"INDUSTRIES OF SCOTLAND" of
June 1890, says—

Alex. Spalding, Merchant Tailor, Hosiery, and Glover, Cross, Forfar.—This splendidly-organised undertaking was originated by Mr Spalding in the year 1882, and so rapid and uninterrupted has been its development that it is now accounted one of the leading concerns of its kind in the district. In bespoke tailoring Mr Spalding's operations are of a very important nature; in fact, the contract for the Forfarshire Constabulary has been entrusted to him for the last two years. This has been one of the causes which have necessitated so large a staff of assistants. Mr Spalding gives employment to as many as twenty hands, and is, therefore, well worthy of mention in these reviews of the business men and business industries of Forfar. The collection of materials includes the choicest fabrics which are produced in all the most famous manufacturing centres. In outfitting goods provision has been made which is eminently calculated to meet both the tastes and requirements of an influential, extensive, and fastidious clientele, the articles in every section of this attractive department being of distinctly superior quality and most excellent finish. A speciality to which Mr Spalding devotes considerable attention is undyed natural sanitary lambswool underclothing. Vests, shirts, and trousers are made of this useful material in gentlemen's, youths', and boys' sizes, and meet with an enormous sale. Mr Spalding's premises are large, handsome, well-arranged, and admirably situated, and his employes are smart and obliging. When we say, in conclusion, that Mr Spalding's early training was received in some of the best Edinburgh establishments, we think no more need be said in commendation of this worthy tradesman.

THE LAST LOOK.

*"Fare thee well! and if for ever,
Still for ever fare thee well."*—BYRON.

OUR FAIR FRIENDS.

Women, like princes, find few real friends.—LYTTELTON.

A BEAUTIFUL woman by her smiles draws tears from our purse.—Italian Proverb.
The firmest purpose of a woman's heart To well-timed artful flattery may yield.

LILLO.

NATURE has hardly ever formed a woman ugly enough to be insensible to flattery upon her person.—Chesterfield.

ONE of the great benefits a young man may derive from women's society is that he is bound to be respectful to them.—Thackeray.

WHAT causes the majority of women to be so little touched by friendship is that it is insipid when they have once tasted of love.

THERE are three things a wise man will not trust: the wind, the sunshine of an April day, and a woman's plighted faith.—Southey.

WOMAN is an imitative, not an inventive being. We notice it in everyday life, and we observe how girls soon acquire the manners, peculiarities, and expressions of their brothers, or male relatives and friends. That is why women are excellent actresses and poor playwrights; very good singers and pianists, and indifferent composers. They are the exponents and illustrators of the ideas of others, but not successful in originating ideas of their own.

THE woman who reads her newspaper every day and the magazine every month, and who maintains her acquaintance with books, and her love for them, is not apt to find time dragging heavily on her hands. If to this she adds an intelligent interest in the affairs of the world, in education, charity, and those great political questions which involve the welfare of the race, or of classes or nations, she will always have occupation enough for her mind and heart, and will always be the best of company for herself or for any other intelligent human being.

It seems somewhat strange that George Eliot had no great opinion of the intellectual capacity of her sex. More especially was she intolerant of those women who rush into literature, to the utter neglect of their more obvious duties near at hand, and with only a few meagre qualifications for the career. Not that she despaired of the results that would inevitably follow from a higher and more rational education. But she maintained that the call of near duty was more imperative, and the neglect of it less remediable, in the woman's case. "Nothing of what is valuable in the social order of the past should be sacrificed in the quest of even certain future good," is her reported opinion in this matter.

THE intellect of the generality of women serves more to fortify their folly than their reason.—La Rochefoucauld.

WOMAN'S education is often a gaudy and tawdry setting, which cumpers and hides the jewel it ought to bring out.

*A woman, a spaniel, and walnut-tree,
 The more you beat them, the better they be.*

TAYLOR.

LADIES sometimes forget that jewellery and profuse ornaments are no evidence of refinement, but rather tokens of vulgarity and want of taste.

PLEASURE is to women what the sun is to the flower: if moderately enjoyed it beautifies, it refreshes and improves; —if immoderately, it withers and destroys.—Colton.

THERE is in every true woman's heart a spark of heavenly fire, which lies dormant in the broad daylight of prosperity, but which kindles up and beams and blazes in the dark hours of adversity.—Irving.

No girl, whether from the lowest or highest position, is fit to become a wife, a mistress of the home, who has not been carefully educated in all the accomplishments and details of the kitchen.

Unchanging Affection.

He little knows

*A woman's heart, who when the cold wind blows,
 Deems it will change. No—storms
 may rise,
 And grief may dim, and sorrow cloud
 her skies,
 And hopeless hours and sunless days
 come on,
 And years when all that spoke of
 bliss is gone,
 And dark despair the gloomy future fill—
 But, loving once, she loves through good and ill.—SANDFORD EARLE.*

*What mighty ills have not been done by woman?
 Who was't betray'd the Capitol? A woman!
 Who lost Mark Antony the world? A woman!
 Who was the cause of a long ten-years' war,
 And laid at last old Troy in ashes? Woman!
 Destructive, deceitful woman!*

THOMAS OTWAY.

ABERNETHY, the famous surgeon, was once prodigiously pleased with the course pursued by a lady who was aware of his aversion to idle loquacity and silly affectation. Entering his consulting-room, without uttering a word, she thrust towards him her finger which had sustained a severe injury. Abernethy looked first at her face, and then at her finger, which he dressed. The fair patient then silently withdrew. In a few days she called again, and presented the affected digit. "Better?" inquired the surgeon. "Better," replied the patient. The finger was again dressed, and the lady tacitly retired. After several similar calls, the lady at length held out her finger free from bandages, and healed. "Well?" asked Abernethy. "Well," responded the laconic lady. "Upon my word, madam," exclaimed the delighted surgeon, "you are the most rational woman I ever met with!"

WORDS OF ADVICE.

Those who have lamps will pass them to others.—PLATO.

THE passions are the only orators that always persuade.—La Rochefoucauld.

Who overcomes
By force, hath overcome but half his foe.
—MILTON.

INJURIES may be atoned for and forgiven; but insults admit of no compensation.—Junius.

GUARD thy secret from another; entrust it not, for he who entrusteth a secret hath lost it.—Arab Saying.

THE atmosphere of a crowd is always an unwholesome one, mentally as well as physically.—Sir Henry Holland.

BETTER to be despised for too anxious apprehensions than ruined by too confident a security.—Burke.

USE your memory: you will sensibly experience a gradual improvement, while you take care not to overload it.—Dr. I. Watts.

OLD men like to give good advice as a consolation for not being longer in a condition to give a bad example.—La Rochefoucauld.

OUR deeds are like children that are born to us; they live and act apart from our own will. Nay, children may be strangled, but deeds never; they have an indestructible life both in and out of our consciousness.

SOME men are more beholden to their bitterest enemies than to friends who appear to be sweet-nest itself. The former frequently tell the truth, but the latter never.—Cato.

