As wildly unbelievable as this may sound...the vote on what to call the new MacEanruig award was almost too close to call.

However, the votes have been counted and out of 7 people eligible to vote, "Order of MacEanruig" won over "MacEanruig League" by a count of 12-2 with some 444 votes still being counted and 5 in court.

Medals will be distributed to all Chief's Prize winners (1992-present) once the Executive Committee formally ratifies the Resolutions approved at the AGM. This should be in the next few weeks,

There are an additional 12 candidates pending consideration. As per the resolution, Order of MacEanruig members may not exceed 37 active members in 2020.

This is what the badge looks like (See above right). Sequential number will start with the 1992 Chief's prize awardee (#002--Janeil Henderson) and move forward from there. FYI: (#001) is being held in abeyance, should the Order ever decide to vote the Chief in.

AGM Silent Auction raises $1126 for Youth Scholarships

Steve Henderson, VP Ops & Silent Auction Manager

The Clan Henderson Society Silent Auction was very successful. Only 15 CHS members made various bids during the one-week-long auction; 11 members actually made the high bids for the donated items in the auction. When all monies have been received for the items bought, CHS will have made $1126.00 to contribute to youth scholarships.

The canvas clan tote garnered eight bids before it sold. A vintage piece of jewelry also was highly popular with four bids. A large array of men's clothing was sought after by three bidders. The highest final bid was for a Kilt Kit, and it was the only bid for that item. A donated Tam O'Shanter and a donated sporran were two of the higher bids made. After one week of bids being made via email, 11 CHS members were the winners of donated items.

The State of the Society

This year's first-ever, online Annual General Meeting was a great success. There were a few technical "hiccups", but overall it was a very enlightening, informative experience. As I have mentioned before, one of the benefits of the pandemic has been the impetus for us to expand our horizons and incorporate new technologies that enable us to communicate more widely and, in many cases, more effectively. Special thanks go out to Mark Henderson who, more than anyone, provided the leadership to make it happen, as well as North East Commissioner Barbara Pamboukes who provided leadership in establishing the agenda and Ron Henderson who provided the technical assistance to bring it all together. Thanks, guys!!!

Now, as for the state of the society, the Clan Henderson Society is on very sound financial footing. According to our Society's Treasurer, Carol Martin, our strict adherence to the budget plus the creative efforts of many Society members to raise funds for our scholarship and other charitable giving, have greatly enhanced our balance sheet. This year has been a bit of a challenge in that we are not able to recruit new members as quickly as we are losing active members. Nevertheless, the Society continues to thrive and meet its obligations and goals.

Regarding the various programs and activities within the Society, we have never been more active or productive. The various historical programs we have initiated are beginning to show great promise for providing an excellent repository for scholarship on notable/influential Hendersons, family stories, the Society's history, genealogy and archiving. Likewise, we have made great progress in promoting studies in Scottish and Celtic arts such as music and dancing and also encourage participation in Scottish Highland athletics. We have greatly leveraged technology to help with organizing online social events as well as collaboration on business-related issues vital to the society such as strategic planning, corporate outreach and policy.

The AGM resulted in three major decisions being made.

First was the selection of officers for the next two years. They are unchanged from the last two years.

Secondly, the AGM approved the rewrite of the bylaws that our membership can review on our website at <clanhendersonsociety.com>.

Thirdly, the AGM approved the rewrite of the resolution creating the Fordell Society, a charitable not-for-profit organization established to assist with major donations and estate giving that will be managed in a manner to generate growth of its assets.

With checks and mailing addresses received from buyers during the last week of October, all donated items bought during the silent auction were mailed to those buyers. Persons who donated the sold items received email notices about the amount their items achieved and they could have a small tax deduction for 2020, based on these sales.

Therefore, this Silent Auction was a small event during the week of the CHS Executive Board ZOOM meeting on 17 October and the AGM

ZOOM activities on 24 October. CHS members made donations and other CHS members bought items up for bid during the Silent Auction. All monetary donations associated with this auction and those other donations inspired by our efforts during the auction are designated for Youth Scholarships offered by Clan Henderson Society.

There are several other resolutions the Executive Board will be reviewing and acting upon shortly. These are posted on the website for our members to review. The Society owes a great debt of gratitude to our VP of Legal Affairs, Vincent Henderson, for the tremendous support rewriting the By-Laws and the various resolutions.

During the meeting, one of the member attendees made a very generous charitable offer of a $1000 match for contributions made to the Scholarship Fund. If you would like to participate in this match, please email Mark Henderson at <hendo28@comcast.net>. Tell him in the email how much you'd like to contribute, and he'll send you an invoice that will allow you to contribute securely online.

Finally, there was the announcement that Joe Henderson, Counselor Emeritus to the South Pacific Region and former Regional Commissioner, has been awarded the Chief's Prize for his outstanding support of the Society. It is my sincere wish that all of you who know Joe will reach out to him and express your personal congratulations. We thank Suzanne Emerson for representing the Society Leadership Team at a special recognition ceremony in Joe's honor.

The Society owes a great debt of gratitude to all those who participated and contributed to a wonderful three-day online extravaganza. The presentations on Strategic Planning, Corporate Outreach, Genealogy, DNA research, and a Kirking of the Tartan were extremely well done. Fifty-one Society members attended the AGM; this may have set an all-time record.

Next year's 2021 Annual General Meeting will be held in Glasgow, Kentucky. Clan Henderson will be the honoured Clan at this event. Please check this event out online and plan to join us June 4th – 6th. The following year, 2022, we will meet at Bitterroot, Montana.

