At a MEETING of the COUNCIL of the MAITLAND CLUB, held at GLASGOW, May 8th, 1828,

RESOLVED, That the Descriptions of the Sheriffdoms of Lanark and Renfrew, by WILLIAM HAMILTON of Wishaw, be printed for the Members of the Club,—the first from a Manuscript in the Topographical Collections in the Library of the Faculty of Advocates, the other from a Manuscript in the possession of SIR WILLIAM HAMILTON of Fingalton and Preston, Baronet; and that the printing be superintended by JOHN DILLON, and JOHN FULLARTON, Esqs.

JOHN WYLIE, Secretary.

P R E F A C E.

THE following Descriptions of the Sheriffdoms of Lanark and Renfrew were compiled about the beginning of last century, and are now first printed, from two separate manuscripts. The first is contained in Sir James Balfour's Collections concerning the several Shires of Scotland, into which it appears to have been transcribed by Sir Robert Sibbald ; and who having presented the volume to the historian of the Sufferings of the Scottish Church, it now forms part (M. 6. 15.) of the Wodrow Collections in the Library of the Faculty of Advocates. The Description of Renfrewshire (which appears never to have been fully completed by the author) is also transcribed into the same volume, but a more perfect copy having been politely communicated to the Club by Sir William Hamilton, Baronet, it was adopted in preference to Sibbald's transcript. This manuscript, which came into the possession of Sir William Hamilton at the sale of the library of the late Dr Boog, one of the Ministers of Paisley, has been ascertained to be in the author's handwriting, and has recently been presented to his descendant and representative, the Lord Belhaven and Stenton.

Though affording, like many similar productions of the period, but a very scanty supply of historical research or incident, these accounts nevertheless appear to be of considerable value from the many contemporary particulars they contain, as well relative to the state of property as to the genealogy of the proprietors in the important and populous districts to which they refer ; and to whom, as well as to the local historian and antiquary, they may therefore prove an acceptable and useful acquisition.

To the original works are now subjoined copious notatory additions and illustrations ; also two separate Appendices, consisting of original papers and authentic documents relating to the history of these Shires. The subsequent notices regarding Barochan Cross, and other ancient monuments in the neighbourhood of Paisley, have been contributed by William Motherwell, Esq. a member of the Maitland Club ; and to whom the reader is particularly obliged for the pains he has taken with these romantic tales, though it may still be reasonably enough doubted whether they owe not more to the fertile pen of the writer than to the faithfulness of traditionary record so strenuously urged. Indices of the whole names of persons and places occurring in the volume, whether in the original, the notes, or the appendices, are also subjoined ; an addition which seems indispensable in a work of this nature.

As will be perceived, by far the most material part of the first of these additions has been derived from the Records of the Commissariat of Glasgow—a source at once authentic, copious, and often curious ; and to facilitate the inquiries of those who may feel more immediately interested in these extracts, exact reference to the originals, which have lately been transferred to the General Register House, has been carefully noted. A fragment of these Records as early as 1547—1555 has been preserved, and from the year 1600 they are nearly though not wholly entire. But the selections now made come only to the year 1662. The more ancient Records and muniments belonging to the See of Glasgow, it is well known, were carried to France on the eve of the Reformation by Archbishop Beaton the incumbent prelate. They were afterwards deposited in the Scottish College at Paris, and were still preserved there at the period of the Revolution in 1789.* But this Institution, though at first exempted from secularization, was afterwards dissolved, and what became of the Scottish records in its possession seems not to be known. It is not improbable that part at least of these treasures may yet exist in some literary or other public institution of France; and if so, surely an effort should be made for their restoration to that country to whose history they relate, and to which they must be of the highest importance.

Perhaps the most valuable, as it is certainly the most interesting and curious, of the different Descriptions given in Appendix I., is that, by Principal Dunlop, of the shire of Renfrew; particularly from the details which it contains of the fisheries in the Clyde, and from the use made of it by Mr Crawford in his accurate and valuable history of that Shire;—whilst the ample collection of original and authentic documents comprised in Appendix II. contributes extensively to the early history of both Shires. The greater part of this collection has been obtained from the Glasgow Chartulary. The Scottish College, in the year 1748, presented to the Library of the University of Glasgow, two MS. volumes, containing a faithful transcript of the Chartulary of Glasgow, in their possession. These volumes also contain copies of deeds then remaining in the Scottish College, but not included in the Chartulary. Of these additional deeds, advantage has been taken in this publication, it being now exceedingly uncertain where the originals are to be found, or even if they exist at all. Amongst a variety of curious documents, many interesting and valuable deeds from the time of Malcolm

* M^rKenzie has given an account of these Records in his Lives, vol. iii. p. 464. which he says he had transmitted to him from Paris.

III. down to the period of the Reformation will be found ; and besides these, extracts are given from the Books of Parliament, and of Council, and the Register of the Great Seal, lately published under authority.

WILLIAM HAMILTON of Wishaw, the author of these Descriptions, derived his descent from the Ducal house of Hamilton, his father William Hamilton of Wishaw being a younger son of John Hamilton of Udston, an early branch of that noble family. He had probably the advantages of a juridical education, and appears to have been an accurate, industrious, and, considering the difficulties then attending the subject, a not unsuccessful inquirer into Scottish history and antiquities, particularly as regarded his own neighbourhood. In the present works, perhaps the most material which have been preserved of his writings, his authorities generally appear to have been derived from authentic sources, and his statements have subsequently been referred to by several distinguished Scottish historians. That he was highly esteemed amongst his contemporaries we have the authority of Crawford, the most eminent genealogist of his time, who characterizes Mr Hamilton of Wishaw as "an Antiquary of no little fame," and particularly acknowledges his obligations to him.* It would certainly have been very gratifying to those now intrusted with the printing of this volume to have been able to have added something like a connected account of Mr Hamilton's literary and antiquarian pursuits, could the requisite materials have been obtained for that purpose. These, there is reason to suppose, may still exist ; and it is to be hoped may yet be made available to the public. The following interesting notice, relative to our author and the important archiepiscopal relics of Glasgow before alluded to may however be here subjoined. It is contained in a letter, now in the possession of James Maidment, Esq., a member of the Maitland Club, dated London, June 23, 1719, from Mr James Oliphant, the translator of Buchanan, to James Anderson, Esq., author of the Essay on the Independence of Scotland, &c. Mr Oliphant states, “ Mr Innes of the Scotch Colledge in Paris told me that he had sent 60 sheets of the most valuable Scotch matters to Mr William Hamilton of Wifchaw,—who allowed me the use of 14 sheets, and I hope he will let me have the rest.” It is probably unnecessary to add, that Mr Innes was the author of the valuable Essay regarding the ancient inhabitants of Scotland.

* Crawford's Peerage, voc. Hamilton.

DESCRIPTION OF THE SHERIFFDOM OF LANARK.

THE shyre of Lanark was anciently of greater extent than now it is; for there was comprehended in it the whole sheriffdome of Ranfrew, lying laigher upon Clyde, called of old the Baronie of Ranfrew (and is yett so designed when the Prince's titles are enunate) untill it was difjoyned therefra by King Robert the Third, in anno 1402, at such tyme as he erected what had been his father's patrimonie, before his accession to the Crown, in ane Principalitie in favour of his sone, Prince James. And then, becaufe of the largeness of its extent, it was divyded into two Wairds, called the Upper and the Nether Waird; and the burgh of Lanark declared to be the head burgh of the upper waird, and Rutherglen of the nether waird: and since the disolving of the shire of Ranfrew from the sheriffdome of Lanark, the burgh of Lanark is the head burgh of the sheriffdome of Lanark, and Rutherglen the head burgh of the nether waird thereof.

About the year 1455, upon the 1st of July, the Duke of Hamilton his predeceffor, then Lord Hamilton, became, by gift of King James the Second, heretable Sheriff of the sheriffdome; and by their Deputes, ay synfyne, are in use to hold their sheriff courts, one at Lanark and the other at Hamilton, as being more centricall for the nether waird than the burgh of Rutherglen. *

The present Sheriffs deputes are, John Hamilton of Udfton for the upper waird, and John Hamilton of Barncluth for the nether waird.

Befyde this, there are severall other Judicatories within this shyre, and thofe of great antiquitie. The moft confiderable is the Commiffariat of Glaſgow, which did anciently depend upon the Archbiſhop of that Sea; and ſince the ſuppreſſing of Episcopacy upon his Majeſtie, as all the commiſſaries of Scotland likewiſe doe. This commiſſariat of Glaſgow comprehends within its juřiſdiction the countreys of Kyle, Carrick, Cunningham and Ranfrew, the ſheriffdome of Dumbarton and a great part of the nether waird of the ſheriffdome of Lanark. The feat of the commiſſariat is in the city of Glaſgow—Sir William Fleming of Fern is preſent Commiſſar; and this is of the moſt confiderable inferior courts in Scotland. The original inſtitution of theſe commiſſariots was for confirming of teſtaments, taking care of widows and orphans, judging of teinds and leſſer actions, or where the probation was by oath; and by inſtructions afterwards given them, they were limited not to judge in actions civil above fourtie pounds Scots, unleſs they were teſtamentary: but theſe limitations have been ſo litle regarded, that they now judge in all actions perſued before them, except they be declyned be way of advocacion.

In this shyre there is lykeways two other commiſſarie courts, called the Comiſſar of Hamilton and Campſie. This comprehends only eleevin pariſhes, viz. Hamilton, Dalſerve, Dalzell, Killbryde, Old and New Mounkland, Calder, Campſie, Cardros, Ranfrew and Govan.

* NOTA,—James Duke of Hamilton, at deſyre of King Charles the Firſt, reſigned that office in favour of the King: ſince which tyme, the Duke and Dutcheſs of Hamilton are only Sheriffs by Commiſſion from the King.

¹ Blank in MS. Where ſuch occur, it will be ſo underſtood.

There is also ane other commiffar court in the shyre, called the Commiffar of Lanark, which comprehends the feveral parishes of the upper waird of this shyre ; and keeps court at Lanark.

There is also some other jurisdictions in this shyre, as the regalitye of Glasgou, erected in favours of the Archbishop of that sea, comprehending therein the citie of Glasgou, the Barronie parish of Glasgou and Govan, Calder, a part of the parish of Old Monkland. The Duke of Lennox is heretable Baillie of this regalitye ; and he keeps his courts in the citie of Glasgou.

Hamilton is also a great regalitye in this shyre, comprehending in it the parishes of Hamilton, Dalserf, Avendale, Lesmehagow, Crawford John, Cambuslang, the most part of Bothwell and the parish of Shots, and many lands in the parishes of Kilbryde and Stenhouse, beside what lye elsewhere in the shyres of Lithgow, Stirling and Boot, &c. and the Dukes dayly keep courts in the town of Hamilton.

There is also ane other regalitye, called the regality of Bothwell, belonging to the Earle of Forfar ; and ane other belonging to Hamilton of Woodhall, called the regalitye of Thankertoun, anciently a part of the lordship and regalitye of Torphichen. There is also the regalitye of Robertone, belonging to the Marquess of Douglafs, bot these are not considerable.

There are three royall burrowes in this shyre: LANARK, the head burgh of the shyre, lyes upon ane high ground, near to Clyde, in a fertile and pleasant foill ; was erected in a burgh royall by King William, about the year , who had then ane Castell [here], where he used some tymes to remaine ; and tho' there be now no vestige of it appearing, yett there are some small duties, payable out of feveral lands in that shyre, for watching and wairding at that castel, called castellwairds.

The next burgh is Rutherglen, head burgh of the nether wairde, erected be . It lyes in a pleasant and fertile foill, near to the river of Clyde, about two miles above Glasgou ; it hath had very little trade for some ages past, because Glasgou lyes between it and the sea, and that all marchandising men of any metall goe to dwell there. It hath ane pleasant Green upon the river of Clyde, belonging to the town in commonty.

The next is the city of Glasgow, erected in ane burgh royall by King William the Lyon; the choicest and most pleasant situat town in all Scotland; and is now the place of greatest trade, except Edinburgh. It lyes upon the river of Clyde, having a stately bridge of seven arches joyning it to the village of the Gorbells, on the other syde the river, belonging to the citie; below which bridge there is ane harbour, called the Bromie Law, to which all goods are brought from the sea by water, and exported from that to the sea again.

The citie stands in a pleasant and plentiful country, fitt for consumption of what is thereto imported. The citie is regularly built, divyding in the middle into four large and stately streets, almost all built of polished stone; with a stately tolbuith or town house in the corner of two streets, also built of polished stone, with severall great and well finisht publick rooms in it. And also having, in that street going towards the north, a very fyne and splendid church, newly rebuilt, called the Blackfriars. Near to which is a very stately, regular and well built colledge, having ane Chancelour, a Rector, a Dean of Facultie, two Professors and four Regents, and very many schollars and students; and built upon the ground which, with ane field adjacent thereto, was mortified by the Lord Hamilton, in the tyme of King James the Second. At the head of this street, is situate the great cathedrall church of Glasgow, anciently dedicate to St Mungo. It is the largest, statelyest and best built church within this Kingdom, having more than sufficiencie of bounds within to comprehend four congregations; and there is one of these churches situatt, and vaulted, just below ane other, which is the paroch kirk of the Baronie parish of Glasgow. Near to this cathedrall stands the castle of Glasgow, the ancient seat of the Archbishop of this sea, built of polished stone, and yet in good condition. Downward in this towne, is ane other church, call'd the Laigh Kirk, well adorned. They have six ministers in this city; they have severall fyne hospitalls in this city, well built and well indued, their poor well provyded for, and much better managed than in other places. The revenue of the towne is great, and frugallie improven. Besides the four principall streets,—called the Drygait [High-street?] to the north, the Trongate to the west, the Salt-mercate to the south, the Gallowgait to the east,—there are severall other lesser streets, as the Bridgait, the Stockwall, the Candlerids, Bellwynd, the Rattourow, the Wynehead; and, upon the river side, below and above the bridge, there are two stately Greens, both pleasant and profitable to the town.

This city and castle of Glasgow hath been long the seat of the Bishops and Archbishops of Glasgow. St Mungo (to whom the Cathedral was dedicate) is esteemed the first bishop of Glasgow: He was of great birth, great piety, and great learning: there is much written of him must depend upon the credit of the authors. He lived in the 6th century; and the series of the succession of the Bishops after him seemeth not exact for some ages after. However, there is a Bull of Erection and Confirmation of the Bishoprick soon after the Pope's authority was owned in this Kingdom, viz.

It was erected in an Archbishoprick in the time of King James the Third, about the year 1478, when Robert Blakater was bishop; and then the Bishops of Galloway, Isles, and of Argyle, were subjected to it, which occasioned ane great difference betwixt the Archbishops of St Andrews and Glasgow. The diocese was very large, comprehending all the shyre of Lanerk, all Tweeddale, Anandale, Nithsdale, Carrick, Cunningham, Kyle, Ranfrew, Dumbarton, Lennox and some part of Teviotdale, Selkirk and Kirkcubright. But when James Beatoun, archbishop, left this kingdom, the time of the Reformation, and caried with him all the monuments and records of the archbishoprick, and deposited them in the Scots college at Paris, to remain whill Glasgow should become Popish, makes many things relating to this archbishoprick uncertaine.

There is in this shyre also the burgh of the regality of Hamilton, and many other burghs of baronie, of which more afterward, in the description of the severall parts of this shyre.

This shyre, as now bounded, lyes in the middle of the south part of Scotland; in length from south-east to north-west, that is, from Airickstone to Calder, beneath Glasgow, it is about 40 myles, or thereby; and in breadth, at the broadest, near to 24 myles, and at the narrowest betwixt twelve and sixteen myles. It bounds upon the south, or south-east, with Anandale and Nithsdale; upon the south and south-west, with the shires of Air and Ranfrew ; upon the north and northweft, with the fhyres of Dumbarton and Stirling ; on the northeaft and eaft and fouthweaft, with the fhyres of Linlithgow, Edinburgh and Peebles.

The only confiderable river in all this traët is the river of Clyde, which runs the whole length of the fhyre ; beginning at Airickhill (alias Little Clydefhill), runs thorough this fhyre, and is much augmented by the acceffion of many waters on either fyde, within the fhyre, untill it pafs Partique, two myles below Glaſgow ; and then, paſſing the limits of this fhyre, it divydeth the fhyres of Ranfrew and Dumbarton, and it becomes ane arm of the fea overagainſt Dumbarton caſtle, about ten miles below Glaſgow.

This fhyre was all within the dioceſe of the Archbiſhop of Glaſgow ; and heth within it the feat of four preſbyteries, viz. Glaſgow, which beſides the miniſters of the citty, hath in it the pariſhes of Govan, Cathcart, Carmanock, Rutherglen, Baronie pariſh of Glaſgow and Calder, in the fhyre, and ſeverall other pariſhes in the neighbouring fhyres. Next is the preſbiterie of Hamilton, having in it the pariſhes of Hamilton, Deferfe, Stonhouſe, Glaſford, Avandale, Blantyre, Kilbryde, Cambuſlang, Old and New Mounkland, Bothwell, Delyell, Cambuſnethen and Shots. Next is the preſbiterie of Lanark, having in it the pariſhes of Lanark, Carſtairs, Carnwath, Liberton and Quodquain, Dunfyer, Covington, [Roberton, Pettienan,] Crawford, Crawford John, Douglafs, Leſmihagow, Carmichell, Carlouke. The laſt is the preſbiterie of Biggar, having therein the pariſhes of Biggar, Thankerton, Walſton, Dolfintoun, Culter, [Lamington and Symonton.]

In the deſcription of the ſeverall Baronies and Pariſhes in this fhyre, I ſhall obſerve the methode followed in the Sute roll of the fhyre, beginning with the nether waired ; and, firſt, with the paroch of Dalſerfe, which is the uppermoſt paroch of the nether waired, upon the fourth or fourthweſt fyde of Clyde.

DALSERFE (was anciently called the baronie of Machin fhyre) lyes alongſt the river of Clyde, betwixt the paroch of Leſmahagow to the eaſt, and Hamilton to the weſt, in a pleaſant country, plentifull of woods and coalls.¹ It heth intirely belonged to the family of Hamilton since the year 1312, that they got ane grant of it from King Robert Bruce, upon the Refignation of John Cuming; since which tyme, there has much of it been given out by them to gentlemen of their name, descended of their family.

The RAPLOCH heth been long possessed by the lairds thereof: it is a great house, well planted with old barren timber, consisting of a square court: it is a pleasant feat, with ane village and two milnes, just below it, upon the water of Aven.²

Near to Raploch, is the house of BROOMHILL, and has long been possessed by the lairds of the name of Hamilton, having a good house, convenient gardens, good woods, salmon fishing and coal. The rightful representative of this family is now Lord Belhaven, and heth his estate in East Lothian or shierifdome of Haddington, at the Beill.

DALSERFE heth allwayes been ane familie of the name of Hamilton since King Robert the Third's tyme, that Sir John de Hamiltone gave it to his sone David. This house is situate near by the river of Clyde and church of Deferfe, in a pleasant and fertile valley, with fruitfull gardens and conveniencie of fishing; with ane village and fruitful gardens about the church, where almost each tenent and inhabitant heth ane orchard adjoining to his house.³

Mr Francis Aird was minister here in 1654. He died in the office, "wⁱⁿ the parochin p^of," "in the monethe of Merche, 1659." His "bookes, w^t the utencils of his house," are estimated at iij^c xxxij li. vj s. vij d.—Ibid.

Archibald Hamiltone in Raploch is a creditor in the testament of Katharine Carmichael, Lady Cambusnethan, of "Jaj mercas moneta," August 21. 1552.—Ibid.

Gawane Hammiltoun of Raploche appears, as proprietor of Graynis, in 1603.—Ibid.

Hew Hammiltoun of Raploche is creditor of "the ferme and dewties of ane auchten pairt of the Bornes, of crope and yeir of God 1609."—Ibid.

Gavin Hamiltoun, elder and younger, of Raploche occur Sept. 7. 1614. And Elizabeth Muir Lady Raploch in Oct. 1633.—Ibid.

³ The family of Dalserf appear to have obtained lands in Kilwinning, no doubt through the good offices of their clansman, Gavin Hamilton, the noted Abbot:—"Jonet Boyd, spous to

The parfonage teinds of this parifh were ane part of the patrimonie of the Dean of Glaſgow; and the vicarage of the provoftrie of Hamilton: bot the Dukes of Hamilton are now titulars and patrons to both.

STONEHOUSE is a pleafant parte, tho it toucheth not Clyde: it lyes upon the water of Aven.¹ This baronie and parifh anciently belonged to the Earles of Douglas; and after their forfeiture, the one half of it came to the Lord Hamilton, and the other half to the Laird of STONEHOUSE, Hamilton; and continued fo for feveral ages, untill of late, it was firft purchafed by the Lord Lee, and then by his fon, the Lord Caſtlehill, and now belongs to Martha Lockhart, his daughter, and John Sinclair younger of Stevenſone, her ſpouſe. The place is plentifull both of grafs and corn; but the houfe which belonged to the land is now ruinous, they dwelling elfewhere, at Cambuſnethen. The Duke of Hamilton is patron of the parifh.

TWEDDYSIDE, GOSELINGTON, fometyne the feat of the Lairds of Silver-tonehill, is in this parifh; but it now belongs, with the reft of the baronie, to the Lady Cattlehill and the Laird of Stevenfone.

GLASFOORD. This baronie and paroch heth long appertain'd to the Lord Semple.¹ It heth ane old ruinous caftle, near the churche; and lyeth upon the water of Aven, oppofite to Stonehoufe; and marches with the parifhes of Hamilton and Avendale, to the north, northweft and weft. It is fertile in grafs and corn; and was lately fold by the Lord Semple to the Laird of Torrance, Stuart.

The Laird of Earnock heth a good intereft in this parifh, bot the moft of it is fubfewed to fmall Fewars. The Lord Semple is patron, and titular of the teinds; being ane laick patronage, and long fince annexed to the provoftrie of Cattle Semple.

AVENDALE is a great paroch, having the water of Aven running thorough the midle of it; with a noble old caftle, called Avendale caftle, fituat near to the church, within the village or burgh of baronie of Strathaven, upon the water of Pomilin, before it fall into Aven.¹ It is a plen-tifull country, especially in grafs, and no want of corns. This baronie did anciently belong to the Bairds; and thereafter came to Sinclair; and from them to the Earle of Douglas, with whom it continued severall ages; and after his fatall forfaiture, in anno 1455, it was given by King James the Third to Andrew Stewart, whom he created Lord Avendale; and it continued with him and his heires untill 1538, or thereby, that he exchanged it with Sir James Hamilton for the baronie of Ochiltree, in the parliament 1543 [1534?]. From which tyme, it continued with the fuceffors of Sir James Hamilton untill it was acyured by James, first of that name, Marquess of Hamilton; and continueth with his fuceffors since. This paroch is large, and lyeth betwixt the parishes of Killbryde to the west, Hamilton to the north and northeast, and Glaffoord, Stonehoufe and some parts of the shyre of Ayre to the south and southeast. There are many small vassals in this parish, befyde three or four gentlemen,—OVERTOUN,² NETHERFIELD, RYLANDSYDE, LETHEM,³ and KYPE; but all of them hold of the familie of Hamilton.

The castle of Avendale appears to have been a residence of the family of Hamilton in the early part of the seventeenth century:—

The teinds of this parish was anciently mortified by the Earle of Douglas, with the teinds of Stanehoufe, to the prebends of Bothwell; but the Duke of Hamilton is now both titular and patron of both these parishes.