THREE men are my friends; he that loves me, he that hates me, and he that is indifferent to me. Who loves me, teaches me tenderness; who hates me, teaches me caution; who is indifferent to me, teaches me self-reliance.

NOTHING can be more unphilosophical than to be positive or dogmatical on any subject, and even if excessive scepticism could be maintained, it would not be more destructive to all just reasoning and inquiry. Where men are the most sure and arrogant, they are commonly the most mistaken.

THE essence of all fine breeding is the gift of conciliation. A man who possesses every other title to our respect, except that of courtesy, is in danger of forfeiting them all. A rude manner renders its owner always liable to affront. He is never without dignity who avoids wounding the dignity of others.—Butcher.

HYPOCRISY and cunning travel together, and they can't get very far separately.

THE defects of the mind, like those of the face, grow worse as we grow old.—La Rochefoucauld.
Pleasantry will often cut clean through
Hard knots that gravity would scarce undo.
—HORACE.

ÆSTHETIC criticism nearly always treats a work of art like a child who tears off the leaves of a flower.—Beethoven.

WE judge of the happiness and misery of life differently at different times, according to the state of our changeable frames.

I FIND the great thing in this world is not so much where we stand as in what direction we are moving.—Oliver W. Holmes.

A Dozen Mistakes.

- Yielding to immaterial trifles.*
- Looking for perfection in our own actions.*
- Endeavouring to mould all dispositions alike.*
- Expecting uniformity of opinion in the world.*
- Measuring the enjoyment of others by our own.*
- Expecting to be able to understand everything.*
- Believing only what our finite minds can grasp.*
- Looking for judgment and experience in youth.*
- Not making allowances for the infirmities of others.*
- Worrying ourselves and others with what cannot be remedied.*
- Considering everything impossible that we cannot perform.*
- Not alleviating all that needs alleviating, as far as lies in our power.*

THERE is just about humility enough in the whole world to supply one man with what he needs; and pray, what are the rest of us going to do?

NO preacher is listened to but Time, which gives us the same train and turn of thought that elder people have tried in vain to put into our heads before.

OF all sights which can soften and humanise the heart of man, there is none that ought so surely to reach it as that of innocent children, enjoying the happiness which is their proper and natural portion.—Southey.

MANY pride themselves on speaking their minds without reflecting on the harm they may do either to feelings, credit, or character.

'Tis a rule of manners to avoid exaggeration. A lady loses as soon as she admires too easily and too much. In man or woman, the face and the person lose power when they are on the strain to express admiration.—Emerson.

WE talk of the march of intellect, as if it only unfolded knowledge of good: the knowledge of evil, which communicates with twenty times the rapidity, is never once hinted at. Eve's apple, the torch of Prometheus, and Pandora's box are discarded as childish fables by our wise moderns.—Hazlitt.

HE who would live happily must neither trust to good fortune nor submit to bad: he must stand upon his guard against all assaults; must stick to himself, without any dependence on other people. Where the mind is tinctured with philosophy, there is no place for grief, anxiety, or superstitious vexations.—Seneca.

Pilchard Fishing.

THE pilchard is an important member of the herring family, and its capture may be said to form the staple fishing industry of the coast of Cornwall. The circumstance of their frequently coming in shore in large bodies—"schulls" these bodies are called in Cornwall—affords an opportunity to the most stay-at-home fisherman to participate in the work of capture. This coming in of the fish to the bay has given rise to one of the modes of capture, namely, that which is carried on by means of the seine net. The use of the seine net is so to enclose the fish of a shoal as to prevent their escape and keep them alive till the men and women can carry them ashore to the curing houses. About the period when the fish are expected to come in land, patrols are appointed to parade the high places of the coast and give notice by means of preconcerted signals of the approach of the pilchards. These persons are known as "huers," and are chosen for their qualities of quick-sightedness and general activity. As many as thirteen million pilchards have been found enclosed in one seine. The pilchard harvest, however, fluctuates very much from year to year.

Sun rising and setting are here given in Greenwich time. For local time at Dublin subtract 25m.

GARDENING FOR THE MONTH.

DURING January it is desirable to derive as much benefit as possible from the frost, and hence all unoccupied plots of ground should be deeply dug and laid up in ridges. At any time this month, whenever opportunity occurs, there may be sowings made of peas, beans, two-bladed onions, York cabbages, horn carrots, and parsnips. Dry sheltered borders are invaluable for these early sowings. In the event of severe weather, one should protect them by shaking down dry litter, and placing reed hurdles in suitable positions to screen off the wind. January is a bad time for planting evergreens, but deciduous trees may be planted during open weather. This is a bad time also for pruning in the fruit-garden. Dress fruit-trees and old trees with a mixture of lime, soot, and clay. Never prune during frost. The protection of choice plants will now require particular care; danger from frost becomes more serious as the sun gains power. Water plants in pots sparingly, and never at the decline of day.

Prudent Emma.

WHEN Emma for a suitor strove,
 She sued him in the courts of love;
 But when his fickle heart she saw,
 She sued him in the courts of law;
 And having gained him by degrees,
 She lived upon his damages!

The Artist and the Tailor.

To those pseudo-connoisseurs who bring their own narrow professional feelings to the appreciation of a work of art, we recommend the following authentic anecdote:—

A thriving tailor, anxious to transmit his features to posterity, inquired of a young artist what were his terms for a half-length.

"I charge twenty-five guineas for a head," was the reply.

The portrait was painted and approved, when the knight of the thimble, taking out his purse, demanded how much he was to pay.

"I told you before that my charge for a head was twenty-five guineas."

"I am aware of that," said Snip; "but how much more for the coat?—it is the best part of the picture."

Rural Politics.

A PATRIOTIC candidate, who offered himself as the representative of a Kentish borough, told a yeoman to whom he applied, that if he were returned member, he would exert all his influence to turn out the Ministry.

"Will you?" replied the yeoman, "then I promise you shall not have my vote; for I am not for changing them, be they good or bad. I know well enough how it is with my hogs: when I buy them lean, they eat more than they are worth; but when once they have grown a little fat, the feeding them is not half so expensive. So I am for keeping the present set; a new herd would devour more."

Stanley and Emin Pasha.

EARLY in 1887 an expedition was planned to relieve Emin Pasha, who, as Governor of the Equatorial Province of Egypt, was cut off from communication with the civilised world after the Mahdist rising, but had kept together a garrison sufficient to hold his province. The command of the expedition was given to Mr. H. M. Stanley, whose search after Livingstone, and subsequent African explorations, had rendered him famous and marked him out as the best of all men to undertake work of the kind. Every reader is acquainted with the progress of the expedition and the manifold difficulties that were surmounted till Stanley met Emin on the 20th of January, 1888, the subsequent difficulties and dangers of both, their return to the haunts of civilisation, Stanley's triumphal appearance in England, and Emin's going back to the wilds of the Dark Continent. "We have every reason," says Mr. Stanley, "looking back on the expedition, to be grateful. Our promises as volunteers have been performed as well as though we had been commissioned by a Government." They had a lively time. The catalogue of skirmishes alone, says Stanley, would be of respectable length.

GARDENING FOR THE MONTH.