A VIRTUAL AGM

Sue Hoffman, Secretary

2020 has been a year of postponements and, ultimately cancelations, for most of the Scottish Events and Festivals around the country, including our own Annual Meeting. After much discussion and research, it was determined that we could legally and technically hold a virtual AGM. Thanks to VP Mark Henderson and Barbara Pamboukes, a full weekend of virtual events, discussions and lectures were scheduled for October 23 – 25, 2020.

The Annual Meeting took place Saturday, October 24, 2020, beginning at 4:30 p.m. EDT.

One of the highlights of the meeting was the election of officers for a term of two years beginning January 1, 2021 and ending December 31, 2022.

Those officers are President Leon Hicks, Vice President Operations Steve Henderson, Vice President Members Mark Henderson, Vice President General Counsel Vincent Henderson, Vice President Genealogy/DNA LaRhee Henderson, Treasurer Carol Martin, and Secretary Sue Hoffman.

The membership also voted to accept the By-laws of the Clan Henderson Society, Incorporated and a Resolution to Authorize the Creation and Operation of the Fordell Foundation and Repeal a Certain Resolution approved at the Annual General Meeting in Ligonier, PA, September 14, 2019.

It was a very successful and well-planned event.

I send a great "Big Thank You" to the planners, lecturers, moderators for all their time and hard work putting it together for us. Although it didn't completely fulfill the needs of human contact and camaraderie that we are all missing, it was good to get the face time to reconnect with our Henderson 'cousins'.

TWO FAMOUS HENDERSONS IN THE UNITED STATES MARINE CORPS

Rob Winters

By no means is this article meant to ignore the contributions and sacrifices of all Hendersons (by affiliated name), men and women alike, of our Clan that have served or are serving in the United States Marine Corps since November 10, 1775 or the Navy Hospital Corpsmen assigned to serve with their sister and brother Marines. Instead it is meant to briefly focus on two Marines whose contributions live on in the history of the Corps.

Archibald Henderson was born on January 17, 1783 in Colchester, Fairfax County, Virginia to mother Sarah Moore and father Alexander Henderson, a wealthy merchant who ran his business out of Henderson House, Dumfries, Virginia.

Alexander was born in Glasgow, Scotland, immigrated to Virginia in 1753, served in the Virginia militia during the American Revolution and later opened a number of branch stores in other cities.

Some historians consider Alexander to be the 'father of chain stores.'

Young Archibald enlisted in the Marine Corps in 1801 at the age of eighteen; in the stirring words of the Marine Hymn he was to serve 'From the halls of Montezuma to the shores of Tripoli...'

During the First Barbary War, First Lieutenant Presley O'Bannon led a detachment of Marines and sailors into Tripoli and the battle of Derna in 1805 and became the first American to raise the flag of the United States over foreign soil in time of war. That was the 'shores of Tripoli.'

A year later, on June 4, 1806 Archibald Henderson was commissioned as a second lieutenant of Marines.

The War of 1812 found him serving as an officer of the Marine detachment aboard U.S.S. Constitution.

In 1814 he was brevetted a Major.

In September 1818 he was appointed Acting Commandant of the Marine Corps serving in that capacity until March 1819.

Nineteen months later he was appointed as the Commandant of the Marine Corps with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel. He was to remain Commandant for thirty-eight of the fifty-three years he served in the Corps, the longest-serving Commandant ever.

Archibald was promoted to full Colonel in 1834.

He led Marines, soldiers, and sailors into the field in Florida and Georgia.

His exploits as a commander and Commandant were rewarded with a brevet promotion to Brigadier General in 1843.

Two years later his Marines went to the 'Halls of Montezuma' during the War with Mexico (1845-46).

He died in January 1859 at the age of 76.

In July 1916 a troop transport (AP-1) was commissioned the Colonel Archibald Henderson but, in the Second World War, it was converted into a hospital ship.

Another 'Henderson Marine' of note was Major Lofton R. Henderson.

Beginning in 1939 and continuing through 1940 and 1941, the Japanese Empire was expanding its power and territory by conquering much of the Western and Southern Pacific under the 'Greater Asia Co-Prosperity Scheme.'

With war looming on the horizon the United States decided to strengthen its presence in the Pacific in places like Wake Island, the Territory of Hawaii, and the Philippines but of supreme strategic importance was the tiny speck of coral known as Midway Island.

Air travel for passengers was in its infancy prior to 1942 with regularly scheduled flights from China, Japan, and the Philippines to Hawaii and the United States and vice-versa using PBV Catalina flying boats which had both civilian and military applications.

There was a problem however; the aircraft of those days did not have the range of modern aircraft. They needed to refuel and so the island of 'Midway' was chosen for a joint military-civilian 'flying boat' station.

Midway was a key as it could be a valuable asset to a Japanese invasion of the Hawaiian Islands which, themselves, were a jumping off point for an invasion of the West Coast of the United States. On December 7, 1941 Japanese Naval Air Forces attacked the U.S. Naval fleet at Pearl Harbor with the idea of crippling our sea power in the Pacific. The Japanese were particularly seeking to destroy our aircraft carriers and accompanying cruiser-destroyer screening/escort forces.

However our Naval Air Forces were at sea and thus our battleships became the targets.