KILBRYDE is a great parish lying betwixt the parishes of Avendale to the southeast, Blantyre [and] Cambuflang to the north, Carmunock and Eglehome to the south. This baronie and paroch was given by King Robert Bruce, as ane part of the mariage portion of his daughter Marjorie, to Walter the Great Stewart of Scotland; and heth been always reckoned since as a part of the Principallitie; and the severall families therein are said to be old, yett I hear not of any writts older among them than from John Earle of Carrick, grand-child to King Robert, thereafter called Robert the Third. This great parish (anciently two) was called Kilbryde and Torrence, but long since united in one, and now called the parish of Kilbryde. In it ther is ane hanfome church, feated in a village of that name.¹

The considerable heritors in this parish are: the Lord Semple, who heth a considerable interest in it, and is, by annexation, part of the baronie of Glas-eale of Abircorne," &c. made his testament "At Paflay, the faxtein day of May, &c. 1609. The qth day, the said Johnne nominat, &c. Nicolas Craig, his spouse, his onlie ex^{tr} being of purpose to pas af pis realme of Scotland to France, for doing of my effairis," &c. Con. 4 May 1612.—Ibid.

Andro Hamilton of Lethame, appears to have died inter 1618 et 1623:—Andro Hamilton, younger of Lethame, occurs January, 1618; and James Hamilton, brother to unquhill Andro Hamilton of Lethame, died December, 1623.—Ibid.

¹ This parish, like many others, commemorates in its own the name of its patron Saint. The fame of St Bride is apparent from the many cells which have borne her appellation; and the following invocation seems to indicate the high sanctity of her name:—

“ Who fains the houfe the night,
They that fains it ilka night:
Saint Bryde and her hat [apron],
Saint Colme and his hat,
Saint Michael and his spear,
Keep this houfe from the wear.” &c.

foord. The next is Sir William Maxwell of Calderwood, Baronett. His house is ane old castle, seated upon a precipice, on the water of Rottin Calder, surrounded with woods, with a good estate; but the Lairds of it used to dwell at Maulsey, in the parish of Carlouke. Next is the Mains of Killbryde, which, with many lands in that paroch, did belong to the Lairds of Dinrodd, whose predecessor is said to be that Lindsay who was with King Robert the First at his killing of Red John Cuming at Drumfries; and their rights to these lands, extending to ane 100 merks land in that parish, is from John Stewart, Earle of Carrick, thereafter called Robert the Third. But that family of Dinrodd is quite extinct:²

² The castle of Dunrod was situated in the parish of Innerkype, Renfrewshire, and appears to have been very early possessed by this branch of the Lindsays. Mr Ure has preserved some very curious legendary notices of them in his History of Kilbryde. The following is unusually interesting:—

“ This family preferring the Mains to Dunrod, their ancient family seat, near Gourcock, took up their residence in Kilbryde. They flourished in great wealth and splendour till a little more than a century ago, when the estate was sold to pay the debt which the extravagance of its owner forced him to contract.” “ It is reported, that the last proprietor, in the Dunrod family, greatly exceeded all his predecessors in haughtiness, oppression, and every kind of vice. He seldom went from home unless attended by twelve vassals, well mounted on white steeds. Among the instances of his cruelty, it is told, that, when playing on the ice, he ordered a hole to be made in it, and one of his vassals, who had inadvertently disoblged him in some trifling circumstance, immediately to be drowned. The place hath ever since been called Crawford’s hole, from the name of the man who perished in it. Tradition mentions this cruel action as a cause, in the just judgment of God, that gave rise to his downfall.” “ It is told, that, having worn out the remains of a wretched life, he died in one of their [the tenents’] barns. Such was the miserable end of one of the greatest, and most opulent families in this country.”

Mr Crawford says the family came to an end in the person of Alexander Lindsay of Dunrod, who alienated that barony in the year 1619. And that they were represented by Lindsay of Blacksholm.—Hist. of Ren.

It is possible, that the chief personage of the following quaint rhyme may be the same with the individual so graphically alluded to here:—

In Auldkirk the Witches ride thick,
And in Dunrod they dwell,
But the greatest loon among them a'
Is auld Dunrod himsel'.

Alexander Lindsay of Dunrod appears to have been alive in July, 1627.—Com. Rec. of Glasgow.

the lands are mostly fewed out to country men, except the house and Maines, which is lately acquired by the Laird of Torrence, Stewart. The house hath been considerable; pleasantly seated by good meadows, but is now much decayed. TORRENCE was long the seat of a family of the name of Hamilton; is a good house, well planted, with good inclosures and coall.³ It was not long since purchased by the Laird of Torrence, Stewart, a son of Castlemilk's. There was in this parish several gentlemen of the name of Hamilton, as LICKPRIVICK, PEIL,⁴ SHEILS, KIRKTOUNHOLME,⁵ MAUCHLINHOLE, NEWHOUSE⁶ and some others, which are all now decayed, and their dwellings impaired, except Peil, belonging to ~~the~~ Simerville, and Kirktownholme, belonging to Montgomerie, which are preserved in good case.

Robert Hamilton of Newhous occurs, Oct. 1633.—Ibid.

The teinds of Kilbryde did anciently belong to the Chantor of Glasgow; they are now all mortified to the colledge of Glasgow, except twelf chalders of victuall reserved to the minister for his maintenance, which he yet enjoys, with both the gleebes of Kilbryde and Torrence.

This paroch is generallie fertile, both in grafs and corn: many small fewars in it; and the tenents live better than in some neighbouring places. There is plenty of lymestone in it, which having been made too much use of, did wear out or impoverish much of their ground, but the more frugall manadgement of it of late hath recovered it.⁶

BLANTYRE. This parish and baronie lyeth between the parishes of Hamilton to the southeast, Kilbryde to the south, Cambuflang to the south west and the river of Clyde to the north; and is parted from Cambuflang by the water of Rotten Calder.¹ And tho' this parish be but litle, yett there was anciently a litle priorie situate in it, upon ane precipice, close unto Clyde, among pleasant woods, just opposite to the castle of Bothwell. It was ane cell of the abbacie of Jedburgh, and founded by King Alexander the Second, to which those monks generally retired in the tyme of war with the English. The benefice is but small, and was given by King James the Sixth to Walter Stuart, sone to the Laird of Minto, one of his servants, and Thesaurer of Scotland. He was first Commendator, and, in anno 1606, was created Lord Blantyre.

The baronie of Blantyre belonged anciently to the Dunbars of Enterkin, and was purchased by the said first Lord Blantyre; and now almost all fewed out in small parcells: and all of them hold of Lord Blantyre. There was ane large moor, call'd Blantyre Common, in this parish; and now, by agreement between the lord and his vassalls, appropriate to my Lord, and improven to good advantage. Though almost all this parish be fewed, yet there are few gentlemen in it, besyde Hamilton of Blanterferm, who heth a pleafant feat, well planted, lying upon the river of Clyde;² the lands of Calderfyde, belonging to the Laird of Torrence; and Brescat [?], belonging to the Laird of Cross Basket; and PRIESTFIELD, the feat of one Hamilton, whose successor enjoyeth a considerable estate in Ireland, called Caledon; and MILNHEUGH, belonging to HAMILTON. The Lordship and baronie of Hamilton, lying upon the river of Clyde, is a great and rich baronie, having Clyde to the north and northeast, Dalferfe to the south and southeast, Glaffoord and Blantyre to the south and southwest.

This lordship was anciently the propertie of the Kings of Scotland, there being severall old charters be Alexander the Second and Alexander the Third, kings of Scotland, dated "Apud castrum nostrum de Cadichou," call'd afterwards the castle of Hamilton. The precise tyme when this lordship was given to the Duke of Hamilton his predecessors is not clear; but there is ane chartor extant, granted by King Robert Bruce, in the 7th year of his reigne, 1314, to Sir Walter, the sone of Sir Gilbert de Hamilton, of this baronie and the tenendry of Adelwood, which formerly belonged to his father, Sir Gilbert, and heth, without any interruption, continued in that familie since; and was long since joynd to the baronie of Bothwell by a stately bridge of four great arches over the river of Clyde, where there is a small duty payed by all passagers to the town of Hamilton, for upholding the bridge. This lordship and baronie of Hamilton and Edelwood, together with the baronies of Machanshyre, Kinneil, Harbor [Larbert?], Brunadie, Alcaithie, Hamilton's Ferme and Corfbasket were all erected in one lordship, to be call'd the lordship of HAMILTON in all tyme thereafter, in anno 1445. It is plentifully furnished with woods, coall, lymestone, falmond fishing, ducats, cuningairs and plenty of all sort of graine, as wheat, bear, pease and oats; and many pleasant dwellings.

In the tyme of King James the Second, James, Lord Hamilton, erected here ane burgh of baronie in the midst of ane large and pleasant valley, extending from the mouth of Aven to Bothwell bridge, near 2 myles along the river, with a pleasant burn, called Hamilton burn, running through the town and gardens, now belonging to the Duke; giving out severall lands to the inhabitants, to be holden of the family, reserving to themselves the superioritie, jurisdiction and nameing of the magistrates. This Lord Hamilton also founded here ane provostrie, consisting of ane provest and eight prebends, giving to each of them ane mansie and yeard and glebe in the Haugh of Hamilton; and gave them the vicarage teinds of the parishes of Hamilton and Dalferfe, together with severall lands lying within these two parishes and the parish of Stonehouse¹. He also built new the parish kirk of Hamilton, the queere and two crofs isles and steeple, all of polished stone; having his own coat of arms impaled with the coat of arms of the severall families with which himself and his predecessors had married,—as the Earles of Strathern, Linlithgow, Dalkeith, Marshall, Gordon, Rofs and Murray,—since their settlement in Scotland, all yet remaining intire upon severall parts of the kirk and upon the topes of severall of the gavells; as the arms of the royal familie impaled with his own, upon the accompt of his son, the 2d Lord Hamilton, marrying the sifter of King James the Third; and in this kirk is the buriall place of the Lords Hamilton.

Befyde the palice of Hamilton, gardens, parks and woods belonging thereto, there are severall gentlemens' feats in this parish, long since given out to the severall heritors, as the Ros, or Rossaven, belonging to the Laird of Preston. It was first given to John, son to Sir Gilbert de Hamilton, and heth continued in that familie since; a pleasant feat, with good woods and gardens, clofs on the river of Clyde, where Aven falls in that river.

The description of the palice, gardens, and parks ought to precede this page, as also the description of the town of Hamilton. [Sic MS. These descriptions appear not to have been preserved, which must be regretted.]

Next to this, BARNCLUTH, belonging to Hamilton of Barncluth; situate upon the water of Aven, very near to the entrie of the great parks of Hamilton; a pleasant place, with fyne terras walkes, fruitfull gardens and pleasant woods.

EARNOCK, situate upon Hamilton burn, about a myle above the town of Hamilton, is a pleasant feat and good house, situate among woods, belonging to Robertone of Earnock, cheif of his name. It has long been the inheritance of his family, always holden of the house of Hamilton².

UDSTON was long the possession of the family of Udston; a pleasant

There are many leffer heritors in this parish, all holding of the family [of Hamilton], as DOWCATHILL, FAIRHOLM, STANHOLL, MAINS of EDELWOOD⁴, LITTLE EARNOCK, WHISTLEBERRY, BROMILTON.

⁵ The following extracts seem to be of some importance in the history of this family, nor are they otherwise devoid of interest —

The parsonage teinds of this parish, and of the parish of Delferfe, was the patrimonie of the Dean of Glasgow, who was in use to serve the cure himself at Hamilton; bot in tyme of presbiterie, they had two ministers at this place (as they have now), well provyded. The vicarage teinds of Hamilton and Delferfe was of old a part of the patrimonie of the provostrie of Hamilton, but since the suppression thereof, belongs to the Duke, as patron.

Mr John Howison, a person who by his intrepidity has gained some notoriety, was probably the first minister settled here after the establishment of the present order. From a memoir of him in Wodrow's Presbyterian Biography, the subjoined notices are derived :—

“ Mr Howison probably was settled minister at Cambuslang. . . . soon after the Reformation ; and was, as I am informed, a very long time minister in that parish. He seems to have been up in years when attacked by the Laird of Minto, provost of Glasgow, as we shall hear. The tradition concerning him is that he was a stately bold person, and very usefull, and much liked by all ranks.”

Mr Howison's affray with the provost of Glasgow is well known. “ He was (continues his biographer) a man of considerable learning ; and wrote and published an usefull Catechisme. He was a fervent preacher, and zealously affected the principles of our Reformation ; and his whole life, almost, was a continued chain of sufferings for his bold appearances against corruptions, at least little else hath been handed down concerning him at this distance.” It is probable Mr Howison is the author of some other works, particularly a Treatise upon Conscience, 8vo. Edin. 1600, mentioned by Mr Charteris, and in the Athenæ Oxon. v. I. p. 562.

Both the latterwill of Mr Howison and his wife are recorded in the commissary books of Glasgow ; and the following excerpts of them may serve to eke out his scanty biography :—

^s It is rather singular that no notice of this distinguished family of the name is to be found in the Glencairn peerage. In an old genealogical memoir of the Cumings, MS. the origin of the Cuninghames is thus ingeniously traced to that clau:—

“ And morrover, I am able to prove at this present tyme, 1622, ther is not foe maney noble men as yit of on furname in all Europe as professeth the name of Cuming, fua pat they wer all w^t ther lands and livings in one realme; and to qualifie and mack my alleadgance good, I have infert heir, as efter followeth, The names of their houfs, stylls and furnames quho confesseth themselves to be lan^l descended of the said furname of Cumings. Quhilk certainlie I have inpairt be some of ther oune confessions; for being at fuper in the E: of Glenkairnes hous, in Kilmarnoch [Kilmaurs?], quhair my Lord wes present, with his sone, the M^r. as also the old Laird of Watterfoun, Cunnynghame to his furname, and my Lord goodfchiris brother, quho did all thrie confes and confer pat Cuming wes ther right furname, quhilk wes to be seen in my Lord's ancient evidents, as my old Lord did confes at this tyme, in presence of the wholl companie, quhair ther wer divers noble men. And as for the furname of Cunnynghame, they took it of pat province quhilk wes called of auld Cunnynghame, as Comirnauld wes called Cuming's hald. . . . ² The fortalice of Castleton still remains, though quite hid by large additions, in the castle style, which have been lately made to it—the old tower itself being remodelled that it may assimilate with these preposterous and gairish extensions. The predominant influence of architecture in the diffusion of taste is apparent; and probably nothing more certainly indicates the improvement of a people than their progress in this art. But it is not a little unfortunate for Scottish scenery, that the popular builder of Abbotsford should have lent his attractive example to this fantastic manner of building,—a manner which bids fair to characterize the genius of the present day, and for a time to obstruct the legitimate cultivation of this noble pursuit. It will be well if an after age discover not any affinity between the Gothic halls of Abbotsford and the exuberant spirit of Waverley.

RUTHERGLEN parish heth, beside the burgh of Rutherglen, ane landwart congregation, lying upon the river of Clyde, to the north, and furrounded, to the landwart, by the parishes of Cambuflang and Carmunock to the fouth and foutheast, by Cathcart to the southwest and by Govan to the west.

Beside the burgh, which is ancient, and pleasantly situate, having a fyne Green below the town towards the river, there is situate, upon the north side of it, towards Clyde, the castle of Rutherglen, belonging to Sir James Hamilton of Jeilliestoun,¹ descended of the family of Abercorn. The house and gardens are both in disorder. The seat is singularly pleasant, and well planted with barren timber, with a pleasant prospect of the river and citie of Glasgou; and a convenient salmond fishing. He is patron of the kirk, and titular of the teinds of Rutherglen, which anciently were ane part of the abbacie of Paisley. He has lykwise in that parish the lands of Shawfield, lying upon the river; a fruitfull foill, and most pleasant place.

There is lykways in this parish the lands of FERM, anciently called Crawford's Ferm. It belonged to the Laird of Minto, Stewart; it now belongs to Sir William Fleming of Ferm, baronet, Commislar of Glasgou. It is one of the pleafantest seats in all this tract; situate in a large plain field, near to the river of Clyde. The house is not extraordinarie, but notably planted with barren timber, in fyne walks, with large and fruitfull gardens, with salmond fishing upon the river; and adjoining to the Green of Rutherglen, lying just below it, along the river fyde.²

His wife, Annabill Hammiltone, and six daughters, Cristian, Agnes, Margrat, Jonet, Eliz^a. and Grissall, survived him; but he probably left no sons. Sir Walter Stewart of Mynto married Christian, and in this way that family may have inherited the estate.

Annabill Hamiltone, the relict, died at Ferme in the month of February, 1620. Her will is recorded Oct. 31. same year. She leaves—"To James [and] Cristiane Hamiltounes, hir eyes, twa hundrith mkis." &c.—Ibid.

There was anciently a profitable coal within the bounds of the town of Rutherglen, belonging to Sir James Hamilton; but because of the difficulties of that family, it hath not been wrought thir many years.

GOVAN parish lyeth upon the south fyde of the river of Clyde a great way, betwixt the parishes of Rutherglen and Ranfrew; and is just opposite to the cite of Glasgow. The church stands in the village of Govan, two myles below the bridge of Glasgow.¹ All the parish is kirk land, anciently belonging to, and lately holden of the Archbishops of Glasgow; and is a part of the lordship, regalie and baronie of Glas-

The honest but credulous historian of Rutherglen has furnished some homely rhymes, copied from an old ceiling in the house of Farme, subscribed "J. C. A. H. 1325;" and Mr Chalmers has reprinted them in the last volume of his Caledonia, as illustrative of the language of that age! If the author have correctly transcribed these initials, there need be little doubt that they were placed there by no other than James Craufurd and his wife Annabill, whom we find recorded above. Some of these verses occur, in precisely the same dress, in a collection of matters of this sort written about 1595, which has been recently printed by the ingenious Mr Motherwell of Paisley. Compare the following:—

" He that fittis down to the buirde to eit,
 Forgetting to gif God thankis for his meit;
 Syne ryfis wp and lattis his grace ower pafs,
 Sittis down lyk ane ox, and ryfis lyk an afs."

" Whether he was any relation of Mr John Sharp, minister at Kilmany, or a son of Mr John Sharp, who was a minister, 1562, I know not. There is a pretty old family in West Lothian, Houftoun Sharp, from whom severalls of that name in the west country derive. I know the Professor had relations; and, if I have not forgot, a posterity in Glasgow. But I have yet met with nothing about his parentage, nor the time of his birth."

For altho' it was a parte of the propertie of the archbifhoprick of Glaſgow before the reformation of this kingdome from Poperie, yett at fuch tyme as the Archbifhop (called James Beatoun) withdrew to France, and carried with him the monuments and regiſters of Glaſgow to Paris, there was a commiffion granted to Walter commendator of Blantyre, to ſew the hail lands of the lordſhip and regalitie of Glaſgow, without demuntion of the old Rentall; to the effect that the Tenents, being thereby become heretable poſſeffors of their feveral poſſeffions, might be encouraged by virtue and politie to improve that countrie. Conform whereto, all this regalitie was ſewed to the feveral poſſeffors, about the year 1590, for payment of their ancient rent be way of few duties; which is the occaſion that this pariſh is divyded amongſt ſo many ſmall heritors.²

² Such an event, co-operating with the great public meaſures previously effected, could not fail vigorously to awaken every principle of activity throughout this wide and fertile domain; and it were curious, as well as inſtructive, to trace the influence of this occurrence in the dawn and increaſe of that ſtupendous induſtry which now loads with its gorgeous accumulations the green plains of St Mungo. Nor may ſuch uſeful and pleaſing taſk eſcape the hiſtorian of Glaſgow how ſoon his enobling purſuits ſhall be duly appreciated. There is in this parish also the lands of HAGGS, belonging to Sir John Maxwell of Nether Pollock, one of the Senators of the colledge of justice. It is a part of the regalitie of Glasgow, but for the convenience of Sir George Maxwell, his father, it was disjoyned from the sheriffdome of Lanerk and annexed to the sheriffdome of Ranfrew. It heth a tolerable house, wherein the dowager Ladies of Pollock are in use to dwell. This parish is the lowest in the shyre of Lanerk upon the south side of the river of Clyde.

At LITTLE GOVAN, in the upper end of this parish, there is a new house, built by Robert Reid, late baillie of Glasgow, in a pleasant place, and convenient gardens projected and designed.

There is also, lying upon the north side of Clyde, within this parish, the lands of BALLSHEGRY, formerly belonging to Stewart of Rosay, in Bute, and now belongs to Walter Gibson, late provost of Glasgow.³

And above this, where Kelvin falls into Clyde, is the house of PERRIQUE, a well built and convenient house, well planted with barren timber, large gardens, inclosed with stone walls, which formerly belonged to George Hutcheson, founder of the Hospital Hutchesons in Glasgow, and now to John Crawford of Mylntoun.

It beginneth where Kelvin falleth into Clyde, upon the weft, and is furrounded with the parifhes of Calder, Munkland, and the river of Clyde. Since the fewing of this parifh, it is exceedingly improven by the feverall heritors, many of them having built convenient houfes in moft pleafant feats: as James Anderſon of Stobcorſe heth there a convenient houfe, fited upon ane eminence above the river, with fuitable gardens, and avenue to the water.¹ Near to it is WOODSIDE, belonging to John Campbell, upon the water of Kelvin, cloſe to a pleafant wood. Not far from Calder, is the lands of CARDEROCH, belonging to Mathew Cuming, merchant in Glasgou; upon which there is lately built a convenient house, [with] good gardens and inclosures.

GARNKIRK, belonging to James Dunlop, is a good house; good planting, with woods, meadows, and inclosures. ²

Calder old tower, of the house of Calder, is seated upon the ancient Roman wall, commonly called Grahame's Dyke, which runneth almost three myles thorow the parish. In which tower, and other parts of this wall, are many stones found with Roman inscriptions, containing the name of the emperour, legion and captain, and how far some of them lengthened the wall. Near to the church of Calder, there are very lyvely vestiges of ane Roman incampment and its fortifications. The river of Kelvin runs along the northwaft fyde of this parish, and divydes it from the parishes of Kirkintilloch, Badearnock and Easter Killpatrick. There are in this parish the eleven towns of Badermannock, or patrimoniak of the archbishop, lately fewed, and distinguished from Calder, Bedlae, etc. which were anciently fewed out by the bishops of Glasgou.

It was of old but one parish, but about the year 1660, or thereby, it was divyded in two: the one called the old and the other the New paroch of Monkland; and are both considerable parishes.¹ Before the erection of it, it was almost all fewed out to particular gentlemen and heretors, some whereof have been very old possessors of their respective inheritances.

The teinds of both the parishes of Monkland, and of the parish of Calder, were the propper patrimonie of the subdean of Glasgow, who usually served the cure there himself, and at Calder by ane viccar.

It heth the river of Clyde to the south, the water of Wester Calder to the east, the Baronie parish of Glasgow and the parish of Calder to the west and northwest; and is plentifully furnished with woods, meadows, coall and lyme, and many gentlemen's dwellings. The most considerable of which are: the HAGGS, lately pertaining to Sir Alexander Hamilton, baronet, descended of the family of Orbistoun; ² a pleasant feat, almost in the middle of woods and fyne gardens. KYPEBYER heth long appertained to the Crawfurds of Kypebyer, and now to ane daughter and heirefs.³

INCHNOCH is ane old castle, situate singularly in the mids of woods and much planting; almost surrounded with mosses of difficult access: did anciently belong to the Forsythes of Dykes;⁴ and after, to Hamilton of Dalzell; and now to Mr John Hay of Inchnoch.

