traced. Of James, however, whose escheat was granted to Robert his son, in 1587, no notice has hitherto been taken, although it seems probable that the later Edgars of Melrose were his descendants. But the present representative of James, son of Robert and Mary, whose name appears in a Royal Charter of 1643, would, if identified, be recognised as the heir male of the original lairds of Wedderlie.

In the parish register of Dunse, a small town,—with which other registers show the lairds of Wedderlie, at all times, to have been intimately connected, and where they held land,—we find, five years after the renunciation of Wedderlie by John Edgar, to his daughter and her husband, namely, in 1643, the baptism of Alexander, son of James Edgar, at a period when no other James Edgar, save the “lawful son of Robert,” of Wedderlie, can be shown to have been living in that neighbourhood; and, in 1682, in the county books of Berwickshire, are found the names Patrick Edgar, “brother of Newton,” and Alexander his son. No intermediate Alexander, or James, appears in the register of Dunse, until 1704, when the baptism of Peter, son of James Edgar, by his wife Jean Brown, is recorded. There are some pages deficient, however, and amongst these, that for the year 1698, which probably contained the baptism of Alexander, the elder brother of Peter, † whose relationship is afterwards set forth, in the baptismal record of Handisyde Edgar, in 1754. (Par. of S. Leith.) Thos. Edgar, maltster, was of the same stock. (His son married Mary, daughter of the fourth Lord Reay; and was A.D.C. to Lord Heathfield).

* The Pringles, of “Housebyres,” near Melrose, are referred to in the escheat of James Edgar, of Grueldykes, in a remarkable transaction recorded in the Register of the Privy Seal.

† It seems clear that, whether or no, James, son of Robert Edgar of Wedderlie, by his wife Mary Douglas, settled at Dunse, the records of the Privy Seal, and the will of Oliver Edgar, who married Margaret Pringle, point to the conclusion that James Edgar, of Grueldykes (Dunse), and James, the brother of Oliver, were one and the same person; thus suggesting that the male representation of the elder house, is to be sought amongst the descendants of Edgar of Newton, and Edgar of Dunse.

‡ In Scotland, Patrick and Peter are convertible; for example, Patrick Robertson, a Lord of Session, commonly called Peter Robertson. P. E. afterwards of Bridgelands.

Contemporary with the last mentioned James, was James Edgar, of Dunse, surgeon, who, it has been said, married Margaret, daughter of Richard Edgar, of Newton de Birgham, and whose daughter Anna, in the "Service of Heirs," is returned "heir of Provision General," in 1772,—her brother Andrew, "nephew of Newton," having died in minority. This evidence tends to show that these two latter James Edgars were not identical; but there was yet another James Edgar, surgeon, born in 1661, who married, circa 1690—00, Margaret Sinclair, relict of Joseph Marjoribanks, and of whom nothing more is known.

From the "Extracts" which follow, in this volume, it will be observed, that John Edgar, of Wedderlie, (who married Jean Robertson), attended baptisms of Edgars in Dunse; and that lands, &c., in the same town, were owned by Thomas Edgar of Edinburgh, a recognised cadet of Wedderlie; and by his fellow collegian, Alexander Edgar, brother of the laird of Wedderlie, and who had been the apprentice of Samuel Chieslie, surgeon, of Dunse, in 1674-6.

In order, however, to settle this question with precision, an examination of the records of the County of Berwick, at Greenlaw, would be necessary.

Of the other supposed cadets of Wedderlie, little remains to be said.

The Edgars of Farneyrigg were likewise connected with Edinburgh, and Eyemouth; and a very remarkable coincidence of names and dates, might lead to their being confounded with the Edgars, best known as of Hutton, who claim descent from Newton; and more especially as Andrew, merchant, of Edinburgh, and of Farneyrigg, as will be seen farther on, was proprietor of a place named (probably after his wife Grissel Bondun), in the records in question, Grissel Hall, known also as "Brigham," (Birgham).

The records of Edgars in the northern counties of Scotland, are exceedingly scanty; but by the register of Marischal College, Aberdeen, it appears that a son of Archibald Edgar, (then of Jamaica), was matriculated there, late in the last century.

It is quite possible that there may have been descendants of John Edgar, advocate, who married into the family of Bruce of Kennet; and of Alexander, Member of the College of Surgeons, Edinburgh, who died about 1713-14; and it is by no means improbable, that a careful search amongst the local registers of our older colonies, would lead to the discovery of many missing lines of Edgar, and amongst these, might be found traces of John Edgar, (sometime younger of Wedderlie), the elder brother of Admiral Alexander Edgar, who died in 1817.

In conclusion, it may be observed, that there are several claimants to descent, in the male line, from Edgar of Wedderlie; but, as yet, no sufficient proofs to substantiate such pretensions have been produced; and, in consequence, no official recognition exists of any male representation of Wedderlie, or of any of its branches.

Edgar of Edinburgh and Peffermyln.

THE conjecture of one generation is apt, too often, to become the family tradition of the next, to question which would, in many instances, excite the strongest indignation. The fact that certain families of Edgar used the pure arms of Wedderlie, prior to the extinction of the chief line, in 1817, militates against the very origin that it suggests; at the same time, one may well understand the ignorance of heraldic rules on this point, among the obscure cadets of an old parent stock.

In Edinburgh,* early in the sixteenth century, dwelt a powerful burgess, named Patrick Edgar,† who was, if a cadet of Wedderlie, one of the first of whom we have any record here. His name occurs in the Diurnal of Occurrents; and his house is now better known as that, in which the celebrated Sir David Baird was born.

A reference to the General Inquisitions, of the seventeenth century, suggests that the Edgars at Peffermyln,§ in the parish of Liberton, and Barony of Craigmillar; at Restalrig, in the Barony of Broughton; in Leith, and at Hillhousefield, formed but one family, to trace all the ramifications of which, however, would be a task attended with almost insurmountable difficulties.

These Edinburgh Edgars traded in grain,‡ as their Wills attest. The Will of Edward Edgar, of "Papermylne," is a curious example. The rich acres, or "riggs," as the equivalent seems often to have been termed, about the metropolis, must have had peculiar advantages from the proximity of the port of Leith, the trade of which was, at the period referred to, very considerable.

Peffermyln is an ancient "Tower and Fortalice," once belonging, apparently, to a branch of the family of Edgar of Wedderlie. There is a curious piece of armorial sculpture over the entrance to the tower, representing Edgar of Wedderlie,§ impaling Pearson of Kippenross, (with only the difference of a mullet, instead of a cinquefoil, in the latter;) and embellished with monograms. These latter are very obscure, for this reason, that little is known of the Edgars who owned the place, beyond what can be gleaned from the imperfect parish registers, the Burgess Rolls of Edinburgh, and a few other records.

* Wilson's "Memorials of Edinburgh."

† Edgar's house (in Edinburgh) was one of especial note in early times, from its substantial magnificence. It is described in one of the deeds as, "that tenement or dwelling house called the Schlats house of old, of the deceased Patrick Edgar." * * * It is alluded to in the Diurnal of Occurrents, 7th Sept., 1570, where the escape of Robert Hepburn, younger, of Wauchtown, from the Earl of Morton's adherents, is described. It is added:—"He came to the Castell of Edinburgh, quhairin he was ressauit with great difficultie; for when he was passand in at the said Castell zett his adversaries were at Patrik Edgar his hous end." In this work is mentioned a "Mr. Edgar's Map of Old Edinburgh."

‡ We find, in the seventeenth century, two Edgars, described as merchants, trading with the great continental grain port of Dantzic, which received and garnered the produce of the fertile plains of Poland. These were Gilbert of Shearington, in Dumfries, whose nephew, Thomas, was returned his heir in 1635, and John "of Poland," eldest lauchful sone to Thomas Edgar of Keithcock," about eighty years after. In the eighteenth century, and during the palmy days of the West Indies, many persons of this name emigrated thither; and at Bristol (the commercial nurse, so to speak, of these colonies) there were residing, at that period, two gentlemen, whose names, Preston and Alexander Edgar, undoubtedly attest their Scottish origin.

§ This quaint and elegant old mansion closely resembles externally, that of Wedderlie, in Berwickshire.

Edward Edgar of Peffermyln, or Peffermiln, probably the grandson of Patrick Edgar (whose house in Edinburgh, in the time of Mary, Queen of Scots, and which is still standing, shows him to have been a person of no small consequence), was one of the last of the commissioners appointed to try witches, and the record of some curious trials at which he presided is preserved. He appears to have been succeeded by his son, Patrick Edgar, who was succeeded by his brother Edward.

There is a deed recorded (Reg. of Deeds Dur. Off. 1664, Dec. 23), which is dated at "Johnstoun," and was executed by the heirs of Edward Edgar, bailie and burges of Edinburgh. In it is described the estate of umquhile Patrick Edgar, and of Andrew and Edward, sons to the deceased Edward Edgar, and Margaret, their sister, married to Walter Cant; Patrick, son and heir of the defunct "Edward Edgar the elder." The names of two "Johnstouns" appear to this deed, along with Margaret, relict of the deceased.

Edward, the elder, had been admitted a guild brother of Edinburgh, on the 12th of August, 1621, and appears to have acquired from another Edgar the lands of "Kingsmedow alias Scharnyhall," Edinburgh, on the 12th of June, 1629. Possibly, however, this may have been Edward Edgar, also of Edinburgh, and a guild brother in 1607.

These Edgars of Peffermyln owned land about the village of Water of Leith, Restalrig, Hill-housefield, &c., all in the neighbourhood of Edinburgh, and they appear to have intermarried with Thomsons, Johnstons, Cants, Romes, Cranstouns, and perhaps with Chisholms; but as the parish registers of that period are very imperfect, it would be scarcely possible to construct a complete pedigree, although the descent of property could be shown in the same family.*

A glance at the map of Scotland will at once suggest, with what ease, an over-crowded family in the parish of Westruther, could transfer its junior members to the metropolis,—not to say anything of the other outlets in Haddington, Roxburgh, Dumfries, &c.

Certain baptismal names seem to have been peculiar to certain branches. Thus Edward, Clement, and Herbert prevail in one; Alexander is common in another; David in a third; and several of these branches were ultimately represented by a "Margaret." This happened more than once in the Berwickshire families. These resemblances are so closely involved in some instances, that it is scarcely possible, among so many, all grouped contemporaneously, to distinguish amongst them.

In Scotland, when a family parted with its paternal acres, the origin of its descendants was soon lost, owing, in a great measure, to deficiencies in parochial registration.

During a portion of the seventeenth century, Peffermyln appears to have been occupied by a family named Osborne, whose transactions with the Edgars, are the subject of several records.

Many of the Edgars of Wedderlie were burgesses of Edinburgh. A branch of the Nithsdale Edgars, early in the sixteenth century, perhaps settled in Edinburgh, under the auspices of Lord Maxwell, who was mainly instrumental in rescuing King James, from the power of the Regent Albany.

Amongst other Edgars resident in Edinburgh, last century, was James Edgar, of a Melrose family, writer in Edinburgh, an honorary burges of the city, Extracter in the Court of Session, and private clerk, or secretary, to Sir Gilbert Elliot, the first baronet of that family. He had two daughters, viz:—1. Elizabeth, married, in 1739, John Myln of Edinburgh, and had issue—1. John, progenitor of the families of Milne, and Ritchie, of Edinburgh and Redford. 2. Edgar, physician. 3. Robert (ob. s. p.). 4. Priscilla. 5. Margaret, married Dr. Colin Lauder* of Edinburgh, who by him had issue—1. William Preston, M.D., married Harriet, daughter of General Harry Dalmer (ob. s. p.). 2. Jesse, married Nathaniel Spens, of Craigsanquhar; and two sons.

2. Margaret, married, in 1742, Alexander Edgar, of Auchingrammont, and died in 1791.

Edgar of Newtoun, Berwickshire.

RICHARD EDGAR, son of Oliver (son of another Richard, of Wedderlie), who married Margaret, daughter of George Pringle, of Torwoodlee, in 1564; and acquired Newtoun de Birgham, early in the seventeenth century, was succeeded about 1645, by his son George,† who, in 1648, was one of the commissioners for putting the kingdom in a posture of defence. The latter had a long feud with Thomas Ker, of Mersington, which was terminated in 1661, by an act of the Estates, in Ker's favour. (Acts of Parliament, vol. vi. 299, vol. vii. 37.)