With the fall of Wake Island and the Philippines, the island of Midway remained as the strongest strategic and defensive point for our interests in the Pacific. Therefore the decision to reinforce the island, particularly with air assets, was well-founded. Both sides realized the strategic importance of Midway and the Japanese arrayed a large naval force to invade and garrison the island with 5000 troops and naval and air forces for protection.

To defend Midway were four B-26 Marauders and seventeen B-17 Flying Fortress bombers of the Army Air Forces; six Navy Avenger torpedo bombers and thirty-one PBY-5 Catalina (flying boats mostly used in scouting/courier roles but also capable of launching torpedoes, bombs, and depth charges), and eleven Navy motor torpedo (PT) boats.

Marine air and ground forces consisted of Marines of the 6th Defense Battalion; Companies C and D, 2nd Marine Raider Battalion; and MAG (Marine Air Group)-22, consisting of VMF (Marine Fighter Squadron)-221 with twenty Brewster Buffalo and seven Grumman Wildcat fighters and VMSB (Marine Scout/Bomber Squadron)-241 with seventeen Vindicator dive bombers and nineteen Dauntless dive bombers.

The Commanding Officer of VMSB-241 was Major Lofton Russell Henderson, USMC.

Major Henderson was born in 1903 in the city of Lorain, Ohio. He graduated from the U.S. Naval Academy in 1926 and was later rated as a Naval Aviator.

He served in a variety of duties around the globe including China, Nicaragua and Central America in the 'Banana Wars,' several Caribbean stations, and three U.S. Navy carriers – the Langley, the Ranger, and the Saratoga.

When invasion of Midway seemed imminent he was transferred to the island and arrived on April 20, 1942 to take command of VMSB-241.

As noted earlier this was a dive bomber squadron and used both Vindicators and Dauntless aircraft.

Major Henderson had his hands full with his new squadron.

He divided his aircraft turning over the Vindicators to his executive officer, Major Benjamin Norris, USMC and retaining the Dauntless aircraft and overall command. Matters were to get worse; all of his aircraft were dive bombers and many of his pilots (including ten who arrived on May 26th) were untrained in dive bombing techniques; some had never flown either types of aircraft, and aircraft fuel was in short supply so flight training was nearly impossible.

However, being a Marine and a Henderson led the new commander to make the best of what he had at hand. He decided on using 'glide-bombing' as an alternative to dive-bombing; this was a more dangerous attack as the shallow angle of attack placed the aircraft in range of enemy guns for a much longer period.

The fleet commander, Admiral Chester

Nimitz, knew the Japanese target was Midway despite a Japanese deceptive feint at the Aleutian island chain. Therefore he gambled his fleet on being able to ambush the Japanese strike force before they could land their troops with air cover from four fleet carriers; the Akagi, the Soryu, the Kaga, and the Hiryu.

These four carriers along with two others had been the ones that destroyed the American fleet at Pearl Harbor – these would be the targets of the Americans who would press home their attacks with a vengeance.

On June 4th the Japanese launched their aircraft with the primary target being Midway; although they had concerns about the location of the U.S. carriers they believed they could successfully attack Midway with the surprise and success as at Pearl Harbor; it was not to be.

Given the air raid warning Marine, Navy, and Army pilots began taking off to defend the island; Henderson's planes were in the air by six-thirty a.m. and were looking for their primary targets, the Japanese carriers.

They found one and Henderson and his sixteen planes pounced on Hiryu.

Despite the ferocity of their attack, it was unsuccessful; no hits were scored on Hiryu and few of our aircraft survived.

Eyewitnesses indicated that despite overwhelming enemy fighters attacking the squadron leader's plane in groups of three and four at a time, Major Henderson pressed home his attack and was last seen diving at the enemy carrier, his left wing fully on fire; his gunner/radioman Private First Class Lee Reininger was seen grinning and still fending off the Zeroes as the doomed plane continued to attack.

They were not seen again.

Both were listed as Missing in Action – Presumed Dead, and on June 5, 1943 they were declared Killed in Action as of June 4, 1942, precisely 136 years after Archibald Henderson was commissioned as a second lieutenant of Marines.

On November 10, 1942 (the 167th Birthday of the Marine Corps) the Secretary of the Navy approved the award of the Navy Cross, second only to the Medal of Honor, to Major Henderson posthumously; PFC Reininger was awarded a Distinguished Flying Cross.

The citation for Major Henderson reads in part... "With utter disregard for his own personal safety, Major Henderson, with keen judgment and courageous aggressiveness in the face of strong enemy fighter opposition, led his squadron in an attack which contributed materially to the defeat of the enemy...."

On August 4, 1945 the U.S.S. Lofton R. Henderson (DD-785) a Gearing-class destroyer was commissioned.

Too late to serve during the Second World War it nevertheless continued excellent service in the United States Navy, participating in the invasion force at Inchon, Korea in September 1950 and sharing a Navy Unit Commendation. Henderson earned eight battle stars during three tours in Korea. In August 1964 Henderson began the first of seven tours on 'Yankee Station' off the coast of Vietnam participating in numerous gunfire support missions and escorting Navy aircraft carriers prosecuting the Vietnam War; she earned seven battle stars for her Vietnam service.

She was finally transferred to the Naval Reserve Force and served as a training ship home ported in Long Beach CA until 1980.

She then served another twenty-one years in the Navy of a friendly foreign nation.

DETECTIVE WORK

Dorothy Henderson

There are many reasons families are apart. Some people have had an unpleasant experience with a relative. Perhaps someone has said or done something that makes it impossible to remain in contact with each other. The son of my niece's Girl Scout leader came home to his mother, for his father's funeral, and told her "You always liked the girls more than me", then rushed back home to the west coast, as far away from his parents as possible.