The Earle of Kilmarnock heth a good interest in this parish, called Mayvoix and Methrox, etc. but it is all now fewed out to tenends.⁵

In the head of this parish, upon the water of Luggie, lyeth GLEN-HOOFE; a pleasant and convenient seat for woods, coall, lyme and barren planting. It did anciently belong to the Clelands, but now belongs to William Hamilton of Withaw and James Somervell.⁶

BOTHWELL is a great, noble, and ancient barrony. It extendeth from Clyde to West Lothian, in length; and upon either side, is boundeth by the two waters of Easter and Wester Calder. It was anciently possessed be the Murrays; but in the tyme of King Edward Langshankes of England, it was given to Eymur de Vallance, Earle of Pembroke, governour for him of the south part of Scotland. And upon his forfaulture, was given by King Robert Bruce to Andrew Murray, Lord Bothwell, who married Christian, sister to that king; and with his granddaughter, it came to Archbalde the Grime, Earle of Douglass, by marriage; and continued in his familie untill their fatall forfeiture by King James the Second, anno 1455. This Archbald the Grime, Earle of Douglass built the queir and founded the provostrie of Bothwell, consisting of one provost and eight prebends; giving to the provost, for his maintenance, besyde severall lands, threttie chalders of victuall, as the teinds of Avendale and Stonehouse, besyde ane house, yaird and glebe to each of them. After the forfaulture of the family of Douglass, the bulk of this lordship of Bothwell was given to the Lord Creightoun, sone to Chancelour Creightoun; and Bothwell forest, or Bothwell muir, was given to the Lord Hamilton, in exchange of the lands of Kinkyvell. But Creightoun, in February, 1485, being forfaulted for joyning with Alexander Duke of Albanie against King James the Third, it was given by King James the Third to the Lord Monipenny; fra whom it was soon retaken, as having been given by the King in his minority. And was thereafter given by him to John Ramsay, his favorite, who enjoyed it till the year 1488, that he was forfaulted for counterfitting a commission under the great seall to the Earle of Northumberland; and then the lordship of Creighton was gifted by King James the Fourth to Adam Hepburne, Lord Hailles, whom he created Earle of Bothwell; and it continued in his line whill November, 1567, that James Earle of Bothwell was forfaulted for the murther of King Henry, father to King James the Sixth. And thereafter it was given by that King to Francis Stewart, sone to John, Abbot of Kelfo, and who was naturall sone to King James the Fifth, when the said Francis married Bothwell Hepburne's only daughter ;¹ and he being thereafter forfaulted for crymes committed against King James the Sixth, his estate was gifted to the Lairds of Balcleugh and Roxburgh, fra whom the Marquess of Hamiltone acyured all the superioritie and patronage of that lordship : the propertie, which was less than the third of the lordship, with the castle of Bothwell, having been disponed by Hepburne Earl of Bothwell to the Earl of Angus, in exchange of the lordship of Liddisdale. Lykas, William Earle of Angus and Archbald, his sone, about the year 1630 or thereby, did sew the third part of the said lordship to the particular tenents and possessours thereof, without demination of the old rent, and reserving the Castle and Mains of Bothwell.

There is lying within the lordship of Bothwell the barronie of Thankerton, belonging to John Hamilton of Woodhall. It was anciently a part of the lordship of Torphichen, but now erected in a baronie by itself. The fourtie shilling land of Greenside is also temple land, and belongs to the laird of Lachup. The lands of Sherrell are also temple land, belonging to John Baillie of Castlecary.

This barronie of Bothwell was anciently but one parish, and the cure was served by the provost of Bothwell, who had ane viccar at St Catherine's chapel, for serving the upper part of the parish, now called the Shotts ; but after the Reformation it was divyded in two parishes, and the Duke of Hamilton is titular and patron to both : and each of them is too bigg a parish.²

These parishes have many convenient dwellings : as first, the old splendid Castle of Bothwell, though now decayed, situat upon the river of Clyde, in the middle of great woods. It has been a vast house, almost all built of polisht stane; and heth been built at severall tymes by these it appertained to, as appears by the different names of Valence towr, Douglas towr, Hamilton towr, the Cuming towr and the Dungeon. It now belongs to Archbald Douglafs, Earle of Forfar, brother to the Marquess of Douglafs.

Next to it, is the town and church of Bothwell: the queer is of curious workmanship, built and covered with polisht stane. The town is possest by fewars, partly holden of the Duke of Hamilton, and partly of the Earle of Forfar, the vassals themselves not knowing what part of their inheritance holds of the Duke or what part of it holds of the Earle, but they are lyable to each of them in distinct few dutie.

Near to this lyes BOTHWELLHAUGH, in a low and pleasant ground. It was the feat of James Hamilton who killed the Earle of Murray, Regent.³

³ Scarcely any other individual of the name has acquired an equal notoriety with the assassin of the regent Murray, or has been the subject of more general curiosity—with what advantage or propriety must remain matter of opinion. The subjoined extracts appear to possess at least some interest in relation to the genealogy of his family:—

1. In the testament of Johnne Knicht in Prestuik . . . maid, &c. Aug. 18. 1590, the following occurs:—Debtis awand Out.—Item, Awand be him to Dauid Hammiltoun of Bothuelhauche, of the crope & yeir of God Jaj v^e fo'fcoir ten yeiris, iijj bs. vj. pcs. ferme beir, price of the boll iijj li.—*Com. About a myle above this, upon the water of Calder, lyes JERRIESTOUN, a stone house, much neglected, belonging to Baillie of Jerriestoun. ⁴

Above that lyeth CARFINE; a pleasant seat and a good old house, with good inclosers. It did long appartaine to the Baillies of Carfine; but now belongeth to Archbald Nisbett of Carfine. ⁵

Above half a myle above that is CLELAND, the seat of the Laird of Cleland; very old, and the cheif of that name. It is a good house with convenient gardens, woods, inclosers and coall. ⁶

⁴ The phrase stone house seems frequently to imply a fortified place.

Sept. 10. 1610.—And James Someruell elder of Cambusethane, who deceased Sept. 1623, leaves legacies "To Jeane and Mareoun Clelandis, his oyes, dochters to James Cleland of that Ilk."—Con. Jan. 2. 1624.—"Waltir Cleland, brother germane to James Cleland of that Ilk" appears as cautioner in the test. of Stewart of Christiswell, Con. Oct. 3. 1633.—"Allex^r Cleland, fear of p^r Ilk . . . deceift in the monethe of Julij, 1634." His testament, in which "W^m Cleland, brother to pe defunct," is mentioned, is Con. Nov. 5 following; and "Andro & Ard. Clelandis, brether germane to the defunct, are afterwards served to him, and confirmed June 16. 1643.—Ibid.

In the test. of "Johne Hamilton, falconer, burges of Hamilton," who deceased Oct. 1656, the following item occurs:—A wand "be James Cleland, now of p^r ilk, be band, p^r designit second lauⁿ sone to vmqⁿ James Cleland of that ilk, & his caⁿ, be twa bands, vj^c xxxij li.—Con. Oct. 16. 1657.—Ibid.

⁵ Alexander Steinsoun of that Ilk appears in the testament of Jonet Jakfoun, Nov. 1595.—Con. inter Aug. 1609 et Nov. 1610. He died in the month of Oct. 1619. His latter will follows:—

"LEGACIE.—At Steinstoune, the aucht day of October, the yeir of God 1619 y. The q^h day, the said Allex^r Steinstoun nominatis Johnne Steinstoune, his eldest sone, his onlie ex^r and intro^r with his guidis and geir: Day, yeir & place foirlaid, Befoir pir witnes Johnne Hamiltoun of Aikinheid, Johnne Cleland of Foscaie, James M^heid elder of Schawfute, and Williame Cleland of Knowhobill, and Maister Robert Herbertsone commissar clark of Hamilton. Sic sub." &c.—Con. WOODHALL belonging to John Hamilton of Woodhall, whose predecessors heth long poffeffed it. The houfe is feated among woods, and near to the water of Wefter Calder, and is a convenient dwelling. He is baron of the barony of Thankertoun, anciently a part of the lordfhip of Torphichen.⁷

CARNBRUE has long appertained to the Baillies of Carfine; is a convenient feat, and good houfe and gardens; now belonging to Alexander Baillie. Near to this is the Shiroid, a convenient litle houfe and in-clofer, belonging to John Baillie of Cattlekerrie; and is temple land.

BOIGGS is alfo in this parifh, lying near to the river of Clyde; a convenient houfe and pleafant feat; neglected by the former heritors, bot now belonging to Archbald Hamilton of Rofehall. And near to this there are fyne woods and large meadows belonging to the Duke of Hamilton, near to Bothwell Bridge.

James Muirheid of Lawchope, elder, deceased in Oct. 1622.—Test. Con. March 15. 1623. He appears to have left two fons: James, his fucceffor, and Mr Thomas, minifter of Cambusnethan. The eldest fon of John Muirheid of Brydenhill is a legatee. He alfo alludes to his “fifter, the guidwyf of pe Schawfute;” and Mr James Muirheid of Schawfute appears as cautioner.—Ibid.

James Muirheid younger of Lawchope is mentioned in a Conf. Aug. 16.1631; and James Muirheid elder of Lawchope in another, Nov. 12. 1635.—Ibid.

James Muirheid of Lawchope deceased Dec. 1644; and “S^r James Muirheid, now of Lawchope, kny^t lawⁿ creditour to the defunct,” is confirmed to him Jan. 25. 1649.—Ibid. Sir James appears again, Oct. 1656.—Ibid.

James Muirheid younger of Lawchope, deceased, within the parifh of Easter Kilpatrick, Jan. 1661. “Helen Lindfay, relic^t of the defunct,” is confirmed to him July 18. 1661.—Ibid.

⁷ Thomas Hamilton of Wodhall occurs in the testament of John Franche, “maid at Muffilburgh, pe viij day of Sept. pe yeir of God Jaj vj^e xlvij yeiris,” as before alluded to, p. 33.

“Vmq^le Johnne Hamiltoun of Wodhall his airis,” &c. occur as debtors in the will of William Glen of Bar, Jan. 1608,—“reftand of his tocher guid v^e xxxiiij li. vj s. viij d.”—N. B. Glen appears to have been married to a daughter of Woodhall’s.

John Hamilton of Wodhall appears Jan. 1616, and March, 1628.—Ibid. And James Hamilton of Wodhall Dec. 1654.—Conf. April 4. 1655.—Ibid.

Near to which is the RAITH, a pleasant feat, belonging to Mr Thomas Hamilton.⁸

PARKHEID is also in this parish, belonging to James Hamilton of Parkheid.⁹

TANNOCHSYDE, belonging to Rae, baillie of Glasgow; a well built house, with gardens well enclosed, and kept in good condition.¹⁰

SHOTTS parish was formerly a part both of the baronie and parish of Bothwell, but soon after the Reformation, it was erected in a separate parish; and the Duke of Hamilton is titular and patron of it, and almost the whole parish belongs to him either in property or superiority.¹ The lands of Bothwell Forest, or Bothwell Muire, in this parish, has long

"Arthoure Hamilton of Parkheid," Bothwell, deceased Jan. 1634. His will, an extract whereof follows, is confirmed on the last day of Feb. 1636.

"LEGACIE.—At Parkheid, the twentieth seventh day of December, 1633. . . . Item, The said Arthoure has nominat & constitute Jeane Hamilton, his dochter, and his vther bairne that his wyfe is pntlie. with, gif ye samyn fall come to perfectione, (q^{ik} is long fine borne, named Anna Hamilton) his onlie ex^{ta}," &c.—Ibid.

¹⁰ "Andro Jack of Tannocheysyde" appears in Oct. 1656.—Conf. Hamilton, Oct. 16. 1657.—Ibid.

been the propertie of that familie, as most all the rest of that parish belongs to him only in superioritie. And besides what holds of the familie, there is the ten pund land of Blairmucks, holden anciently by the Lairds of Dundafs of the Earles of Douglafs; and upon their forfeiture, was, by Dundafs, holden of the King; and now belongs to Sir John Inglis of Cramond. There is also in this parish ane twentie pound land, above Teilling, which is ane part of the Marques of Douglafs his share of the lordship of Bothwell; and was all fewed out, about the year 1630, to the severall tenents and possessors of the same, without diminution of the old rental: the superioritie whereof belongs now to the Earle of Forfar, brother to the Marques.

This parish lyeth between the two waters of Calder, and marches, a great way, with Lothian. The most considerable heritor, and best dwelling² in this paroch is MURDIESTON, belonging to Thomas Inglis. He heth a tolerable good house with gardens, and woods and inclosures, lying upon the water of East Calder.

KNOWHOLE HILL, a convenient dwelling, lying upon Teilling burn, with gardens well inclosed, belonging to Archbald Cleland.³

There are many other heritors in this parish,—James Ruffell of Gartness and John Bell of Dunfyttoun, William Cleland of Hairshaw, and many others.

The manse of the parish having been feated upon a great road, hard by the church, is lately built new by the Dutchess of Hamilton, at DALYELL. This is but a little parish, lying upon the northeast side of the river of Clyde, betwixt the parishes of Bothwell towards the northwest, and the parish of Cambusnethen to the east and northeast, and the water of Calder to the north.¹ The parish and baronie of Dalzell did anciently belong to the Dalzells of that ilke, untill the forfeiture of Sir Robert Dalzell in the tyme of King David Bruce, for abiding in England without the King's consent. And was then given to Robert the Great Stuart, who gave it with one of his daughters to Sir Sandilands; and by the marrying of his grand child to the heir of Sir Robert Dalzell, it returned to the ancient proprietors, untill the decease of one of the young Lairds of Dalzell, having only two daughters,—the eldest was married to the heire male of the family, and the other to a sone of the Laird of West Nisbet, who and his successors, for distinguishing him from the Laird, was commonly called the Baron of Dalzell, and did possess the one half of the baronie, in right of that marriage, untill after the Laird of Dalzell was nobilitat and created Lord Dalzell, in anno , he purchased from the Baron of Dalzell his half of that baronie. But his sone being thereafter created Earle of Carnwath (of which more afterward), they sold the baronie of Dalzell to James Hamilton of Boggs, brother to Orbistoun, whose grandchild, James Hamilton, is now Laird of Dalzell; and the whole parish belongs in propertie to him, except two rouns, Rivenfraig and Todholeburne.

The teinds of this parish did anciently belong to the common kirk of Glasgow; and after the Reformation was mortified to the colledge of Glasgow, who thereby became both titulars and patrons: bot the whole of the teinds are much within the value of a competent stipend.

¹ Cuthbertus Simon vicarius de Dalliell, whose testament is dated Feb. 6. 1552-3, assigned certain lands and tenements to two chaplains to serve in the church of Glasgow—"viz. vni vicario chori Glasgauen. qui ministrabit secundum formam et tenorem fundationis confect. per quond. bone memorie Magrm. Rollandum Blakater, sub decanum Glasgauen. apud altare Dni Nicholai in bassa ecclia. Glasgauen." &c.

The houfe of DALYELL was ane old caſtle, with a bartefhing; but James Hamilton, who purchafed it, did, about the year 1648, build a great and ſubſtantiall houfe clofs to it, which is much bettered by the preſent heritor. It ſtands upon a rifing ground, ſome diſtance from Clyde, having good gardens and inclofers.

There was ane other dwelling in this pariſh; called JOHNSTOUN, which belonged to Mr Thomas Dalvell and his ſucceffors; but heth lately been purchafed by the Laird of Dalvell.²

During which tyme, much of it was deſponed to other heritors, viz. the lands of Cruilerdyke and Braidheill Burne were given by the Lord Summervale to the Laird of Lachupe;³ the lands of Coltnes and Wiſhaw, within that baronie, and the lands of Watſon, the Stain, alſo in that pariſh, were purchaſed by John Hamilton of Udſton; and the lands of Greenhead by John Robertson; and of late the lands of Overton and Pether were purchaſed by the Lord Belhaven, and by him fold to Sir James Stewart, and belong now to his grandchyld, Sir David Stewart, as doeth alſo the lands of Cultneſs. About the year 1647, the houſe, maynes, and ſuperiorities were diſponed to James Summervall of Drum; and by him, about the year 1661, were diſponed to Sir John Harper, advocate, who built thereupon a good and convenient houſe; and after his death, it was fold to Lockhart of Caſtlehill, and now belongs to his ſiſter, Martha Lockhart, and John Sinclair younger of Stevenſone, her ſpouſe.⁴

The teinds of this pariſh did belong to the Archbiſhop of Glaſgow, as one of his menſall kirks, who was both titular and patron; but ſince the ² This ſeems to be partly miſtaken. The mother of John Sommerville firſt of Cambuſnethan was a daughter of Baillie of Lamington.

Sir John Sommerville, probably the next of Cambuſnethan, married Catharine Carmichael, one of the miſtreſſes of James the Fifth; and Lord Sommerville thus concludes an admirable defence of the frail Lady:—

“ Thus far I have digreſſed in vindication of this excellent lady, [alluding to her connection with his Maſteſty] that it may appear it was nether her choyſe nor any vitious habite that prevailed over her chaſtitie, but ane inevitable fate that the ſtrongest reſiſtance could hardly withſtand.”

And the diſtinguiſhed Editor aptly replies:—

“ ——— when weak women go aſtray,
Their ſtars are more in fault than they.”

His Lordſhip however miſtakes a little the time of her death—her teſt. is dated Aug. 21. 1552, and Con. Oct. 1. following.

³ As a marriage portion probably. It appears to have been afterwards the patrimonial inheritance of a branch of Lawchope, ſee p. 8.

⁴ Ample details of the dilapidation of this eſtate are given by Lord Sommerville in his curious, but unmeaſuredly tedious Memoirs.

suppression of Episcopacie, the teinds were gifted by King William to the Dutchess of Hamilton her Grace.

This baronie lyes pleasantly, having great plenty of wood, coall and corne; and is possessed by the heritors following: first, CAMBUSNETHAN maines and house by Stevenfon, younger, and his ladie. It is a great bodie of a house with two jambs, pleasantly sited in the midst of great gardens and woods, and in a fruitfull foill, and not far from the seat of the old church of Cambusnethan,—anciently seated upon the lands of Carbarns, belonging to William Hamilton of Wifhaw, but for the conveniencie of the parish, was, about the year 1649, removed to a place called Greenheid, and there well built and decorated.

Upwards from Cambusnethan, lyeth, upon the river Clyde, GAIREN, a pleasant place, with convenient gardens and a fruitfull foill; now belonging to Wifhaw.⁵

Next to this, are the lands of CULTNESS, Overton and Pether, belonging to Sir David Stewart of Cultness, baronet, who heth there a convenient house, with plenty of wood and coall.

A litle below it, upon the water of Calder, is WISHAW, belonging to WILLIAM HAMILTON; a neat litle house, lately built, well planted with barren timber, convenient gardens and inclosers, with regular entries and avenues.

GREEN, belonging to James Hamilton, a convenient dwelling, was anciently the seat of the young lairds of Cambusnethan: purchased by his grandfather, Patrick Hamilton.⁶

⁵ “ James Hammiltoun of Garen deceift in the moneth of August, 1610.” By his latter-will, dated 31st July, that year, “ In pe duelling hous of Johnne Hammiltoun of Aderitoun, his vncl, w'in pe bur' of Paislay, He nominat, &c. Elizabeth Hay, his spous, and Claud Hammiltoun, his lau'full sone, his ex^{rs}. And also requieftis ane noble Lord, James erle of Abircorne, his maist prin^l. . . . and Robert Flemyng of Clydisfnylne o'isfmen to his saidis ex^{rs},” &c.—Test. Com. Rec. Glas.

Claud Hamilton of Gairen is a debtor in the testament of James Archbishop of Glasgow, Oct. 1632, “ for the few dewtie of his landis of Gairen, the said crope, xxx s. viij d.—Ibid. And he “ deceift vpoun the threttein day of Nov. 1643.”—Con. Dec. 4, following.—Ibid. James Hamilton of Garing, probably his son, appears by this document to have succeeded him.

MURRAY and KIRKHILL, pleasant feats, now belonging to Withaw and David Lawrie.

Befydes the baronie of Cambufnethan, there is within this parish the lands of Auchtermuire, anciently a part of the lordship and abbacie of Aberbrothock. It belonged [afterwards] to the lords of Yester, predecessors to the Marquess of Tweddale, who fewed it out to severall heritors, the most considerable of which is William Stewart of Allantoun, who heth a good and substantial house lying upon the water of Calder, well planted with barren timber : long possessed by his predecessors.⁷ The other heritors are not considerable.

There is also in this parish the lands of Watfoun and Watfounhead, belonging to the Laird of Lamington, holden of the familie and lordship of Hamilton, to which lordship it heth been annexed above 300 years. It heth ane house upon it in which the young lairds of Lamington sometymes were in use to dwell.

This is the upmost parish of the nether ward of this shyre, and is separate from the upper ward by the litle water called Gairengill burn, which falleth into Clyde at Gairen. It must here be mynded, that the famous highway or streat called, corruptlie, Watlinstreat (in place of Vattelinftreat) goeth through a great part of this parish, being that streat

“Gavine Stewart, eldest law^{ll} sone and appeirand heir to S^r Walter Stewart of Allantone deceiffit in the moneth of Marche, 1652.”—Test. Con. Oct. 9 following.—Com. Rec. Glas. He left an only daughter, Margaret, to whom, and the heirs of her body, he thus bequeaths—“All and hail pe Twelff thousand merks money, &c. obleift y^rfoir to me and pe said Bethia Hamilton, my spon, be James Hamiltone of Dalzell, my fat^r in law, be his hand maid to us, &c. w^t pe burden of my said spon her liferent of pe annuellis of pe sd. prin^{ll} sowme dureing hir widowitie, &c. And w^t pe burden of pe mortificatione of pe Twa thousand mkis. for a Schoole in Acheat muir, as is p^rin expreffit,” &c.

This young lady did not long survive her father. She “deceiffit in pe moneth of , 1653;” and the inventory of her goods, “given up be S^r Walter Stewart of Allantone, kny^t her gude S^r,” is confirmed March 24. 1656.—Ibid.

which was made by the Romans while Vitellinus was Governour ; going fra the south end of the Roman wall, commonly called Graham's Dyke, at Kilpatrick, eight myles below Glasgow, up through all Clydfdale, and by _____ to England, alongst the west road by Prestoun to London ; in many places whereof there are remains considerable of that memorable caufeway yett appearing, some parts producing myles of it together yett in good condition.

THE UPPER WAIRD OF CLYSDALE.

CARLOUKE is feated in the downmoft part of the upper waird, and was anciently called the Forest kirk, being feated in the forest of Mauldfly or forest of Clyde.¹ It is a considerable parish, lying upon Clyde, having Cambufnethane to the southwest, Lanark parish and Cartairs to the northeast, and Carnwath moor and some parts of Lothian to the north. The kirk was anciently a part of the abbacie of Kelfoe ; but by agreement betuixt the King and the Earle of Roxburgh, when he gott the abbacie of Kelfoe erected into a temporall lordship, this was one of the 24 kirks that Roxburgh resigned to the King : but the Laird of Calderwood having had ane long tack of the teinds of this parish and gott ane long prorogation, by agreement with the severall heritors, he made over to every heritor the right of his own teinds during his tack and prorogation. Thereafter, the Laird of Lee obtained from his Majestie ane right to the patronage and teinds of this parish ; so that he is now titular and patron, but is yett secluded from the teinds during Calderwood's tack and prorogation, whereof there are many years yet to run.

. . . Corpusque meum in pulueribus S^{CTI}. ANDREÆ,” &c.—Com. Rec. Glas.

In this parish there is plenty of woods, fruitfull gardens and coall, many of the small fewars having orchards.