Richard Edgar, of Newtoun, who lived at the time of the Revolution, of 1668, was an Episcopalian, a Nonjuror, and one of the few gentlemen of the country, who stood by Charles, Earl of Home, in his opposition to the new government. He was one of three who, in May, 1691, went with Henry Home, of Kames (father of Lord Kames), into the church of Eccles, and violently interrupted the ordination of the Rev. John Lauder, whom the Whigs were settling in that parish. In 1702, he married Rachel Maxwell, by whom he had two sons; Richard, his successor; and, as some say, Andrew,‡ (who married Grace, daughter of the Rev. James Allan, minister of Eyemouth,) father of another Andrew, who, by his wife Alice Bogue, was father of the Rev. John Edgar, who died minister of Hutton, in Berwickshire, on the 2nd April, 1858, in his seventy-third year, and the fifty-fourth of his ministry. The latter married, 7th June, 1814, Jessie, daughter of Abraham Logan, of Barnhouse, and had issue—Andrew, barrister-at-law, London, who married Mary Anne, daughter of E. Bicknell, Esq.; § Abraham Logan, merchant, Glasgow; and John George, born 1827, died 15th April, 1854. The last was the author of several popular works, of which the best known are, "Boyhood of Great Men;" "Footprints of Famous Men;" and "History for Boys." He also contributed a portion of the above materials to the present work.

* He was a direct descendant of the first Baronet of Fountainhall.—(See general notes.)

† He had a brother Patrick (see Greenlaw Records). N.B. The Edgars of Farneyrigg may have been connected with Newton. Andrew Edgar of Farneyrigg, by his wife, Grissel Bondun, had, with other children, two sons—Richard, his heir, born in Edinburgh, in 1698, and Andrew, born also there, in 1706.

‡ The proofs of these links (said to be in the possession of the family), the author has failed to discover.

§ He married, secondly,.....

Richard Edgar, eldest son of the Jacobite and Nonjuror, succeeded his father, as Edgar of Newtoun; and having married, in 1728, Margaret, daughter of George Bell of Rigg, by whom he had two sons, and two daughters. Of these, Margaret, born, 1734, and Richard, born 1736, attained to maturity.

Richard, after being an officer in the Berwickshire Militia, entered the 25th Regiment, as a lieutenant. In 1757, he accompanied his corps to the Continent, and fell during the Seven years' war. In consequence, his sister Margaret, on her father's death, in 1767, succeeded to the estate of Newtoun. By her husband, William Hunter,* of Linthill, Roxburgshire, she had two sons—William, who died young; and Lieut.-Colonel Richard Edgar Hunter, 1st Dragoon Guards, who was killed (1807) by falling from his horse, as he was returning from a meeting of heritors. After his death there was a long law plea about the succession, in the Court of Session, and House of Lords; it resulted in the estate of Newtoun passing from the Edgars, into the hands of others.

Edgars of Dunse, Berwickshire, and the branch "of Auchingrammont," Lanarkshire, &c.

PROBABLY one of the best claims to represent Wedderlie,† is that of the Edgars of Auchingrammont, from Dunse, who have the double advantage, of uniting another family of the same name, by the marriage of Alexander Edgar of Auchingrammont, in 1742, (styled, in the parish registers of Edinburgh and Leith, "from Nether-houses") with the daughter of James Edgar, of the supposed Melrose branch of Wedderlie, derived immediately, as seems probable, from James, of Grueldykes (Dunse) son of Richard Edgar, of Wedderlie. There are many notices in the public records of a connection between the Edgars of Wedderlie, and Dunse.

Thus, John Edgar, Laird of Wedderlie, was, in 1674, sued by Mr. Chieslie, surgeon, of Dunse, for the maintenance of his younger brother Alexander, then Mr. Chieslie's apprentice. This lawsuit, and others, continued till the close of the seventeenth century. On the establishment of the Edinburgh College of Surgeons, Alexander Edgar became a member, as did also his brother, Thomas Edgar, and that the former is identical with the apprentice of Mr. Chieslie, an order for him "to settle the affairs of his late master, Mr. Chieslie," clearly shows. Thomas Edgar, son of John of Wedderlie had property in Dunse; of which town, James, father of the first Edgar of Auchingrammont, was a native. Here also lived George Edgar, who had a grandson named Thomas.

This Thomas Edgar having served with distinction in the 25th Regiment, and been A.D.C. to Lord Heathfield at Gibraltar, married the Hon. Mary Mackay, daughter of the fourth Lord Reay.

* His sister married Walter Riddell of Riddell.

† Major F. Pemberton Campbell, 14th Hussars, grandson and heir of the late Admiral Alexander Edgar, only surviving son of the last laird of Wedderlie, represents the direct line.

AUCHINGRAMMONT.

The traditions of the family of Auchingrammont, supported by the uncertain evidence of old-fashioned silver plate, bearing the arms of Wedderlie, asserted that they were the descendants of a cadet of Wedderlie, inasmuch as the father of the first Edgar of Auchingrammont was an Edgar of Dunse; that he took with him to Jamaica, portraits of the Edgars of Wedderlie; and that on his return he married a relative named Edgar, by whom he acquired property in Edinburgh.

In 1754, Alexander Edgar, then in possession of Auchingrammont, which he had owned for many years, was designated "from Nether-houses."* He was then living within the bounds of South Leith, near Hillhousefield, adjacent to the village of the Water of Leith, both of which places are contiguous to Broughton, Restalrig, and other localities mentioned in the "Inquisitiones Generales," and "Seisins," as including property belonging to Edgars, from Berwickshire, as well as of Edingburgh.

Early in the eighteenth century, the Edgars of Auchingrammont owned property in Jamaica, † viz: Wedderlie plantation, and Osborne, in the parish of St. George. The latter was named after a Mr. Osborne, surgeon, (probably of the Peffermyln family,) who settled in Jamaica, towards the close of the seventeenth century.

In an old silver-bossed family Bible, the property of Margaret Edgar, the last of her family who owned Auchingrammont, is the following entry:—"Alexander Edgar, born 1698." ‡ The locality of his birth is not given, and, as the old parish registers in Scotland are, like those elsewhere, often imperfect, it might be difficult to find this entry of baptism, although that of Peter Edgar, a younger brother, is recorded in the Dunse register. Alexander Edgar is, in the record of his purchase of Auchingrammont, stated to have then returned from Jamaica. His younger brother

* There are only four Netherhouses mentioned in the Scottish Gazetteers. The place here meant is not that portion of Auchingrammont which merged in the town of Hamilton, but a "land of houses" in Edinburgh.

† There was a Scottish family of Edgar connected with Jamaica early in the eighteenth century, which settled at Bristol, and their baptismal names were Preston, Alexander, Archibald, &c. The late Mr. Alexander Edgar, of Bristol, was J.P. for the county of Gloucester. Archibald's son was a student at Marischal Coll., Aberdeen.

‡ This page is wanting in the Dunse register. The P. R. of S. Leith, (1754), proves Alexander to be the brother of Peter.

Peter, of Bridgelands, married, in 1743, Anne, daughter of the Rev. John Hay, minister of Peebles. (See General Notes).

In 1742, Alexander Edgar married Margaret (ob. 1791), daughter of James Edgar, writer in Edinburgh, clerk to Sir Gilbert Elliott of Minto, as before stated. James Edgar left no male issue, but had a son Robert who died in infancy.

James Edgar, originally from Melrose, married Priscilla, the daughter of James Handyside, or Handisyde, of Kelso, and afterwards of Edinburgh. The latter's pedigree is readily obtainable from the Kelso parish register. The wife of the other writer in Edinburgh, also named James Edgar, was Eliza Lithgow. This latter James Edgar had sons who died in infancy, named John, Alexander, and James. He is merely mentioned casually, to distinguish the two families.

Alexander Edgar of Auchingrammont, by his wife Margaret Edgar, left issue—1. James, of Auchingrammont, ob. 1810; 2. Alexander, ob. 1820; 3. Handasyde, M.D., ob. 1806; 4. Susan, ob. 1771, aged twenty-two; and 5. Charity.

A portion of the patrimony of Alexander, the son of Alexander and Margaret Edgar, of Auchingrammont, consisted of ground rents and tenements in Edinburgh; and a reference to the city register of Seisins strengthens the tradition of a connection with Wedderlie.

A synopsis of pedigree is subjoined.

Alexander Edgar, of Auchingrammont, born 1698, married, in 1742, Margaret, younger daughter and co-heiress of James Edgar, writer in Edinburgh, and burgess of that city. He died in 1777, and was buried in the churchyard of Hamilton; and his wife Margaret, died in 1791, leaving issue—

† A diploma was granted in 1772 to John Hutton, by Professor Andrew Dalzel, of the University of Edinburgh, and on September 8th, 1793, there is on record a proposed resignation by Dr. Mack of the surgeoncy of the 56th regiment, then at Waterford, in favour of Mr. Hutton. This was the Earl of Home's regiment. Some letters to Mr. Hutton, from Mr. Hamilton of Dalzel, and Mr. Purves of Purves Hall, still exist; but many papers of this branch of the Edgar family were destroyed, under a clause in the will of the late Miss Margaret Edgar.

‡ In reference to the marriage of Mrs. Leslie with Sir Henry Raeburn, Mr. William Anderson, editor of the Scottish Nation, writes: "The lady, Anne Edgar, daughter of Peter Edgar, Esquire, of Bridgelands, was much pleased with the skill, and likewise with the manners of the artist; and about a month or so after the adventure of the studio, she gave him her hand in marriage, bestowing at once an affectionate wife and a handsome fortune." Edgars of Inchgall, Fife; and in Edinburgh, Probably from Galloway.

In the Act of the Scottish Parliament passed in 1585, in favour of Lord Maxwell, designed Earl of Morton, many Edgars are mentioned; among others, Thomas Edgar of Bowhouse, and his sons John, and Clement. Thomas Edgar was probably the father of Edward Edgar, by whom was purchased, in 1604, the barony of Inchgall, in Fife, an acquisition soon lost, for his son Clement did not succeed him.

This branch of the Dumfriesshire family, was powerful in Edinburgh, and had lands in other parts of the country; and the common origin of these branches, is indicated on a tombstone in the churchyard of Holywood, which represents the arms of Maxwell of Cowhill, impaled with those identical with Edgar of Wedderlie: the deceased is styled “the husband of Barbara Maxwell.”

The barony of Lochore was formerly called Inchgall, or Inschgaw; this barony or the western part of it, formed the parish of Ballingry. In the reign of Charles I. it reverted to the Wardlaws, who then parted with it; and about fifty years later, it came into the possession of a family named Malcolm; it then became the property of Lady Scott, relict of Colonel Sir Walter Scott, Bart., son of the great novelist. The foundations of the old tower are in part remaining, but the lake which surrounded the latter has been drained.

Robert, Duke of Albany, when Regent of Scotland, granted a Confirmation Charter of the lands of "Trakeware" to Watson of Cranystoun, dated "Apud Inchegall," September 27, 1407. (Reg. Mag. Sigill, f. 233.)

Notices of this barony will be found in Inquisitiones Generales et Speciales. Under "Fife" (No. 389, May 23, 1627) the service of one of the heirs runs thus:—

"In terris et baronia de Lochirschyre-Wester alias nuncupatis Inchegall; terris nuncupatis Flockhous et Bowhous de Inchgall, cum lacu de Inchgall et jure patronatus Capellæ de Inchgall," &c.

Edgars in Galloway.

In the Chartulary of Kelso, the baptismal name of Edgar occurs amongst the descendants of the ancient lords of Nithsdale (supposed to have been related to the lords of Galloway, and kings of Man,) but, as before observed, it must not be confounded with the surname.

The Earls of Dunbar, from whom the Edgars are understood to be descended, seem to have parted with their lands in Nithsdale before 1453. The latter continued till long after that period, to be one of the most numerous clans, (if this word may be used) in the district.

The origin of the family of Edgar, with its numerous branches in the south-west of Scotland, is probably attributable to the marriage of Richard Edgar, in the time of Robert the Bruce, with the co-heiress of Ros of Sanquhar. Some younger branches in the royal household, may likewise have been settled by the King on the lands about Lochmaben, along with other servitors. Probably Richard, eldest of Richard Edgar's four sons, and who renounced his succession to Wedderlie, was progenitor of the various lairds of the name.