Others have no interest in family ties or genealogy in general. They don't care whether they know their unknown relatives and are happy with the ones they know.

Most of the people who leave the family do so because of social and economic reasons. Consider the famous politician whose family switched religions when they came to the United States. Then, too, the person who grew up in that part of Newark, New Jersey where the Portuguese immigrants lived, who changed his name so that he wasn't Portuguese any longer.

I have two relatives who lived with their families and lived other lives at work. The secret of success was to live above One Hundred and Tenth Street.

This article is about members of my extended family who, for any of these reasons, left the family and how their children, or descendants, managed to return.

There are so many things that we have no control over.

People are born looking differently and we can't change that. They may choose to change their lives and move on to a new life. Those who move in a different direction don't tell their children of the decision they have made and the children grow up not knowing their true background. Some of them want to know the truth and, with help of DNA, it is now possible.

That is exactly what happened in my family. Recently I heard from a relative who is the grandchild of a cousin who left the family. After she heard a rumour about her family background, her brother tested his DNA. The test confirmed the rumour they were related to us in some way. She began exploring the genealogical charts available on the Internet and got in touch with some of the people listed there.

A cousin who lives in England, whom I have never met, but write often on things genealogical, referred her to me. Since then we have carried on a lengthy correspondence, filling in the missing spaces in her knowledge of the past.

She is fortunate that I am old enough to have actually known her grandfather. I have pictures of him, her grandmother and two of their four children.

Fifteen years ago, the cousin of another family member decided that he wanted to see if he could find his missing family. Although he lives in The Netherlands, his family had moved from Barbados to Surinam and he had a few old letters. Their Scottish Wildcat Kitten Rescue!

Wildcat Haven, United Kingdom

It has been an eventful time. We were recently contacted by a couple in the central Highlands who had rescued a weak, dehydrated and almost hypothermic kitten during the recent storms. Our team has considerable veterinary and wildlife rehabilitation experience, so we advised them what to do and also, of course, to get the kitten to the nearest vet immediately, which they duly did. The vet sexed the cat as male and estimated it to be only 4 weeks old. The couple who rescued the kitten felt that this was definitely not a domestic kitten and so, once out of immediate danger, we received pictures. We were astonished, first at the beauty but then as we got more pictures, by the clear and striking wildcat markings. The body striping is amazing, the dorsal stripe stops at the base of the tail, the tail is ringed and there are clear head stripes. Its important to say that a cat can only be fully pelage (coat marking) scored at about 6 months of age but, even at this age, it is showing extremely strong wildcat signature markings.

We went to assess the cat in person and we were very honoured that the couple who found the kitten wanted to place it in our care, as they felt Wildcat Haven would give the cat the best chance of returning to the wild. They were clear that they did not want to condemn the cat to a lifetime in a cage. Therefore, we accepted the kitten into our care.

It is clear to us that this is no ordinary kitten both in appearance and behaviour and it seems highly probable that this cat will pass the threshold for what constitutes a wildcat. You will be able to see this for yourself as we provide videos and pictures in the coming days.

The couple who found him had called him 'Finlay' and we think that is a wonderful name and very appropriate as it means 'fair warrior' in Gaelic.

Finlay is such a remarkable find and whilst we are deeply concerned at what happened to his mother and siblings (we can only fear the worst as a mother wildcat would never leave her 4 week old kittens), we are now working towards returning Finlay back to the wild where he belongs. He has the potential to be so important to the future survival of the Scottish wildcat and we owe a massive thanks to the compassion and care of the couple who found him and undoubtedly saved his life.

Once we catch our breath we will start providing regular updates. He is mesmerising to watch,

On November 7, 2020, we were honored to bestow upon Joe Henderson of Long Beach, California the Chief's Prize, the highest award granted by the Clan Henderson Society.

Only one Chief's Prize is granted each year.

Joe served as Regional Commissioner for the Clan Henderson Society in the South Pacific Region for a dozen years, and has been an active member for 25 years.

Joe has been known for visiting games throughout California, Nevada, and Hawaii, and bringing with him "goodies" for the convenors to distribute – Clan Henderson paper fans, bumper stickers, activity booklets, New Member nametags, etc.

His most universally-appreciated "goodies" are the synthetic cottongrass sprigs that he hand-crafted by the dozens, packaged into little envelopes with an explanation of the Clan Plant Badge and a photo of live cottongrass.

He made sure convenors had supplies of these packets available to give to all Clan Henderson members. Very innovative!

Aiden and Danielle Henderson provided pipe

AGM Report 2020 Genealogy/DNA

Areas: Facebook pages, Geni, Ancestry, member requests, Family Tree DNA Surname Project, and various communications.

Areas: Facebook pages, Geni, Ancestry, member requests, Family Tree DNA Surname Project, and various communications.

1. Members requests through the CHS web site. In 2020 we received and responded to 44 requestssince last report in July.

2. Tree Building: Jim Henderson coordinates our trees on Geni. We have 48326 Henderson individual's profiles on Geni.

b. Other trees (about 650) are on Ancestry. Also here are about 50 that have been built or updated in 2020. We continue our efforts to copy trees from Ancestry into Geni.

c. We receive questions from others researching in these 2 sites. In 2020, Geni had 30 correspondences and Ancestry had 39 from July '19 to Sept 2020. These range from a simple correction to resolving conflicts between two trees to building new trees.