The most considerable interest in this parish is the baronie of MAULDSLIE, which was anciently much greater than now. It belonged of old to the Danielftons, and by mariage of a co-heir of that family, it came to Maxwell of Calderwood, about the year 1400 or thereby, in which family it continued long, till about the year 1640; and then it was sold to Arthur Arkinne of Scotscraig. For payment of whose debts and relieff of cautionrie, it came to the Laird of Alva, who about the year , sold it to Sir Daniel Carmichael, 2d sone to the Lord Carmichael; and he having no issue of his own bodie, tailzied it to Daniel Carmichael, his grand nephew, sone to the present Earle of Hyndfoord. The Laird of Calderwood built upon it a very good house, which the present heritor heth very much improven, and well finished. It heth pleasant, great and convenient gardens, very fruitfull; ane noble avenue to Clyde, well planted.² He heth also the lands of BELSTAINIE in this parish, which of old belonged to the Liviftons, and lately to the Lindfayes, and was acqyred by his grand uncle.³

About half a myle upward upon the river of Clyde, lyeth the MYLNETOUN, in a low and pleasant foill. It was anciently a part of the baronie of Mauldslie, but heth these many years bygone been holden blanch of the king. It was long the feat of the Whytfoords of that Ilk, but now belongs to Sir John Hamilton of Hallcraig, ane of the fenators of the collidge of justice, who now resides there. It is ane old house, feated in the midft of large, plentifull and fruitfull gardens. It heth a good salmond fishing, and the largest and best wood in that neighbourhood.

“About the same time [Sep. 1623], dyed that holy, wife and vertuous Lady (equally if not beyond any I have known in Scotland), the Lady Calderwood, and formerly Lady Evandail, eldest daughter to the Earle of Glencairn. A woman of an excellent spirit, and many crossies through her whole life. She was diligent and active, and a fearer of God. May the Lord prepare us to follow; and give his grace to her children; that we may reach her happy end, for the love of Christ, his son.”—Wodrow's Life of Trochrig.

³ Alexander Levingstone of Belstane appears in the Test. of Garen, 1610.—Quoted p. 48.

He heth alfo, adjoining to it, the lands of HALLCRAIG, the inheritance of his predeceffors, whereupon there is, anciently, ane old houfe and fruitfull orchard, but this toucheth not Clyde.⁴

Next to this is the lands of KIRKTOUN, belonging to Walter Lockhart of Kirktoon. It heth ane old houfe, with ane village at the kirk erected in ane burgh of baronie.⁵

Upward from Mylnetoun, upon Clyde, ftands the WICKETSHAW, belonging to William Lockhart. It is ane old houfe, with woods and gardens. It has been long annexed to the baronie of Touchadame, of whom it yet holds.⁶

More upward upon Clyde, lyeth the baronie of BRAIDWOOD, all of it now belonging to fmall fewars. It did anciently belong to the Earls of Douglafs; and after their forfaiture, in anno 1455, it came to the Earle of Angufe; and was given by Archbald Earle of Angufe, commonly called Bell the Cat, to his fone, William Douglafs of Glenbervie. And at fuch tyme as his fon fucceeded to the Earledome of Angufe, it was difponed by him to Chancelor Maitland, then Vifcount Lauderdale; and he fewed it all out to the tenents for paying of finall few duties, and thereafter difponed it back again to the Earle of Angufe, with the burden of the tenents fewes: and there it continued untill James, the laft Marquels of Douglafs, difponed it to Sir George Lockhart of Carnwath, the prefident of the feffion; and it belongs now to his fon.

There are many other fmall fewars, that have fruitfull orchards along the river and brae of Clyde.

⁴ "Archibald Hamilton of Halcraig, commiff^r of Lanark," occurs in the testament of James archbishop of Glasgow, Oct. 1632, as indebted to him "v^r lib. as the Quottis of the tefta^m" wⁱn the commiffariat of Lanark, fra the terme of Witfounday, 1631, to pe terme of Mer-times, 1632 yeiris."—Quoted p. 34.

James Hamilton of Halcraig is named a tutor in the will of Mr Francis Aird, March 14, 1659.—Quoted p. 7.

⁵ A branch of the family of Stonebyres were designed of Kirkton; and the unhappy Major Weir is faid to have had his descent from them.

⁶ In a roll of persons implicated for an attack on Drumlanrig, Oct. 1650, occur—"Two Lockerts, fons to Stephen Lockert of Wicketshaw." See Mr Robertson's Ayrshire Families, III. 371.; where however the family name of Lockhart is misprinted Robert—the only material error in the list. The conjectured name of James [Brown?] should be "Armer."

More upward in this parish lyeth the HEADS, a convenient house, feat and gardens, belonging to the Laird of Lee, who heth severall other lands in this parish, but remote from the river, as Easter and Wester Kincaiden.

The lands of HANSHAW in this parish belong to the Laird of Lamington, and heth long appertained to them, holden of the family of Hamilton.

LANARK parish. Befyde the burgh of Lanark already named, it heth ane considerable landwart parish, anciently called the Outterkirk and Innerkirk of Lanark.¹ The one was a laick patronage, and the other a part of the abbacie of Dryburgh; but the Laird of Lee is now patron to the haill. This parish lyeth a great way upon the north fyde of the river of Clyde, over which there is ane bridge lately built at Clydesholme, a litle below Lanark. It is bounded upon the west with Carlouk, upon the north by Carstairs, and upon the south and southeast by the river of Clyde.

The Laird of Lee is the most considerable heritor in this parish, and pleasantly seated at the LEE. It is a very ancient and good family. His ¹ "The old parish church [of Lanark is] situated about a quarter of a mile to the south-east of the town, on the road leading to Carlisle. It preserves marks of great elegance; but the time of its erection is unknown. It appears to have been built of hewn stone; [and is] divided in the middle, from one end to the other, by a wall resting upon pillars, of which six superb arches are still entire. In the centre there is a modern erection for the nocturnal accommodation of those who are appointed to watch the repositories of the dead. This building is erected upon the grave of [Irvine of] Bonshaw, the notorious persecutor, who was slain here by one of his own followers."—Hist. of Lanark, by W. Davidson, 1828.

Robert the Bruce founded a monastery of Gray Friars at Lanark in 1314; and to both this church, and that mentioned above, probably allusion is made in the following extracts:—

"INVENTARIUM omnium bonorum quondam Dni. Andrew Allan, factum apud Lanerk, xxviii. die mens. Martij. Anno Dni. Jaj v^o l^o. &c. . . . corpusque meum sepeliend. fore in insula bte. predecessor, Sir Lockhart, is ane witness in the foundation of the abbacie of Paisley, in the tyme of King William; and heth continued in that family without any known interruption since. He is chief of his name; and there are many descendants come of the family. The house of the Lee is seated in a low, warm, and fertile soil, invironed with fruitfull gardens, fyne woods, and pleafant meadowes. The house was anciently ane old castle, but long since there was convenient buildings joynd to it; and of late, upon the south fyde of the court, there are added six extraordinarie fyne rooms, well finished and furnished. The gardens are great and regular, adorned with fyne walks, stairs and terrasses. And the lairds of this family, for severall ages past, have been men of extraordinarie worth and merite.²

Up the water of Moufe, upon the west fyde thereof, stands the house of CASTLEHILL, in a pleafant place, and almost invironed with woods, also belonging to the Laird of Lee.

More upward upon that water of Moufe, stands the house of CLEGHORN, which heth been long the seat of ane old familie of the name of Lockhart. It is a good substantial house, well repaired, having plenty of wood; and is a part of the principalitie.³

Upon the other fyde of the water of Moufe stands the house of JERVIES-

² Our author seems to have overlooked the "Lee penny;" but it is amazing with what indifference this sober age have regarded the "attractions" of such matters as this. The historian of Lanark shall supply the defect:—"It is a stone of a dark red colour set in a shilling of Edward I. with a silver chain attached;" and was thus obtained: "The founder of this very ancient family, having taken captive a Saracen Prince, his [the Prince's] wife came to pay the ransom; and, in reckoning the stipulated sum, she was observed to drop a jewel, which she hastily snatched up. Lockhart observing the eagerness with which she endeavoured to conceal it, insisted that unless this was included in the ransom, he would not liberate his prisoner. The lady, finding him inflexible, reluctantly complied; at the same time informing him of its miraculous virtues in curing diseases both of men and cattle."

wood. It did anciently belong to the Levingstons, bot now to George Baillie. It is a pleasant feat, having good inclofers, and good woods. ⁴

MAYNES of BRAXFIELD, a pleasant feat and fyne wood, lying upon Clyde, belongs to Mungo Cochran.

BONIETOUN, the ancient feat of the Kuninghams of Bonietoun, lately purchased by Sir James Carmichell, a 3d sone of the Lord Carmichell, and belongs now to his grandchylde. It lyeth upon Clyde, and is well planted.

There are many finall fewars in this parish, almost all of them holding of the Earle of Hyndfoord or the Laird of Lee.

CARSTAIRS parish and baronie is all kirk land, holding anciently of the archbishop of Glasgow. ¹ It belonged to the Hamiltons of Aven-dale; and was acyqured fra them by Sir James Lockhart of Lee, who gave it to Sir William Lockhart, the eldest sone of his 2d marriage, who was father to the present Laird of Carstairs. It is a pleasant parish, lying along Clyde, and has a good house at Lockharthill. The hail parish belongs to him almost all in propertie, and heth a heritable baillery within himself.

⁴ "Robert Baillie of Jerrestoun" is a witness to the testament of Steinston of that ilk, Sep. 1615.—Ibid.

"James Baile of Jerrestoun deceit in June, 1623." In his latterwill he thus appoints—"I commit my faul to God, and ordanes me to be bureit w'in the kirk of Bothwell, in my awin buriel place, as vsè is, &c. Item, I have maid, &c. Jonet Robertoun [my spous] tutrix testa^{ria} to James & Robert Baillies, my lawⁿ bairnes," &c.—Con. Nov. 9. 1624. James Robertoun of Ernok, cautioner.—Ibid.

CARNWATH is a great parish, with the village of Carnwath erected in ane burgh of baronie. It is much bettered of late by improving the moors, since the sewing them. It did anciently belong to the Somervells of Carnwath, one of whom, William, sone and air of Thomas de Somervell, was a hostage for the ranfome of King David Bruce, 1357, as appears by the Treatie betwixt England and Scotland, 3rd October, 1357. They were create Lord Somervell by King James the Second, anno 1445; and continued in that race till Gilbert, the last Lord, disponed it to John Earle of Marr, thesaurer both to King James the Sixth and to King Charles the Firft. And James Arefkine Earle of Buchan, his eldest sone of his 2d marriage, thereafter fold it to Robert Lord Dalyell, who, in anno 1641, was honoured with the title of Earle of Carnwath; and thereafter his grandchylde fold it to Sir George Lockhart, president of the session, and it now belongs to his son. The teinds of this parish was anciently the patrimony of [the] Thesaurer of the chapter of Glasgow; but the present heritor is now both titular and patron. He heth ane house at the end of the town of Carnwath, wherein he sometymes staves in the summer; for the ancient house of Cudely, the ancient seat of the Lords of Sommervell, is now quite decayed.

This paroch belongs to him all in proprietie or superiority, except WESTSHELL, which the late Earle of Carnwath resigned [i. e. the superiority] in favour of this Laird of Westshell; which heth long been the residence of the lairds of Westshell, and now belongs to Sir William Denham, cheif of that name. This man heth much improven both the house and the fortune; made good inclosers: and is at present master of the mint.

Not far from this is EASTSHELL, belonging to Thomas Inglis of Eastshell.

Upon the south side of the Moor, lyes KERSWELL, upon the water of Maidwoon. It anciently belonged to the Lairds of Cambusnethan, bot now to Cheisley of Kerfewell.

SPITTLE, descended of the family of the Lord Sommervell, was lately Sheriff depute of this shyre.

¹ "S^r Johne Cheislie of Carfewell, knyth" appears in the testament of Allan Stewart younger of Allanton, before quoted.

WOLFROODS is also of the name of Somervell. And there are many small heritors in this parish, who all hold of the Laird of Carnwath; whereof Poole is amongst the most considerable.

DUNSYRE parish did anciently belong the one half of it to the Earle of Anguse, and the other to the Earle of Bothwell: thereafter, the whole of it came to the Marquess of Douglafs. It lyes upon the north syde of the water of Maidwoon, having Carnwath to the south-west, Calder, in Lothian, to the north, and some parts in Peebles shyre to the east. The one half of it was long since fewed out; but the whole was lately sold by James Marquess of Douglafs to Sir George Lockhart, the president of the Session. The teinds of this parish were anciently a part of the patrimonie of the abbacie of Kelfoe; but in respect its but a small parish, they are wholly possessed by the incumbent.

That part of the parish which is fewed out, was part of the regalitie of Bothwell, viz. Easter and Wester Hills, Auldstoun, Westhall, and Greens; but Hills and Auldstoun were lately purchased from John Hamilton of Udston by Sir George Lockhart, president of the Session.

DOLPHINGTOUN. This is but a very little parish; and the whole teinds thereof come far short of a competent stipend. The most part of the land of this parish holds of the Marquess of Douglafs, and belongs to Mr Andrew Brown of Dolphington, phisitian.¹

NEWHOLME, lying upon the water of Maidwoon, belongs to John Lermond. It is marched by Dunfyre on the north, Walfstoun upon the south, and Peebles shyre upon the south and south-east.¹

¹ "W^m Browne of Dolphington" is a curator in the testament of Robert Hamilton of Mylnburne, Dec. 1654.—Conf. April 4, following.—Com. Rec. Glas.

Doctor Andrew Brown was an author, and left severall works professional and political.

¹ Newholme, if ever a parish, is wholly omitted in Keith's list, at least by that name.

WALSTOUN. This parish and baronie did anciently belong to the Earls of Marr ; and lyeth upon the south syde of the water of Maidwoon, and bounded by the parishes of Liberton, Biggar, and Dolphington. It was acquired from the Earle of Marr by Baillie merchant, sone to Saint John's Kirk, and now belongs to his grandchylde. It hath ane old house, feated near to the church, and well planted with barren timber. The whole parish belongs to himself. The teinds did anciently belong to the common kirk of Glasgow, and was thereafter mortified to that colledge ; bot the whole amounts not to the value of a competent stipend.

LIBERTOUN and QUODQUHAN lyeth betuixt the parishes of Carnwath, Walfton, and Biggar ; and did anciently belong to Hamilton of Avendale : thereafter to the Earle of Carnwath ; and now to the Laird of Carnwath, Lockhart. There are in this parish the lands of WHYTE-CASTLE, belonging to Murehead ; SHIELHILL, belonging to Chancellor ; and GLADSTAINES, belonging to Sir William Menzies ; and severall other small fiewars, all holding of the Laird of Carnwath.

BIGGAR is a great parish, with a town of that name erected in a burgh of baronie. It hath long appertained to the Flemings, whill Lord Fleming and Earls of Wigtoun, who gott it by marrying the daughter and aires of de Bigris of Biggar. It is bounded by the shierifdome of Peebles to the south and south-east, and surrounded by Walfton, Quodquain, and Coulter, and other parts. The Earle of Wigtoun hath here ane old castle called Boghall, where he resides when in these parts. It is ane laick patronage, and the Earle of Wigtoun is now both titular and patron.

Befyde the Earle of Wigtoun's propertie, there are many fiewars in this parish, as the lands of Edmiftoun, belonging to Walfton, Sheills and Between-the-hills to the Laird of Carnwath, Lintfeedlands, Perfonlands and many others, belonging to severall heritors : most of them are holden of the Earle of Wigtoun.

THANKERTOUN, lying on Clyde, is a little parish, formerly belonging to the Earles of Wigtoun; it now belongs to Sir James Carmichaell of Bonnetoun. There are some other small heretors in it, as St John's-kirk, Murrays. The teinds of it are a part of the parsonage of Biggar; but amount not to the value of a competent stipend.

COULTER is no great parish, and belongs almost entirely to Coulterallers, Coultermaynes, and Nisbett, who all reside in this parish. It lyeth betwixt Biggar and Lamington, upon the great road that goes from Edinburgh to the south; and is a laick patronage, but the teinds amount not to the value of a competent stipend.¹ And Lamington is superior to half the baronie of Coulter.

LAMINGTON parish lyeth between Biggar, Crawford and Clyde. The one half of it, viz. Lamington, hath long appertained to the Lairds of Lamington, Baillie, and chieff of his name, who hath ane old house feated upon the river of Clyde, near to the kirk, in a pleasant place, and well planted. It is reputed ane old family; and hath, in this shyre and in Lothian, land worth 20,000 merks yearly that hath all been possessed by this family above these 300 years.

The other half, called WANDELL or Hartfyde, belonged of old to Jerdane of Aplegirth; thereafter, to the family of Douglafs, but now to Archbald Earle of Forfar. LITLEGILL is in this parish, but hath no house upon it. The patronage of it belongs to [the Earl of] Forfar and Lamington alternative; but the teinds doe little exceed the value of a competent stipend.

ROBERTOUN belongs all in property and superiority to the Marquess of Douglafs, lying upon the south side of Clyde, foragaint the parishes of Crawford and Lamington. It was ane old regalitie ; and the teinds amount not to a competent stipend.

The Laird of Litlegill heth ane houfe here called the Moat, lying upon Clyde, near to which there is a bridge lately built over that river. There are some other small heretors in this parish, but hold all of the Marqueses of Douglass.

CRAWFURD (alias Crawford Lindsay) is a great and wide parish, and anciently it belonged to the Lindsays of Crawford. Sir David Lindsay of Crawford maryed one of the daughters of King Robert the Second, of whom are descended both the families of Crawford and Lindsay,—Lindsay Earle of Crawford and the Lord Lindsay of the Byres, afterward Earle of Lindsay, and now Earle of Crawford. The representative of this family having maryed the heiress of Glenesk (Stirling), he was honoured with the title of Earle of Crawford by King Robert the Third, anno 1398 ; and continued heritor of that land untill after the fall forfeiture of the Earls of Douglass.

The Earle of Angusse gott the lordship of Douglass from the King, and then Crawford exchanged the barony of Crawford in Clydesdale for the barony of Phinheaven in Angusse, since which tyme the barony of Crawford heth belonged either in proprietie or superioritie to the family of Angusse.

A great part of the proprietie of this parish did appertaine to Carmichael of Meadowflett, commonly called the Captaine of the castle of Crawford, untill William the first Marquesse of Douglass purchased it from the Captaine of Crawford ; and then he added much new building to the old castle.

There is also in this parish, befyde the baronie of Crawford, the baronie of Friermure, kirk land, anciently a part of the abbacie of Newbotle ; and purchased by the Marquesse of Douglass from the Earle of Lothian. It now belongs to the Earle of Hopetoun. There is also in it some parts of the King's proprietie, as , also purchased by the Marquesse of Douglass, holden few of the King.

There is in it lykeways the lands of HOPETOUN, where are the great and profitable lead mynes belonging to Charles Hope of Hopetoun.

This parish lyeth in the uppermost part of the sheriffdome of Lanark, marching with the shyres of Drumfries and Peebles upon the southeast parts, and with the parishes of Lamyngton, Robertson and Crawfurd John upon the northwest and southwest parts. The river of Clyde heth its rise in this parish; running in a small current from Little Clyde hill untill it meet with the water of Dair, and then Dair quitteth its name to the little current of Clyde, and by the accession of many other waters from these mountainouse parts, it becometh a river before it reach the castle of Crawfurd.

The teinds of this parish were anciently a part of the patrimonie of the bishoprick of Edinburgh; and from him the minister had his stipend. But of late, King William gave the heretable right of these teinds to Charles Earle of Selkirk: for William Marquess of Douglass having given these baronies of Crawfurd and Friermure to William Earle of Selkirk, eldest son procreat betwixt him and Lady Mary Gordon, his second spouse, and the said William Earle of Selkirk having become Duke of Hamilton, by marrying the Dutchess and heirefs of Hamilton, he gave those lands of Crawfurd to his second sone Charles, now Earle of Selkirk.

The castle of Crawfurd is a square court with much lodging in it, lying upon the river of Clyde, just opposite to the kirk and town of Crawfurd, which town was long since erected in a burgh of baronie.

There are besyde, these severall heritors in this parish, as the Earle of Hopetoun, who heth the baronie of Friermore and the lands of Hopetoun, wherein are the lead mynes; and some lesser ones, as the Laird of Newtown, Weir, who has a convenient house, lately rebuilt, situat upon Clyde, about two myles above the castle of Crawfurd. It is esteemed ane old family, and holds of the Marquess of Duglass.¹ Upward in this parish, and upon the water of Dair, there is ane new house built by John Hamilton of Eldershaw, descended of the family of Prestoun. There are severall other heritors in this parish, as Crimpcramp, Haircleuch, and Trelofs, who all hold of the Marquefs of Douglafs.

CRAWFURD JOHN is ane old baronie, which anciently did belong to the Lord Monipenny. In the tyme of King James the Second, he exchanged it with the Lord Hamilton for the lands of Kirkinner in Galloway; and it remained with the family of Hamilton untill James Earle of Arran gave it to his sone, Sir James Hamilton of Phineard, who was thesaurer of Scotland: and then he exchanged this baronie with King James the Fifth for the baronie of Kilmarnock, then in the King's hands by the forfaiture of the Lord Boyd. But Sir James being soon thereafter forfaitured himself, Kilmarnock returned to the crown; but Sir James his forfaiture being reduced by parliament, in anno 1543, his sone, Sir James Hamilton of Avendale, was restored to his father's estate, except the baronie of Kilmarnock,—the parliament judging the King had been over-reached in the exchangeing it with Crawford John, —and declared Sir James had right to Crawford John in all tymes thereafter.

While King James the Fifth had this baronie of Crawford John, he built upon it the BOGHOUSE of Crawford John, wherein a daughter of the Captaine of Crawford lived untill she was married to the Laird of Cambusnethan.¹

And this baronie continued in the family of Avendale untill James Marquefs of Hamilton purchased Avendale, it and some other lands from his great grandchyld, Sir James Hamilton of Avendale.

This parish lyes upon the fouth fyde of the water of Clyde; heth ane water called Duneden running through the middle of it. It is furrounded by the parish of Crawford Lindfay upon the fouteast, the shyre of Drumfrife upon the fouth, and the parishes of Douglafs and Robertoun upon the west and northwest. This baronie and parish of Crawford ¹ This is the same lady, Catharine Carmichael, to whom allusion is made, p. 47, note. Even this slight notice of the private history of this amorous prince is interesting.

John was also given by William and Anna Duke and Dutcheſs of Hamilton to Charles Earle of Selkirk, their ſecond ſone, albeit it was a part of the eſtate of Hamilton.

Crawfurd John is a laick patronage, and the Duke of Hamilton was both patron and titular of the teinds.

The moſt conſiderable heritors in this pariſh are John Hamilton of Gilkerſcleugh, who has ane convenient houſe and dwelling upon the water of Duneden, Claud Mackmoran of Gleſpen, Gilbert Summer- vale of Bockcleugh, and ſeverall others, who all hold of the family of Hamilton. The Laird of Calderwood has there alſo the lands of Abington, lying upon Clyde, which lately belonged to the family of Hamilton, and were fold by this Dutcheſs to this Laird of Calderwood his father-in-law. ²

WISTOUN is a litle pariſh. It did belong to Wynrahame of Wif- toun; but he dying without heirs male, and leaving three daughters, the eldeſt was married to Allan Lockhart younger of Cleghorne, and the other two gott portions. It is a convenient dwelling, and heth ſome fu- periorities; bot the whole teinds amount not to a competent ſtipend.

SYMINGTOUN is ane ancient, but no great baronie, and belonged to the Lairds of Symingtoun of that Ilk. And from them, it came to the Lairds of Lamingtoun, and was fold by him to the Laird of Lee, and now belongeth to George Lockhart of Carnwath. The old houſe of Symingtoun is ruinous. It heth ſome ſuperiorities; but the whole teinds of the pariſh amount not to a competent ſtipend.

COVINGTOUN did long appertaine to Lindfayes, lairds of Coving-toun; and was lately purchas'd by Sir George Lockhart, president of the Session, and now belongs to George Lockhart of Carnwath. It hath ane old house, situate near to the church. The parish is not great; neither the minister too plentifully provyded. ¹

PETTIENAIN parish lyes upon Clyde, opposite to the parish of Carftaires. It did anciently belong to Johnstoun of Westraw, who had a good house there, well planted. It now belongs to the Earle of Hyndfoord; and his eldest sone, the Lord Carmichael, now dwells there.