WITHOUT delay all ground intended for summer crops should be got ready in the kitchen garden. Plant potatoes on dry soils as soon as possible. It is worth taking note that when cultivators complain that their potatoes run all to haulm, it may always be understood that they are planted about twice as thick as they ought to be. Sow in the open quarters peas, beans, parsnips, spinach, leeks. On warm slopes sow radish, hardy lettuce, cabbage, parsley. In the flower garden, edgings, rockeries, walks, lawns, and rosaries may all be made or planted this month. Part and plant herbaceous plants. Plant ranunculuses and anemones. Sow hardy annuals in pans, to get them forward for planting out. In the fruit garden prune out-door vines. Clean wall-trees and nail firmly, using narrow shreds. If made early this month, strawberry beds bear well; they should be made in rich, firm ground; the old beds should be cleaned, and have a top-dressing of fresh soil and manure mixed. Plant and prune bush fruits; pruning after vegetation has begun, except summer pruning, is not to be thought of. Begin grafting whenever the weather permits. Prepare netting or other protection for wall-trees, and use it when the buds begin to swell during the continuance of north-east winds. Make every preparation for next month, which is, perhaps, the most important one of the year. In the flower garden the early bulbs begin to appear this month, and all nature is seen awakening from the sleep of winter.

MEETING OF STANLEY AND EMIN PASHA.

Trusting and Doubting.

BBETTER trust all, and be deceived,
And weep that trust and that deceiving,
Than doubt one heart that, if believed,
Had blessed one's life with true believing.

Oh! in this mocking world, so fast
The doubting fiend o'er takes our youth,
Better be cheated to the last
Than lose the blessed hope of Truth.

FANNY KEMBLE.

A Poor Scholar.

"A MAN lately deceased," says a Chinese story-teller, "appeared for trial before the king of the infernal regions. The king adjudged that, as he had, during his previous state of existence, lived in excessive luxury, he must return to life on earth in the character of a scholar.

"A demon lawyer remonstrated, saying—'This man has been a great transgressor, and deserves not such kind treatment.'

"The king, laughing, said, 'His having been a great transgressor is the very reason why I decide that he should return to life, to be a poor scholar with a large family of small children, raising a killing cry in his ears all the day long. That will be punishment enough.'"

A Legal Opinion.

AN eminent barrister had a case sent to him for an opinion. The case stated was the most preposterous and improbable that had ever occurred to the mind of man, and concluded by asking, "Whether, under such circumstances, an action would lie?" He took his pen and wrote:—

"Yes, if the witnesses will lie too; but not otherwise."

Waiting for the Doctor.

A LECTURER, discoursing on the subject of health, inquired: "What use can a man make of his time while waiting for a doctor?"

Before he could begin his answer to his own inquiry, someone in the audience called out, "He can make his will."

A Modest Request.

THE poet Longfellow—like, perhaps, every other man who is prominently before the public—was a good deal plagued by unsolicited correspondence. "Why will people write so?" he asks, on one occasion, "strangers mostly, making strange requests? Here, now, is a letter which I shall not answer. The writer, entirely unknown, says:—'Now I want you to write me a few lines for a young lady's album, to be written as an acrostic to read My Dearest One. If you will please imagine yourself a young man loving a beautiful young lady who has promised to be his wife, and then write as you would for yourself, you will much oblige one who has been an ardent admirer of your poems.' Then at the bottom of the page, 'Send bill.'"

The Professor at Home.

THE famous Dutch professor, Boxhorn, had the most extraordinary passion for smoking and reading. In order to enjoy both at once, he had a hole made in the middle of the brim of his hat, through which he used to stick his lighted pipe when he intended to read or compose. When it was empty, he refilled it, stuck it into the hole, and smoked away without requiring to put his hand to it; and this was his occupation almost every hour of the day.

Arran.

THE view shown on the opposite page is that seen when looking from the island of Arran over to the mainland—that is to say, to the coast of Ayrshire. The island of Arran is about thirteen miles from Ardrossan, eight from Bute, and six from Kintyre. It is situated in the mouth of the Firth of Clyde, and ranks as one of the Western Hebrides. It has been thought that it takes its name from two Gaelic words—ar, high; and inn, a mountain; and it is the more likely that this is the true derivation as, in the ancient British, Arran signifies a land of mountains. It is of considerable extent, containing about 100,000 acres, and forms part of the county of Bute. It is generally said to be twenty-four miles in length by ten or twelve in breadth, but it is probable that a bittock may be added to both these numbers. The island may be considered as divided into two parts of different characters. The southern consists either of hills, averaging 800 feet in height, or of good arable land, which is chiefly on the west side. The northern is a mass of magnificent mountains, in the centre of which is Goat-fell (the hill of the winds), about 3,000 feet in height. Arran possesses two remarkably fine natural harbours—Lamlash Bay on the south-east, and Loch Ranza on the north-west. Almost the whole of the island belongs to the Duke of Hamilton.

GARDENING FOR THE MONTH.

THE main crops of all vegetables should now be sown; for these a soil should be chosen that was well manured last year. Potatoes are best planted in trenches and covered loosely with soil. Make new plantations of artichokes. Horseradish may be planted in any spare corner, but the ground should be dug deeply, and the sub-soil be well manured. Mark out onion-beds; fork the borders lightly in the flower-beds, so as not to injure the roots of herbaceous plants, and make the surface moderately fine, so as to give a neat appearance. Sow hardy annuals in the borders. At the end of the month train and thin ivy, reducing the growth on walls, &c. Cuttings of bush fruits may still be put in. Pruning and clearing ought to have been long ago completed. Burn all the prunings and clippings of trees, hedges, &c., and use the ashes for top-dressing. Place dahlias in a hotbed to start, and divide and pot them when they have made shoots an inch or two in length.

IN THE ISLAND OF ARRAN.

Notes on Duelling.

THE duel in England was carried to its greatest possible excess in the reigns of James I. and the two Charleses. In the reign of the latter Charles, the seconds always fought as well as the principals; and as they were chosen for their courage and adroitness, their combats were generally the most fatal. During this reign the Duke of Shrewsbury challenged the Duke of Buckingham for intriguing with his wife. The Duchess of Shrewsbury, in the disguise of a page, attended Buckingham to the field, and held his horse while he fought and killed her husband. The King, in spite of every remonstrance from the Queen, received the Duke of Buckingham with open arms after this brutal murder.

The Fragrant Weed.

IN the narrative of Cartier's second voyage to Canada, in 1575, occurs the following quaint account of smoking, then unknown apparently to the French explorers:—

“The Indians have an herb of which, during the summer, they gather a great quantity for the winter, and which they prize very highly, and use (the men only) in the following manner:—They dry it in the sun, and suspend it from their necks, tied up in a little skin instead of in a bag, together with a horn (cornet) of stone or wood. Then, at all hours, they make a powder of the said herb, and put it in one end of the horn, and then place a live coal upon it; and through the other end they blow so hard that their body is filled with smoke, so much that it comes out of their mouth and nostrils as out of a chimney. They say that this keeps them healthy and warm, and they never go about without these things. We have tried the said smoke, and having had it in our mouth, it seemed to contain pepper, so great was the heat of it.”