The following passage in Chalmers' "Caledonia" supports these suppositions:*

"During the reign of Robert Bruce, Richard Edgar possessed the castle, and half of the barony of Sanquhar in Upper Nithsdale. Edgar also held the lands of Ellicoc in the same district, and the lands of Bartmonade and of Lobri, of Slochan, of Glenaboukan, and part of the lands of Kilpatric in the same shire, all of which he obtained charters from Robert Bruce. He also obtained of the same king, the barony of Kirkandres. Donald Edgar (Richard's Son) acquired from King David II. the captainship of the clan MacGowau in Nithsdale.†"

* "Caledonia," vol. iii., page 72.

† Chalmers adds the following curious coincidence of names which seems to have misled many:—"In the reign of David I. the territory of Sanchar formed a part of the extensive demesnes of Dougal of Stranill, from whom it descended to his son Duvenald, and from him to his son Edgar, whose progeny appear to have assumed the surname of Edgar."

“During the reign of Robert Bruce, the barony was divided between Richard Edgar and William de Crichton,† “who held the other half in right of his wife Isabella de Ros.”

During the reign of Queen Mary, lands in Nithsdale were granted, by royal charter, to Quintin the son of Ninian Edgar. In the Act in favour of John Maxwell, Earl of Morton (10th December, 1585), although many Edgars are mentioned, no notice occurs of the family of Inglistoun, (Irongray); and, yet so far back as 1453, in the retour of Robert, Lord Maxwell, as heir of Herbert, Lord Maxwell, his father, besides Richard Edgar of Garnsallacht, there was on the inquest, John Edgar of Inglistoun. In 1664 (March 22), John Edzare of Inglistoun was absent from an assize, for the trial of certain persons, in the stewartry of Kirkcudbright; and in 1598, a John Edser of Inglistoun was denounced as a rebel, for his share in the “slaughter” of Patrick Maxwell of Dalquheon.

There were Edgars, lairds of Bombie, Kirkcudbrightshire, before the days of the McLellans; and we find the name, in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, at Cornetown, Shearington, Gilichtoun, Kerringarroch, Correghe, Creouhane, (otherwise Creaken) Doublahill, Kentsyle, Furd, Gullishill, Kirkland of Irongray, Lochkindeloch, Blackshaw, Elsiehiells, &c. To the last-named place Thomas Edgar, Provost of Dumfries, in 1730, bequeathed an annuity of £40, for the education of the poor.

In the seventeenth century, an uninterrupted intercourse appears to have subsisted between the Edgars of Dumfries, and those who had taken up their abode in Edinburgh and its environs.

The baronies of Holywood, and Caerlaverock were largely inhabited by Edgars; the gradual sub-division of property in pastoral districts, tending to perpetuate a patriarchal system. The Edgars of Bowhouse, Caerlaverock, settled in Edinburgh, and in Fife. Those of Shearington, (probably a branch of the Blackshaw family,) betook themselves to commercial pursuits, and formed a connection with Edinburgh; they also acquired property in Forfarshire. The Edgars of Kirkblane seem to have been identical with those of Bowhouse; and it is not improbable that the Chrystenhill Edgars were closely related to the Inglestoun family.

From Nithsdale, the Edgars strayed into Ayrshire, and Lanarkshire; in which latter county, during the earlier portion of last century, a farm called “Blackbird,” was held by an Alexander Edgar.

MIDLOCHARWOODS.

JOHN EDGAR, holding, with others, a pendicle, or small division of land, at Rimdale, died in 1801, at the advanced age of 106 years. He had a kiln for drying corn for the neighbouring farmers, which, notwithstanding its dangerous construction, is supposed to have produced meal of a better flavour than any since invented. His son, Robert Edgar, born at Caerlaverock in 1776, died in June, 1863. He served in the Yeomanry Cavalry during the French war. He kept greyhounds and coursed with them after he was fourscore. He shipped great quantities of grain from Glencaple to Glasgow and other ports, when the Nith was much more used for shipping than it is now; and was also the first to establish a bone mill, and introduce that description of manure among the farmers of Nithsdale and Annandale.

John Edgar, his son, born in Caerlaverock in 1801, was an eminent engineer. He was in business in Dumfries, from 1828, to 1852, and took much interest in draining, and the manufacture of peat. He was proprietor of Midlocharwoods, and had a son, the Rev. Robert Edgar, born in Dumfries in 1835.

It is probable that this family might, without difficulty, be traced to that of Broomrig in the 16th; or of Bowhouse in the 17th century.

Edgar of Keithock, Forfarshire.

THE baptismal name Edgar, is found in this County at an early period, namely, between 1202 and 1218, when the signatures of Robert, son of Edgar, and Thomas his son, appear to charters, by the Bishop of Brechin, in favour of the Abbey of Arbroath.

The barony of Keithock was amongst the ancient possessions of the noble house of Lindsay;* but certain lands consolidated, surrendered, and then granted to David Edgar, writer in Edinburgh, by the Bishop of Brechin, in 1679, did not include baronial rights.

But this, or rather a previous family, connected with it, and probably represented by John Edgar, son of Thomas Edgar, of—or more strictly perhaps in—Keithock, in 1722, is noticed in the Tax roll of the Sheriffdom of Forfar, in 1643, when we find Thomas Edgar of Keithock, set down at, £44 10s. 4d.

On reference to the Decisions of the Court of Session, (1665, Jan. 17-28); and the Charter and Precept of Seisin, of Keithock, (dated 2nd Oct. 1679), we find that David Edgar, the grantee of the latter, was the son of a previous David, by his wife Anne Blair; and that (with others resigning portions of the lands of Keithock,) occur the following names—“James Farquharson, eldest lawful son of the deceased Archibald F. in Keithock, and his deceased wife Anno Blair, with the consent of Elspeth Mitchell, wife of the said James, ‘to whom said lands formerly belonged,’ in favour of the said David Edgar.”

From the above, it would seem, that Anne Blair had been twice married; and that this family of Edgar had, at the period in question (1660-79), just acquired Keithock—thus proving the inaccuracy of the subsequent interlineations in the Lyon Register.

According to this evidence, Thomas Edgar, styled “of Keithock,”† in the grant of arms to his son and heir, John, in 1722, must have had that designation, at a period anterior to

* Vide R. M. S.; R. S. S.; and Inq. G. & S.; also Jervise’s “Land of the Lindsays.”

† David Edgar of Keithock, to whom arms had been granted in 1680, was succeeded by his eldest son Alexander, who was “of Keithock,” and using these arms; when, in 1722, John Edgar (of Dantzie) in Poland, “eldest lawful son of Thomas Edgar of Keithock,” had also a grant of arms; and the mottos assigned to each family, seem to attest significantly, the official view of their origin.—“Potius ingenio quam vi.”—“Apparet quod latebat.”

these references. Whether the two families were of identical descent, there is nothing to show, beyond a strong probability. On the other hand, the circumstantial evidence of the Inquisition, on the death of Gilbert Edgar, of Shearington, Dumfries; taken in connection with the grant of 1722, to John Edgar, then living in Poland, (Dantzic) leads to the irresistible inference, that the Edgars of Keithock were descended from one of the Galweigian branches of Edgar,* and not from any Cadet of Wedderlie; for, neither baptismal names, circumstances, nor dates, can be found to give the slightest indication of the latter origin—at the same time, the correction of such an error, implies no disparagement, as the primary origin of both races was, in all probability, one and the same. Moreover, these questions can only be decided by official evidence on record; and therefore, a mere opinion, or assertion, goes for nothing. (See “Extracts” farther on in this volume.)

David Edgar of Keithock, who seems to have bought that estate, had a large family, of whom were John, and James, both prominent in the Rebellion of 1715. The former died a prisoner in Stirling Castle; and the latter, escaping to Italy, became private secretary to the Chevalier St. George. A brief sketch of this remarkable person may not be unacceptable.

James Edgar was a younger son of David Edgar of Keithock, by his wife ~~Katherine Forester~~^{See Mr. Bell's Genealogy}, and was born at Keithock, on the 13th July, 1688 †. Of his boyhood nothing is known; nor does it appear how he happened to enter the service of the Chevalier; but he must have done so early, as he occupied his post of assistant secretary, for the long period of fifty years. On his demise, he was succeeded by Andrew Lumsden, whose letters, incorporated in the Memoirs of Sir Robert Strange, contain frequent notices of his predecessor, and afford, in a few graphic touches, a remarkably clear idea of the placid and enduring old Jacobite, and his somewhat unrefined partiality for certain comestibles. ‡

On the suppression of the civil war, of 1715, James Edgar made his way to Keithock, and there applied to a tenant farmer named Bell, for the loan of a suit of labourer's clothes. In this disguise he succeeded in reaching the Continent, subsequently returning the borrowed apparel, which the worthy farmer preserved as a memorial of the adventure. Under similar circumstances, the suit was again called into requisition, thirty years later, by John Edgar, the secretary's favourite nephew, and also a staunch Jacobite.

It is only from casual observations by contemporaries, and his own letters, that we discover the little that is known of James Edgar. During his exile in Rome, he appears to have been in straitened circumstances; but his poverty was honourable, inasmuch as it was due in a great measure to his scruples, which, as a Protestant, incapacitated him from holding such remunerative situations, under the Pontifical government, as his master might otherwise have obtained for him. Andrew Lumsden tells us, “that he had himself served as assistant secretary under James Edgar, before he succeeded the latter, but on so small a salary, that it was only with the addition of a French pension he was secured from actual want.”

‡ “Memoirs of Sir R. Strange,” p. 253: “As you [Sir R. S.] desire to send something to my worthy friend [Mr. Edgar], I believe you can send nothing more acceptable than some fine pigtail, for he eats a great deal of tobacco. You may likewise send him a cheese.”

He farther informs us, "that the English gentlemen whom he found in attendance on the prince, were six in number, namely, his principal secretary, titular Lord Lismore, whose wife resided in France, and who died in 1757; Mr. James Edgar, acting secretary, who managed the more important correspondence; and four others."

Field sports seem to have been among the pastimes of these exiles, for Lumsden says, writing in 1753, "Last week we were four days at Montefortin, with an intention to hunt. The company consisted of Messrs. Edgar," &c.

The assistant secretary's convivial habits are likewise indicated, by the observation, on his keeping the festival of the national saint of Scotland.

"Pray, how have you celebrated St. Andrew?" asks Mr. Lumsden of Captain Edgar.

"Mr. Edgar," replies the latter, "does great justice to the good saint."

Secretary Edgar's duties seem to have been onerous, for his successor observes, on announcing his death, "You may easily believe what a real affliction, as well as additional fatigue, this must give me; it obliges me to execute both his own, and my own branch of trade."

George the Second ascended the throne without opposition; and, under the rule of Walpole, the authority of the Court triumphed over what was called the Country party. Public morality was at the lowest ebb; a spirit of avarice seemed to infect every rank of life; and it was even asserted in the House of Lords, that the forfeited estates, instead of being applied to the service of the public, had become the reward of venality. The ill success of the ministers' Tobacco Bill, increased the unpopularity of the Government, till at length the unfortunate reverse at Carthage led to the disgrace of Walpole, whose official fall was "dignified with the coronet of Orford." The infraction of the Pragmatic Sanction, in 1740, had involved Europe in a general war, in which the king, with his usual predilection for intruding himself into the political affairs of the Continent, had joined; and Dettingen and Fontenoy were the consequence.

Meanwhile, the French projected the invasion of England; and Charles Edward Stuart hastened from Rome to Paris, in the disguise of a courier; and entering into the designs of the French king, embarked for Scotland. The prince was unequal to the enterprise. The fatal indolence which characterised his proceedings, after the victory of Prestonpans, turned the scale of fortune against him; and the decisive battle of Culloden, extinguished for ever, the hopes of his dynasty.

It was immediately after this crushing defeat, that John Edgar, nephew of the secretary, arrived, a fugitive, at Keithock; and, by a curious coincidence, sought the protection and aid of the same farmer who, thirty years before, had facilitated the escape of his uncle; and a kind-hearted Presbyterian minister, who was proceeding to Edinburgh, generously allowed the fugitive to ride behind him as his servant. On the way, Edgar narrowly escaped detection, by a party of soldiers, who recognised a gentleman, even in the mean garb of a rustic, but who were at length persuaded, by the clergyman, of their mistake.