The lands of CLOWBURN in this parish, have long appertained to Weir of Clowburn, the heirefs of which is now married to Sir Andrew Kennedy, conservator. There are some other small heritors in this parish; bot the whole is not great, nor the minister over plentifully provyded.

DOUGLASS parish, and baronie and lordship, hath very long appertained to the family of Douglass, and continued with the Earles of Douglass untill their fatall forfeiture, anno 1455: during which tyme there are many noble and important actions recorded in histories performed by them, by the Lords and Earles of that great family. It was thereafter given to Douglass, Earle of Angus, and continued with them untill

¹ The following extracts from the will of John Lindsay of Covington have likewise an interest in reference to the parish—the dedication of the church seems alluded to:—

N. B. Lindsay gives legacies to his two natural sons, John and Roland.

William Earle of Angufe was created Marquess of Douglafs, anno 1633 ; and is now the principal feat of the Marquess of Douglafs his family. It is a large baronie and parish, and ane laick patronage, and the Marquess is both titular and patron. He heth there, near to the church, a very considerable great house called the castle of Douglas ; and near the church is a fyne village called the town of Douglafs, long since erected in a burgh of baronie. It heth ane hanfome church, with many ancient monuments and inscriptions on the old interments of the Earles of this place.

The water of Douglafs runs quyte through the whole length of this parish, and upon either fyde of the water it is called Douglafs dale. It toucheth Clyde towards the north, and is bounded by Lesmahagow to the west, Kyle to the south-west, Crawford John and Carmichaell to the south and south-east. It is a pleafant strath, plentiful in grafs and corne, and coall ; and the minister is well provyded.

The lands of HEYSLESYDE, belonging to Samuel Douglafs, has a good house and pleafant feat, clofe by a wood. KENNOCK, lately belonging to William Summervale, and now sold by him to the Earle of Selkirk. Penfeich and Park, belonging to the Marquess [of Douglas], are now possessed by the Earle of Hyndfoord. ¹

CARMICHAELL lands are part of the lordship of Douglafs, and has long belonged to the Lairds of Carmichaell of that Ilk, untill Sir James Carmichaell of that Ilk, thesaurer depute, was honoured with the title of Lord Carmichaell anno 1648 ; and his grandchylde, John Lord Carmichaell, was by King William (to whom he was secretary) honoured with the title of Earle of Hyndfoord in anno 1701. It is no great parish. It has a good substantial old house, much repaired and well finished of late ; very well planted, with a noble avenue from the house to the church. The parish belongeth mostly to the Earle.

The lands of CROCERIDGE belong now to the laird of Carnwath ;¹ and EASTEND to Thomas Carmichaell.—There are good inclosures about Carmichaell, which beautifie and augment the conveniencie of the dwelling.

LESMAHAGOW is the most considerable parish in the neighbourhood. It lyeth a great way upon the fourth fyde of the river of Clyde, having Douglafs upon the east and foutheast, the shyre of Aire upon the fourth, and the parishes of Dalserf and Stonehouse upon the west ; and is the downmost parish of the over waird upon the fourth fyde of Clyde. It heth the water of Nethan running quite through this parish, which, augmented by many burnes, falls into Clyde at Nethanfoot.

This great parish is all kirk land, and was anciently a part of the abbacie of Kelfoe, which had a cell there [here], where severall of the monks stayed, called the Abbay of Lesmahagow ; and to which many others of them used to retire in tyme of warr with England. This baronie was mortified to the abbacie of Kelfoe by Lord [of] Galloway, and his mortification is confirmed by King David the First in the year of his reigne.

The Lord Hamilton was long since vassall to the Abbott in the lands of Draffin and many others lying in this parish ; and upon the 10th of October, 1456, he gott a commission of heretable bailliary from the Abbot and convent of Kelfoe, in the tyme of King James the Second. But at such tyme as the abbacie of Kelfoe was erected in a temporall lordship in favours of the Earle of Bothwell, he came to have right to the superiorities and patronages of this great parish. And the Earle of Roxburgh succeeding in the right thereof, upon Bothwell's forfeiture, the patronages and superiorities were purchased from him by the Marquess of Hamilton; and his successors, the Dukes of Hamilton, are now superiors, titulars and patrons of this parish, which is so great that the cure is served by two ministers, both of them well provided.

Befydes the lands which belong in property to the Duke of Hamilton in this parish, which are considerable, there are many gentlemen and heritors in this parish, and some of them ancient, specially the Laird of Blakwood, at present call'd Sir George Weir, baronet. This estate has been long enjoyed by his predecessors; for there is ane charter extant in the register of Kelfoe, granted in the tyme of King Malcolm the Fourth, by the Abbot of Kelfoe to Rothold de Weir of the lands of Blakwood, Mossmyning and Durgundiestoun, which formerly belonged to his father; and heth continued in that family downward untill now. The house of Blackwood is a considerable old house, well repaired and furnished of late; well planted, and a convenient dwelling.

Weir of Stonebyres is ane old family in this parish. It heth a good old house, large inclosures and fyne wood upon Clyde, and pertains to William Weire of Stonebyres.

KIRKFIELD, a cadet of the family of Stonebyres, lyeth near to this.

COREHOUSE, ane very old family of the name of Ballantyne, had continued long in that race, untill lately that Sir John Ballantyne of Corehouse, having married the heiress of Crookdyke, in Cumberland, sold his estate in Scotland and settled there. It now belongs to William Sommervale of Corehouse. It is an old house, situate upon a great linn or fall of the river of Clyde.¹

KERSS, Weir, heth a convenient dwelling upon the other fyde of Nethan.²

There was built in this parish, by Sir James Hamilton of Phineard, a great castle, consisting of fyve towers, called Craignethan. Of the ruins whereof, Mr Andrew Hay built a convenient house upon the corner of its garden, after he purchased the same fra the Dutchess of Hamilton. It is almost surrounded with gardens and woods; a very odd feat.

There are many other lesser heritors in this parish, who all hold of the family of Hamilton. The Dutchess heth severall profitable milnes in this parish, and other considerable casualties.

ACCOMPT OF THE SHERIFFDOME OF RANFREW.

BY WILLIAM HAMILTON

OF WISHAW.

ACCOUNT OF THE

PROCEEDINGS OF THE

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE

ASSOCIATION

SHERIFFDOME OF RANFREW.

THIS shyre is boundit by the river of Clyde upon the north and north-west, quhen that river becomes broad, quhairin ther is an plentiful fishing of herrings and other fishes in their season, and by Cunninghame to the south and south-west, and by the nether ward of the shyre of Lanerke to the north-east, east and south-east.

The shyre of Ranfrew was anciently called the barronie of Ranfrew, lyand within the nether ward of the sherriffdome of Lanerke (of which nether ward Rutherglen was the head burgh), untill such tyme as King Robert the Third erected the most part of what had been the patrimony of his predeceffors, before his father King Robert the Second his accession to the Crown, in ane principality, in favours of James, Prince and Great Stewart of Scotland; which was upon the tenth day of December, One thousand four hundred and four. And about that time, King Robert did dissolve the barronie of Ranfrew from the sherriffdome of Lanerke, and erected it in ane sherriffdome by itself, and appointed the town of Ranfrew to be the head burgh of that shire. Since which tyme, it hath enjoyed all priviledges, dignities, and immunities belonging to it, that were known to appertain to any other shyre in the nation; and have always had two commissioners representing them in the parliaments of Scotland since the year One thousand fyve hundred and eighty seven, that the small Barrons of the severall shires were allowed to have, and came in use to send commissioners to represent them in parliament. And since the year One thousand six hundred and nyntie they were allowed to send three commissioners to the parliament.

This shyre hath always since the time of King Robert the Third had its distinct sheriffs. The Lord Semple his predeceffors were long heritable sheriffs of this shyre, and also heretable baylies of the regalitie of Pasley, untill about the year J^m vj^e and thirty six or therby, the Lord Semple sold both these heretable offices to Sir Bryce Semple of Cathcart, who not long thereafter, sold them to My Lady Dowager of Rofs, who [not] long thereafter sold them to Alexander Earle of Eglintoune, whose successors yet enjoy them; only this [present] Earle of Eglintoune disposed that part of the bayliarie of the regalitie of Pasley within the barronie of Kilpatrick, lyand upon the north side of the river of Clyde, to William Hamiltoun of Orbistoun.

All this shyre lyes within, and is subject to the jurisdiction of the Commisfar of Glasgow in all causes that are consistoriall, and applies to that Commisfar for confirmation of Testaments.

Though the town of Ranfrew be the head burgh of the shyre, where the Sheriff holds his head courts, and where the Barrons of the shyre meets for choosing commissioners to parliaments, yet the sherriff courts sits ordinarlie at Pasley, as being both the better town and more centricall and convenient for the shyre, notwithstanding that Pasley is no burgh of royalty, but only a burgh of regality.

There is only one presbetry in this shyre, and comprehends the parishes of Pasley, Ranfrew, Inchennan, Arakine, Kilmacomb, Killalene, Grenock, Houstone, Killbarchane, Inverkye, Lochwhinyeoch, Neillstone, Mairns, and Eastwood. There are other two parishes in this shyre, Cathcart and Eaglefham, that are within the presbetry of Glasgow.

This shyre is much more considerable for its worth, and the very many valuable heretors residing in it, then for its extent. It marches with the shyre of Lanerk a great way toward the east, southeast, and north-east; and when it pairteth from Lanerkshyre, a litle above Ranfrew, it is bounded by the river of Clyde a great [way], untill it joyn with the parish of Largs, in the bailiary of Cunninghame, and is thence bounded by Cunninghame, untill it again meet with the shyre of Lanerk.

The most considerable place in this jurisdiction, and where the sheriff court and court of regality usually sits is Pasley, the seat of a very considerable and ancient monasterie, situated upon the water of Kert, some few miles above where it falls into Clyde, in a pleasant, fertile, and rich soil. To which boats can come from the sea to the bridge of Pasley, where the water of Kert divideth between the abbacy and the town of Pasley, which is a very pleasant and well built little town; plentifully provided with all sorts of grain, fruits, coals, peats, fishes, and what else is proper for the comfortable use of man, or can be expected in any other place of the kingdome.

The monasterie of Pasley was first founded in a priory by Walter the sone of Allan, Dapifer Regis, or master household to the King, about the year of God 1160, in the reign of Malcolm the Fourth, who confirms a mortification of the Inch of Ranfrew to that monasterie, and he died in the 1165.

This mortification by Walter dapifer, the founder, was made with reservation of the patronage to him and the heirs.

This foundation is confirmed by Allan the sone of Walter, and severall other lands mortified therto. And is considerably augmented [by] Walter the son of Allan, designed in his first charter Dapifer Regis, and in the next and subsequent grants Senescallus Scotiæ, or Great Stewart of Scotland, as all his successors are designed thereafter,—who from time to time did grant many charters and liberall mortifications to that monasterie, and obtained it to be changed from a priory to an abbacy of the order of _____, and under the patronage of St Mirrine; reserving always the right of presenting the Abbot to them and their successors, untill the Pope wrested [it] from them and all the other founders of monasteries, bishopricks, and benefices, and settled them upon the church, appointing the abbots to be chosen by their monks, and bishops by their chapters.

King Robert the Second, after his accession to the crown of Scotland, parish churches, whereof lyand within the shire of Ranfrew, and the rest in other places.

James Earle of Abercorne his sone married the Dutches of Ritchmond and Lennox, by whom he had two sones, who are both dead, leaving no issue, but one daughter, yet unmarried.

This James Earle of Abercorn sold the lordship of Pasley to William Lord Cochran, in the year Fifty three [1653]; and the barrony of Kilpatrick to Sir John Hamilton of Orbistoun, lord justice clerk and one of the senators of the college of justice; and the barronie of Monkton to the Lord Bargeny.

The abbacie of Pasley was ane great and noble fabrick, much improven by the Earles of Abercorn, with a stately church,—a part whereof was destroyed about the time of our reformation, and the rest of it which is yet standing is the remains of a splendide building. It had great gardens, and fruitfull orchards, notably inclosed with fyne walls of polished stone.¹

[PASLEY.]

The parish of Pasley is very great, and beside the kirk land in it, it hath long been the seat of very considerable families there. The first wherof we shall name is CROXTONE, long possessed by a family of the name of Crok, who are frequently among the witnesses contained in the charters granted to and by the monasterie of Pasley. This family falling in ane heires, she was married to Sir Alexander Stewart of Tarbolton, second sone to Walter, the second of that name, Great Stewart of Scotland; and of this marriage is descended the familys of Darnly and Lorn. And thereafter, there descended of the family of Darnly the familys of Castlemilk, Cardonnell, Barfkub, Galstoun and Haldrig.

Thereafter, the Lord Darnly, having in the reign of King James the Second, married one of the co-heirs of the family of Lennox, he was by King James the Third created Earle of Lennox, anno 1478. And his sone, Mathew Earle of Lennox, having married Elizabeth Hamiltone, daughter procreat betwixt James Lord Hamiltone and Lady Mary Stewart, eldest daughter to King James the Second, and by her had John Earle of Lennox.

Robert Crock is witness in the first donation of the kirks of Innerweek, Legerwood, &c. to Pasley [by] Walter sone of Allan, dapifer, who died 1177. He is also in the confirmation of these kirks by Allan sone of Walter. He is in the gift of the tiends of Maclain by Allan sone of Walter, dapifer, who died anno 1229.

Robert de Crock gets the privilege from the Abbot of Pasley, as a special friend and benefactor of that house, to build a chappell within his house, therein to cause divine service to be celebrate. He is also in the donation of the church of Mairns by Helias sone of Fulbert in the time of Allan sone of Walter, who lived under King William. This Robert acknowledges his fault in disturbing the monks their peaceable possession of the kirk of Neilstoun, gifted to the monks by William de Hartfoord; but to which this Robert pretended right. The first witness here is Walter sone of Allan, Stewart of Scotland, reg. Alex. 2^d.

Allan Crock, designed sone of Robert, is in the charter of Fultoun by Gilbert sone of Henry of St Martine, reg. Alex. 2^d. He is also witness to the mortification of two chalders of meall for a monk to say service for the soul of Robert de Bruce by Walter Stewart of Scotland, reg. Alex. 2^d.

Sir Thomas Crock is witness to the confirmation of all his prediceffors' deeds by Alexander Stewart of Scotland, when he was goinge a pilgrimage, 1252. As also, in the charter of the patronage of the kirk of Comonell by Duftgall sone of _____, dated anno 1261.

* * * * *

John, Earle of Lennox married Stewart, daughter to the Earle of Atholl, by whom he had Mathew and severall other children.

Mathew Earle of Lennox married Lady Margaret Douglas, only lawfull daughter procreat betwixt Archibald Earle of Angus and Queen Margaret, reliēt of King James the Fourth, and daughter to Henry the Seventh of England, by whom he had Henry Lord Darnly, father to King James the Sixth.

This King gave to his coufine, Efme, the earldome of Lennox and lordship of Darnly; and it hath continued with his successōrs since, untill the death of Charles Duke of Lennox and Ritchmond, who died in Denmark, , and then it returned to King Charles the Second.

The family of Lennox had in this shyre of Ranfrew the lands of Croxstoune and Darnly, in the parish of Pasley; the lands of Inchennan and Neilstoune, whereof more in their respective parishes.

In this parish is the HALKHEAD, which hath long been the seat of the Roffe family, who seems to have been very old; and is a pleasant dwelling, with a very fyne house and good inclosures, allmost furownded with fyne gardens and woods. This family appears to be old; for Robert de Rofs is wittnes to repair a year upon Leven in the first year of King Alexander the Third, which is 1248. They are frequently wittnesses in the charters of the monasterie of Pasley. Therefter, they were nobilitat by King James the Fourth, about the year 1492; and have continowed in honowr and reputation since. Godfridus de Rofs, miles, sone and heir of Sir Godfride de Rofs, knight, confirms the lands in Stewarton which the abbacy of Pasley gott from Sir James Rofs. Amongst the wittnesses is William de Rofs,—1281, reg. Alex. 3th.²

¹ Blanks frequently occur in the MS. the narrative being incomplete. These will be thus denoted.

² "Dame Jeane Hammiltone Ladie Rofs," occurs frequently, as a creditor of the rents and teinds of the estate of Tarbart in Cunninghame, inter 1600 et 1614.—Records of the Commissariat of Glasgow.

"Bessie Houftoun Ladie Quhytfuird & W^m Ros, hir spous" occur in a Con. May 6, 1617.—Ibid. Again, "Elizabethhe Houftoun Ladie Quhytfuird and Willame Ros of Muireftoun, hir spous, for his entres," appear in the testament of Alex^r Muir in Quhytfuird, March 1631.—Con. May 23 following.—Ibid.

CARDONELL lyes upon the water of Cart, juft oppofite to the caftell and woods of Croxftoune; a very pleafant and convenient dwelling, with a good houfe and good inclofures. It belongs to Walter Stewart Lord Blantyre, whofe prediceffor was Walter Stewart, eldeft fone of the fecond mariage of Sir Mathew Stewart of Minto, begotten upon Stewart, heires of Cardonall. He was long fervand to King James the Sixth, who honoured him with the title of Lord Blantyre, in anno 1606; and [it] hath been poffeffed by his fucceffors ever fincefyne.³

Allan Stewart of Cardonall gets a tenement of land in the Stockwall of Glafgow in feu of the monaftery of Pasley, for payment of 5th per ann. 1505, Ja. 4. This Allan of Cardonald is witnes in the infeftment of the fifhing of Lynbrys by John E. of Lennox Lord Darnlie, 1521.

Next to this is RALSTOUNE, the feat of ane old family; a very pleafant place, lyand near to Pasley. His prediceffors were of the family of M^cDuff; and being oblidge to leave Fyfe, feated themfells in this countrey; and from his name, Ralf, they were called Ralfftoune, or Ralftoune. Bot having their refidence att Woodfyde, in Cunninghame, weftward of this, they neglected this place. His prediceffor is an fubfcriver to Ragman Roll, 1296.

Nicolaus de Ralftoune is wittnefs in the grant of Fultoun by Sir Anthony Lombard to the monafterie of Pasley, 1272. Jacobus Ralftoune dominus ejufdem is wittnes to the priviledge granted to the monks for choofeing an abott, 1346.—John de Ralftoune is wittnes in the liberty granted by the Pope's Legat to few lands about Pasley, 1488.—John Ralftoune of that Ilk is one of the arbiters betwixt the monafterie of Pasley and town of Ranfrew anent the cuftoms, 1488; and in the indenture betwixt the Abott and town of Pasley anent the fewing of the lands.

³ In the Will of Walter Lord Blantyre (see p. 15) confirmed June 12. 1618, the houfe of Cardonald is thus alluded to:—"Item, The inficht & plenifching of pe hous of Cardonnald, tymbir work & all being comptit, (by pe airfchip) estimat to ij^d ij^d xl l." And his Lordship's fervants, being creditors for their "fies," are thus enumerated: Alex^r Stewart, Quentein Luif, Jo^{ns} Paterfoune, Andro Wallace, Robert M^cAndro cuik, Robert James, Johne Someruell, James Dowglas tailyeo^r, W^m Mathew gardner, Helein Scowgall, Helein Sinclair, Elix^r Forreft, and Marg^t Someruell.

Ricardus de Ralftoun, John, his sone, and William, his brother, are all wittnesses in the mortification granted by Henry of St Martin of his lands in Stragryfe to the house of Pasley in the reign of King William.—John de Ralfton, secretary to King James the Second is witness in the chartour granted by that King, erecting all the Lord Hamilton his lands in on lordship, to be called the lordship of Hamilton, 1445.—Hugh Ralfton of that Ilk is an subscriver of that solem bond entered into by many for manteaning the trew evangell, 1560. ⁴

Next to this lyes the lands of WHYTFOORD, close by the watter of Cart, a litle above Pasley; a pleafant place, and hath long [been] the feat of the Lairds of Whytfoord of that Ilk; for Walter de Whytfoord is wittnes in a confirmation of the donation of three merks to the convent of Syxle [Thixel?] by King Alexander the Second, the fourteen year of his reign.

They gott the lands of Whytfoord from the Great Stewart, for services done att the battell of the Largs. ⁵

⁴ “Jean Ker Ladie Ralftoun” occurs June 23, 1610.—Test. Hardie in Byris of Ralftoun, Con. Sep. 18, following.—Com. Rec. Glas.

“Hew Ralftoun of p’ Ilk, &c. deceit in the moneth of August, 1613.”—Test. Con. Jan. 13, 1614.—Ibid. This deed is dated “At Wodfyde the xxij day of Maj, 1613.” He constitutes “Jonet Hammiltoun, his spous, his onlie exeo^{ras}” &c. and leaves his “bodie to be bureit at the kirk of Beith.” “Hew Ralftoun his lau’full sone and Jo^{an} Ralftoun his sone” appear as witnesses.

“William Ralftoun younger of p’ Ilk,” who occurs Feb. 1611.—Ibid. appears to have succeeded Hew, said to be his grandfather. Both he and his wife deceased in 1623:—“Test. &c. of William Ralftoun of p’ Ilk [Beith] Quha deceit in the monethe of Julij, 1623; And of vmq^{ie} Barbara Hamiltoun, his spous, Quha deceit in the monethe of October, the yeir of God foirfaid: ffay’fullie maid and gevin vp be William Muir of Glanders-tounne Tuto’ testa’ to Jonet, Barbara, Ifobel, Jeane, Margaret, & Kathrein Ralftounes,” &c. “Exeo^{ras} datives,” &c.—Con. Nov. 19, 1625, John Hamilton of Udfton, cautioner.—Ibid.

William Ralstoun of that Ilk appears in these records May, 1630 (as a creditor of ferme meill’ for the lands of Byris of Ralstoun), Nov. 1646 and March, 1647.

“Johne Quhytfuird of p’ Ilk” is an “o’ifman and o’fear” in the will of John Maxwell of Bulwryis (otherwise Bullerhouse?) Oct. 18. 1595.—Ibid.

“Mr Waltir Q’fuird,” is a creditor in the Test. of Hew Ritchie in Knokindail, Symonton, Ayrshire, June, 1624, of “fyve bollis teynd meill, pe faid year.” Mr Whytford was afterwards Bishop of Brechin, but he appears not ever to have been minister of Symonton.

Just opposite to this, upon the other side of Cart, is the house of BLACKHALL, a very pleasant dwelling, appertaining to Sir Archibald Stewart of Blackhall, barronet,—who have enjoyed it since the time of King Robert the Third, his predecessor having been a natural son of that King. But in regard the Lairds of Blackhall used to reside at Ardgowan, in the parish of Inderkype, this place is less regarded. ⁶

* * * * *

West from Paisley, is a neat little house and dwelling called WOODSYDE, belonging to Hugh Crawford, belonging to Carburn.

Near to this is FERGUSLIE, a very pleasant and convenient dwelling; lately belonging to one Hamilton of the family of Orbistoun, but now to William Cochran of Ferguslie. ⁷

⁶ The following notices of this family occur in the records of the Com. of Glasgow:—

Archibald Stewart of Castlemilk, who died June, 1612, was addebted “To his eyes, Johnne & Jonet Stewartis, laifull bairnes to vmq^l Johnne Stewart of Ardgowane, Thrie thowfand and twa hundrith mkis.” &c.

“Ard. Stewart, fap^r brop^r to pe laird of Blakhall,” appears in a Con. Dec. 9.1617.

“James Stewart Tuto^r of Blakhall” deceased at Paisley in the month of March, 1618. He nominates his wife, Mary Maxwell, “tutrix to his bairnes [not named] during hir weddowheid;” and he ordains, amongst others, his “twa brethir, Patrick & Ard. Stewartes” his trustees.—Test. Con. May 11. 1618.