3. Facebook:a. Public Facebook genealogy page-This site carries items of general interest like DNA testing sales, genealogy resources, etc.). It has 340 followers. There were 48 people reached and 6 people viewed our posts on Sept 26, for example. These numbers vary widely since I don't post something every day.

b. CHS members Facebook Genealogy Group has 357 activemembers; There were 14 posts in Sept with 78 comments and 69 reactions. (Private genealogy group allows more specific questions/answers where other members share answers, suggestions that include but are not limited to the CHS genealogy team.)

4.-Communications (Making our work more visible) a. Presentations- I've made 2 genealogy presentations. One to my local Scottish Heritage Society, the other to this year's AGM Zoom meeting.

b. New Members: Mark Henderson has begun sending me lists of new members to whom I send welcome notes and explain the genealogy/DNA activities that we offer.

c. I helped plan the genealogy aspects of the 'Henderson Gathering' that was cancelled due to Covid concerns. These would have included Family History displays and a genealogy workshop.

5. Genetic analysis. a. Ron Henderson is our specialist in autosomal DNA interpretation. Autosomal DNA includes DNA fragments from all ancestors, male and female. In this way, Ron helps individuals outside the direct male Henderson line use siblings' and cousins' DNA networks to find their Henderson ancestry.

b. David Henderson administers the Clan Henderson Genealogy needs your help!

We have a couple new initiatives in addition to our ongoing work for your consideration.

You can help existing work (no set skills required -we train!):

Conduct traditional genealogy research.
Help to build trees online and/or search local libraries/societies.

Transfer Ancestry trees into Geni.

Answer questions posted to Ancestry/Geni

Seek out and verify existing trees that lead back to Scotland/Ireland

Assist interpreting Y DNA or Autosomal DNA

Explore possible mapping of genetic groups to origins in Scotland/Ireland

Now, Here are two NEW INITIATIVES:

1. DNA AND DINNER: Hendersons whose ancestors lived in a certain common region (e.g. Fife, Colonial Virginia, Northern Ireland, etc.) could gather via Zoom, exchange information on their family stories, share history of that place and virtually share a meal typical of that time/place. For example, Cullen skink (fish stew) in Fife, meat pie in Virginia, pepper pot in Pennsylvania, etc. We would provide recipes then each household (a family or group of local families) would prepare their meal. During the meal, a ZOOM coordinator would talk about the meal (similar to Chef's meal presentations "I have prepared for you....") and food traditions in that area. After the meal, local participants would share their family's story and review the meal that they've shared (virtually, of course). I'm looking for meal participants, recipe researchers. And ZOOM coordinators.

2. REVEALING FAMILY SECRETS PROGRAMS: Wouldn't it be great to know more about you ancestors' lives beyond their names on a list? This program is an attempt to help in that quest. This idea is modeled after a Brit Box series "My Family Secrets Revealed". They ask: "Was your ancestor in a famous battle? -Present at an historic event? -Involved in a scandal? -Related to X? These are questions that we'd like to ask in our own trees! I'm proposing that our genealogy/family history team invite such questions from CHS members, select some for research, then present our findings via a periodic Zoom meeting. Here's an example from my family research. Upon his death, my Grandfather Henry Henderson, left a small wooden box to my aunt. It was said that as a child, he picked it up from some ruins following the Chicago fire. My question: Where did my Henderson family live relative to the burn area of the fire? What was it like living there before/during/after the fire? For this project I'm looking for Hendersons with family stories or historical context questions, historians and genealogists to build those connections and hosts to present the stories on a Zoom meeting.

PLEASE CONSIDER JOINING OUR TEAM!
Whether you like building/validating trees, genetics, mapping, cooking, story-telling, or history.....we need your help! Contact me!
(LaRhee.Henderson@Drake.edu)

UPDATE ON OUR NEW DNA AND DINNER PROGRAM! We have scheduled out first 3 Dinners! (These are shared dinner experiences via ZOOM in which you prepare/review traditional recipes that we provide and share stories of your ancestors of that region.)

*The potential menu items listed below are still in development as I receive your feedback and new cookbooks!

Please contact me to join, start a new one, or ask questions: larhee.henderson@drake.edu

Henderson Surname Project on Family Tree DNA. Through David's efforts we have 71 Henderson groups. Most of these groups have a common ancestor within 12 generations.

c. Using the combined information from all of the above, we continue to map the Henderson groups. This involves

i. Origene-style analysis of surnames: Combine information from DNA matches identified in the Surname Project with corresponding geographic information in the 1841 Census

ii. Confirmed Genealogy Trees: We attempt to find trees in each group that extend back into Scotland and Ireland that can be verified with solid evidences.

iii. DNA of Living Hendersons in Scotland/Ireland: We attempt to locate living Hendersons in Scotland/Ireland who know their family origins there and who have had (or consent to have) DNA analysis.

When at least 2 of these three confirm each other, we take it as evidence that Hendersons in that group originated from that geographic location.

Using this process, we have mapped 18 groups.

The Kirkin' o' the Tartan, a bit of history

C. Fred Sanford,
CHS Chaplain and Counsellor to the Chief, FSA Scot

At our recent ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING (virtual as it was) we included the ceremony known as The Kirkin' o' the Tartans. But how does one perform this on ZOOM, virtual and not in a church setting?