Secretary Edgar's long declining health, had excited the fears of his assistant, ever since his return from Germany; after a few days of severe illness, he expired on the 24th of September, 1764. In announcing the event to his nephew, John Edgar of Keithock, Mr. Lumsden writes:—"When I informed his master of his death, he expressed an uncommon and real concern for the loss of so old and faithful a servant, and whose worth he perfectly knew; and he desired me to condole with you sincerely, in his name, on this mournful occasion. . . . As to myself, I have lost one who bore me all the tenderness of a father and the warmth of a friend. The many obligations with which he loaded me, will make his memory ever precious." To Prince Charles, under the alias of Mr. John Douglas, Lumsden, on the 29th September following, wrote thus:—"Last week I had the honour to inform you of Mr. Willoughby's (i. e. Edgar's) indisposition, and it is with the utmost affliction I am now obliged to tell you, that he died on the 24th inst. He had been long in a bad state of health, but endeavoured all he could to conceal it. In him you have lost a most faithful, zealous servant, and one who loved you from the bottom of his heart."

Secretary Edgar's nephew, John, survived him until the year 1788, when he died, leaving a numerous issue. But the estate of Keithock, which had been the paramount object of his life's solicitude, passed from his posterity.

One of the sons of David Edgar, of Keithock, emigrated to America, and there purchased an estate, near the city of Elizabeth, State of New Jersey, which he named Edgartown, after his family name; it is still possessed by the family. Of his numerous descendants, several have attained great opulence, and influential positions, in the States of New Jersey, and New York.

Cardinal York appreciated the unobtrusive services of the Edgars; and in the family of the latter, are still preserved many of the personal effects of his father and brother, including miniatures of the two princes; Queen Clementina, and of Mary, Queen of Scots—besides other valuable relics of the Stuart family, the bequests of the cardinal, to Mr. Edgar.

There are two portraits of James Edgar extant; and one of his father David, the second of that name of Keithock.

Secretary Edgar's eldest brother, Alexander, succeeded to the estate of Keithock. He married the eldest daughter of Peter Turnbull of Smiddyhill, Forfarshire, by his wife Euphemia Henderson, daughter of William Henderson of Hallyards. His youngest daughter, Jane, married Alexander Wise, of Lunan, and Alexander Edgar of Keithock is one of the witnesses to their contract of marriage.

A younger brother, Henry, was third and last Bishop of Fife, and, for thirty-six years, pastor of the Episcopal church in Arbroath, where he died, (as intimated by his tombstone in the abbey burial-ground) on the 21st of August, 1765, in the seventy-first year of his age.

Keithock was sold in 1790, two years after the death of John Edgar, the Secretary's nephew. In the representation of the family, this gentleman was succeeded by Thomas, his eldest son, born in March, 1775. Thomas died in 1831, and was succeeded by his younger brother James, born 4th April, 1777. The latter married Barbara, daughter of J. Hamilton, Esq., an opulent merchant in Glasgow, by whom he had a family of two sons, and three daughters. Anne Hamilton, the eldest daughter, married J. G. Plomer, Esq., of Helstone, Cornwall, and had issue two sons, and two daughters. Catherine, the second daughter, died unmarried, in 1871. Mary Caroline, third daughter, resides at Aix-la-Chapelle. John, the elder son, embraced the Roman Catholic faith, and became a monk; he died from exposure, in the discharge of his professional duties. James, the younger son, born in 1819, married, in 1840, Grace, eldest daughter of the Rev. David Fleming, M.A., minister of Carriden, Linlithgowshire. Proceeding to Canada, James purchased lands near Sherbrooke, in the province of Quebec, which he named Keithock, after the family estate; he died 6th April, 1851, leaving one son, and two daughters. Eliza Catherine, the elder daughter, married W. P. Wilkie, Esq., advocate, Edinburgh, who died in September, 1872. Grace, the younger daughter, married Richard Thorne, merchant, Toronto, and has issue. James David, the only son, married Matilda, second daughter of Thomas Gibbs Ridout, Esq., Toronto, and has issue two sons, James Frederick, and Oscar Pelham, and a daughter, Maude Caroline. James David Edgar is a barrister-at-law at Toronto, and Member of the Canadian Parliament. He is head and representative of the family of Keithock.

Edgars in Ireland.

A BRANCH of the Scottish (Dumfries) Edgars is settled in Ireland. The family tradition is, that four Edgars, brothers, came to Ulster in the earlier part of the reign of William III., of whom one joined the army, and another settled near Castlewellan, county Down, where his descendants remain, now spelling the name with a phonetic variation. A third settled in the district of Ards, and the fourth near Gilford, where they held several farms, and where the name has become localized.

Of this last branch there were two brothers, one of whom—the Presbyterian minister of Loughageny, was father of the Rev. Dr. S. O. Edgar, the author of a learned work on Popery; and the other, father of the Rev. — Edgar, Presbyterian Professor of Divinity at Belfast, and father of the late Rev. John Edgar, D.D., LL.D., Professor of Divinity at Belfast, Vice-President of Belfast College, an eminent leader in the Temperance movement and other salutary reforms. He died in 1866, aged sixty-nine.

Edgars in England.

THERE is an interesting manuscript in possession of the present family of Edgar of the Red House, Ipswich, which appears to have been commenced by Thomas Edgar, of North Glemham, Suffolk, in 1641, and to have been continued by successive Edgars, his descendants or kinsmen.

This record contains 1. A genealogy of the Edgars of North Glemham traced from John Edgar, living in 1273.—2. Of the Edgars of Brantham, containing also a curious grant of arms.

3. Of the Edgars of Coombs.—4. Of the Edgars of Eys.—5. And of the Edgars of Ipswich.

These genealogies being mixed up with numerous transcripts from the Suffolk parish registers, are somewhat confused, and therefore it has seemed advisable, to make certain transpositions of matter (always however noting the fact,) by keeping the genealogies to this portion, while relegating the extracts from the register, to another part of this work.

Although no connection has been discovered between the Edgars of Ipswich, and those in Scotland, it is curious that in a letter from Secretary James Edgar to his nephew, (in the possession of the Edgars, sometime of Keithock,) the writer recommends the latter not to omit visiting his namesake at Ipswich. It is therefore evident that the former, recognised some common origin; but if any such exist, it must surely be sought for, not later than the thirteenth century.

EDGAR OF NORTH GLEMHAM.

“A succinct account of that branch of the family of Edgar of North Glemham, which seated about the year 1600, in Ipswich, in the county of Suffolk.

William Edgar of North Glemham Esq., who died very aged, and lieth interred in the chancel of the Parish church, under a marble stone, 3rd September 1559, with this inscription,—

“Dormitorum Edgaram prosapia * immortalitatis Stolum ”—

Gloriam cum justis expectant.

Quibus Christus est vera quies” (?)

This William is said to have married into the family of Talamach of Framsdon and Helmingham, by whom he had four sons—Nicholas, Robert, John, and Lionel. Nicholas continued the line of the Glemham family. Robert died without issue. John married, had issue John, who died, without issue. Lionel married.

Devereux Edgar of Ipswich, 2nd son of Thomas Edgar of the same, Esq., marrying Temperance Sparrowe, the only sister and heiress of Robert of Wickham Brook, Gentleman, I have thought fit to sett down what I found inserted in the said book of the said Robert, father, and son of Philip the grandfather—and follows in manner in it as then written, in their respective hands.”

his paternal estates, in North Glemham. He is said to have married into the family of the Tunleys, and by his wife had a son named John, which John succeeded his father in his mansion of Combs Hall, in the 33rd Henry VI., 1452. He married ———, and by her had issue—

BRANTHAM.

“MEMDUM.— In this parish of Brantham, Brantham Hall, a fair building, and well accommodated, was the dwelling, seat and possession of one branch of the family of Edgars, long before the dissolution, and at the same time dwelt divers of that stem. But in regard there were no Church registers kept before the new revolution, till about the year 1550, or after, no recourse can be had to any prints, Escripts, or otherwise, but only as it appeared by other evidences. That two Roberts, father and son, long before possessed and inherited the said Brantham Hall and Lands, and that Gregory, a son of the last Robert is so reputed. And which Gregory was educated in the laws of the land, and by his excellency in that learned profession, arrived to the degree & honour of being made Kings Serjeant of the Coife to King Henry the 7th, & was by that king knighted by the title of Sir Gregory. In the chancel of the above named church, lieth flat in the ground, a fair black marble stone, with the arms depicted, & by the writings as beneath, as may appear by figures in the brass plate.

Hic jacet Gregorius Edgar Miles quoad serviens ad legem & Anna, u ejus una filia. . Simonis Wiseman Arell quid Gregorius obiit die Aug Anno Dni MDVI.

The above said Sir Gregory is said to have dyed rich, & without male issue, leaving behind him only two daughters co-heirs, one married a son of Sir Humphrey Wingfield, supposed the eldest son, & the eldest daughter; the other daughter married to — Walpool, of Norfolk, Esqr. The Wingfields by virtue of the said marriage, inherited, & till of late possessed the said Brantham, & other adjacent estates, formerly the fee of the said Edgar's, and also a good old house, gardens, & in St. Stephen's porch in Ipswich, which the said Gregory is said to have built. The arms of the Edgars are, or within memory, were plainly to be seen in proper colours, but the unhappy times discarded them.

Out of an old table in Parchment, hung up some time since, in Brantham church, and now taken down and remaining in the custody of John Wingfield of Brantham, Esq. 1639, the following inscription is written, "Sir Humphrey Wingfield Knt. living in Brantham Hall, Anno 1545, buried at Brantham. He took to wife Anne, daughter to Simon Wiseman Esq a man valiant & noble. She was well endowed by the marriage of Sir Gregory Edgar, Lawyer, or that it may be spoken in more usual phrase, Serjeant-at-Law. This woman was with Modesty, Manner, Affability & Parentage, acceptable to all, and soe liberal to the poor, as is incredible to all.

Robert, son of William Edgar, of North Glemham, resided at Brantham Hall, married a daughter of — Havell, Esq., and by her had a son, Robert, who married a daughter of — Coffinger, Esq., and by her had a son named Gregory, of whom see before.

“From the last named William Edgar, who died at North Glemham very aged, supposed about ninety years, and lyeth buried in the chancel of the church as registered 3rd September, 1559, the line and succession of the Edgars of North Glemham, Ipswich, Eye, &c., are continued.

“William Edgar, Esq., son of John Edgar, Gent., of North Glemham, in the county of Suffolk, anno 28 H. 8, and lived and died there, and was cousin germane of the eldest brother of Sir Gregory Edgar Knt, serjeant at law to Henry VII., king of England, &c. There arising a great misunderstanding and cause of differences between the said William and Gregory, 'tis said about estate and place,—the said Gregory being grown rich and proud, the said William Edgar changed the ancient Armes in Coat bearing of the Edgars, viz.

“A Chevron Or between 3 Leopards' faces Argent, for that which is now borne by that family, viz:—Party per pale Or and Azure; in chief 2 fleur de luces Gules; in fesse 5 Fewsells of the chief (sic) charged with 5 Escallops of the 3rd.

“The old Armes of this family were, Gules, a Chevron Or, between 3 Leopards' faces Argt., no doubt in allusion to the De La Poles, ancient dukes and earls of Suffolk, as are to be seen in a certain house in Ipswich, among many other coats of ancient depicture; as also upon Sir Gregory Edgar's gravestone, in Brantham Church, in Suffolk; who was a serjeant at law sub Henry 7, and was not named “Sir George” as Baker's “Chronicle” and Mr. W. Dugdale's “Armes judiciales” have it by mistake; and this is manifest not only from memorials such as was Sir Gregory's epitaph, viz:—
 Hic jacet Gregorius Edgar Miles, et Anna uxor ejus, una filiarum Simonis Wiseman Arm. Qui Gregorius obiit.—August, Anno. Dmn. MCCCCIJ. An old table hanging in the same church, before the unhappy times, speakes as follows:—Sir Humphrey Wingfield of Brantham in Suffolk died 1545, and was then buried; he took to wife, Anne, daughter of Simon Wiseman, a man valiant and noble, who was afterwards well endowed by her marriage with Sir Gregory Edgar, Lawyer. This woman was graced with modesty, manners, affability, and good Parentage, and acceptable to all; and so liberal to the Poor as is incredible. But to proceed, also from other escripts, Ordinances, and Records; the said Gregory, was the son of Robert, who died at Brantham, his own seat, as appears by an Office founded 23 Hen. 7, and was but a Cadet to the top branch of Edgar of Glemham. Sir Gregory therefore ought to have been thus distinguished; but having quite omitted to do it, as is evident by their Armes put up in the house aforesaid, . . . those that placed upon his Tumulus Prostratus (?) the aforementioned his Armes in brass, impaled with Wiseman's added the Martlett, and those that put it thus, enjoy the said manor and house, by virtue of a marriage with one of the co-heirs of Sir Gregory to ys day, in their descendants. However it be, the Edgars of Glemham family that have continued these Four hundred years, assumed a new coat, by patent in Hen. 8th time, which they now bear blazoned as before mentioned, In Fox's Martyrology in the of Dr. Barne's as also by John Standish, a Fellow of Wellington College, London in a treatise of his against printed anno 1540, now in my custody, this name was anciently, inadvertently spelt by some writers Edgor as above. Baker in Origines Judiciales, and Foxe in his Martyrology, (Vol. 3, Page 960,) speak of a priest or clerk of that name, but the Law year book of Hy 7, fol. 8, gives it otherwise."