The Evening Star.

*STAR that bringest home the bee,
And sett'st the weary labourer free!
If any star shed peace, 'tis Thou
That send'st it from above,
Appearing when Heaven's breath and brow
Are sweet as hers we love.*

*Come to the luxuriant skies,
Whilst the landscape's odours rise,
Whilst far-off lowing herds are heard
And songs when toil is done,
From cottages whose smoke unstirr'd
Curls yellow in the sun.*

*Star of love's soft interviews,
Parted lovers on thee muse;
Their remembrancer in Heaven
Of thrilling vows thou art,
Too delicious to be riven
By absence from the heart.*

All Fools' Day.

MUCH has been written about the custom of making fools on the 1st of April, but with this result only, that it is very ancient and very general. Sometimes the opportunity afforded by the day is taken advantage of by ultra-jocular people to carry out some extensive hoax on society. An example given in Chambers's "Book of Days" may be quoted. In March, 1860, a vast multitude of persons received through the post a card bearing the following inscription, with a seal marked by an inverted sixpence at one of the angles, thus having to superficial observation an official appearance:—"Tower of London. Admit the bearer and friend to view the Annual Ceremony of Washing the White Lions on Sunday, April 1, 1860. Admitted only at the White Gate. It is particularly requested that no gratuities be given to the Wardens or their Assistants." The trick is said to have been highly successful. Cabs were rattling about Tower Hill all that Sunday morning, vainly endeavouring to discover the White Gate. It is curious that the Hindoos have in their Huli, which terminates with the 31st of March, a festival precisely similar to our All Fools' Day, during which the great aim is to send messages to imaginary individuals, or individuals sure to be from home.

GARDENING FOR THE MONTH.

THE powerful force of more genial influences at this season speedily begins to have its effect on vegetable life. The changeable weather, however, tries severely the capabilities of the gardener. His work is much the same as last month. Successional sowings may be made of all the principal kitchen crops. The main crop of carrots should be got in about the middle of the month, and there is yet time for a crop of parsnips, but they must be sown without delay. Any time this month will do for putting in kitchen herbs; they will take root more quickly if planted in a rather dry sandy border. Seeds of hardy annuals and perennials are to be sown early, and the more tender kinds may safely be committed to the ground towards the end of the month. Perennials may be planted out. Dahlia roots may also be planted. Protect the shoots during night frosts. Walks should be turned and rolled, and grass plots dressed. Wall-trees must be protected from the keen east wind. Give plenty of water to fruit-trees in pots. Plant out tender deciduous trees and shrubs which have been raised in pots.

PLEASANT COMPANY.

"Charms strike the sight, but merit wins the soul."—POPE

Lord Mayors of London.

THE 700th anniversary of the Mayoralty of the City of London was celebrated by a ball at the Mansion House on the 29th of October, 1889. This interesting event takes us back to the year 1189, when Henry II. decided that the chief magistrates of the City should in future be styled Mayors. Henry Fitz-Alwyn then became first Mayor. He seems to have liked the post, for he kept it during twenty-four consecutive years and then made way for another Fitz-Alwyn. One guesses that the Mayoralty was in fair prospect of becoming hereditary; but King John stepped in and gave a new charter to the City, under which the Mayors were to be chosen annually.

The prefix of Lord was granted to the Mayors of London by Edward III. in 1354, presumably in acknowledgment of a loan from the City. Thomas Legge was the first to assume the new dignity, and 509 Mayors have reigned after him. The most famous of all the Lord Mayors was Dick Whittington, whose name we arrive at in 1397. He was really the cadet of a good family, and had been destined from his early boyhood to business. The English gentry had by that time ceased to look down upon trade, being in this respect centuries beyond their brethren of France and Germany.

GARDENING FOR THE MONTH.

DURING the summer months the effects of sunshine, and other prevailing influences by which evaporation is accelerated, operate very rapidly under certain conditions; much has, therefore, to be done in the way of watering. The gardener should do his best to give high culture to his vegetable crops, frequently stirring between the rows with the hoe to keep down weeds, and supplying not only water but liquid manure abundantly. It is hardly possible to give too much water. Put sticks to rows of peas as soon as they require support. Thin parsnips and carrots. Choose showery weather, if possible, for transplanting. Sow beans and peas for succession; savory for late crops. Cabbages, broccoli, beetroot, kale, kidney beans (both dwarf and runners), lettuce, spinach, turnips, cucumbers, and marrows may now be sown in the open ground for a late supply. Sow annuals in the flower-garden for succession.

A BALL AT THE MANSION HOUSE.

The Burglar's Hat.

A GOOD illustration of the observing eye which is needed to make a good detective was shown in the trial of a housebreaker a few years ago. The burglary was effected—as most burglaries are—by the aid of a neighbouring uninhabited house. The thieves crossed along the roof, and descended through a sky-light.

There was one clue left—only one. A hat was found on the roof. The hat was sent to Scotland Yard, and the Force were invited to inspect it.

One policeman immediately said that he knew who was the owner. In the event it was found he was as good as his word. The owner was discovered, and being in the possession of the stolen property, was tried, found guilty, and sentenced.

Now, how did the policeman know the exact head on which to fit that very unlucky hat?

The constable told the story himself. He had been on duty in the gallery of the Old Bailey during the trial of a well-known burglar. He sat on a back bench, and wore plain clothes, and he noticed in front of him a young man with a highly criminal type of face, who seemed to take the greatest interest in the trial. Our constable accordingly took the greatest interest in him, and in all his belongings, and, as the unconscious spectator held his hat in his hand, looked into it, and, as Inspector Bucket would say, "totted it up."

The result of this little sum in addition was the registering in his memory of a peculiarly shaped grease-mark on the lining that crossed the maker's name. The constable never forgot that hat, and the professional career of its owner soon rendered him more and more interesting. Thus he was able at a moment to restore to the burglar the property he had been so unfortunate as to leave behind him on the roof.

What is your Age?

THERE is a good deal of amusement in the following magical table of figures, which will enable you to tell how old anyone is. Hand this table, for example, to a young lady, and ask her to tell you in which column or columns her age is contained. Add together the figures at the top of the columns in which her age is found, and you have the great secret. Thus, suppose her age to be 21, you will find that number in the first, third, and fifth columns; add the first figures of these three columns:—

At Tewkesbury.

In the engraving on the opposite page we have the Avon flowing past the old town of Tewkesbury. This is the Upper or Shakespearean Avon, which rises in Northamptonshire, near the battlefield of Naseby, flows through Warwickshire, Worcester, and Gloucester, past Rugby, Warwick, Stratford, and Evesham, joining the Severn at Tewkesbury.

The chief feature of Tewkesbury is its noble old Abbey, founded in 715 by Odo and Dodo, Dukes of Mercia, and in the eleventh and twelfth centuries rebuilt by Fitz-Hamon, a Norman nobleman. It is exceptionally rich in memorials, while, like the Abbey of Westminster, it is encompassed by a chevet of chapels. In another respect it resembles St. Alban's Abbey, for at the Dissolution both were scheduled as "superfluous" and only escaped destruction by the interposition of the townspeople who purchased them.