“Margaret Blair, spous to Archibald Stewart of Ardgowane, &c. deceit in the moneth of August, 1621.”—Test. Con. July 31. 1622, “gevin vp be the said Archibald, In name and behalf of Annabill Stewart [their] eldest laifull dochter,” &c.

“Margaret Wallace, relicf of vmq^l James Stewart of Blakhall” died at Paisley in the month of Feb. 1625.—Test. Con. Sep. 23. 1625.

“Johnne Stewart, brother germane to Archibald Stewart of Ardgowane, [ane young man, vnmareit]” died at Paisley in August, 1627. He nominates John Stewart, his “vnckill” only executor; and “levis to Mathow Stewart, his sone naturall, the fowme of Ane thowfands mkis. Item, To Jonet and Agnes Wallaces, dochteris lauⁿ to Mathow Wallace of Dundonnald, the fowme of 1300 mkis. &c. and annuelrent of said 1300 mkis. To redoune and appertein to Margrat Stewart, his, & thair mother, during hir lyfityme,” &c. Con. Dec. 6, following.

There is a “Lady Ardgowane” of the name of Hoome incidentally occurs in the records, about the year 1645, but the proper reference has been omitted to be noted.

⁷ Jonet Levyngstone, wife of John Hamilton (apparently the ancestor of this family), deceased at Ferguslie, “x^o die mensis Septembris, a^o lij.” [1552].—Test. Con. 12 Dec. following.—Ibid. She appoints her husband, and son, John, executors.—Allane Hamilton

Not far to the west of this is the old decayed house of ELDERSLIE, which was the designation, and is supposed to have been the seat of the renowned Sir William Wallace of Elderlie. It now belongs to Heugh Wallace of Ingleston. After the death of the famous Sir William Wallace, who died without sons, it returned to the family of Craige-Wallace.⁸

West from this is the house of COCHRAN, an old tower house, and was anciently the seat of the family of Cochran; but in respect they have not of Ferguslie appears in Con. Reid, March 11. 1615.—Ibid. He occurs again Jan. 1618.

This family, says Crawford, ended in an heiress, who married John Wallace a son of Elderslie. "John Wallace fear of Ferguslie" occurs frequently inter Nov. 1609 et March, 1618. Oct. 1620, he is designed of Ferguslie. And "John Wallace of Ferguslie" deceased at Paisley in Dec. 1651.—Test. April, 8. 1650—Con. Dec. 11. 1652.—Ibid. He "nominats, &c. James Wallace, his youngest sone, his onlie ex'r. &c. w^t pe special advyse and consent of Margaret Hamiltone, his spous," &c. Amongst others, he appoints "ovirfeeris" "Sir John Hamiltone of Orbifone; Thomas Stewart feare of Barcube, my sone in law; W^m Wallace of Neilstonfyde & Allane Wallace, my sones law^l." He likewise mortifies to the poor "The towme of Fyve hundredth mkis." to be employit for ane yeirly a-rent of Twentie pundis;" and ordains his executors "To furneis for pe said poor, in tyme coming, ane mans & house & yaird at pe Woodnooke of Ferguslie, &c. to put pe poor p^rin for p^r residence," &c.

"Allane Wallace, sone law^l to Joⁿ Wallace of Ferguslie," died Feb. 1651.—Test. Con. June 11. 1651.—Ibid. This bears to be "gevin vpe be pe said John Wallace, fap^r to pe defunct, and James Wallace, youngest broy^r to the defunct, exe^{rs}" &c. and that he was "ane young man, w^m married."

John Wallace younger of Elderslie appears August, 1609.—Ibid. William Wallace younger of Elderslie occurs March, 1618—Test. Stewart tutor of Blakhall, before quoted—and he is so designed frequently afterwards.

"Helein Wallace Lady Elderlie" deceased, in the parish of Symontoun, in June, 1621.—Test. Con. May 28. 1622.—Ibid. "gevin vp be W^m Wallace of Elderlie, hir spous, In name and behalf of Hew Wallace and Eafter Wallace, bairnes law^l to the deid, and ex^{rs}" &c.

leived ther these many years, it is not improved as might be. This family is also old, and chief of the name; for Waldevo de Cochran is witness in ane charter granted be Duff-Gallus, filius Savine, to Walter Stewart Earle of Monteith of the lands of Skipnage and others in Kintire, upon the Wedensday after Saint Hilarie's day, 1262.—William de Cochran is ane subscriber of Ragman Roll in anno 1296.—John de Cochran is witness in ane instrument of creating ane abott in Pasley, anno 1346; and also in ane gift by Robert Earle of Stratharne of [to] the abbacy of Pasley, 1361.

This family continued in the male line untill the beginning of the last age that it fell in ane heires, who married Alexander Blair, sone to the Laird of Blair, who, changing his name to Cochran, became the father of many children, as Sir John Cochran, who was employed in severall foreign embassies; his immediat younger brother, Sir William, afterward Earle of Dundonald; Sir Bryce; Cornell Alexander; Cornell Heugh, and Gavine Cochrane of Craigmuir,—all sensible and judicious men. But the two eldest brothers seemed constantly to contend in two cardinall virtues,—the first in liberality, the second in frugality; for whatever the first gott he liberally parted with it, and whatever the second gott or acquired he frugally and nobely improved, for being a gentleman of the greatest accomplishment for managing affairs that our nation hath produced, he acquired a vast fortune, which he left to his eldest grandfone, and provided all his other children and grand children to plentifull fortunes.⁹

West [east] from this lyes the QUARELTOWNE; a tolerable house and featt. It did appertain to Cunninghame of Quarreltowne, but now to Houftoune of Johnstoune.¹⁰

Besides these, ther are two other gentlemen's dwellings in the south part of this parish,—STAINLY, which belonged to Maxwell, and RAITH

⁹ Indeed the age appears to have beheld with admiration the Earl's frugality, and his success has been celebrated as one of three wonders of the shire, namely, "How Dundonald gathered such an estate,—how Orbistoun spent such an estate,—and how Glencairn lived so handsomely on such an estate."

There is also in this parish, lyand upon Carth, the house belonging to William Dunlop of Howfle, whose grandfather was a sone of the Laird of Dunlop. It is a pretty dwelling, and a reasonable good house.

There is likewise in the northwest part of this parish, upon the watter of Gryph, a very pretty dwelling called WALKINSHAW, which has been long the inheritance of Walkinshaw of that Ilk, chief of his name. It hath been lately acquired by James Walkinshaw merchand in Glasgow, who hath very much improv'd both the house and dwelling,—having a naturall convenience of bringing vessels to it by watter.¹³

Margaret Cunynghame, his daughter, who is also named, married Robert Blair of Lochwood Kilwinning; and she deceased in November, 1618.—Test. Con. Oct. 21. 1619. In which occurs:—"Debtis awand In.—. . . Be W^m Cunynghame of Quarreltonne, of Tocherguid, q^h he is obleift to pay to pe faid Robert w^t the defunct, j^d ij^e li."

Robert was succeeded by his eldest son William, as appears by this document.

"William Cunynghame of Quarreltonne, &c. deceit in the moneth of November, 1630 yeiris." &c.—Test. Con. July 24. 1632. He ordains, &c. "Allex^r Porterfeild of that Ilk & W^m Wallace of Johnestoun Tutouris, gyardaris and governouris to Ro^t, W^m, Johne, Margrat, & Iffobell Cunynghames, his lawⁿ bairnes, during p^r minoritie, being within the aige of xiiij yeiris," &c.

¹¹ "Margaret Maxwell Lady Giffue, and reliēt of vmq^e Duncane Foster of Kilmoir," who deceased at Giffin, Beith, November, 1610, was probably of this family. Her Will—Con. Feb. 17. 1611—is dated "At the Stanlie," and John Maxwell of Stanelie is one of the tutors "to David Foster, her youngest lawⁿ sone," &c.—Ibid.

"Johne Maxwell of Stanelie, &c. deceit in the moneth of Aprile, 1630 yeiris."—Test. Con. Oct. 22 following. Which bears to be "ffay^rfullie maid and gevin vp be Jonet Craufuird, his reliēt, In name and behalf of James Maxwell, p^r lawⁿ bairne and ex^r datine, furrogat," &c. "Jonet Craufuird, Lady Stanelie," appears Feb. 1611.—Ibid. She was daughter of the Laird of Ferme.

"Johne Maxwell younger of Stanelie" is a debtor to James Hamilton, the wealthy provost of Glasgow, 1633.

¹² John Logan elder and younger of Rais occur frequently inter 1613 et 1622.—Com. Rec. Glas.

Upon the other fyde upon the river Gryph, but within the parish of Pasley, is situat the houfe of BLACKSTOUN, near unto that river. It was anciently a summer retirement of the monks of Pasley; but the houfe and gardens were very much improv'd by the Earles of Abercorne. It is a very good and a pleafant featt, if it were not reckoned too moist, by its too nearnefs to the river. It hath the conveniency of that river for importing what is convenient from Clyde, and fo from the fea.

This lands came to the Earle of Abercorne with the lordship of Pasley; and was fold by him to the Laird of New-warke, and from New-wark's fone it came to Napier, now of Blackftoun.¹⁴

The Earle of Dundonall is both titular and patron of this great parish. Mr Thomas Brown is prefent minifter,—wanting a coleague for the time, though they have been in ufe to have two minifters, and both of them well provided.

RANFREW.

This parish lyeth to the northeast of Pasley. It is bounded upon the east by the parochin of Govan, within the shirrefdom of Lanerk, upon the north by the river of Clyde, and upon the west and northwest by the rivers of Gryph and Carth, and upon the south and southwest by the parish of Pasley.¹ In this parish is feated the town of RANFREW, described as above.

“ Petir Walkinchaw of Bornehill, w'in the parochin of Inchynnane, Quha deceist in the moneth of Auguft, 1630,” nominates, &c. “ James Walkinchaw of p' Ilk, Mr Johne Walkinchaw of Garturk, & Mr James Walkinchaw of Kirklie (?)” his executors, &c.—Con. A litle below the town of Ranfrew, near to the falling of Gryph into Clyde, is feated the RANFIELD, one of the most singularly pleafant places in all this neighbourhood. The houfe, though good, is not repute fuitable to the fynes of the dwelling. It hath large gardens, well planted, both with fruit trees and barren timber, and other conveniences of good office houfes, warehoufes, herrinhoufes. It formerly belonged to the Hays, but now to Colin Campbell merchand in Glasgow.

Ther is here ane gentleman, of no great fortune, but repute chief of his name, called Hall of Fulber, who ufwaly leaves in Ranfrew.²

It is a most singularly pleafant and well situat place; well planted with barren timber, and notable orchards and gardens; but in regard the Earles of Marr had their ordinary residence att Aloway, it was not so improven as the fynnes of the feat did deserve. It was purchased from the family of Marr by Sir John Hamiltone of Orbistoune, justice clerk and one of the fenators of the coledge of justice, about the year Thirty eight [1638]; and is now sold by his grandchild to the Lord Blantyre, who havinge gott great fowmes of money from the Dutches of Richmond and Lennox, his cousine, he hath not only purchased this, but many other valuable lands.

There are some considerable gentlemen in this parish, who hold ther lands of this lordship of Arskine, as Brisbane laird of Bishoptowne, chief of his name, and lyeth upon Clyde; but in respect he hath not his residence att this place, but in the parish of Larggs, in Cunninghame, att Brisbanetowne, the place hath not been improven fuitable to the pleafantnes of it. The kirk of Arkinne is ane laick patronage, and one of the kirks of the chapter of Glasgow; and the present heretour is both titular and patron—Mr _____ is present minister. He is master and heretour of the two considerable passages upon Clyde, one, called the Broad ferry, opposite to Dumbarton, and the other at Kilpatrick.

KILMACOLM.

This is a great parish, and severall considerable heretours in it.¹ The first is the Earle of Glencairn, who lives at Finlathoun. This is ane very old and ancient family. Their old inheritance seems to have been at Kilmaurs, in Cunninghame. They gott thir lands of Finlathoun, and Kilmarronock, by marrying of the daughter of _____ Danielstoun, in the time of King Robert the Third. It hath been many years the feat of this noble family. It is a pleasant dwelling, a fyne house, well planted, with good inclosures and gardens, lyand not far from the river of Clyde, a litle the opposite of Dumbarton castle.

The predecessors of this Earle are frequently mentioned in the cartulary of Pasley, wherein Fergus de Cunninghame and Malcolm, his sone and heir, resign all thir lands in Kilpatrick to Maldoven Earle of Lennox: and when that Earle disposes these lands to Pasley, they are specified, and called Dundrinnans; and Fergus is designed filius Cunningh. Immediatly after, in the Inquest of seven men, about the lands of Monakineran, Fergus filius Cuninghameis [appears], of the Junij a^o 1233.

Oct. 10. 1651. Thomas Stewart fear of Barscube married a daughter of John Wallace of Ferguslie.—Ibid.

Laftly, in a gift of a nett upon the watter of Leven by Earle Maldowin, this Fergus is defigned filius Cunninghame: all thefe under King Alexander Second.

Robertus, fone and heir of Sir Robert de Cuninghame, is wittnes in the confirmation of the lands of Inglistoun by Thomas, fone of Adam Carpentarius; which is thought, by the co-wittneffes, John of Knox and Thomas of Fultown, to have been under King Alexander Third.

Sir James of Cuninghame is wittnes in a charter by Walter Stewart of Scotland of the kirk of Larggs to Pasley, dated the 3d of February, 1318.—Sir William de Cuninghame is wittnes in the confirmation of the lands of Thornly, 1404, wherein he is defigned of Kilmars; as alfo in a permiffion by Sir John Blair to draw watter through his lands of Adamtoun, in Kyle, to the milne of Monktonne, quhairin he is defigned Vicecomes de Air, 1390.

This man his fucceffor was created Lord of Kilmarrs by King James the Second, in anno 1445. And his fucceffor was created Earl of Glencairne by King James the Third, in anno 1488.

Ther was long a litigious debate between this Earle's fucceffors and the Earles of Eglintoun for precedency; for albeit Glencairne was Earle 28 May, 1488, and Eglintoun only in anno 1506,—yet it was contended for Eglintoun, That by ane Aët of parliament in the firft year of King James the Fourth, that all honours conferred by King James the Third, after the 2 day of February, 1488 years, fhould be void; and that Glencairne could only pretend to the dignity of an Earle from the year 1525, that he gott ane new charter defigning him Earle.

To this it was answered for the Earle of Glencairne, That by evidents produced for him, not only Alexander, bot his father [fon], Robert, fone to Alexander Earle of Glencairne, who got the [title], is defigned Earle, who lived only one year after his firft patent and his father's death,—who was killed in the field with King James the Third [but which] could not prejudge him: For,

2^d By aët of parliament, in the end of the year 1488, all the fones of thefe who were killed with King James the Third are allowed to be ferved heirs to ther fathers, they expeding ane warrand under the privy feall to the Director of the chancellary for granting of ther briefes

(which were to be granted gratis, but which quality is thereafter dispensed with by a subsequent act, appointing all briefes to be expedite in the common form, without any innovation). Lykeas, in the year 1489, many of these who had been with King James the Third, and received dignities from him, were continued in public employments by his sone, some on the council, some on the session, and some in the exchequer, viz. in the Black Acts, the Duke of Montrose [Earle of Crawford], the Earle of Lennox, Lord Leill, Lord Borthwick; and Alexander Scott, clerk register, is restored the said year, 1489, and made a Lord of the exchequer; Robert Colvill of Hilltown, director of the chancellor—and William Hebron, vicar of Linlithgow, was removed and putt out of his place by his return.

3^o In the parliament held the 8th of November, 1505, Glencairne sits Earle, and Eglintoun as Lord Montgomery; and in another sederunt, the 3d of February, 1505 [1506] Glencairne sits as Earle, and Eglintoun Lord, as was clear by the papers produced at that time.

Upon these and some other grounds, the Earle of Glencairne was preferred to the precedency, by a decret of the Lords of council and session, in anno 1648.

What other estate belongs to this family is not here to be mentioned, as not laynd within this shyre. ²

West from Finlaystoun, lyes NEWARK, which has been long the seat of a very considerable gentleman's family of the name of Maxwell, descended of the family of Calderwood, in Lanerkschyre. Thir lands of Newark did anciently belong to Daniellstoun; and Calderwood having married the co-heir of that family got these and many other lands with her. And gave thir lands of Newark to a second sone, in whose successors it became a very opulent and considerable family; so far as Sir Patrick Maxwell, late of Newark, left the estate of Newark to his eldest sone; the estate of

And it is now called New Glasgow, and is a place of much trade and resort, especially when the herring fishing falls to be in Clyde, for the river att this place is fyve or

³ The following representative of the family of Newark seems wholly to have escaped the notice of Mr Crawford. The time and tenor of this document might lead to a conjecture that the individual had perished in the unhappy carnage of Pinkie:—

John Maxwell of Dargavil, mentioned here, is probably the first of that branch. Crawford indeed derives them from Newark, but seems mistaken in chronology. Our author may not have obtained materials relative to Dargavil. Some notices of this and other omissions may be supplied in the Appendix.

fix miles broad. This place is so increased with people, that they have now built a church there, at which is present minister.

The next considerable heritor in this parish is the laird of Dowhill, or Porterfield of that ilk, who enjoys a considerable estate in this parish.

Thir lands of Dowhill did anciently belong to the Lord Leill, who was long a good family in thir parts. Rodolphus de Infula, or de Leill, is wittnes in severall charters granted by King William, and mortifications of Innerkype and Mearns; and in a mortification of two chalders meall for a priest to pray for the soul of Robert Bruce, by Walter sone of Allan.—William de Isle is wittnes in the charter of Old Patrick granted by Walter sone of Allan, dapifer.

He is designed Lord Leill in a grant of the fishing of Crooked-Shott to Pasley, 1452. Robert Lord Leill is wittnes in the erection of the town of Pasley in a burgh of barony by King James the Fourth, 1488. He is on of the Lords of Council at the pronouncing of a decret against Sir John Ross of Halkhead anent the lands of Auld Inglistoune, 1490.

Not long after this, that family haveing decayed, the lands or lordship of Dowhill came to Porterfield of that ilk. It is a bigg old house, much of it of late having become ruinous; well planted with barren timber, but none of the pleafantest featts. Thir firname was anciently Porter, and are so designed witnesses in charters granted in the reign of King William. Thereafter, I find Robert Porter dominus de Porterfield confirms a mortification granted be Steven Porter, his father, 1399. And William Porter is wittnes in an instrument betwixt Robert bishop of Glasgow and George abbot of Pasley, 1485. ⁴

The house of Newark, a demi-fortified building and exhibiting much of the ornament of its time, is still preserved and partly inhabited. It stands on the margin of the water, close by Port Glasgow. Over the entrance is this inscription:—THE BLISSIN OF GOD BE HEIRIN, 1597. But part of it is certainly more ancient.

This is no great parish.¹ It lyeth betwixt the parishes of Ardkine, Kilmacolmb, Greenock, Kilbarchan, and Houftoun, in none of the choicest places of this countrey; neither is ther any gentleman now residing in this parish, except Barrochan, who hath been very long a distinct family of the name of Fleming. William Fleming of Barrochan was one of the arbiters betwixt the Abbott of Pasley and town of Ranfrew anent the customs, in anno 1488.²

There is also in this parish the house of BOOGHALL, a considerable house, and was a separate family of the name of Fleming; but now belongs to the Earle of Dundonald, who doth not preserve the house.³

The tiends of this parish did also belong to the lordship of Pasley. M^r James Hutchifone is present minister.

GREENOCK.

About two miles down from Newark, upon the river of Clyde, is the house, town and parish of Greenock. This parish is of no old erection. But the Lairds of Greenock having given encouragement to build, leave and inhabit there, that the town so increased as the Laird was encouraged to build a church there; and gott severall lands disjoyned from neighbouring parishes, which makes up this parish of Greenock.¹ And the town of Greenock is now erected in a burgh of baronie; hath a good harbour for vessels, and is become a place of considerable trade, and is like more and more to increase, as specially if the herring fishing continue in the river of Clyde: for as that fishing necessarily follows the sweaming of the herring, so when they sweam in Clyde or in the lochs adjoining to it, as frequently they doe towards the end of the year, it occasions a confluence of many thousands of people to these pairts, which yearly continowes a considerable space.

The laft Laird of Greenock, Sir John Schaw, did wonderfully augment his fortune, fo as he left one of the beft gentlemen's eftate to his fone in all that country.

This family of Greenock is defcended, not many ages fince, of the family of Sawchy, in Clackmananfhyre, and is repute the next heir male of that family; and he hath lately purchafed the eftate of Sawchie. It is erected in a burgh of barrony, and hath a very convenient harbour for veffels. It belongs to the Laird of Carfeburn, Crawford, who is brother fone to the Laird of Jordanhill, who hath a convenient houfe and dwelling ther, att CARSEBURN.—The town is moftly fubfewed to merchands, feamen, or loadingmen, who have built very good houfes in it; and is a very thriving litle place.³

GOUROCK. This place lyeth two miles down Clyde below Greenock. It appertains to Sir William Stewart of Castlemilk. He has here a convenient house, and a thriving little town upon the shore, where he hath built a very fyne and secure harbour for vessels. And though this be a very convenient place, yett in regard he lives att Castlemilk, in the sheriffdome of Lanerk, it is not so improven as it might be. This gentleman his prediceffor was a sone of the family of Darnly, in the tyme of King Robert the Second; and hath continowed a distinct family of good reputation sinceyne.

And, by a treaty betwixt the Commissioners of both kingdoms upon the Borders, on the 19 Junij, 1398, Sir William Stewart of Castlemilk is appoynted one of the guardians for preserving the peace of the Borders. And upon the 19 day of Junij, 1414, Sir William Stewart of Castlemilk is ane wittnes in the mortification granted by Arch. This parish doeth almost all appertain to the Laird of Houston. It lyes betwixt the parishes of Kilmacolm, Killalene, Arskine, and Kilbarchan.

There is no gentleman in this parish, beside the Laird of Houston; so it is reputed very old. And the house of Houston is a very greatt old house, expressing both the greatnes and antiquity of its owners. It hath been much improved and finished of late; and is a very considerable and convenient dwelling, and now belongs to Sir John Houftone of that Ilk, knight barronet, a man of a great and opulent fortune. The place is well planted with barren timber, with good gardens and inclosures.

This family is come of Baldwin de Bigeris, who is wittnes in the first mortification by Walter, dapifer, the founder of Pasley; and in the mortification of the kirks of Innerweek and Legerwood; as also in the kirks of Stragryph; and the kirk of Inverkype; and in severall other charters, all in the reign of King William. And in the confirmation by that king of lands [granted] by Walter, the founder, to Ricardus, filius Heugonis. Of this filius Heugonis proceeds the firname of Hewstone, as appears by ane agreement made anent the lands of Auchinhofe, quhairin he is designed filius Heugonis, & miles, 1225, and in the 11 year of Alexander Second,—in whose reign he is severall times wittnes, as in the exchange of Killingtown for Inverweek, and in the first mortification of the house of Sempryngham. This Hugo is wittnes to the furrender of the kirk of Neillstoune by Robert Crock in the reign of Alexander Second:—Alexander, filius Heugonis, is in the inquest of the lands of Monakinaran, beyde Killpatrick, in the year 1233, in the reign of King Alexander Second. ¹

KILBARCHAN.

This is a considerable parish; is bounded by Lochwhinyeoch to the south-west, Pasley to the south, Houstone to the north and north-west.