(The MS. is so confused and obscure, on this, and the following pages, that many transpositions and omissions have been made.)

"Now, to proceed in the pedigree or genealogie of the Edgars of North Glemham, Combès, Ipswich, Eye, &c. ; the new patent for change of armes being in this book entered or registered—the patent, was originally entered into the custody or keeping of Thomas Edgar, of North Glemham, Esq., dated and signed by Christopher Barker, Ar. Rex. Armor., 37 Hen. VIII., anno 1545, —thus far as to what is here written of the genealogies of the Edgars. What is omitted in Mr. Gibbon's book has been obtained for the Edgars of North Glemham, from writings, and an old table or genealogie, in Thomas Edgar, Esq.'s possession, anno, 1641. But now to proceed; and first, as to the Glemham family.—William Edgar that purchased the new patent upon change of the armes, is said to have married into the family of the Talamachs of Frameden in Suffolk, Esq., and (by his wife) had four sons.

1. Nicholas Edgar, the eldest; he married a daughter of Saunders of Bloxhall, in Suffolk, and by her had issue, as hereafter.

William, son of the above Nicholas, married, and begat Frances, who died without issue; and Robert, which Robert lived and died in Wingfield College, in Wingfield parish, in Suffolk, an auncient batchelor.

Thomas, who succeeded his father William in the said parish and house in North Glemham, and who sold and alienated the tythes and manor from the family.

John, which married and had issue. John, which died without issue.

Nicholas, son of the last Thomas, was brought up or trained a solicitor, died or killed,—a colonel at the siege of — —, in France, without issue.

Thomas, the son, inherited premises and dwelt therein; married a daughter of Sir Lionel Playtirs, of Sotheby Hall, in Sotheby, Suffolk, Bart., and by her had issue three sons, viz., Nicholas, Thomas, and Playtirs.

1. Nicholas, after the death of his father, Thomas, inherited the premises, married into the family of the Gaudies, a near relation of Sir John and Sir Gaudie of — —, Bassenbourn in Norfolk, Bart. John, son of the last Nicholas by Gaudy, inheriting the above seat and premises, married to Jane Nennie, of Bury St. Edmund's, Suffolk, gentleman, whose mother was a daughter of Lionel Edgar, of Ipswich, gentleman, and by her had issue William and two daughters, now dead.
2. Thomas; he married to Susan Lamb, but died without issue.

3. Playtirs, married to — Colman, but died without issue male.
2. Robert; he died without issue.
3. John; he married — —, and by her had issue a son, John; he died without issue.
4. Lionel; he is said to have married into the family of Cottons of Earl Soham* in Suffolk, Esq. This Lionel lived in Framesden in Suffolk, and by his wife had a son named John.

Here followeth the line of the Edgars of Ipswich, in succession from William Edgar,† of North Glemham, Esq., who married into the family of the Talamachs of Framesdin and Helmingham B., by which marriage he, the said William, amongst other children, had issue Lionel; which William was the person who changed the auncient armes of the family, and took a new patent.

Lionel Edgar, above said, of Framesden, married — —, daughter of — Cotton, gentleman, and by her had John, born and lived in Framesdin.

John, the son, after his father's death, lived in Framesdin aforesaid, and took to wife a daughter of Henry Peyto, gentleman, by whom he had Lionel.

Lionel had two wives; the first a daughter of — Moss, gentleman, by whom he had one son, named Lionel; which Lionel married — —, and by her he had two sons, named Thomas and William. Both lived to be men, but neither married. William died while living in St. Mary Tower parish; lies entombed in the west end of that church, with this inscription under the Edgar armes,—

“ Good friends, for Jesus' sake forbear,
To move the dust entombed here.
Blest be the man that spares these stones,
And curst be he that moves my bones.”

He died an ancient Batchelor; and Registrar, Commissary of the Archdeacon of Suffolk.

Lionel, the father, took to his 2nd wife Katherine, one of the daughters of Thomas Glasscock, of Ipswich, Esq., chief customaster of the port and haven of Ipswich, and Harwich, (Essex and Suffolk); and by her had two sons, Thomas and Lionel; and one daughter; which daughter married to Mr. Gibbon, of London, author, (before referred to.)

Thomas Edgar,‡ son of Lionel Edgar, by Katherine Glasscock, was educated in University; and Inns of Court, viz., in Gray's Inn, London, when he was student, barrister, bencher, and law reader in that honourable society, and in that degree or station at his death. A long time, and many years, till his death, a Justice of the Peace for the county of Suffolk; Recorder of the Corporations of Ipswich, Eye, and Orford,

Born in Queen Elizabeth's reign; christened in King James, I.; living in King Charles I. and II.; King James II.; and part of William and Mary's reign; died 12th April, 1692, in the ninetieth year of his age. Lieth interred in the vault in the south side of the chancel of St. Mary's at Tower Ipswich. Which said Thomas took to wife Mary, sole daughter of Philip Poule, merchant, of London; by whom he had ten children, viz., Philip, Thomas, Mary, Elizabeth, Thomas, Robert, Devereux, Mary, Catherine, Francis; all which children, excepting the fifth and seventh, Thomas and Devereux, died single, unmarried, and without issue. The said Mary, wife and widow of the said Recorder, died in the eightieth year of her age; and lies interred in the same vault with the said Thomas, her late husband.

Thomas, the fifth child and third son of the said Thomas the Recorder, and heir to him, brought up to learning, at University, and Inns of Court, viz., Queen's College, Cambridge, and Graies Inn, London, (student and barrister.) He married Agatha, one of the daughters and co-heirs of Borrodail Mileson, of Morton,* in Suffolk, Esq., by whom he had eleven children; but all died young except two, Mileson and Agatha.

Mileson Edgar, son of the last-named Thomas, married Alice, the sole daughter and heiress of William Shaw, of Ipswich, gentleman, by whom he had one son and two daughters.

Mileson, the son, married to Anne, the daughter of — Peek, of Stanford, in Essex. She died, leaving no issue. He, the said Mileson, took a second wife, — —, the sole child and heiress of Thomas Dye or Day, of Moor Hall, in Eye, in Suffolk, gentleman, and Temperance his wife, one of the daughters and co-heiresses of Henry Edgar, of Cranley Hall, Eye, by whom he hath now living three sons, Mileson, Thomas, and John, and three daughters — —, Joan, and Agatha married to Mr. Child, of London, banker, brother to Sir Francis Child, banker.

At the same place is also recorded the will of another Edzer of Bentford, co. Southampton, the seal attached to which bears the comparatively rare device of a double-headed eagle, displayed; and in 1550 in the same Probate Court is the will of a Matilda Edgar.—(Winchester Probate Court.)

Devereux Edgar, seventh child, fifth son, but second son having issue, married Temperance, the sole daughter of Robert Sparrow, of Wickham Brook, gentleman, by whom he had issue ten children, viz., Robert, Philip, Thomas, Temperance, Mary, Devereux, Edgar, Ann, Elizabeth, Thomas, Ann.—Robert, Temperance, Mary, Devereux, yet living. In the year 17— he was married to Catharine, one of the daughters and co-heiresses of Basingbourn Goodwyn, Gent., and merchant, by whom he had issue one child, Robert, which soon after died—the said Catherine some time after, viz., 15 September, 1727.

Robert, married May 22, 1762, Susanna Greig, daughter to Stillingfleet Greig, Prebendary of Peterborough, by whom he had issue Susannah, Elizabeth, Robert, and Catherine. His eldest daughter, Susannah married, 16th October, 1783, to Mileson Edgar, Esq., of the Red House, Ipswich; the second daughter, Elizabeth, married July 17th, 1788, to Mr. Herring, of Brasendale, Norwich, a son of the late Dean of St. Asaph; Katherine married, September 9, 1789, Nicholas Starkes, of Manchester, late in the 10th Dragoons.

NOTE.—Radolphus was Bishop of Brechin, in the reign of King William the Lion, about 1178—1200. He granted nine charters to the Abbey of Arbroath, chiefly in reference to the parish churches above named. Among the witnesses to eight of these charters are "Robert the son of Edgar, and Thomas his son." Six of these charters design these witnesses thus—"Rob'to filio Edgari et T. filio eius." In the remaining two charters they are designed—"Rob'to filio edgar et Thom filio ei'."

* N.B.—A few references to charters not directly concerning or connected with the name of Edgar have been given, where they happened to bear on lands or names subsequently associated with the surname of Edgar in Berwickshire. This name does not occur in the Chartulary of Soltray (MacFarlane's copy.) The early name of the parish of Coldstream was Lennal—written in the various forms of Leinhal, Lonhal, Lennal, Lennel, Lenuel and Laynal.—(New Statistical Account of Scotland.—Vol. 2 (Coldstream), 1845.)

N.B.—SERVICE OF HEIRS.—Formerly this was carried through under a brief from Chancery, addressed to sheriffs or baillies of royal burghs, and completed before a jury of fifteen. Where the ancestor was infeft, the service was one in Special; and the brieve directed to the Sheriff of the County wherein the lands were situated. Where the lands were situated in several counties, the service was formerly carried through before macers of the Court of Session (the Judges acting as assessors to their Officers), afterwards before the Sheriff of Edinburgh, and now before the Sheriff in Chancery. Where the ancestor was not infeft the service was one in General, and the brieve was addressed to any Sheriff or Bailie Court, and a great number of those services were in use to be carried through before the Magistrates of Canongate. A Special included a General Service. The verdict was retoured, or returned to Chancery; and an extract thereof gave the heir in Special, the right of entry as vassal; an heir served in General had right to take infeftment on all unexecuted precepts and procuratories of his ancestor, and to enter into all those rights which required no infeftment.

Service of Heirs is now regulated by the Act 10 and 11 Vict. c. 47, (1847) and relative Act of sederunt, 14 July, 1847, &c.—See Bell's Digest of the Law of Scotland, Edinburgh 1865, p. 943.

* SCOTTISH TERRITORIAL BARONIES.—A Laird, alias Dominus, was a Baron—a smaller or lesser Baron—and he was often called also a Freeholder in Acts of the Jameses. He behoved to be a tenant in capite of the Crown, and to hold by ward and relief—or blench—"in alba-firma." His lands might not be erected into a liberam baroniam, and yet he was nevertheless a Baron. Sir G. Mackenzie, "writing in 1680," on Precedency, uses these expressions: "the Lesser Barons, commonly called Lairds" (p. 52); "the rest are called small Barons" (p. 55); "the old Barons (or Lairds)" (p. 56); and "a Laird in effect is but the corrupt form of a Lord." Lairds properly were, namely, "such as did hold their lands of the Prince" (S. of Heraldry, p. 13); "such as held their lands of a subject were only called Good-men." If other authority be required, refer to Thomson's Case for Cranstoun,—"every man of lawful age, holding his lands in capite of the Crown, however small his freehold, was bound to give suit and presence in Parliament," &c.; and there he was enrolled as a Baron; the three estates at that time—James I. and II.—consisting of the "Clergy, Barons, and Commissioners of Burghs." ACT IN FAVOUR OF EARL OF MORTON.