In the High Street of Tewkesbury there are several ancient timbered and gabled houses. The remains of an ancient wall have been discovered adjoining the town. The town was first incorporated by Elizabeth in 1574, and a new charter with extended privileges was granted by James I. in 1609.

A great battle was fought at Tewkesbury on the 4th of May, 1471.

GARDENING FOR THE MONTH.

This month the ground in the kitchen garden will be for the most part covered; everything will be in full growth. The gardener must be active with his hoe, for weeds grow faster than the crops and exhaust the soil rapidly. Cucumbers, gourds, tomatoes, and capsicums may be put out. Sow peas and beans for late crops. Sow salad every ten days; also carrots and onions for drawing young. In the flower garden, carnations, picotees, and pinks may now be propagated by pipings on the north side of a fence, or in pots half filled with sandy loam. Ranunculuses will require water frequently.

Perennials should be sown for next season's blooming, so as to get strong plants. Remove all kinds of decaying crops. Search among strawberries every morning for slugs. Train and prune the summer shoots of all descriptions of wall and trellis trees. Net over cherry-trees to protect the fruit from birds. Shrubberies should be frequently hoed and raked to keep them neat and to kill seedling weeds in their infancy. Pick the seed vessels off rhododendrons and azaleas. If plants are infested with worms, water them with lime water as the surest means of getting rid of them.

THE AVON AT TEWKESBURY.

A Successful Hoax.

GEORGE STEEVENS, the Shakespearean commentator, once played a trick on Gough, the Director of the Society of Antiquaries of London, against whom he had a grudge. He obtained the fragment of a chimney-slab and scratched on it an inscription in Anglo-Saxon letters, to the effect that "Here Hardcannt drank a wine horn dry, stared about him and died." Having imparted to his work an appearance of antiquity, he placed it in the corner of a broker's shop frequented by Gough, giving out that the precious relic had been discovered on the site of the palace of Hardicanute in which the royal Dane had died in a fit of intoxication.

The trick was perfectly successful. Gough purchased the slab, and brought his fancied prize as a great historic curiosity under the notice of the Society of Antiquaries. A paper on the subject was written by one of the ablest of the members, and the inscription was carefully engraved and published in the sixtieth volume of the Gentleman's Magazine. Before publication, however, the fraud was luckily discovered, and the plate on which it appeared would have been cancelled had it not contained other subjects. Steevens gave an account afterwards of the success of his hoax, glorying in Gough's simplicity, and in the impossibility of his "wriggling off the hook on which he is so archæologically suspended."

This was far from the only hoax of which Steevens was the author; a host of tricks of a similar character have been laid to his charge. "Were the secret history of his life known," says Isaac Disraeli, "it would display an unparalleled series of arch deceptions." Unfortunately, even in the playfulness of his invention, there was usually a touch of personal malignity.

Imitation.

EVERY man has a certain manner and character in writing and speaking, which he spoils by a too close and servile imitation of another, as Bishop Felton, an imitator of Bishop Andrews, observed, "I had almost marred my own natural trot by endeavouring to imitate his artificial amble."

WHEN WE TWO PARTED.

When we two parted
In silence and tears,
Half broken-hearted,
To sever for years,
Pale grew thy cheek and cold,
Colder thy kiss;
Truly that hour foretold
Sorrow to this.

The dew of the morning
Sunk chill on my brow;
It felt like the warning
Of what I feel now.
Thy vows are all broken,
And light is thy fame:
I hear thy name spoken
And share in its shame.

They name thee before me,
A knell to mine ear;
A shudder comes o'er me—
Why wert thou so dear?
They know not I knew thee,
Who knew thee too well:
Long, long shall I rue thee
Too deeply to tell.

In secret we met:
In silence I grieve
That thy heart could forget,
Thy spirit deceive.
If I should meet thee
After long years,
How should I greet thee?—
With silence and tears.

The Prince of Wales in Egypt.

DURING the visit of the Prince of Wales to Egypt, towards the close of 1889, the incident took place which has been represented by our artist on the opposite page. On the 2nd of November, the Prince and the Khedive, in the presence of a large crowd of officials and notables of Cairo, reviewed at Abbassieh 1,600 British and 2,900 Egyptian troops, under the command of Generals Dormer and Grenfell.

The royal party passed down the entire line, and then returning at a gallop took up a position between the Royal and the Egyptian standards. The troops marched past first in grand divisions, the British leading, then massed, the Egyptians leading, and lastly in line of quarter column at the trail, the cavalry trotting, and all falling back into line facing the standards.

At this point the Prince of Wales spoke a few words to the Khedive, and, crossing the intervening space, informed Sir J. Dormer that he would himself take the command of the British troops. Placing himself at their head, his Royal Highness drew his sword, gave in sharp tones the word to advance in review order, led the whole line towards the standards, and then halting before the Khedive, raised and lowered his sword in salute, while the band played the Egyptian National Anthem.

GARDENING FOR THE MONTH.

No opportunity should be neglected to keep the whole surface of the garden as free from weeds as possible. If let alone weeds soon become rampant, and very exhausting to the soil. When early crops are coming off in the kitchen garden, it is a sensible proceeding to clear the ground and dig it over at once. Sow peas for the last crop of the season in the first week of this month. Seed beds for winter spinach should now be made up and well manured, and the seed got in without delay. Earth up celery for winter use.

Plant out the main crop of celery whenever the ground can be got ready. Hoe between all growing crops, and especially between potatoes. Gather and dry medicinal and pot herbs. Another lot of annuals may be sown early in the month to keep up the gaiety of the flower borders. Propagate herbaceous and other plants, that have gone out of flower, by means of cuttings and slips. Cuttings of gooseberry bushes may be struck in a moist shady border. Strawberry-beds now require special attention.

REVIEW OF TROOPS AT CAIRO BY THE PRINCE OF WALES.

Absent-Minded.

ABSENCE of mind is frequently the heritage of men of talent. Lord Erskine was afflicted with this malady. He one morning called upon a friend, and was scarcely shown into the parlour when he exclaimed, "Confound those hackney coaches! I seldom set foot in one of them that I do not lose something."

"What has your lordship lost?"

"My great-coat, and very provoking it is, for it was quite a new one."

"Does your lordship usually wear two at a time?" inquired his friend, who perceived his lordship had forgotten he was bearing the lost garment on his back.

Married Love.

THE Scottish poet, Allan Ramsay, in his celebrated pastoral, "The Gentle Shepherd," puts into the mouth of Peggy, one of his characters, a sufficient answer to those who hold that married love dwindles down to nothing as we grow old. Jenny, another of the characters, has said as much as that to Peggy, and Peggy replies:—

*"But we'll grow auld thegither, and ne'er find
The loss o' youth, when love grows on the mind."*

See yon twa elms that grow up side by side, Suppose them some years since bridegroom and bride;

*Nearer and nearer every year they're pressed,
Till wide their spreading branches are increased,
And in their mixture now are fully blest.
This shields the other frae the eastlin blast;
That, in return, defends it frae the west.
Sic as stand single Beneath ilk storm, frae every airt, maun bow."*

The Duchess of St. Albans.