The ceremony itself began as a clandestine event in Scotland when in the 18th Century Scots were forbidden to display their clan tartans. So the villagers had their tartan cloths dedicated annually in church by hiding the cloth from public view. The tradition of that annual dedication was revived in America in 1941 by Peter Marshall, a tian worship standards between Scotland and the rest of Great Britain in the years 1638 to 1646.

King Charles I was on the throne, following the popular King James—who authorized the translation of the Bible in 1611.

However, it was not a peaceful time in Britain when it came to worship because most people of England were used to Anglican forms of worship and even loyalty to Roman Catholicism. So, the King, who learned and accepted the Scottish brand of faith, had to bridge the gap between Presbyterian church government and Episcopalianism.

On the way to the Kirkin' o' the Tartans at Glasgow, KY, Highland Games 2018 (With a Henderson pipar!)

Scot and a Presbyterian minister.

The point here is that it took a great deal of the virtue of COURAGE for the Scots to show their national patriotism by this act. But another act of courage was shown by the Kirk ministers of the 17th Century, led by our ancestor The Rev. Alexander Henderson of Fordell, to unify the Chris-

As an aside here: a full hundred years before this, in the 1500s, the Reformer John Knox brought to Scotland an anti-Roman Catholic system of belief, so tensions were present leading up to Henderson's time.

So, Alexander Henderson was not afraid

"FREE HAMMOCKS, all over town. It's like a miracle!"

to meddle in British politics. He was trusted by King Charles and his own Scottish people—until he objected to the English prayer book. Then he began to associate with the Presbyterian activists, called Covenanters, who wished to pressure the King into respecting Scottish grievances. He was so convinced that everyone would join his endeavor that he and other ministers drew up a document in 1638 which became known as the "National Covenant." This document was shown to all and taken to London declaring how important this matter was to the Scots; surely the British royalty and English people would agree. Over the next six years the document was renamed the SOLEMN League and Covenant, using the word "solemn" which Henderson wanted to use in order to show the seriousness of the issue. Well, Henderson and his entourage in London were certain that the document would at last unify the elements of Christian worship for all of Great Britain and perhaps even result in Britain becoming a true Christian nation!

Unfortunately, the solemnity of the project was lost and the English people had now come to distrust both the king and the intent of the Covenant. Henderson's cause was doomed. It hurt him so badly that he blamed himself for the failure and he returned to Scotland dying within weeks.

We should have no trouble applying the meaning of our Clan Motto to the life and work of Alexander Henderson. "Only virtue can result in a noble life."

What is virtue?

Simply stated it is one's personal intent to avoid what is reckless or destructive to one's self or to others or to nature and to practice a life of love and justice, fidelity, temperance, generosity, gratitude, humility, simplicity, purity, solemnity, and courage.

Courage is what Alexander Henderson attempted to show himself and his country what is noble. It comes out of virtue and is congruent with the life of Christ and the words of St. Paul.

And so, whenever we dedicate ourselves and our clans and tartan colors in a church ceremony, we can also remember the nobility of Alexander Henderson and the virtue of courage he displayed in his life and work.

May we all hope that the governments and citizens of the world will someday live by the faith that will lead to justice and peace in the world.

Sola Virtus Nobilitat!

Talking Points

Vincent C. Henderson, II Vice President - General Counsel

The present Clan Henderson Society Constitution and Bylaws have not been comprehensively reviewed in at least 10 years.

It appears that they are substantially similar to an earlier constitution and bylaws of the society. There have been substantial changes in the actual operation of the Society and substantial changes in nonprofit corporation law in the approximately 30 years since the initial organization of the Society.

When the Society was relatively small, the organization of the Society could be relatively simple in structure and authority.

Over the last 10 years, however, because of the challenges of the growth and development of the Society and the law and the goals as an organization we want to achieve, the Constitution and Bylaws have not kept up.

The theories behind the proposed Bylaws are to: Modernize the structure of the bylaws, simplifying them where possible

Modernize the structure of the society

Give greater responsibility, agility, flexibility, and accountability to the Executive Board on behalf of the members of the Society

Include legally required language in the Bylaws

To do these things, the Bylaws have been drafted to

- Reduce size of Executive Board by allowing appointed officers to do their thing instead of burdening them with having to be involved with general corporate decision-making

- Set term limits for president

- Allow more members to be active in a greater variety of society activities, programs, and functions

- Remove programs and specific functions and the committees that support them out of the bylaws so that the Executive Board can better modify and adjust the membership, management, and operation of these programs and functions

- Putting in place certain corporate accountability and management committees that the society needs and has never had: audit committee; finance committee; fundraising and development committee; and program oversight committee

- Should not need to amend the bylaws as often as we have had to or tried to

- As a result of some changes in federal law, the proposed Bylaws include some additional language that the present Constitution and Bylaws should include but do not. These are legally required good corporate government provisions: conflicts of interest and whistleblower protections.

The proposed Bylaws are intended to be the organic document for the Clan Henderson Society, Inc., as a nonprofit corporation. Because of this, several provisions in the present Constitution and Bylaws and many of the suggested changes to them are not included in the proposed Bylaws as they are more typically corporate policies implementing the goals, objectives, and purposes of the Society. Consequently, they are to be considered for approval as corporate resolutions. This method will give the Executive Board greater flexibility to modify, amend, and adjust the resolutions to better manage these programs and activities.

Clan Henderson Society Constitution and Bylaws

The proposed Bylaws are intended to be the organic document for the Clan Henderson Society, Inc., as a nonprofit corporation. The proposed Bylaws include those provisions for the organization and management of the Society as a nonprofit corporation incorporated under North Carolina law.