Act in favour of John, Earl of Morton.—John Maxwell, Earl of Morton, was the son of the second daughter of James Douglas, Earl of Morton, whose youngest and third daughter married James, Earl of Morton (the Regent), but they had no family. The eldest daughter was married to the Duke of Hamilton, and Chatelherault, Earl of Arran. The Hamiltons made over their right of succession to Lord Maxwell, both as to title and estates; but James Douglas, who married the youngest daughter, prevailed on his father-in-law, to make an entail in his favour, which he himself afterwards altered; but the change was confirmed by Act of Parliament. A standing feud between him and Lord Maxwell was the consequence; the latter was even imprisoned by the Regent when in power. On the forfeiture and execution of James, Earl of Morton, John, Lord Maxwell, was created Earl of Morton in 1581. The former Earl of Morton's forfeiture being reversed in 1585, the old title revived in favour of Archibald, Earl of Angus, the heir under Morton's entail. Lord Maxwell still retained the title under the creation of 1581. His son, John Lord Maxwell, did not use it, but on his brother Robert being restored, after his brother's forfeiture the new title of Earl of Morton revived; and on 29th August, 1620, on the recital that it was inconvenient to have two titles of the same name (Morton), King James changed the title of Morton into that of Nithsdale, in favour of Robert, Lord Maxwell, and his heirs male, with the precedency of the creation of 1581. He thereupon became Robert, Earl of Nithsdale, and what seems singular, even his mother, formerly Countess Dowager of Morton, thenceforth also called herself Countess of Nithsdale, the changed title. (R.M.)

- 1672-78.

* On the destruction of that colony, several of the refugees fled to Jamaica, where they acquired property and became men of note. Such were Guthrie and Blair; and as the Edgars of Edinburgh, Haddington, and Keithock, were subscribers to the Darien Fund, it is not improbable that they had relations amongst those emigrants.—(Roby's "History of the Parish of St. James, Jamaica.") his degree, mantled gules, doubled argent, next is place on ane Forse for his Crest, a dagger and quill crossing other in saltire—the first suppressed of y^e last. The motto in ane Escroll, 'Potius ingenio quam vi.' He is descended of the old Family of Keithock." *

(Marginal Note in the L. R.)

"4th March, 1817. N.B.—The representative of this family now claims the Arms of Edgar of Wedderlie, as being of a younger brother of that family; Admiral Edgar the late representative of Wedderlie, being lately dead without heirs male. Notice to be given to Thomas Edgar, Esq., West Geo. Street, Glasgow."—This notice is simply an ordinary Caveat, such as it is competent to any Edgar of Scotch descent to make, on payment of a fee, and has no further official significance.

Poland.
1680-85.

"John Edgar, now living in Polland, eldest lawful sone procreat betwixt Thomas Edgar of Keithock, in Scotland, and Magdalen Guthrie his spouse, daughter to John Guthrie of Overdyzert, bears sable, a lyon rampant argent, betwixt two garbs in chief of the second, banded gules, and a bezeant in base. On ane helmet befitting his degree, mantled gules doubled argent, and wreath of his crest—a withered oak sprouting out some leaves proper: The motto in ane Escroll, Apparet quod latebat."

N.B.—The Armorial Insignia of Wedderlie do not appear in the Lyon Register, this being one of those families which did not conform to the Act of James VI., enjoining the registration of Arms. They are in Sir D. Lindsay's Register (and elsewhere) quartered with the Arms of Sir Wm. Douglas of Nithsdale. This, the pure Coat of Edgar, appears in many old heraldic MSS. as belonging to "Edgar, lord of Nithsdale, of old." The Arms granted to the two Edgars of Keithock, do not indicate any derivation from Wedderlie, but probably commemorate a connection between David Edgar the successful lawyer, and the Dumfriesshire family of Rigg. "Neither of the Edgar entries in the L. R. is dated; "Keithock" is the earlier, namely, circa 1672-78—and "Poland" probably 1680-85." R.R.S. The dates previously assigned, are to be found in various works, but the above are more reliable.

* The words "of Keithock," and "old," over the line, are added in a different hand. The addition, "He is descended of the Family of Keithock" is also in another hand.

1628. July 10. Margaret Edgar v. Edgar's Executors. The case of umquhile Edward Edgar's relict, and her second husband, Walter Cant against "the bairns of the said umquhile Edward Edgar, and David Johnston and Edward Edgar, their tutors."—(Vide Reg. of Deeds, Dal. Off., Dec. 23, 1664. Vol. xii.)
1638. July 26. "Supplicatioune be Elspeth Edgar, dochter lauffull to Rot. (should be John) Edgar of Wedderlie, . . . mak and mentioun that quhair George Edgar, sone

- lauffull to Richard Edgar of Newtown in Birghem, having intentit actiounes of adherence conforme to ane pretendit marriage, alledgit maid in England." Supplicant desires the protection of the Court of Sess., pending that action. Accordingly she is granted protection "from all Captiounes . . . usit at the instance of the said George Edgar and his father."
1639. Feb. 8. (The same case) "Elizabeth Edgar, dochter lauffull to John Edgar, fear of Wedderlie . . . hir father," against George Edgar of Newtown, who claimed her as his wife, and Richard his father and "Margaret Craw, spous," of the latter. Robert Edgar of Wedderlie, grandfather of Elizabeth, a party to the suit. The Lords of Session "fund and declarit that it salbe leisume to the said Elizabeth Edgar to marie with quhom she pleissis." Decree of 29 Aug., 1637—Reference to another hearing of the case, ordered for 12 Feb., instant. (N.B.—This is a very curious case—Elizabeth afterwards m. John Edgar of Edinburgh.)
1663. Jan. 24. "The children of umquhil Edgar of Wedderlie alleadging that their father left to his heir a competent estate, and that he dyed before any provision or ailment appointed to them, and that the Heirs Tutor refused to ailment them: their mother being also dead, therefore craved an ailment," &c.
1665. Jan. 17. Isobel Edgar, daughter of David Edgar of Kethick, and Anna Blair, sues her brother David for 4,000 marks due to her. "The heirs of the first marriage faillyied by decease, and there was four bairns survived of the second marriage, whereof two died before they attained to their age, and there now remains but two, the pursuer and her brother, who is become heir; whereupon she alleadges that she hath the benefit of the whole 4,000 merks."
1665. June 28. James Pitcairn c. Isobel Edgar:—
"Umquhil David Edgar by his contract of marriage provided 4,000 merks, to be payed him and his heir of the first marriage, which failling, any other his heirs to the bairns of the second marriage. Isobel, one of the children, having marraied after her father's death, James Pitcairn, her husband's creditor, pursues for the sum as belonging to the husband jure mariti."

"Samuel Chiesly having charged John Edgar of Wedderly, for payment of 800 merks, for which he became obliged for his brother, as prentice-fee, he suspended, and raised reduction upon minority and laesion." "Edgar of Wedderlie being charged upon an indenture, betwixt him and Samuel Chiesly, chirurgeon, for payment of the sum therein contained, for his brother's prentice-fee, and entertainment during his prenticeship; and having suspended the said bond and intended a reduction thereof, upon minority and lesion; the Lords found—that the second brother having no other means nor provision, his eldest brother, who was heir to his father, and had the estate, ought to entertain him, and to put him to a calling—and did not sustain the lesion."

brother, who was heir to his father, and had the estate, ought to entertain him, and to put him to a calling; and did not sustain the lesion."

These particulars are not to be found under the dates given in the Index to the Decrets, (July 5, 13, 22, and 25, 1676; but under the earlier date elsewhere given.)

1676. July 7. Edgar c. Miln.
 "John Edgar being infest in a tenement in Edinburgh, upon an appraising, pursues for mails and dues," against Patrick Miln.
1676. Dec. 7. Ballantine c. Edgar.

1677. June 19. Edgar of Wedderly, the defendant, alleged "compensation," Dickson "being heir to his brother, who was assigney by Nethermain's." Wedderly as "Executor Creditor to old Wedderly his mother's father, having confirmed a debt due by Nethermain's father to Old Wedderly, had good interest to compensate a debt due by old Wedderly to Nethermain's, against Nethermain's assigney."

1736. July 29. Theodore Edgar against James Maxwell. The former was grandson of the deceased Alexander Johnston of Elsiehiels, and son of Robert Edgar.
 The pursuer appealed to the House of Lords (Jo. of H. of L., vol. xxvi., p. 136, May 31, 1742), but lost his case, the lords having "found that the son of the second marriage could gratuitously alter the destination in the contract of marriage," &c. (See also Grant's Dec. C. of S., &c.) Case continued 1738, July 21; 1742, May 29.

*Case in the Court of Session.—A Printed Report.*EDGAR v. NISBET.

“State of the process of reduction and declaration. John Edgar, Accomptant of Excise in Edinburgh, against Sir John Nisbet of Dean, Baronet, and Alexander Nisbet, Esquire, 1797.

John Edgar having obtained on 23rd Dec., 1790, a decret against John Rutherford, son and heir of the deceased John Rutherford of Hunthill, eldest son and heir of the deceased Henry Rutherford, as lawfully charged to enter heir in special, to deceased Sir John Nisbet of Dean, his second cousin, and to pay the principal sum of £10,000 sterling, as my bond. John Rutherford to John Edgar, dated 18th May, 1790.

The action raised against the above-mentioned Sir J. N., and his brother A., as “only natural and illegitimate children procreated betwixt” the late Sir John Nisbet and —, a native of France.

During the trial, the name left blank, is given as “G. (C)laudine Faure.”

In the course of evidence, it appears that Sir Alexander Nisbet, uncle of Sir Henry, had very considerable property in the Carolinas, and settled Dean, on Henry Rutherford, eldest son of Sir John Rutherford of that ilk, by Dame Sarah Nisbet, his sister-german.

Sir Alexander died in Carolina, in 1753, leaving 2 sons, Henry and John. John returned, took up the title,—purchased a commission in the Scots Greys, “and went to France, and formed a connection with a girl of low situation.” Having sold his commission, “he took this woman to America,” in the end of 1775, or beginning of 1776, leaving their sons at school in Jersey, “whence they returned to Scotland.” “Sir John, their father, and his mistress, their mother, having been shipwrecked on that voyage and drowned,” &c.

(This case was apparently compromised.)

ROYAL COLLEGE OF SURGEONS, EDINBURGH.

(The Royal College of Surgeons of Edinburgh, a corporate body in 1687. Instituted in 1687, as the Incorporated Body of Edinburgh Surgeons.)

Dr. Gairdner, in "A Sketch of the Early History of the Medical Profession in Edinburgh" (Oliver and Boyd, 1864), has published an interesting account of the Incorporation of Surgeons of Edinburgh, subsequently the Royal College of Surgeons, the original members of which were, for the most part, men of superior social status. An interesting gallery of portraits (including those of Thomas and Alexander Edgar—both handsome men—in the council room of the College, gives a favourable impression of these early members. Sir John Medina seems to have been the painter of most of them.

* Cheislie was a Surgeon of Dunse, and probably a member of the old Edinburgh family of the same name, of which was John Cheislie of Dalry, the murderer of Sir George Lockhart, President of the Court of Session, in April, 1689.—For notices of this family see Brown's Epitaphs, &c. Samuel Cheislie, entered 14 Oct., 1659.

Monumental Inscriptions.

Memorial of the last Laird of Wedderlie in the shape of an inscription, placed by him on an old Bible, belonging to the parish church of Westruther:—

EARLSTON, BERWICKSHIRE.

“Died at Cranshaws †—Thomas Edgar, Oct. 3, 1741, aged 55 years.—Agnes Scougal, his spouse, died 1726.—Agnes Wood, his second spouse, died 25th Jan., 1745, aged 62.—Alexander, his son, died Aug. 14th, 1755, aged 27 years.—Peter Edgar, his son, died 2nd March, 1819, aged 77 years.”

(Thomas Edgar left eight children, viz:—six sons and two daughters—William, one of these sons, had no family—Alexander, John, and Mary died unmarried—James had three sons and two daughters—Thomas had two sons and two daughters—Peter had four sons and four daughters.)

* It is to be regretted that this collection is not larger, but with the exception of Mr. Laing's work on the Greyfriars, and two earlier publications, little has been discovered on the subject, while later works are chiefly repetitions of their predecessors.

Of him who lived a virtuous life, and just."

N.B.—"I send you a copy of the inscription on the gravestone in Holywood churchyard, and have sketched the armorial bearings on the stone. The shield on the left is evidently that of Barbara Maxwell, with the saltire for Maxwell, and the hollyleaves and three crescents, as the differences of two different cadets of the family. The square shield on the right, is, no doubt, that of Edgar, on which is very rudely represented (what might be supposed) a horse salient.*" (From F. M. 5th April, 1864.)

Another tombstone of an Edgar, but the inscription is now illegible.

“Hic jacet corpus Henrici Edgar, generosus.—ob. 7 Maij 1619.”

* The grave of Alexr. Edgar, (the first of Auchingrammont) is in this churchyard—He died in 1777. It is covered by a slab without any inscription.

† This is an error, inasmuch as she was only the last of the family actually in possession of Auchingrammont.

‡ Afterwards of the 5th Lancers, &c.—He was an excellent musician, and published some pieces of his own composition.