THERE was something romantic in the career of Harriet Meillon, who from being a country actress rose to be first the wife of Thomas Coutts, the wealthy banker, and after his death the wife of the Duke of St. Albans. Her character was a highly interesting one. Her daily exercises of solitary devotion and meditation were long and never omitted. A casual omission of these daily duties was considered by her as almost wicked.

The first occasion on which she was to take her place as a peeress in the gallery of the House of Lords (at the opening of the Houses of Parliament), was an event to which she attached rather a nervous importance, and great care was taken about all the arrangements. Just as her toilette was completed the carriage was announced, and she hastened down-stairs, fearful of losing any part of the ceremony she wished to witness.

On reaching the carriage, however, a sudden change in her aspect was observed by the persons assisting her; and instantly withdrawing from the step, she dismissed the carriage, re-entered the house, and announced her intention of relinquishing her attendance at the House of Lords on that occasion. Her friends remonstrated against this caprice, but she was inaccessible to any argument; and, retiring to her own room, she dismissed her attendants, and passed the remainder of the morning alone.

The cause of this apparent whim was that, in the excitement and hurry of preparation, her customary devotions had been omitted, nor once recollected until she had passed the threshold. Struck with the negligence committed, and always swayed by the strong impulse of the moment, she resolved to sacrifice the intended gratification of her vanity as an atonement for the omission it had caused.

The remains of the castle are almost confounded with the old, rough, moss-grown rock on which they stand directly over the river. The water at this point is said to be of immense depth and accessible by a subterraneous passage from the castle, known as the Murdering Hole, as here, when dark deeds were done, the victims' bodies were disposed of without trouble or chance of detection. All such statements, however, must be received as no more certain than other legends of tumble-down castles. A short distance from the ruins we come upon the new Strancally Castle. A couple of miles farther up the river we reach Dromana Castle, beautifully situated, and interesting on account of its associations.

GARDENING FOR THE MONTH.

As a rule, more sunshine and aridity may be expected to prevail during this month and the preceding one than at any other similar period of the year; watering, therefore, is essential. By this time Scotch kale, Brussels sprouts, broccoli, savoys, &c., ought to be strong. Cabbages of most kinds may be sown in the second week of the month. Sow cauliflower from the 7th to the 20th to keep over winter in frames. Sow winter and spring spinach in the beginning and about the end of the month; parsley and winter onions for a full crop in the first week, small salads occasionally. A few coleworts may still be planted. In the flower garden propagate plants for stock. Pansies may be sown, as may also most hardy annuals, to stand over winter, for early blossoming next spring. Continue to bud roses and fruit-trees, choosing damp, dull weather; they take best just after heavy rain. Throw nets over fruit-trees as a protection against birds. Gather fruit when the weather is dry, as upon this the chance of its keeping very much depends.

The Rolling Stone.

"It is true, my son," says a modern philosopher, "that the rolling stone gathers no moss, but then it doesn't want to. What good would a ton of moss do the rollingest stone that ever started down-hill? It would only impede its progress, stop it somewhere on the incline, and make it a stationary stone—just what it doesn't want to be. For a stationary stone to accumulate moss is perfectly right and proper, but a rolling stone has no desire to go into the moss business. What it wants to do is to break things and kick up a dust."

Seen in a Shower.

*I PRAYED a rain-cloud passing o'er—
I begged it wouldn't miss her—
If it could catch her out of door,
To send a drop to kiss her.*

*The rest grew jealous that one drop
Should fold its arms around her;
They all rushed down from heaven's top
And—very nearly drowned her.*

Doctors Differ.

BARON REICHENBACH declares that sleeping with the head pointed east and the feet west is tantamount to committing suicide. Well, if the baron ever noticed a boy sleep with his head bearing south-east half east, one leg due north, and the other bearing north-east as far as the knee, and then heading due west, the left arm south by west to the elbow and thence north-west, and the right arm east north-east, he would abandon all his theories about north and south sleeping. Is there any creature healthier than a boy sleeping or waking?

What a Bachelor was Afraid of.

A YOUNG bachelor tradesman who was well able to keep a wife, and on whose cosy home it was supposed many feminine eyes were enviously cast, was asked one day why he did not marry.

"I should very much like to take a wife," he replied.

"Then why do you not? There are plenty of girls in the neighbourhood who would suit you capitally, and make you as happy as the day is long," persisted the friend, whose matrimonial venture had proved all that could be wished.

"Well, you see, I am afraid."

"Afraid of what?"

"That if I married one girl, I might see another afterwards that I should have liked better."

It is, perhaps, needless to add that this vacillating individual remained a bachelor.

The Forth Bridge.

THE Forth Bridge, which had been in progress since 1882, was formally opened by the Prince of Wales on the 4th of March, 1890. It occupies the proud place of being the greatest structure of the kind in the world. The total length of the structure is 8,296 feet, or nearly 1 5/8 miles; and there are two spans of 1,710 feet, two of 680 feet, fifteen approach viaduct spans of 168 feet, four granite arches of 57 feet span on the south shore, with three arches of similar construction and 25 feet span at the corresponding northern abutment. A clear headway of 150 feet at high water spring-tides is allowed. The extreme height of the bridge is 361 feet above high water, the greatest depth of the foundations being about 90 feet below the same level.

Upwards of 21,000 tons of cement, 707,000 cubic feet of granite, and 117,000 cubic feet of masonry and concrete were employed in the foundations and piers; whilst no less than one million cubic feet of timber were employed for temporary purposes. The painted surface of the bridge represents twenty acres; the rivets used if laid end to end would extend to 380 miles.

A drive from Edinburgh to South Queensferry for the purpose of seeing the bridge now forms one of the items in the programme of every Scottish tourist.

GARDENING FOR THE MONTH.

A FEW small salads for late crops may be sown. Gather seeds as fast as they ripen. Take up potatoes as the tops wither; carrots and beet-roots may remain until the frost cuts off the foliage and no longer. This is the best season for forming new beds of horseradish. Plant endive and lettuce. If broccoli be too strong or tall to withstand the winter, lift them and lay them nearly up to the neck in the earth. Lift onions and place them on a dry border or gravel walk. Remove decayed flower-stems, and keep the borders clear of weeds. Plant out pinks and carnations, and roots and cuttings of herbaceous plants. This month commences the season for planting bulbs, but tulips should not be put in the open ground until October. In the beginning of the month sow all half-hardy annuals, if not done last month. Plant evergreens. Have all fruit gathered with care and stored without bruising. Finish the summer pruning and training of all fruit-trees. Plant strawberries for a main crop. Climbers will require training and tying, and the hardy fernery weeding. Keep walks as neat as possible.

THE OPENING OF THE FORTH BRIDGE.

The Slave's Lamp.

PICTETUS, though but a poor slave, had such veneration paid to his memory, that his earthen lamp, by which he was wont to study, was after his death sold to an enthusiastic relic-hunter for three thousand drachmas.