Several provisions in the present Constitution and Bylaws and many of the suggested changes to them are not included in the proposed Bylaws as they are more compatible as corporate resolutions than as bylaws, and as a result may be more easily modified, amended, and adjusted.

In addition, as a result of some changes in federal law, the proposed Bylaws include some additional language that the present Constitution and Bylaws should include but do not.

The drafts of the proposed Bylaws have been reviewed, discussed, and modified several times by an ad hoc committee of the Executive Board.

Some of the main changes made by the proposed Bylaws include the following: For some reason, the Society's bylaws were drafted in two separate documents, the Constitution and the Bylaws. By and large, the provisions of the present Constitution have been substantially duplicated in the present Bylaws. To the extent necessary and useful, the provisions in our present Constitution and our present Bylaws have been combined into the provisions of the proposed Bylaws. For example Article I of the Constitution concerning the official name and location of the organization and Bylaw I of the present Bylaws essentially duplicating the official name of the Society have been merged and incorporated into Article I of the proposed Bylaws.

This type of change taking duplicative provisions in both the present Constitution and in the present Bylaws has been executed manifold times throughout the proposed Bylaws.

Present Bylaw I has several paragraphs recounting the history of the Society. Interesting and valuable as this information is, it has no real place in the Society's Bylaws. This information has been incorporated into a corporate resolution for consideration by the Executive Board.

Proposed Article II, Policy and Operations, and Article III, Objective and Purposes, now cover those same matters in present Bylaws II and III, also which are duplicative of similar provisions in the present Constitution.

Proposed Article IV, General Form of Organization, § 1 the Society Generally, reflecting the changes in the Society, incorporates, in part, present Bylaw IV concerning geographical area of the Society. The Society is now larger and better organized internationally.

Proposed Article IV, § 2 the Executive Board, substantially includes provisions that may be found in present Bylaw VI, in part.

Proposed Article V, Officers, sets out more clearly the three classifications of Society officers: elected; commissioned; and appointed. A substantial change between the present Bylaws and the Proposed Bylaws is in § 3 concerning the election of officers. For the first time, the President of the Society will be limited to two consecutive terms. Before he or she may hold that office again he or she must sit out for at least one presidential term.

In § 1, officers are limited in the number of appointed or commissioned offices he or she may hold at the same time.

Proposed Article VI, Duties of Elected and Commissioned Officers, reorganizes, clarifies, and better details the duties of the elected and commissioned officers that are included in present

Bylaw VI.

Proposed Article VII, Members, more clearly sets out the various aspects of membership in the Society and incorporates many of the provisions presently in Bylaw V. It simplifies the types of membership and reduces them to three: active, passive, and honorary. The new article sets out minimum requirements for retaining membership and the privileges of the various types of membership.

Proposed Article VIII, Fiscal and Financial Matters, incorporates provisions from present Bylaw VII, in part, and more clearly delineates the manner in which Society funds and other assets are handled and managed. It also expressly establishes the calendar year as the fiscal year for the Society, unless the Executive Board should decide to change it.

Proposed Article IX, Meetings, more clearly sets out the provisions applicable to annual general meetings of members, special meetings of members, and executive board meetings. It more clearly establishes the quorum and voting requirements for each type of meeting. Present Bylaw VIII Meetings has been confusing, inaccurate, incomplete, and sometimes unworkable.

Proposed Article X, Committees, completely reorganizes the committee structure and philosophy of the Society. While some aspects of present

Bylaw IX are incorporated into this article, most of this proposed article is substantially new. This article is one of the most important changes from our present bylaws. It establishes four standing committees of the Executive Board, committees the Society has never had: audit committee; finance committee; fundraising and development committee; and program oversight committee. The importance of this restructuring cannot be overemphasized. Other committees, such as Awards Committee and Scholarships Committee, and program committees, are authorized to be created by the Executive Board by corporate resolution. Furthermore, this will allow the Board to bring in members with interests in the various programs and projects of the Society rather than rely almost exclusively on board members to populate these types of committees. These committee members can bring their expertise and enthusiasm to the efforts of these Society committees. It will also give the Society a larger pool of potential leaders for eventually taking over the various leadership positions in the Society.

Proposed Article X, Conflicts of Interest and Article XI Internal Complaints, are required by federal law. The conflicts of interest article is self-explanatory, while the internal complaints article is a whistleblower protection provision. There is an attachment, Exhibit A, which is a form referred to in Article X, § 7b, and each officer is required to complete the form each year and file it with the Society Secretary.

Finally, proposed Article XIII, Adoption of these Bylaws and of Amendments, sets out the requirements for approval of the proposed bylaws and the procedure for amending them.

CLAN HENDERSON SOCIETY FOUNDATION

At last year's AGM in Ligonier, Pennsylvania, the Society adopted a resolution authorizing the Executive Board to create a foundation named the Clan Henderson Society Foundation. The purpose of the foundation was, and is, to receive donations and assets to support programs the Society wants to encourage and promote. In that way dues and incidental income in support of the Society can be used to support the Society itself rather than have the Society have to use those revenues to support the various programs the Society wants to encourage and promote.

However, after reviewing the law and other clan societies' foundations we have determined that last years' resolution needs substantial revision. Rather than try to amend the Ligonier resolution, another resolution to replace it has been prepared. Its purpose is to allow the Executive Board greater flexibility in the creation and management of the foundation in line with the manner in which other societies create and manage their related foundations.