The following is to be seen in Lydd churchyard :—

“To the memory of Lieut. Thos. Edgar, died 17th October, 1801.”

“(He was with Captain Cook when he was killed.)
Tom Edgar at last has sailed out of this world ;
His shroud is put on, his topsails are furled !
He lies snug in Death's boat, without any concern,
And is moored for a full due a-head and a-stern,
O'er the compass of life he has merrily run,
His voyage is completed, his reckoning is done.”

The reader is referred to the following case—(C. of Session.)

Wm. Molle, W.S.—Trustee of the Rev. John Edgar, minister of the Gospel at Lympington, v. W. Riddell of Camiestoun, Esq., W. S. 13 Dec., 1811.

* This author asserts that the Rev. John Edgar was representative of Wedderlie, (as heir of Newtoun), but it seems that this claim was not substantiated in the Court of Session.

Appeal to the House of Lords, June 19, 1816—W. Molle, appellant—W. Riddell, Esq., respondent. Richard Edgar of Newtoun, was vested in the estate of Newtoun—he had two sons, but they had pre-deceased him. His only daughter was married to Dr. Hunter of Linthill. On the 2nd Sept., 1766, Richard E. executed a general disposition of his estates in favour of his daughter, and her heirs and assignees. In Decr., the same year, he executed another deed in favour of his said daughter, in life-rent, and the heirs male of her body, whom failing to the heirs female in fee, whom failing to his “own nearest heirs whomsoever,” &c. Richard E. died March 18th, 1767. In 1779, his only daughter Mrs. Hunter, had then four children alive, viz:—Richard Edgar, William, and two daughters. The second son and two daughters survived their father, who d. in 1781, but they pre-deceased their mother, who lived till May, 1792; and the eldest son was sole survivor.

The Rev. John Edgar asserted that he was the grandnephew and heir of line of Richard Edgar, and having granted a disposition of the lands to the appellant Molle, the latter charged him to enter heir of line to Mrs. Hunter, and of provision to Colonel Richard Edgar Hunter. Mr. Riddell was nephew and heir-at-law to Dr. Hunter, (Dec. C. of Sess., Dec. 13, 1811.) The appeal was dismissed, and Mr. Riddell was put in possession of the estates of Richard Edgar of Newtoun. (Paton's Reports, vol. vi., p. 168, &c.)

“Hobkirk * Par.—Nicol Edgar, A.M., son to E. of Wedderlie; Ord. 1694; d. 31 May, 1724, æt. 67; m. Susanna, dau. of Mr. Jo. Veitch, minister of Westruther, who d. 30 June, 1713, æt. 52; and had two daurs. Susanna and Elizabeth.”

ADDITIONS AND GENERAL NOTES:

Additions and General Notes.

EDGAR. (p. 1.) A "rare surname."—This is proved by the following statistics of the name, taken from various County and City Directories.

SCOTLAND.—(County D.), 25; Edinburgh, 13; Glasgow, 8; Aberdeen, 1; Clergy List, 5; Dundee; Fac. of Advocates; Writers to H.M. Signet; Solicitor's, none.

ENGLAND.—London, 13; Bristol, 1; Halifax, 1; Yorkshire, 5; Army List, 2; Navy List, 2; Clergy List, 1; Indian C.S., 1; Liverpool, 25; Manchester, 15; Birmingham; Leeds; Sheffield; Derby; Nottingham, none.

IRELAND.—Dublin, 1; Belfast, 6; Limerick; Cork, none.—Total: 118 Edgars.

WILLS. (p. 1.) A few Wills recorded in the Probate Court, London:—

1797. Pro. Nov. John Edgar, London, wife Sarah—no other names.*

1798. Pro. June. Thomas Edgar, of All Hallows, London, wife Catherine, and his mother, Martha.

1798. Pro. Oct. Alexander Edgar, Northampton.

WEDDERLIE. (p. 2.) "The present extent of Wedderlie Manor is nearly 3000 acres; rental about £1,100."—(H. T. 12 June, 1866.)

SEAL OF EDGAR. (p. 3.) A fine and curious Seal—a Dragon or other fabulous animal, with the legend—"Hoc est sigillum Edgari filii Gopatricii Comitiss."—Appended to a charter by Edgar, to the Abbot of St. Alban's and Monastery of St. Oswyn, of Tynemouth, confirming the grant of his father, of the Church of Eduluingeham, about A.D. 1150.—Dean and Chapter of Durham.

See "Catalogue of Ancient Scottish Seals, by Henry Laing, Edinburgh."—Edmonston and Douglas, 1866.

The Charter and Seal are both given in Gibson's Tynemouth. A wood cut of the seal, taken from an electrotype, is placed on the tabulated pedigree of Wedderlie in this volume.

PEFFERMILN. (p. 17.) In old records this place is described as "10 acres and mill of Paper-myln," † barony of Craigmillar, and par. of Liberton. An earlier name seems to have been Scharnyhall.

The original structure is evidently very ancient, in comparison with the portion added, ‡ or rather, rebuilt by Edward Edgar; and the armorial sculpture over the principal entrance is also of a later date than the tower, which it ornaments.

This sculpture represents (but unauthoritatively) the pure Coat of Edgar, impaling that of Pearson, of Kippenross. There is no Crest, but above the escutcheon is a cherub, supporting what probably was intended to be, a representation of bread, on which is inscribed "God will Provyd"—and within this legend, the combined

* John Edgar, styled in 1775, Banker of Great Russell Street, near Bloomsbury Square. He removed in 1791 to Temple Bar. His first Will dated 5 Nov., 1775; the Codicil 14 Dec., 1791.

† The name "Peffer-myln," "Paper-mylne," or "Pepper-miln," may possibly be derived from Peffry—a river, and this derivation acquires some weight from the proximity of the house so called, to the Powburn.—At the same time, it might have been named after pepper or paper; the latter derivation might even now be tested. (See for Peffry, &c., in Robertson's Gaelic Topography of Scotland, pp. 481 and 541.) Perhaps Scharnyhall (Sax. Scheran, to reap) was the Royal Farm Ho. of the Kingsmeadow.

‡ On the West front of Peffermiln house are four good specimens of ornamented attics, each surmounted with an ornament—(the chistle, rose, and fleur-de-lis). There are three sun dials on the walls; and on the newer portion, the date "1686."—The ground is hollow on the North face, and is supposed to contain ancient vaults.

monogram of Edgar—Pearson; while above it, are the initials of Edgar's wife, Margaret Pearson. In a compartment below the escutcheon, are these inscriptions—"Quod Vult dat Deus," and "Dum Spiro Spero." On the right of these two lines, is the peculiar monogram of Edgar (composed of the initial capital, the remaining letters being small); and on the left that of Margaret Pearson.

The Pearsons were, at that period, a new family; as regards recorded ancestry, and armorial bearings.

The author has not discovered when Peffermiln first came into the possession of the Edgar family, although in the Registers of the Great and Privy Seals, (vide "Kingsmeadow") references to it occur. In 1666, it was sold by Edward Edgar to Harry Osborn, from whom it passed successively to the families of Alexander, Cunningham, and Little-Gilmour.

Since the earlier portion of this work was compiled, it has been ascertained that Edward Edgar who purchased the barony of Inchgall, was of Peffermiln.

The following pedigree has been compiled from matter in the preceding pages.

EDGARS OF PEFFERMILN.

Several Edgars from Christenhill, Dumfries, appear to have settled towards the close of the sixteenth century in Edinburgh. Some notices of this family appear in the Register of the Great Seal, &c.

James Edgar, a Commander in the Low Countries, appears also to have had a connection with Dumfries; besides owing lands in the immediate vicinity of Edinburgh.

The following fragmentary pedigree is taken from his will, in the Commissariat of Edinburgh. Between this family and that of Peffermiln there seems to have been some connection, unless one attach too much significance to certain peculiar baptismal names.

The following is, apparently, a branch of a Dumfriesshire family.

BLACKBIRD. (p. 20.) "I have heard of an Alexr. Edgar, living at Blackbird's Mill, Lanarkshire, a farm about a mile from Hamilton." (Rev. C. Freebairn, Hamilton, 27 Nov., 1863).

BRISTOL. (p. 21.) "Preston Edgar, city sword bearer of Bristol. Alexander Edgar, mayor of Bristol, in 1787. John Foy Edgar, sheriff of Bristol, 1796, 1802." (Geo. Pryce, Bristol, Oct. 23, 1865.)

* In an earlier part of this work, it should have stated that Margaret the relict, and not the daughter m. W. Cant.

JAMAICA. (p. 21.) "On reference to deeds, I find the first in the name of Edgar on record, dated Decr., 1777, of 200 acres in St. Thomas-in-the-East, from Douglas Campbell to Archibald Edgar. In 1791, James Edgar land in the par. of St. George." (Saml. Rennalls, Spanish Town, Jamaica, 16 August, 1864.)

BASSINDEAN. (p. 21.) "Early this century, a search was set about, but was lost after tracing him—(General Handyside)—to Kelso." (Peter Handyside, 17 July, 1866.) General H. had property in Huntingdonshire, and left a Will, entered at Doctor's Commons, London.

EDGAR AND LAUDER. (p. 22.) "Richard Lauder of Lauder, a senator of the College of Justice by the title of Lord Lauder, (ob. about 1675) married Mary, daughter of MacDowall of Mackairston,* by whom he had his eldest son," Robert Lauder of Lauder, "whose line terminating on the death of his son and grandson, the direct line was carried on by Richard's second son," &c. †

BRIDGELANDS, PEEBLES. A very elaborate and handsome looking radiating genealogical chart, of all the descents from the founder of the noble families of Hay—constructed, it is supposed, by the late Mr. Deuchar, shows, with others, two branches from Locharwort. (see above.)

On comparing these two lines, traced from Sir W. Hay of Locharwort and Yester, ob. 1428, with the "Service of Heirs," we find a discrepancy in one important particular, to say nothing of minor inaccuracies.

Thus, Gilbert Hay, living in 1668, son of William Hay, Surgeon of Peebles, is made the great-grandson of Thomas Hay of Smithfield ; whereas we find in the "Service of Heirs"—"1668, March 20, Gilbertus Hay, fil. legit. Gulielmi Hay, burg. de Peebles hæres Joannis Hay de Crusland, abavi." This might lead us to infer that Gilbert was the heir of Thomas Hay, of Smithfield.

Again we find (S. of H.) in 1657, March 26, "Gilbt. Hay, sone to William Hay, heir of Mr. Archibald Williamson, of Briglands," &c.

Turning now to the Rev. John Hay, minister of Peebles, who died in 1760. John Hay was twice m., 1st in 1718, to Margt. d. of Robt. Broun of Coulston, and 2nd to Henrietta Porteous, we find him made the son of Dr. Theodore Hay, Parson of Peebles, [viv. 1687-96]—but here there is no allusion to Briglands (Bridgelands), although this Rev. John Hay was seized of this place, and transmitted it, through his daughter Anne, to her husband, Peter Edgar, who in 1748, obtained a Crown Charter of the same, as follows:—

"King George II. grants in liferent to Peter Edgar in Marchfield, and to John Edgar his only son, and the heirs of his body, with remainder to the said Peter Edgar, and his heirs whomsoever, the lands of Bridgelands, resigned by Mr. John Hay, Minister of the Gospel at Peebles." R.G.S., 12 Feb., 1748.

To proceed however, to the next notice of Bridgelands, we find in the "Service of Heirs," Chancery Office, Edinburgh, [Inquis. 24th June, 1839], that Sir John Hay of Smithfield, and Haystone, Bart., "obiit vestit et sasit ut de feodo in totis et integris terris de Bridgelands," &c., and this is followed by references to a Crown Charter of 18th July, 1825. Procuratory of resignation, 7th July, 1825, and Assignment of Bridgelands to Samuel Hay, Esq., merchant of Havre, son of Sir John Hay.

On turning to the Crown Charter of the 18th July, 1825, we find,—"Carta Resig. domini Joannis Hay, terrarum de Bridgelands," &c. Prædict. terræ de Bridgelands ad honorabilim, Joannem Hay Forbes de Medwyn, &c.

But to return to the Rev. John Hay—If, according to the author of "Fasti Eccl. Scotiæ," this gentleman were nephew to Mr. John Hay, Chaplain to the Earl of March, the latter John must have had a brother, named

* These are not traced throughout in the main line, the object being to explain a seeming error, by Deuchar, farther on.