"What does the Fool Mean?"

HORACE GREELEY once wrote a note to a brother-editor in New York, whose writing was as illegible as his own. The recipient of the note, not being able to read it, sent it back by the same messenger to Mr. Greeley for elucidation.

Supposing it to be an answer to his own note, Mr. Greeley looked over it, but was likewise unable to read it, and said to the boy, "Go, take it back. What does the fool mean?"

"Yes, sir," said the boy, "that is just what he says."

Four Great Poets.

THE four greatest names in English poetry are almost the first four we come to: Chaucer, Spenser, Shakespeare, and Milton. There are no others that can really be put in competition with these. In comparing these four writers together, it might be said that Chaucer excels as the poet of manners, or of real life; Spenser as the poet of romance; Shakespeare as the poet of nature (in the largest use of the term); and Milton as the poet of morality. Chaucer most frequently describes things as they are; Spenser, as we wish them to be; Shakespeare, as they would be; and Milton, as they ought to be.

A Happy Librarian.

MENCIUS, the keeper of the library at Leyden, was mewed up in it all the year long; and that which in some might have bred a loathing, caused in him a liking. "I no sooner," says he, "come to the library but I bolt the door to me, excluding lust, ambition, avarice, and all such vices whose nurse is idleness, the mother of ignorance, and melancholy herself; and in the very lap of eternity amongst so many divine souls, I take my seat, with so lofty a spirit and sweet content that I pity all our great ones and rich men, that know not this happiness."

To the Skylark.

*ETHEREAL minstrel! pilgrin of the sky!
Dost thou despise the earth where cares abound?
Or while the wings aspire, are heart and eye
Both with thy nest upon the dewy ground?
Thy nest which thou canst drop into at will,
Those quivering wings composed, that music still!*

*To the last point of vision, and beyond
Mount, daving warbler! that love-prompted strain—
'Twillt thee and thine a never-failing bond—
Thrills not the less the bosom of the plain;
Yet might'st thou seem, proud privilege! to sing
All independent of the leafy Spring.*

*Leave to the nightingale her shady wood;
A privacy of glorious light is thine,
Whence thou dost pour upon the world a flood
Of harmony, with instinct more divine;
Type of the wise, who soar, but never roam—
True to the kindred points of Heaven and Home!*

Bruges.

THE city of Bruges is one of the most interesting in Belgium. Its history dates back to about the third century of the Christian era. By the seventh century it had grown to importance, and in the time of Charlemagne its corporation of weavers was renowned all over the Continent. The chances of war, however, and other causes, have operated to reduce Bruges to a very inferior position compared to what it once occupied. As Wordsworth says—

*"In Bruges town is many a street
 Whence busy life hath fled,
 Where, without hurrying,
 noiseless feet
 The grass-grown pavement tread."*

"The great circumference of the town," remarks another writer, "its numerous squares and streets, and the number and magnificence of its public buildings, all attest its former importance; while the comparative absence of commercial activity, and the general air of desolation, bear witness to its present insignificance." The belfry tower in the great square, represented in our engraving, is the most beautiful structure of the kind in Europe, and its chimerae are the best in Belgium. It was erected at the close of the fourteenth century, and is still used for communicating the alarm of fire by a flag or a light to all parts of the city.

GARDENING FOR THE MONTH.

THIS is a busy month; nearly every sort of winter work may be commenced, and, indeed, completed if the weather permits. Make a general clearance in the kitchen garden of the ground wherever there are vacant spaces, and ridge up all plots not to be planted on during the winter. Sow small salads and radishes in the first week; mazagan beans and early frame peas in the last week. Plant cabbages in beds or close rows till wanted in spring. This is the best time for making plantations of rhubarb for producing next spring. Let the ground be deeply dug and well manured. Chrysanthemums should be securely staked. For heavy rains and winds play sad havoc with them when they are not well supported. Go on with the storing of fruit. Preparations must be set about at once this month where the planting of trees and shrubs is contemplated; it is necessary that the sites for them should be well drained and trenched at least two feet deep, and this should be finished and everything had in readiness at the latest by the third week in the month.

THE BELFRY AT BRUGES.

How many a tale their music tells!”—MOORE.*

The Duke of Orleans.

A CONSIDERABLE sensation was produced in Europe early in February, 1890, by the Duc d'Orléans, the eldest son of the Comte de Paris. The duke, who had been staying at Lausanne, attained his majority on the 6th of February. Without the knowledge even of the colonel who had been attending on him, he suddenly quitted Lausanne, and reached Paris by train about six o'clock on the morning of the 7th.

After lunch, he went to the recruiting office, stated who he was, and requested that, having just attained his majority, his name might be inscribed on the list of conscripts, as he wished to serve his three years like an ordinary citizen. The office authorities referred him to the mayor of the Arrondissement, the mayor referred him back to the recruiting office, and the recruiting office then advised him to go to the War Office. The War Office told him that no answer could be given him. An answer was, however, given later in the day by the arrival of a police commissary, who arrested him, and on the 8th he was examined on the charge of having entered France in violation of the law against pretenders. On the 12th he was sentenced to two years' imprisonment. The President, however, at last resolved on pardoning him, and on June 3rd he was released and escorted to the Swiss frontier.

GARDENING FOR THE MONTH.

MUCH of the work of this month is connected with the cultivation and amelioration of the soil. Whatever digging and trenching are required, let it be done without delay; every additional day's exposure of the soil to the action of the weather is a benefit to it. The general work of the kitchen garden is but a continuation of that of last month. Broad well-drained slopes are of great value for winter sowings and for bedding out lettuce, broccoli, and cauliflower for the winter. In the flower garden whatever is of too tender a nature to bear exposure to frost should be got under cover without delay. Bulbs should be planted as soon as possible, both in beds and borders. Gather any seeds that remain out, and dry indoors. Plant deciduous trees and shrubs as long as the weather continues favourable, and before the soil has parted with the solar heat absorbed during the summer. Prune and plant in the fruit-garden as the weather permits. Give special care to wall-fruit. Red and white currants must be cut back to skeletons. The pruning of fruit-trees and bushes is sadly neglected in most cottage gardens.

ARREST OF THE DUKE OF ORLEANS.

Making a Sonnet.

THE following sonnet on the manufacture of a sonnet is imitated from the Spanish of Lopez de Vega:—

*Capricious Wray a sonnet needs must have;
I n'er was so put to 't before—a sonnet!
Why, fourteen verses must be spent upon it:
'Tis good, how'er, I have conquer'd the first stave.*

*Yet I shall n'er find rhymes enough by half,
Said I, and found myself i' the midst o' the second.*

*If twice four verses were but fairly reckon'd,
I should turn back on the hardest part and laugh.
Thus far with good success I think I've scribbled,
And of the twice seven lines have clean got over ten.*

*Courage! another 'll finish the first triplet.
Thanks to thee, muse, my work begins to shorten.*

*There's thirteen lines got thro' dribblet by dribblet,
'Tis done! count how you will, I warr'nt
there's fourteen.*

With All her Faculties.