The considerable heritors in this parish are: William Cunningham of Craigens, lyand upon the watter of Gryph; a good house, well planted, and a convenient dwelling. He is lineally descended of a lawful brother of the family of Glencairn.²

In this parish is also the old, and now decayed house of RAMPHORDLY, belonging to Knox of Ramphordly, a very old family. John of Knock is frequently a witness in the writs of the monasterie of Pasley, JOHNSTONE. This is a very pleasant and desirable place, not far from the water of Black Carth; a good old house; good old planting, gardens and inclosures. FULLWOOD. This is a very pleasant and convenient dwelling, being the featt of the Laird of Fullwood, Semple, who are said to be old; for William Semple of Fullwood is wittnes to the donation of the fishing of Crockedfhott by Robert Lord Leill to the monasterie of Pasley, 1452.—John Semple of Fulwood is one of the Arbiters betwixt the Abbott of Pasley and town of Ranfrew, anent the customs.⁶

His children appear to have been: William, who succeeded; John; Mr Hew; Patrik; James, “no^{rius} publicus,” and Robert, designed of “Nap^r Maynes.” “Robert Huntare yo^r of Hunterstone, his sone in law,” appears as a wittnes.

“The last vestige of the old Auchinames castle was barbarously erased by a new proprietor, to make way for his new house, within these two years.”—Paisley Mag. p. 316. pub. June 2. 1828. And the Editor complains of a similar “barbarity” having been committed on the old castle of Cochrane, at a period almost as recent. We fear the catalogue might be fearfully swelled by a very little inquiry. But the time is surely not far distant when these gentlemen must learn that in these monuments their own advantage is inseparably united with that of the national interest; and that such relics, however ruinous or unshapely they may seem to be, possess an attraction which it were vain to hope to supplant by any embellishment whatever.

INVERKYPE.

This parish lyes upon the coast side, betwixt the parishes of Greenock and Larggs.¹ It doeth now for most part appertain unto Sir Archibald Stewart of Blackhall, barronet, who hath here a very good house; well planted with fyne gardens and inclosures. He is linealy descended of a naturall sone of King Robert the Third; and gott the barrony of ARGOWAN, which is his messuage, from that King.

Befides which, his prediceffors had acquired severall other lands in this parish, as the lands of DUNROAD, which belonged to Lindsay of Dunroad, whose prediceffor is believed to be that Lindsay who was with King Robert Bruce when he killed John Cumin in the kirk of Dumfrise, which is the more probable because not long thereafter he gott an hundred merk land in the parish of Kilbryde, in Clydesdale.

Blackhall acquired also the lands of FLATTERTOUN,² CHRISTS-

The tiends of this parish were also a pair of the lordship of Pasley. The present minister is LOCHWHINYECH.

This is a great parish. The most considerable heritor in it is the Lord Semple, who hath long kepted ther residence att the house of Castle Semple, situat upon ane fresh watter loch, near three miles long, and half ane mile broad, called Lochwhinyeoch or the Loch of Castle Semple. The house is very old, to which there are now added some very good lodgeable rooms. It is well planted with barren timber, and good inclosures. The loch belongs in property to the Lord Semple, who lately indeavouring to drain it, hath recovered great quantitys of meadow ground along the head and sides of it, and it is thought that ther may be yet more gained of it.

This hath been long a family of good estimation. His prediceffors gott from King Robert Bruce all the lands in the parish of Larggs which

James Banatyne, brother to Kellie, married a daughter of Robert Boyd of Portincross, by his wife Jeane Montgomery, daughter of Sir Robert Montgomery of Skelmurlie,—CRAWFURD'S Gen. Col. MS. Ad. Lib. "Jeane Montgomerie, spous to Robert Boyd of Portincors, &c. deceift Dec. 1621."—Com. Rec. Glas.

⁵ The account of this parish would seem to be amongst the least perfect of our author's descriptions, though there are no doubt omissions in all. The lands of Lunderston appear to have been in the hands of small portioners, holding of the crown, shortly after the Reformation:—These little lairds, in all likelihood, were previously church vassals. "Johnne Cryttifvöll younger, ane of the portioneris of Lunderftoun," deceased in 1606; and James Jamefoune another of these "portioneris" appears in 1615.—Ibid. "Johnne Hyndman in Lunderftoun, wⁱⁿ the parochin of Innerkip, &c. deceift October, 1612."—Test. Con. Jan. 3. 1614.—Ibid. "Gevin vp be Elifoun Scheirer, his spous, In name & behalf of Archibald, Heçtour, Violat, Jonet, Kathrein, Margaret, & Mareoun Hyndmanis, lawⁿ bairnes to pe defunct," &c. "Alexander Hyndman," probably John's successor, "Joⁿ Crefwall and James Tailyeour, all portioneris of Lunderftoun," occur May 22. 1646.—Ibid.

These notices have some slight interest in reference to the labours of a late historian of Renfrewshire; in whose pages certain of these humble portioners have assumed a dignity which even the ingenuity of a Chatterton could hardly have equalled. But another Saltfoot Controversy would doubtless here be out of place.

formerly belonged to John Ballioll ; and accordingly the lands of Southennan in that parish hath appertained to that family since.¹

Robert Semple is wittnes in ane agreement between the monasterie of Pasley and the town of Ranfrew, 1313 ; and in the collation of the kirk of Laggis, 1318. And William Semple is wittnes in the ratification of Kilpatrick granted be Malcolm Earle of Lennox, 1330.

His prediceffor was nobilitat by King James the Third in the last year of his reigne, 1488. William [John] Lord Semple is one of the aetorneys for Robert abbott of Pasley, 1497.—He is designd nobilis et potens dominus, Gulielmus dominus Semple, in ane infeftment of the fishing of Lynbryne, granted be John Earle of Lennox to Pasley, 1521.—John Semple is also wittnes to the Laird of Lamond his quitting of the patronage of Killinan [Kilfinan] to Pasley ; and to the license to few lands about Pasley, 1488.

The Lord Semple and his prediceffors were long heretable sherriffs of the sherriffdome of Ranfrew ; and heretable baylies of the regality of Pasley, which they parted with as above.

Ther was here ane collegiatt kirk founded by this family, called the Provestry of Castle Semple, to which the tiends of Glaffoord, in Clydefdale, and some land in Farnyayes were annexed.

The monasterie of Pasley had the fourtie pound land of Glens in this parish, all now fewed out by the Earles of Abercorn and Dundonall ; are now holden of the Earle of Dundonall.

BARR is in this parish, belonging to Hamilton of Barr ; a pleasant featt, and a tolerable house ; fituat not far from the loch.²

¹ The lands of Southannan were annexed to the parish of Kilbryde about the year 1650.

“ Dame Hamiltoune, spons to ane nobill Lord, Hew Lord Sempill, &c. deceit [at Southendand] in the moneth of Junij, 1619,” &c.—Test. Con. July 6. 1621.—Com. Rec. Glas. Which bears to be “ maid, &c. be the said Hew Lord Sempill, In name and behalf of Mareoune & Anna Sempillis, lau'full bairnes to pe defunct,” &c.

² Our author, it will be perceived, though mild withal, is still a clansman in the spirit of the day. The more ancient family of Glen of Bar appears to have held these lands off the monastery of Paisley. They are part of the lordship of Glen, whence possibly the vassal derived his cognomen—it may be in virtue of an office? Crawford gives a very satisfactory notice of this family. “ James Glen of the Bar and his sones,” who leagued with the Ha-

There are very many other heritors in this parish, and almost all of them hold of the Earle of Dundonall.

The Lord Boyd hath Gavin and Risk in this parish. The Laird of Ralston hath the lands of Auchingown. Blackhall hath also some lands in this parish.

The tiends of this parish belonged to the abbacie of Paisley. Dundonall is both now titular and patron; and [John] Paisley is present minister.

NEILSTOUN.

This parish lies betwixt the parishes of Paisley, Mairns, Dunlop, and Beith.¹ It is no great parish. But the considerablest interest in it did belong to the family of Lennox, as lords of Darnley; and was, a considerable time since, sold to the Earle of Dundonall, who hath since fewed out the same to the tenants.

Muir of Glanderftoun, a cadie of this family of Caldwell, is in this parish. It is a good house, lately built; well planted, and good inclosures. The present heritor is William Muir of Glanderftoun, next heir to the family of Caldwell, after the present lady heires, who hath no children.³

LITTLE CALDWALL, or Caldwell of that Ilk, was repute old in this parish. It is a tolerable good houfe and featt, and is lately acquired by the Earle of Dundonall.⁵

Wallace of Neilstounfide hath a reasonable good houfe and dwelling in this parish.

The tiends of this parish belonged to the lordship of Pasley. The Earle of Dundonall is present titular and patrone, and is minister.

This is a considerable lordship and parish; and hath Neilstoune and Eastwood to the north, northeast and northwest; Killbryde in Clydefdale to the east; Eglisbam to the foutheast; and Stewarton to the fouthwest.¹

"Jonet Dowglas, relic^t of the defunct," is also named. His grandson, descended of a previous marriage, appears to have succeeded to the

The house is ane old castle, situated upon a rock ; and hath long appertained to the Lord Maxwell and his prediceffors. To whom a great part of it appertained in property, and the rest of it was fewed out to some considerable vassals.

This family seem to be very old ; for Harber de Maxwell is wittnes in two charters by King William, both dated at Selcraig, Given by Walter, dapifer. Homer Maxwell is wittnes in a donation of the kirks of Dundonall and Sanchir to Pasley by Walter the Great Stewart, in the tyme of King Alexander the Second. Dominus Harbertus de Maxwell is wittnes in ane tranfaction about the lands of Aldhouse, 1284. Harber de Maxwell, miles, mortifies eight acres of land in Newtoun of Mairns to Pasley, and 10 merks out of the milne of Mairns, in the time of Alexander the Third, in which John Maxwell of Nether Pollock is wittnes.

It is very long since this family was nobilitat and created Lord Maxwell,—as is said, in the time of King James the Second ; was a considerable family, and had their residence upon the West Border, att Carloverock. He was created Earle of Mortoun by King James the Sixth, 1581, after the forfaulter of Regent Mortoun ; but his successors being restored in 1585, they lost the title of Mortoun, and were thereafter created Earles of Nithsdale, with precedency conform to the prior patent.²

Hamiltoun, Laird of Prestoun, had a considerable interest in this parish called FINGERTOUN ; a litle house, well planted ; but they having ther ordinary residence in Lothian, occasioned this to be neglected. Thir lands were given by the Lord Maxwell's prediceffors to John Hamiltoun, prediceffor to Prestoun, for his recovering the house of Carloverock from the English, in the time of King Robert Bruce ; and continowed holden of the family of Maxwell untill the year 1648, Prestoun obtained them holden of the King.

Maxwells of Nether Pollock, though no allusion to this reverend gentleman's office is made in the published genealogy of that family.

“ M' David Gemmill preichare of God's Word at pe kirk of Mearnes, &c. deceissit July, 1651.”—Test. Con. Oct. 8, thereafter.—Ibid. “ Gevin vp be Eli' Montgomerie, reliēt of pe defunct, and ex^{tra} datiuē, surrogat,” &c.

² The old tower of Mearns is still standing, and is very carefully and properly preserved by the present proprietor, Sir Michael Shaw Stewart of Blackhall, Bart.

Not far from this is the house and castle of OVER POLLOCK, or Pollock of that Ilk, seated upon an eminence and overlooking all the country below it. The house was an old tower, but very much improved by the present heretor, Sir Robert Pollock, baronet, who hath made a very fine house; well finished, with great conveniences.

This hath been long a good family, and appears to have been very old. Robertus filius Fulberti (called afterwards Pollock) is witness in the donation of the kirks of Strath-Gryfe and Inverweck by Walter, dapifer, founder of Paisley, in the beginning of the reign of King William. He is also a witness in the confirmation of Walter his foundation by his son Allan, dapifer; and in several others of that Allan his charters thereafter. He is also in the mortification of the lands of Mola by Eschina, wife to Walter the founder. And in the donation of the kirk of Mairns by Helias Pollock, his brother, [appear?] all his brethren, viz. Peter or Perez de Pollock, Helias is also designed filius Fulberti, and another Helias de Pollock. This Peter and Helias do mortify the kirks of Mairns and of Pollock to the monastery of Paisley in the reign of King William.

Robert son of Robert Laird of Pollock, mortifies a yearly rent for the soul of Peter de Pollock, and Robert son of Fulbert, his predecessor. This Robert filius Roberti de Pollock, is in the confirmation by Peter son to Fulbert, whose wife was Helen: this is also in the reign of King William.

Thomas de Pollock is witness in many charters in the reigns of Alexander the Second and Alexander the Third.³

³ The Pollocks of Balgray Crawford states to be descended of this family, though his statement seems to be but slenderly supported.

"Geillis Pollock & Alex^r Pollock of Balgray, now his spouse for his entres," occur, as debtors, in the Will of William Henryson, Paisley, June, 1606.—Con. Jan. 8. 1607.—Com. Rec. Glas.

"David Pollock of Balgray, &c. deceit Aprile, 1631."—Test. Con. June 20, following.—Ibid. He constitutes "Robert Pollock, his youngest son, his ex^r, &c. Charles Pollock, his son, also appears. Johne Pollock of Balgray frequently occurs afterwards.—Ibid. And "Johne

About the year [16]48, the Earle of Nithsdale parted with this baronie of Mairns to Sir George Maxwell of Nether Pollock, who not long thereafter sold it to the Laird of Blackhall; and these two did subfew the most part of it to small heretors, to be holden of themselves, and for payment of considerable few duties. The ten pound land of Dripps, in Killbryde, is a part of this baronie of Mairns, and belongs to the Laird of Calderwood.

The tiends of this parish are a part of the lordship of Pasley. The Laird of Blackhall is titular and patron. The present minister is

EASTWOOD.

This is no great parish.¹ The lands of Eastwood hath long appertained to the family of Eglintoun, where he hath a very litle house, and a fyne park, inclosed with stone, not far from the church.

But ther is in this parish the house and lands of NETHER POLLOCK, belonging to Sir John Maxwell, barronet, one of the senators of the college of justice. It stands upon the river of Carth, in a fertile soyle; fin-

This family is reputed to be very old. I have feen John Maxwell of Nether Pollock ane wittnefs in the mortification granted be Herbert de Maxwell, miles, of eight acres of land in Mairns, and ten merk of annuity out of the milne of Mairns to the monafterie of Pafley. John Maxwell of Nether Pollock is alfo wittnes in the gift granted be Robert Earle of Stratharne, and Great Stewart of Scotland, of Sir William Muir his lands to the Abbott of Pafley, 1362. Ther is alfo ane charter, granted by Robert the Second, to Sir John Maxwell of Pollock and Ifabell Lindfay, his fpoufe, lawfull daughter to Sir David Lindfay of Crawford and Mary daughter to that king, of the lands of Badenoul and Badinheath, in Stratharn, and difponed by him to the Laird of Glenaigis, At Edinburgh, the 6th of May, 1388.²

HERE LYES THE BODY OF PATRICK MAXWELL SON OF JOHN MAXWELL OF ALLHOUSE MERCH^t TAYLOR WHO DIED DEACON CONVEENER SEP^r 1623 & BESSY BOYD HIS SPOUSE.

HERE LYES THE BODY OF Y^r REV^d M^r ROBERT MAXWELL WHO SERVED CHRYS^t IN THE WORK OF Y^r GOSPEL AT MONK-TOUN & PRESTICK FROM 1640 TO 1665 WHEN HE WAS EJECTED FOR NON CONFORMITY & AFTER THAT EXERCISED HIS MINISTRY PARTLY THERE PARTLY IN THIS CITY & THE COUNTRY ROUND TILL MARCH 26, 1686 WHEN HE FELL ASLEEP IN CHRIST AT BOGTOUN HOUSE IN CATHCART AGED 75: & ROBERT MAXWELL HIS SON & EUPHAN PATON HIS SPOUSE: & BELONGS TO M^r PATRICK MAXWELL MINISTER AT INCHENNAN.

AND NOW TO HIS SON THE REV^d M^r THOMAS MAXWELL MINISTER OF STEWARTON, 1777.

The death of the above respectable citizen appears also in Trochrig's Obituary:—"This fame moneth [Sep. 1623], died at Glasgow my good friend Patrick Maxwell, baillie there, after he had built a good house there."

The house which seems here alluded to is situated in High Street, near the cross. It appears to have undergone very little change externally; and may be identified by the builder's paternal achievements, impaled with those of his wife—a daughter of the family of Portincross, still remaining in front. He was maternally descended of Dunlop of Hapland; and to this the distinctive double headed eagle in the shield seems to refer, whilst it is corroborative of the fact.—See Hist. of Renf. last ed. p. 283. An exact drawing of this curious family relic is here placed in the margin.

The testament of "Patrik Maxwell," who "deceit September, 1623," is Con. Feb. 2. 1624.—Com. Rec. Glas. Bearing to be "gevin vp be Bessie Boyd, his relic^t, In name, &c. of George and Agnes Maxwellis, p^r law^l bairnes," &c. "Johne Maxwell, eldest law^l sone to pe defunct," also appears.

His relic^t married secondly a son of the Bishop of Argyle, whom she likewise survived:—"M^r Adam Boyd, sone law^l to wmq^{ll} M^r Andro Boyd, sumtyme Bisshop of Argyle, &c. deceit in Majj, 1649."—*Test. And in the mortification of a plough of land in Inverweek by Nigellus de Constantine; and in the mortification of the fishing of Linbryne by Maldowin Earle of Lennox, 1205. All thir are in the reign of King William.

Allan de Montgomery is in two charters of Allan sone of Walter, the founder of Pasley: the first confirming all deeds done by his father; the second, of fyve merks yearly payed him by the monks of Mellrofs for Mauchlane. He is also wittnes in the donation of Henry of St Martine of his lands of Strath-Gryphe; and in the confirmation of the kirk of Pollock by Florentius elect bishop of Glasgou: all in the reign of King William.

Allanus de Montgomery is wittnes in the first charter granted be Walter the sone of Allan, oye to the founder, before he was Great Stewart, of the lands betwixt Old Patrick and Espadie. He is also in the liberty granted to the monks of Pasley to choose ane abbott by the said Walter, after he was Great Stewart. Thir are in the time of Alexander the Second. Allan is also in the charter of Malcolm Lockquhart of six acres of land in Seimontoun.

Robert de Montgomery and John, his brother, are wittnes in the exchange of Killingtoun for Inverweek.

John of Montgomery, miles, is in the first assignation to the convent of Syxle [Thixel?] and in the three charters of Sempryngham: all by Walter, Senescallus. This John, with one Hector before him, is in the second gift given to Syxle: all reg. Alex. 2^d Dominus Johannes de Montgomery, miles, is in the seall of Ald Inglistoun by Adam Carpenter, under Alexander the Third.

“Nobilis vir Johannes de Montgomery dominus de Eglifham” is wittnes to the appeal by the convent of Pasley against Mathew bishop of Glasgou, 1388, reg. Rob. 2^d

EGLINTOUN. “Dominus Hugo de Eglintoun, dominus ejusdem, miles,” is wittnes to the gift of all lands belonging to Sir Reginald More by Robert Stewart Earle of Strathern, anno 1361, reg. Da. 2^d

Hugo de Eglintoun, miles, is amongft the amicable compositors of that plea betwixt Pasley and Sir William More anent Sympryngham, 1373, reg. Rob. 2^d

FURTHER NOTICES RELATIVE TO THE PRECEDING ACCOUNT OF RENFREWSHIRE.

BELTREES.—The Sempills of Beltrees are distinguished by a kind of hereditary affiance to letters and the muses, and various eminently successful effusions have been ascribed to individuals of the family. There can be no doubt that a careful collection of their poetical writings, accompanied with memoirs of the writers, would prove highly acceptable and useful to Scottish literature; and this it is gratifying to learn, has in some measure been promised by a gentleman of the neighbourhood—one whose acquaintance and acquirements in all that relates to the mysteries of minstrelsy must make the subject peculiarly his own, cannot fail to ensure the most satisfactory result of his labours. In the records from which so much has previously been introduced, some slight notices of this family occur:—

“Geillis Elphingstone Lady Bultreis” incidentally appears July, 1611. This Lady was wife of Sir James Sempill of Beltrees, and sister of Sir George Elphingstone of Blythswood. She died at Paisley in the month of September, 1618.—Test. Con. June 4. 1633. Her children by Sir James appear to have been: Robert, who succeeded his father, George, Margaret, Issobell, Mareoun, and Geillis. The two elder daughters were married, one to Campbell of Ardkinlas, the other to the Laird of MacFarlane—George, Mareoun, and Geillis seem to have been under age at their mother's decease.

Sir James Sempill died at his house in Paisley, Feb. 1625.—TROCHRIG'S Obituary.

“Robert Sempill of Beltries and Dame Marie Lyon, his spouse,” are named in the testament of Robert Brisbane, son to Brisbane of Bishopton.—Con. Aug. 4. 1646.—Rec. ut supra. Mary Lyon was daughter to Sir Thomas Lyon of Auldbar—her sister Elizabeth was wife of the above Robert Brisbane, whom she survived.

BLACKSOLM.—John Lindsay of Blacksolme appears in the Will of Maxwell of Bulross, Oct. 1595.—Ibid. He died in June, 1618.—Test. Con. Jan. 12. 1619.—Ibid. Agnes Stewart, his spouse, and Robert Lindsay, his son, executors.

“M^r George Lindfay of Blakholme, minister at Roifnaith, the tyme of his deceis,” died in November, 1644.—Test. Con. Feb. 4. 1645.—Ibid. “Gevin vp be M^r Robert & Walter Lindfayis, lauⁿ fones to the defunct,” &c.

BREDIELAND.—“Arthour Maxwell of Bradieland” deceased in 1606.—Test. Con. inter 1607 et 1609.—Ibid. "Hew Maxwell of Brydiland" appears in a Con. Nov. 2. 1627.—Ibid.—"Gawand Maxwell of Braidilandis" appears Aug. 4. 1646.—Con. of that date.—Ibid.

BRUNTSCHIELS.—William Sempill of Brunscheillis appears August, 1603.—Ibid. Hew and James Sempill, sons to William Sempill of Bruntscheillis, occur Jan. 1616.—Conf. Aug. 2, following.—Ibid. William was dead April, 1617.—Con. Sept. 5, that year.—Ibid. Andro Sempill of Bruntscheillis is named Oct. 1620.—Con. March 7. 1621.—Ibid.

CAIRNCURRAN.—Gabriel Cuninghame of Carncurane appears often inter Oct. 18. 1595 et Feb. 18. 1630.—Ibid.—"Elizabeth Stewart, spous to Gabriell Cvnyngame of Carncurane," &c. deceased in April, 1620.—Test. Con. April 19. 1621. "flayfullie maid, &c. be the said Gabriell Cvnyngame, In name & behalf of Daniell Cvnyngame, p' lauffull sone, vnforiffamiliat, ex' datiuē," &c. "M' Johnne Cvnyngame, lauffull [sone] to Gabriell Cvnyngame of Carncurane," appears Feb. 18. 1630, as cautioner in the testament of George Lindsay of Westirsyd, Kilmacolm, who deceased Feb. 1629.—Ibid. "Williame Cvnyngame of Carncurrane, &c. deceit in _____, 16 . . ."—Test. Con. Aug. 5. 1643.—Ibid. "Gevin up be William Conyngame younger of Carncurane, lauffull sone to the defunct, and ex' datiuē, furrogat," &c.

CRAIGBET.—This property is omitted likewise by Crawford. Gabriell Sempill of Craigbait and Robert Sempill of Craigbait, his son (and doubtless successor), appear about the end of the sixteenth century: see p. 88, note.—"Kathrein Sempill, sifter to the Laird of Craigbait," appears Jan. 1622.—Rec. ut supra.