† By his wife, a dan. of Robt. Broun, of Coulston.

Theodore—if we are to trust Deuchar's Chart—or, on the other hand, John, the Chaplain, must have been the brother of Gilbert, and grandson of Thomas, Surgeon of Peebles; for we cannot assume that the Rev. John Hay was the nephew maternally of his namesake the Chaplain.

But Deuchar makes Gilbert an only son, and the last of his line—which we know to be incorrect—while, at the same time, he gives Dr. Theodore Hay, (called by the author of Fasti Ecc. Scot. father of the Rev. John Hay,) an only brother, John, who also appears as the last of his line.

In 1702, we find a John Hay retoured heir special to his father Gilbert, (who died in 1699,) in Bridgelands. Deuchar however, both overlooks the date of the father's death, and the existence and succession of the son.

After this Inquisition of 1702, there is no further mention of Bridgelands in the records, so far as I am aware, (although there may be in the Register of the Crown Dues, but certainly nowhere else) until 1748, when the Rev. John Hay, nephew of the Chaplain, (and who, by the way, married in 1718, Margaret, daughter of Robert Broun of Coulston) resigned it in favour of his son-in-law, Peter Edgar, who thereupon received a Crown Charter of the same, and transmitted it to his only son John Edgar, W.S., who dying unmarried in 1799, was succeeded by his eldest sister Anne, who however, does not appear to have had seisin of it; in fact, Bridgelands is again lost sight of, until it reappears amongst the complicated settlements of 1826, before mentioned, when it is shown to be in the possession of Sir John Hay, Bart., of Smithfield.

Turning now to "Burke's Peerage and Baronetage," we are disappointed; and only learn that "John Hay, M.D., eldest son of John Hay of Haystone, which John was great-great grandson of John Hay, Esq., of Kingameadow, younger son of the first Hay of Smithfield, (living in 1526) preferred a claim to the "Dormant Baronetage, which was allowed by a Jury assembled at Peebles," Nov. 9, 1806.

Here then, there is nothing to show how Bridgelands (which had certainly passed from the Rev. John Hay to his grandson, John Edgar) came into the possession of the Baronet. Although Bridgelands is not, in itself, a place of importance, it has nevertheless an important bearing on the family descent.

Moreover, Bridgelands was not an ancient Hay possession, but belonged, in 1611, to John Douglas, heir of Archibald Douglas, Archdeacon of Glasgow, and was sold by him to Gilbert Williamson, merchant burges of Edinburgh, whose heir (1638) Archibald Williamson, transmitted it, in 1657, to his heir Gilbert Hay, son of William Hay, Surgeon, of Peebles, his "guidame's brother's son on the father's side," which latter Gilbert,* (Deuchar's G. of 1668, who died in 1699), was in 1668 served heir to his great grandfather John Hay of Cruksland.

LESLIE OF NEW LESLIE, &c. (p. 24.) The elaborate "History of the Family of Lealie," by Colonel Leslie, K.H., contains this branch of Balquhain, but without a continuation of the line, beyond James Leslie, Advocate, who matriculated arms, (Lyon Reg.) or any notice of the latter.

It appears from the Commissariot, Seisins, and other public records in Edinburgh, that this family had the lands of "Straton," in (Linlithgow,) 1695.99, &c.

There are still extant several interesting portraits (in oil, and miniatures,) of members of this branch of Leslie—including a very fine one of Elizabeth Fletcher, grandmother of James, (called Count) of Deanhaugh; probably painted by Sir John de Medina.

The following brief account of this family, from the point at which the author above referred to, breaks off (and from whose work the prior descents are taken) will, it is hoped, be sufficient to preserve in an authentic form, the record of this neglected line.

Sir Andrew Leslie, by his wife Mary Abernethy, had a fifth son, Sir George Leslie, 1st baron of Balquhain, (ob. 1351,) f. of Sir Hameline, (ob. 1378,) f. of Sir Andrew, (ob. 1420,) f. of Sir William, (ob. 1467,) f. of George, his second son, 1st of New Leslie, f. of Walter of N. Leslie, whose fifth son, Michael, was f. of Andrew, who m. a dau. of Walter Leslie, 2nd son of Alexr. Leslie, 4th baron of that ilk, by his wife Christian Leslie, heiress of Leslie, whose grandson and heir, William, m. Miss Duncan, and was father of George, Provost of Aberdeen, in 1685, who m. Christian Walker—and had a second s. James Leslie,* Advocate, Edinburgh, m. April 29th, 1688, Elizabeth Fletcher. He matriculated arms (Lyon Reg., 24th July, 1694,) and died 12th Nov., 1712, (Will pro. 1721, Edinr.), leaving an only son, George, served heir to his father, 1754, who m. Elizabeth Bowles, by whom he had an only son, James Leslie, who m. Anne, d. of Peter Edgar of Bridgelands, Peebles, (Reg. Mag. Sigil :)—who m., secondly, Henry Raeburn, (Knt.) By his wife Anne Edgar, James Leslie left three children, † thus accounted for:—

"Sir Henry Raeburn married Anne Edgar, daughter of Peter Edgar of Bridgelands, Peebleshire, the widow of James Leslie ‡ of Deanhaugh, St. Bernard's. Mrs. Ann Leslie left one son, who was drowned; she also left two daughters, Jacobina Leslie, who married Daniel Vere, Sheriff-Substitnte of Lanarkshire, late of Stonebyres; Ann Leslie married James Philip Inglis, and left two sons—Henry Raeburn Inglis and C. J. Inglis. Sir Henry Raeburn painted a likeness of his half grandson, Henry Raeburn Inglis, holding a rabbit, as his diploma picture, now in the Private Diploma Room of celebrated artists in London; also another picture of the same half grandson, which is in the possession of his grand-children, the Raeburns of Charlesfield, &c. Sir Henry Raeburn painted a very fine full-sized painting of the late Mrs. Ann Edgar, or Leslie, widow of James Leslie of Deanhaugh, St. Bernard's, whom he married, as before mentioned. He also painted a very fine full-size portrait of his daughter-in-law, Chrlotte White, sister of William Logan White of Kellerstane, advocate, &c., who married the late Henry Raeburn of St. Bernard's, son of the late Sir Henry Raeburn, and whose family are now in possession of the estate."—C. † Reg. of Disposition by James Leslie to his wife Anne Edgar, D. 1778. Bond of Jas. Leslie of Deanhaugh,—Recorded 22 March, 1780. Faculty by Henry Raeburn in favor of Anne Edgar, relict of the deceased James Leslie, and now spouse to said Henry.—Dated 27 April, and Rec. 14 May, 1784.

‡ James Leslie was the representative of the New Leslie branch of Balquhain; but inasmuch as this was an offshoot long before the title of Count was acquired by the other line, J. L.'s right to it is questionable. He was, in the male line, however, certainly the representative, in Britain, of Balquhain.

ERSKINE.—GARDINER.—INGLIS.† David Erskine, 4th Earl of Buchan, had by his first wife, with other children, a daughter, Frances, who m. They had two sons, 1. Henry David, who married Helen Hay, daughter of Peter Edgar of Bridge-lands, and had issue Henry David Inglis, (a well-known author, who wrote under the nom de plume of Derwent Conway) and three daughters, Richmond, Anne, and Frances. 2. INGLIS.—LESLIE.—EDGAR. Sir Wm. Isobel Abernethie, by whom he had Charles Inglis of Balberton. The above descents have not, it should be explained, been tested by the present writer, but the following are quite accurate.

Charles Inglis of Balberton, and Isobel his wife, were succeeded by Charles Inglis of Balberton, Dy. Clerk of the Bills, (Will 1743,) one of three brothers. He m. Agnes, d. of Dr. Henderson, and by her had three sons.

† Inglis, a surname of great antiquity in the south of Scotland. In the reign of Alexander III., this surname had become numerous in Scotland. Walter de Inglis, John de Inglis, Philip de Inglis, and others of the name, were in possession of landed property when Edward I. overran Scotland, in 1296. They had large possessions in Roxburghshire, in very early times, particularly the lands and Barony of Branksome, &c. The old family of the Inglises of Manner, or Mannerhead, traced their descent from Sir William Inglis, a knight, in the reigns of Robert II. and Robert III., who, in 1395, distinguished himself at Buel-naugh, when Sir Thomas Struthers, an English champion, had defied any Scotsman to meet him in single combat. Sir Wm. Inglis accepted the challenge, and killed him on the spot; and for that gallant action, the latter monarch made him a grant of the lands and barony of Manner, by Royal Charter, dated in 1396. His son, John Inglis of Manner, got a charter of confirmation of the barony from Archibald, Duke of Fife, and Earl of Douglas as superior of these lands. (Abridged from Anderson's “Scottish Nation,” vol. ii., p. 532.)

Thomas Inglis of Manner, who being possessed of a vast estate, entered into a bargain with Sir Walter Scot, of Murthockstone, or Murdiestone, progenitor of the Duke of Buccleugh, from whom he got the lands and barony of Murdieston, Hartwood, &c., in the shire of Lanark, for which he gave in exchange the lands of Branksholm, Goldielands, Whitlaw, and Qubitrigs, Whiteshaw, Todholes, Todshawwood, and Harwood, &c., in Roxburghshire. The charter of exchange in which he is designed nobilis vir Thomas de Inglis de Manner, is dated at Edinburgh, 23rd July, 1446. These lands were the old inheritance of the Family of Inglis, of which the Earls of Douglas were superiors. (Douglas's Baronage of Scotland, p.p. 198, 199. Edinburgh, 1798, folio.)

FAMILY OF DUNSE, Berwickshire. (p. 63.) The family of Dunse are supposed to have been the original proprietors of this parish. It was afterwards acquired by Randolph E., of Moray, about A.D. 1300, after which period the Duns family held Grueledykes.

There is a tradition that John Duns, Scotus, was born in Dunse, in 1274; and that his father was a younger son of Duns of Grueledykes, a cadet of Duns of that ilk. (C. Watson.)

GRUELEDYKES. (p. 63.) In an Inventory of the lands of Grueledykes—(No. 4)—is a Disposition by Andrew Duns, to *Sir Alexr. St. Giles, Edinr. 1711. Feb. 25. John Cuthbertson, pewtherer burgess in S. L. parish, and Anna Edgar, d. to deocast Robert Edgar, pewtherer burgess in W. K. Par. Married 14 March.

PRIVY SEAL RECORDS. 1712. Feb. 7. Resig. and Adjud. of lands of Bassendean, to Mr. Alexander Broun of Bassendean.

1712. "Ward and mar. of Mrs. Jean Broun of Colstoun, daur. of Broun of Colstoun, to Mrs. Jean Broun of Colstoun."

The following quaint Epitaph is curious when taken in connection with the entries of the names Murray, Edgar, and Elleis; found in Parish Registers, of which extracts occur in this work.

Upon James Murray, who died 30th April, 1649, in the 79th year of his age, and was buried in Greyfriars' Churchyard, Edinburgh:—

"Stay, stranger, and shed a tear,
For good James Murray lieth here.
He was of Philipp Haugh descended,
And for his merchandise commended;
He was a man of a good life,
Married Bethia Mauld to be his wife.
He may thank God that e'er he gat her,
She bore him three sons and a daughter.

The first he was a man of might,
For which the king made him a knight;
The second was both wise and wily,
For which the town made him a bailly;
The third a factor of renown
Both in Campire and in this town;
His daughter was both grave and wise,
And married was to James Elies."

TAIT. The late George Tait, sh. sub. of Edinburgh, and sometime Deputy Lord Lyon, left interesting holograph notes on this subject. His own family appears to have come from the parish of Langside, co. Aberdeen, where lived William Tait, who had three sons, of whom Thomas of Buthlaw was father of John, W. S. of Edinburgh, and of Harveston (grandfather of the present Lord Primate), and George of Redbog, father of John also W. S. of Edinburgh, who, by his wife Margaret Edgar, was father of George (late subsheriff of Edinburgh and Dy. Lyon K. of Arms,) and Alexander, R.N., which latter dying in Edinburgh, in 1866, bequeathed his fortune to the great-grandsons of his granduncle Thomas Tait of Buthlaw. George Tait of Redbog left issue, also Alexander, settled at Stockton-on-Tees in 1810; and George, who died unmarried in Jamaica, in 1804.

KEMBLE'S STATE PAPERS. 1639. Mar. 14. The Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's leased Sutton Court, par. of Chiswick, to Thos. Edgar, Q. Edgar of Ipswich? for 21 years.