You may sometimes show that you have not got your own wits about you, by thinking that other people have. When Mrs. M'Gibbon was preparing to act Jane Shore, at Liverpool, her dresser, an ignorant country girl, informed her that a woman had called to request two box orders, because she and her daughter had walked four miles on purpose to see the play.

"Does she know me?" inquired the mistress.

"Not at all," was the reply.

"What a very odd request!" exclaimed Mrs. M'Gibbon. "Has the good woman got her faculties about her?"

"I think she have, ma'am, for I see she ha' got summut tied up in a red silk handkercher."

Willow Pattern Plates.

AN old-world legend is represented pictorially by the willow pattern with which we are all so familiar. It seems that a Chinese mandarin had an only daughter, named Li-Chi, who fell in love with Chang, a young man who lived in the island home represented at the top of the pattern, and who had been her father's secretary. The father overheard them one day making vows of love under the orange-tree, and sternly forbade the unequal match; but the lovers contrived to elope, lay concealed for a while in the gardener's cottage, and thence made their escape in a boat to the island home of the young lover. The enraged mandarin pursued them with a whip, and would have beaten them to death, had not the gods rewarded their fidelity by changing them both into turtle-doves.

The picture is called the willow pattern, not only because it is a tale of disastrous love, but because the elopement occurred "when the willow begins to shed its leaves."

The whole story is shown in the pattern. To the right is the mandarin's country seat. It is two storeys high, to show the rank and wealth of the possessor; in the foreground is a pavilion, in the background an orange-tree, and on the right of the pavilion a peach-tree, in full bearing. The estate is enclosed by an elegant wooden fence. At one end of the bridge is the famous willow-tree, and at the other the gardener's cottage, one storey high, and so humble that the grounds are wholly uncultivated, the only green thing being a small fir-tree at the back.

At the top of the pattern (left-hand side) is an island, with a cottage; the grounds are highly cultivated, and much has been reclaimed from the water. The two birds are turtle-doves. The three figures on the bridge are the mandarin's daughter, with a distaff, nearest the cottage; the lover, with a box, in the middle; and nearest the willow-tree the mandarin with a whip.

Upsala.

UPSALA is an old and beautiful town in Sweden, situated on the Fyrisä, a navigable stream, about forty-five miles from Stockholm. One part of the town stands on a wide and fertile plain; the rest stands on a high range of ground commanding a most extensive view to the north and east. The latter portion contains the chief buildings. Upsala is the seat of an archbishop, who is the Primate of the whole of Sweden. The cathedral is a handsome structure, though it is generally acknowledged to be disfigured by the hand of the restorer. It is in the Gothic style, and is built of brick. It was founded in 1258, and was completed about two hundred years thereafter. Within it are the tombs of the great naturalist Linnæus and of Gustavus Vasa, and several other Swedish kings. The chief university of Sweden is that of Upsala, founded in 1477. There is a large library connected with it, containing many valuable and important manuscripts. What is known as Old Upsala lies about two miles to the north of the town. It is now only a village, but during heathen times was the seat of the worship of Odin. A few miles from Upsala are the Mora-stones, where, in the Middle Ages, the Swedish kings were elected and crowned. Stockholm, however, early became the proper residence of the Swedish kings.

GARDENING FOR THE MONTH.

THE state of the weather often now interferes with out-door operations; all work which can be advanced within-doors should therefore be attended to. Make a plantation of sea-kale, rhubarb, asparagus, and horse-radish. Roots of dandelion, packed together in leaf-mould, and put into gentle heat, will furnish a delicate salad in five or six weeks. This is a good time to make new drains, improve water-courses, and plant hedges. Sow early peas and beans on dry warm slopes. Take up tea roses that are in exposed situations and lay them in a shed out of the reach of frost. Cut down fuchsias that are to remain out all winter and cover their roots with litter or coal ashes. Choice things in open beds should have a little light litter sprinkled over them in frosty weather. Dig round old fruit-trees. Root-prune any trees that grow too luxuriantly to bear well. Plant all sorts of fruit-trees. Mulch over the roots of tender trees, such as apricot and peach, and take every precaution to protect them from the weather.

UPSALA.

A Good Reason.

LOVE not me for comely grace,
 For my pleasing eye or face,
 Nor for any outward part;
 No, nor for a constant heart;
 For these may fail or turn to ill;
 So thou and I shall sever.
 Keep therefore a true woman's eye,
 And love me still, but know not why!
 So hast thou the same reason still
 To doat upon me ever.

Choosing a Governess.

MRS. CAMPBELL, a Scotch lady, was recommended as sub-governess to Princess Charlotte, and the old King George III. formed a high opinion of her. She felt reluctant to accept the post, urging her deficiency in the necessary accomplishments.

"Madam," said the king, "I hope we can afford to purchase accomplishments, but we cannot buy principles."

Tips to Servants.

TIPPING servants sometimes comes to be a heavy tax, as when Baron Bunsen tells us that a brief visit to Windsor Castle cost him twenty pounds.

In former days this tax was even more burdensome. The famous Jonas Hanway wrote a pamphlet on the subject, being immediately prompted to this on hearing from Sir Timothy Waldo an amusing incident in his own experience. He dined one day with the Duke of Newcastle, and on leaving the house he had to pay tax to several servants, and at last put a crown into the hand of the cook, who returned it, saying—

"Sir, I do not take silver!"

"Don't you, indeed?" said the worthy baronet, putting his money in his pocket; "then I do not give gold!"

Mr. Hanway was once politely reproached by a friend in high station for not coming oftener to dine with him.

"Indeed, my lord, I cannot afford it," he said, and explained that he could give his money more usefully than to well-paid and well-fed servants.

On another occasion he was paying the servants, who as usual appeared as he was leaving the house where he had dined.

"Sir, your great-coat," said one, upon which he paid a shilling.

"Your hat," said a second—another shilling.

"Your umbrella"—a shilling.

"Your gloves, sir."

"Why, friend," said Mr. Hanway, "you may keep the gloves; they are not worth a shilling!"

The Duke of Newcastle told this story to George III., who laughed heartily; but on reading Mr. Hanway's pamphlet, which the duke had left with him, he took the matter more seriously, and abolished vails in his household.

JOSEPH MANN,

14 WEST HIGH STREET,

Is alive to all the Ways of Selling Gent.'s Clothing for Little Money.

SOME I USE.

One is, Sell Dependable Qualities as low as you can.

We Sell All-Wool Overcoats for £2.

It is not possible to get a Reliable Overcoat for less.

Not always possible for us to sell so good a one for so little.

The Testimony is, they sell as quick as we make them.

It looks not far from a 60/ Overcoat.

Yet our 50/ Overcoat is worth the difference.

It isn't always the best way of saving money to try for how little you can get your Clothes.

My £2 Overcoats wear 3 Winters. My £3 Overcoats wear 6 easily. There are careful folks who could get 10 years out of either.

For Dress Suitings we can't be touched. Buy the Good. Buy the Reliable. Buy from me that which will give you lasting service.