EXECUTIVE BOARD RESOLUTIONS

As previously mentioned, several Executive Board resolutions have been prepared for consideration by the Executive Board, subject to the adoption and ratification of the proposed Bylaws. While these do not require approval by the Society members, they have been put on the Society website for review by the members. They cover the following subjects:

- Appointed Officials - Awards - Badges and Symbols - Emeritus Honors
- Heritage and History - Regional Commissioner Organization - Scholarships
- Special Observances

CHS member, Andrew Henderson, is an artist! You can see his work here and on the back page of this publication!

Clan Henderson member Andrew Henderson is an airline pilot and an artist.

His excitement for photography started in high school classes and continued over the years through contests and exhibitions. Recently, his enthusiasm to learn painting began by copying Bob Ross and has expanded to acrylic works using his own photography for reference.

Andrew intends to convey a sense of peace through his artwork by incorporating vibrant colors, repeating patterns, and interesting forms.

In his spare time you will find him taking long walks on the bike trails around his home with his dog Cooper, his one year old son Findley, and most importantly his wife, Laura, whose loving support makes his art possible.

The answers to lots of questions from Leon Hicks

Below is a link to videos about the Fordell Castle (composed by Suzanne Emerson) and stories told by Allen Henderson, RC of the UK, about the Henderson Stone at Glencoe. This link resides on our website. Please visit the website often to stay informed.

During a recent survey of members, the question was asked "why is the CHS so North Carolina centric?" I confess the question came as a bit of a surprise, but it occurs to me that there is a lot about the history of the Society that is unknown. We are working on a complete history that we hope to be available soon, but the short answer is as follows.

In September 1986, David S. Henderson, an attorney from New Bern, NC, contacted Dr. John William Phillip Henderson of Queensland Australia, who was recognized as the Chief of the Name and Arms of Henderson, to officially form the Clan Henderson Society. The permission was granted. The first official gathering occurred in 1988 at the Highland Games and Festival at Grandfather Mountain, NC. David S. Henderson, being an attorney in North Carolina, filed the necessary paperwork to establish a 501C3 not-for-profit corporation through the State of North Carolina. We are officially Clan Henderson Society, Inc. The official offices were established at his office in New Bern for all official correspondence from the State and/or IRS. More recently, this official office for official communications has been moved to Southport, NC due to the fact that David S Henderson has retired from Society Operations, and the President of the Society (yours truly) lives in Southport.

Quite by accident, as it turns out, there are more Scottish surnames in North Carolina than any other state due to the early migration patterns of Highland Scots to the Cape Fear Region and Scot Irish from Northern Ireland to the piedmont and mountain regions of the state. Many of these earliest migrants were Hendersons.

I hope you enjoy the videos, and that the above explains why our society is officially based in North Carolina.

The President's Annual Report

Leon Hicks, President, Clan Henderson Society, Inc.

Overall, it has been a busy year with several new projects being kicked-off in addition to those that have been underway for some time.

Key among them is establishing the Fordell Foundation. We are in the final stages of developing the Constitution and ByLaws.

The History Project is moving forward on three fronts: The Clan Henderson Society History Project, led by Dottie Henderson is making great progress. The Family History Project is moving forward - being led by Steve Henderson, Vice President of Operations. The Notable Hendersons History Project has yet to be formally kicked-off. We have several persons who will be contributors but no leader for the project has been identified.

The Genealogy Team, led by VP of Genealogy/DNA, LaRhee Henderson, continues to provide this valuable service to our society in a timely and efficient manner.

The Athletic Program, under Bryan Simpson, has made great progress - the pandemic and greatly reduced numbers of opportunities to participate this year has affected this program. The overall level of communication and interaction among athletes has been great.

The Quartermaster activity still needs some time to get rolling. Chris Story has made several attempts to collect the type of information necessary but this effort will require more support from the CHS Leadership Team to become fully effective.

The Corporate Outreach Team, led by Louis Russell, has made excellent progress.

The Strategic Plan initiative for the Clan Henderson Society, also led by Louis Russell, is also making great progress. We anticipate a final product from that team soon.

This year, the society has "gone virtual." Many of our activities (to include the AGM) were conducted online using virtual meeting applications.

The Scholarship Committee - led by Mary Lane Henderson - did a great job this year identifying and disseminating CHS scholarship awards.

Membership is down significantly this year. The reduction in memberships will have a corresponding impact on several of our programs depending on operational funds. Next year's budget will be reflecting the fiscal realities of the situation.

Eric Erickson has done an excellent job leading the Award Committee's efforts - thank you to Eric and all the members of

St. Andrew's Day

- Saint Andrew is the patron saint of Scotland
- St. Andrew, one of Christ's twelve apostles, is the patron saint of Scotland. Some of his bones are said to have been brought to what is now St. Andrews in Fife during the 4th century. Since medieval times the X-shaped saltire cross upon which St. Andrew was supposedly crucified has been the Scottish national symbol that team.

In 2020, St. Andrew's Day was on November 30.

Matthew Elder, III was appointed the new Regional Commissioner for the Great Lakes Region. Doug Henderson is now Counselor Emeritus for the Great Lakes Region.

Joe Henderson, Counselor Emeritus for the South Pacific Region, has been awarded the Chief's Prize for 2020.

Last year's AGM was a great success. Thank you to Mike and Joan Henderson for a great effort.