CRAIGTON.—"Robert Paterfoune of Craigtoune, &c. deceit in April, 1660 yeiris."—Test. Con. Nov. 5. 1661.—Ibid. He constitutes "Marion Semple, his spous, full exco^{ris} &c. For the behoeving of his dochter, Jonet Paterfoune: As also he appoynts Mathow Aikin mer^a burges of Glasgouw tuto^r to his sone, and Johne Allafoune, his goodfoune," &c. There appears to have been a second daughter, but she is not named.

DARGAVEL.—John Maxwell, uncle to Mungow Maxwell of Newark, may have been the first of this family; see p. 94, note.—Patrik Maxwell of Dargavel is an "o'ifman" in the Will of Maxwell of Bulross, Oct. 1595. He died in August, 1612.—Test. Con. Feb. 2. 1613.—Rec. ut sup. "Gevin vp be Mareoun Porterfeld, his reliēt, In name and behalf of Jeane and Marie Maxwellis, his law^u bairnes, and ex^{is} datiuēs," &c. Crawford states that Patrick Maxwell of Dargavel was slain at Lockerby, 1593, and that he was succeeded by his son John. This seems incompatible with the above facts; but he may have been the son,—very probably the only son:—Patrik Maxwell of Dargavel pursues Alexander Flemyng of Barrochan and his sons for the forcible abduction of Rebecca Maxwell, his daughter, 1596.—Crim. Trials, p. 377. And it need hardly be remarked, that this was a crime rarely attempted but with heiresses.

"Mareoun Porterfeld, reliēt of vmq¹⁶ Patrik Maxwell of Dargavel," &c. deceased March 1615.—Test. Con. June 6. 1616.—Ibid. “flayfullie maid, &c. be John Maxwell of Dargavell, For himself, and in name & behalf of Annas, Jeane & Mareoun Maxwellis, lauⁿ bairnes to the defunct, and ex^{is} datuie,” &c. John’s relation to the family does not further appear. He may have been the husband of Rebecca, mentioned above. John Maxwell of Dargavel appears frequently ad 1646.—Ibid.

MYLNEBANK.—James Sempill of Mylnebank appears May, 1604, and 1613. And Robert Sempill of Mylnebank in Oct. 1620.—Ibid.

NEWTON.—The Crawfurds of Newton appear to have been ancient and respectable; yet even their namesake has omitted any notice of them.

“Willielmus Crawford de Newton” appears in the Will of John Haisty in Park of Erskin, April 16. 1552.—Rec. ut supra.

“George Crawford of Newton” is a creditor, of “vicarage teind, xj s. vj d.” of Biggart in Gillisyard, Nov. 1604.—Ibid. And he deceased, apparently at Newton, “win the parochin of Paflay,” in Oct. 1607.—Test. Con. Feb. 27. 1621.—Ibid. Which bears to be “gevin up be Andro Crawford baillie of Paflay, brop^r germane to the defunct, In name, &c. of Elizabeth Crawford, dochter lauⁿ to the deid,” &c. Crawford was owing “To James erle of Abircorne, for pe few ferme dewtie of pe four mk land of Newtonne, the crop & yeir of God 1607, flourtie aucht bollis ferme aittis, pryce of the boll liij s. iiij d.” These lands appear to have been originally a feu of the monastery of Paisley.

“Hew Crawford of Newton, and his guid sone, W^m Hair,” appear Feb. 20. 1611. Hew appears again April 15. 1629.—Ibid.

“Margaret, daughter of William Hair, proprietor of a smal estate in the parish of Kilbarchan,” was mother of Wodrow the covenanting historian. “W^m Hair of Pennell occurs in the Will of Elizabeth Aickein in Hairis Pennell—Kilbarchan—Junij, 1634.”—Rec. ut supra. This is probably the same individual.

Malcolme Crawford of Newton appears Feb. 1630.—Con. Oct. 11, following.—Ibid.

“Elizabeth Stewart Lady Lamyngtoun, spous to Malcolme Crawford of Newton the tyme of hir deceis, deceit in November, 1631: flayfullie maid & gevin vp be the laid Malcolme, hir husband, In name, &c. of Thomas Crawford, p^r lawⁿ sone, and ex^r datuie,” &c.—Test. Con. Jan. 1632.—Ibid. But this was subsequently reduced, and Thomas’ sister Annas served to her mother.

Thomas Crawford of Newton occurs June, 1633.—Con. Dec. 3, same year.—Ibid.

SELVILAND.—A family of the name of Knox were designed of Selviland. They were probably a branch of Ranforlie, but are noticed by none of the historians of the county.

William Knox of Selviland occurs Aug. 1603.—Rec. ut supra.—“Margaret Maxwell, spous to Williame Knok of Selviland, &c. deceit in Jan. 1622.—Test. Con. Nov. 15, following.—Ibid. “Gevin vp be the laid W^m In name, &c. of Jeane Knok, lawⁿ daughter procreat betwixt thame.”

“Robert Knox, sone lawⁿ to vmq^{le} Thomas Knox of Selviland [evidently brother to William], deceist in Nov. 1625."—Test. Con. Dec. 4, following.—Ibid. The substance of this document, being curious, is here transcribed:—

“LEGACY.—At the Halkheid, the penult day of October, 1625. The qth day Robert Knox, &c. nominatis & ordanes Alex^r Knox of Selviland & Thomas Knox, burges of Paslay, his ex^{rs} &c. IN PRIMIS, He levis to Jean Knox, his brother dochter, fyve hundrith mkis. . . . Item, He levis to M^r Andro Sempill minister at Ballull, fiftie mkis. &c. Item, He levis to George Knox, his naturall sone, ane hundrith pund—and that the ex^{rs} let pe prof-feit of it put him to pe skuillis, &c. Item, He levis to Andro Knox, burges of Ranfrow, callit Broune boy, fyiftie pundis. Item, He levis his best cloik, ane pair of blak breikis, and ane stuft dowblat to his mamy, Megie Glen. Item, He levis ane stand of Inglis claith, w^t ane blak cloik & the lynning claithis, to his man, Robert Moderall. Item, He levis his sword, with saddill & furneiffing, to his brother sone, Alex^r Knox of Selviland. Subfcryvit w^t his hand,” &c.

Alexander Knox of Selviland appears again in these records June, 1633.

WILLIAMWOOD.—This family, descended of Maxwell of Auldhouse, is likewise omitted; nothing however occurs additional of their history.

APPENDIX I.
DESCRIPTIIONS OF THE SHIRES OF LANARK AND RENFREW
AND OF THE PARISH OF BOTHWELL.

FROM SIBBALD AND MACFARLANE MSS.

ADVOCATES' LIBRARY.

DESCRIPTION OF THE SHERIFFDOM OF LANERIK

BY SIR WILLIAM BAILLIE OF LAMINTON,

AND WILLIAM BAILLIE OF CARPHIN.

[SIBBALD MSS. written probably about 1650.]

THE sheriffdom of Lanerik is divided into two Wards, to wit, the Over and Nether Wards of Clidfdale; and bounds with the stewartry of Annandale, which is a part of the sheriffdom of Nidefdale, on the southeast,—the sheriffdom of Drumfries on the south,—the sheriffdom of Air upon the southwest,—the sheriffdom of Ranfrow on the northwest,—the sheriffdom of Dumbarton on the north,—the sheriffdom of Stirling on the northeast, and the sheriffdom of Lulithgow, called West Lothian, on the east, and the sheriffdom of Mid Lothian a little to the southeast, and the sheriffdom of Peebles on the south parts.

This shire is in length, fra Errikstane to Partik bridge, 40 miles; and in breadth, in the broadest part, 24 miles, and the narrowest part 16.

RIVER OF CLIDE.—The principal river is the river of Clide, having its beginning at Errik hill, alias Little Clydes hill, and runs through the middle of the whole shire, and exoners it self at the sea, through Dumbarton shire.

The rivers running into Clide are: Daer water, flowing from the Well pethe, running four miles in length, before it fall in Clide;—Porttrail water, flowing fra Kirkhope head, running 4 miles before it fall in Clide, and falls in the water of Meitines, and then runs into Clide, beside Crooked stanes, upon the south side of Clide;—The water of Glennuchan, flowing from the hill of Luthers, runs three miles ere it fall in Clide, upon the south side of the said river;—The water of Glaspine, flowing fra the Glaspine hill, runs a mile ere it come to Clide, beside the Nether Newtoun;—Alvine water, flowing from the Luthers, runs about 4 miles ere it fall in Clide, at Nether Newtoun;—Hart cleuch water, flowing fra the Hart cleuch hills, runs 5 miles, ere it fall in Clide at the castle of Crawford;—Campe water, flowing fra Couter stane height, runs 6 miles ere it fall in Clide, at the said castle of Crawford;—Glengonar water, flowing fra the Luthers, runs 4 miles ere it fall in Clyde, at the Southwood;—Cald Chappel water, flowing fra the hill called the Ragged gill, falls in Clide at the Cald Chappel;—Dimidine water, flowing fra the hill of Carnetable, falls in Clide at Midding Coatts, being 12 miles;—Craik water, flowing fra the Quhitcleuch, goes into the sheriffdom of Nidefdale, by the Souchall;

GEOGRAPHICAL DESCRIPTION OF THE PAROCH OF BOTHWELL.

[M^rFARLANE MSS. Probably by the incumbent, Mr William Hamilton—date about 1720.]

THE paroch of Bothwell lyes in the nether ward of the shire of Lanark, within the bounds of the presbiterie of Hamilton. It is about seven miles in length from east to west, and much about two miles broad from north to south. This paroch is bounded, upon the north, by the water of North Calder, which runs the whole length of the said paroch; and upon the south it is bounded, the whole length, by the water of South Calder.

The adjacent parochs are: Hamilton upon the southeast, separated by the river of Clyde, at two miles distance (N. B. In this and others, I give the bearing and distance from the kirk); It hath Blantyre upon the south, separate also by the river of Clyde, at two miles distance; upon the west and north-west, it hath the paroch of Old Monkland, at two large miles distance, separate from it by the water of North Calder; upon the north, it hath the paroch of New Monkland, at five miles distance, separate likewise by the water of North Calder; upon the northeast, it hath the paroch of Shotts, at seven miles distance (this was a new Erection, taken of the paroch of Bothwell); upon E. N. E. it hath the paroch of Cambusnethen, separate by the water of South Calder, at near five miles distance; upon the east, it hath the paroch of Dalryell, at two large miles distance, separate by the water of South Calder.

The kirk stands upon the north side of the river of Clyde, much about a large mile distance from the river. The kirk, or rather Quire, is a very stately structure, not very large, but old Gothick work, ane arched roof, and very fine workmanship. It was built and endued by the family of Douglass, as is evident by the armes of that family cutt in stone, both without and within the house, at the south corner of the great window in the east end of the Quire. There is no description by which it can be understood when the church was built, only in both the above mentioned places, the Douglass armes are quartered with the Royall armes, which probably poynts at Archebald the Grime, who was married to King Robert's daughter; and, as the tradition goes, both of them lyed buried under a very large marble stone within the said Quire.

The Enduement of this kirk was very great; having a right to all the tyths of Bothwell and Bertram Shotts, Avendale, and Stonehous paroches, with a great deal of property in lands, and severall superiortys. All these superiortys, with part of the property, and whole tyths, belong now to the Duke of Hamilton, who is both patron and titular.

The kirk of Bothwell was a kind of colledge, consisting of the Provest, his Vicar, and nine Prebends, all of which had houses and yards about the church. The houses are all demolished, and the vestiges scarce known; but the yards to this day retain their old names, such as the Vicar's yeard and Prebends' yards.

There is at the church a little Hamlett or village, consisting of forty or fifty houses, just upon the highway betwixt Glasgow and Hamilton. This is likeways the common passage for all merchands and other travellers going to England by the west road.

Who have been ministers here since the Reformation cannot now be known, in regard all our Registers prior to the Revolution are lost; only I find from an old Decreet of locality, That one Mr Robert Boyd was minister here in the year 1618. When he dyed, or who succeeded him, I know not; but I find from a Decreet of augmentation, obtained in the year 1650, that the Reverend Mr Mathew M^cKell was then minister at Bothwell. He was outed at the Restoration of King Charles the Second.—Ministers of the Episcopall persuasion were: Mr Robert Douglass, afterwards Bishop of Dunkeld; Mr Alexander Kinnier; Mr Thomas Hamilton; and Mr Robert Douglass, son to the former. The last was minister here at the Revolution, in the year 1689. His immediate successor was the Reverend Mr John Orr, who was for severall years minister at Bothwell, and afterward transported to be one of the ministers of the city of Edinburgh. The present minister, and Mr Orr's immediate successor, is Mr William Hamilton, who was ordained to that charge in the year 1709.*

The adjacent towns, with their bearing and distance from the kirk of Bothwell: Hamilton lyes two short miles east from the kirk. This is a very pleasant little town; the houses all very well built; lying at the confluence of Clyde and Aven, in a very fertile plain. About six miles west from this kirk, and upon the same side of Clyde, lyes the city of Glasgow: much about 18. miles north, stands the town of Stirling: about 24 miles to the N. E. stands the city of Edinburgh: and about 12 miles S.E. stands the town of Lanark, which is the head burgh of the shyre.

* "Mr Gawin Hamilton" is "provest of Bothuell" Feb. 1590, and Feb. 1600.—"Mr David Scharp provest of Bothuell" occurs March 1606.—"Mr Robert Boyd minister at Bothuell" writes and subscribes the Will of "Elizabeth Hamilton, relict of vncle Thomas Faullis of Brouniesyde, within the parochin of Bothuell" Sep. 24. 1620. Again, he subscribes the Test. of Gavin Widdrow in Aickinheid, Bothwell, Feb. 19. 1631.—Conf. of Testis. Com. Rec. Glas.

About a short half mile east from the kirk, stands the famous Bridge called Bothwell bridge, upon the river of Clyde, consisting of four arches. Here all passengers, whether on horseback or on foot, as likewise all kind of merchandize, pay a small Custom to the town of Hamilton. The bridge indeed belongs to the government, but it is sett in tack to the town of Hamilton, who are allowed to exact Custom of the Leidges, for upholding the bridge.

Let us follow down the course of the river, which runs much about two miles upon the border of the paroch. A little below the bridge, there are two corn milns upon Clyde, much about a quarter of a mile south from the kirk. A great many salmon and other fish are caught here. The fishing in this part of the water belongs partly to the Duke of Hamilton, partly to the Earle of Forfar, and partly to the Lord Blantyre.

About a short mile west from the kirk, upon the same side of the river, stands the castle of Bothwell, upon a rising ground, very near the bank of the river. This was one of the ancient seats of the noble family of Douglass: given off, as a patrimonial portion with the Earl of Forfar; and is now again returned to the family of Douglass by the death of Archibald Earl of Forfar, who dyed at Stirling of his wounds received at Sheriff muir, in the year 1715.

The castle was once [a] very great and stately structure, of a very fine and curious workmanship, but is now altogether ruinous; much defac'd by length of time, and some considerable part of it thrown down by the late Earl of Forfar, who from the ruins thereof built a very handsome new house: but this house was never finished, being stoped by the death of both Earles, the father and son. This is a very pleasant situation, surrounded with wood and water, very much regular planting, and capable of all the embellishment that can render any place pleasant. Just opposite to this, upon the fourth bank of the river, stands the Craig of Blantyre, anciently the residence of the Priours of Blantyre, but now belongs to Lord Blantyre. The house is quite ruinous.

About a short mile west from the kirk, a large quarter of a mile N. W. from the castle, at a little distance from the river, just upon the highway betwixt Glasgow and Hamilton, stands a little village call'd Udiston, consisting of about sixty families; and about a mile west from this village, just upon the highroad, stands a very good stone bridge, consisting of one arch, upon North Calder, just where it emptys itself into Clyde. This is [the] outmost bounds of the paroch to the west.

This water of Calder hath its rise from the Black loch, in the paroch of New Monkland, and continues its course westward for near twelve miles, untill it empty itself into Clyde, at the bridge above mentioned; and for four or five miles separates the paroch from that of Old and New Monklands.

Let us now follow up the course of the water as far as it washes this paroch. About a quarter of a mile up from the bridge, there stands a very good corn mill, called the New miln of Calder.

About a mile up from this miln stands the house of Bradisholme,—a family of the name of Muirhead. This is upon the north side of the water, within the paroch of Old Monkland. Its bearing from the church of Bothwell is much about north-west, and about two miles distance. Here is very much wood, upon both sides of the water. Here likewise there is a very good stone bridge, consisting of one arch, with a corn miln, called Aikenhead bridge and miln. This is within the paroch of Bothwell.

Upon the south side of the water, within the paroch of Bothwell, about half a mile up from the bridge, stands the house of Tannoehside; a very handsome little house, with parks, gardens and pigeon house, and considerable wood, upon both sides of the water. This formerly belonged to the name of Jack, but now to the name of Rae. This bears N. W. from the kirk, about a large mile and ane half distant from it. Just north from this, and about half a mile distant, stands the kirk of Old Monkland, in a low ground, all most surrounded with woods.

Nixt upon the same water, stands the house of Rosehall, formerly called Hags. This stands upon the north side of the water, within the paroch of Old Monkland, about a large quarter of a mile S. E. from the kirk, and much about two miles N. W. from the kirk of Bothwell. It is a very handsome house, with a prodigious planting and parks. It now belongs to Sir James Hamilton of Rosehall.

About half a mile west from Rosehall, upon the south side of the water, and within the paroch of Bothwell, about a large half mile S. E. from the kirk of Monkland, and much about two miles straight north from the kirk of Bothwell, stands the house of Carnebrue, upon the water of North Calder. This is a family of the name of Bayly. About a quarter of a mile south from this, stands the house of Sherrell, upon a low ground at a burnside. It lies just north from the kirk, at a mile and ane half distant. This formerly belonged to the name of Hamilton; now to James Laurie. The water makes a considerable compass up from Carnebrue, and there are several milns upon it, such as Hags walk miln and corn miln, both belonging to Sir James Hamilton, and Carnebrue miln, but I pass these.

The next remarkable house we meet with upon this water is Woodhall, so called because it was surrounded with woods. This formerly belonged to the name of Hamilton; it now belongs to Daniel Campbell of Shawfield, who has made it a very fine place: built ane handsome house, with a great deal of parks and planting. The bearing of this house is N. E. from the kirk, much about three miles distant.

It stands much about a mile east from Carnbrue, and about two or three pair of butts south from the water. Opposite to this, in the paroch of Monkland, stands the house of Fasca, upon the north lip of the water; a very pretty little house, with a great deal of woods. This formerly belonged to the name of Cleland; now to that of Wright.

The next remarkable house within the paroch of Bothwell is the house of Lachop, about a short half mile distant from the water. This was a very old family, the mother family and chief of the Muirheads. It now belongs to Alexander Leslie of Lachop. It is an old tower house; the walls are of a prodigious thickness. Its bearing from the kirk of Bothwell is northeast, about four miles distance; from the kirk of New Monkland about three miles south; from the kirk of Shotts about three miles west; from the house of Wodball about a mile straight east.

About a large half mile north from Lachop, upon the north lip of the water, and within the paroch of New Monkland, stands the house of Monkland. This formerly belonged to Sir James Cleland, who built a very large house upon it. It now belongs to a gentleman of the name of Hamilton. This house was maliciously burnt, but the present Monkland has repaired it. The situation of this house [is] noways convenient. At the upper end of Monkland's garden, there is a corn mill, much about a bowshot above the house of Monkland. There is a pretty little rivulet called Lachop water emptys itself into Calder. The little rivulet hath its rise in the marshes above the kirk of Shotts, and for some little way separates the paroch of Bothwell from that of Shotts. There is nothing remarkable upon the rivulet of Lachop. Chappell, which was formerly a religious house, of what order I know not; but is now converted into a buriall place for Lachop's family. There is likewise a corn mill stands upon this water; and upon the N. E. side, within the paroch of Shotts, stands the house of Gartnefs, now belonging to Archibald More writer in Edinburgh.

The paroch of Bothwell reaches about a mile east from the house of Lachop, where it is bounded by the paroch of Shotts.

Upon the E. N. E. quarter, there is a little rivulet called the Teeling burn, which falls into South Calder a little above the house of Cleland. The burn runs much about a mile upon the borders of the paroch, which it separates from that of Shotts. The only thing remarkable upon it is the house of Connoblehill, * in the paroch of Shotts, — a family of the name of Cleland. It belongs to Captain William Cleland, one of the Commissioners of his Majesties Navy. There is also in this burn the best millstones perhaps in the West of Scotland.

* This seems an admirable softening indeed of the old name, Knowhobilhill.

I now come to the water of South Calder, which riseth from severall marashes and fens in the paroches of Shotts and Cambusneathan, and having continued its course for nine or ten miles, falls into Clyde a litle below the house of Orbiston.

The first remarkable house we meet with upon this water of South Calder, after it enters the paroch of Bothwell, is the house of Cleland. This is a very good house, antiently the seat of the Clelands of that Ilk; but now it belongs to Alexander Inglis, alias Hamilton Murdofton, son to Gavin Hamilton, late one of the under Clerks of Session. It is situate upon the north brink of South Calder. It stands upon a rock, with a precipice toward the water. There is here a great deal of wood, and some regular planting. In the rock below the house, toward the water, there is a naturall cove, capable to contain forty or fifty men. The bearing of this house from the kirk is N. E. at near four miles distance. It lyes two miles south from Lachop. On the southeast from this, about three quarters of a mile, stands the house of Withaw, just upon the south side of the water. This is a very good house, with a vast planting, most of them all come to perfection in the planter's own time. This belongs to William Hamilton of Withaw. This is in the paroch of Cambusneathan, about a large mile west from the kirk of Cambusneathan. At the lower end of Cleland wood there stands the mill of Cleland, upon the water of Calder.

About three quarters of a mile west from Cleland, and upon the same side of the water, stands the house of Carphin. This house stands upon a rising ground, and below it, towards the water, there is a very pleasant peice of valley ground, surrounded upon three sides with the water and pritty high braes, of which the present Carphin has made a very large orchard. This formerly belonged to the name of Bayly, but now belongs to Archbald Nisbit of Carphin. The bearing of this house from the kirk of Bothwell is E. N. E. at three miles distance. At the east end of Carphin's park there is a very good stone bridge of one arch over the water of Calder. Here likeways stands Carphin's corn mill. To the southward of this lyes the house and kirk of Dalyell, about a long mile, or rather a mile and ane half distant.

About a short mile streight north from Carphin stands the house of Stevenfon. This was formerly the residence of Stevenfone of that Ilk, who pretended to be the mother family and chief of the name. It was last possessed by George Muirhead of Stevenfone, brother to James Muirhead of Bridholme, but now under sequestration for the behove of the creditors. The house is quite ruinous. It bears northeast from the kirk, about three miles distant.

About half a mile southwest from Stevenfone stands the house of Hillhead. This formerly belonged to the name of Bayly,—now to Euphame Nisbit, reliēt of the Reverend Mr David Blair, late one of the ministers of the Gospell in Edinburgh.

To the south of Hillhead, about half a quarter of a mile, stands the house of Jerriftoon upon a rifing ground, hard by the water. This family is of the name of Bayly. The bearing of this houfe from the kirk is eaft northeaft, about three fhort miles diftant to the eaft, upon the fame fide of the water. It hath the houfe of Carphin much about three quarters of a mile diftant to the fouth; it hath the houfe and kirk of Dalyell much about a mile and ane half diftant. There is upon the water, juft under the houfe of Jerriftoon, a corn miln called Motherwel miln, belonging to the Laird of Dalyell. About a quarter of a mile weft from Jerriftoon, formerly there was a very good ftone bridge upon the water called the Camp bridge; but the veftige of it can fcarce be known. This way is very dangerous to ftrangers, efppecially under cloud of night, in regard it is full of coal pits, fome of them juft upon the way fide, which have been fatal to feveral. About half a mile below Jerriftoon, upon the other fide of the water, there is a wauke miln called Braedhirst wauke miln; and about ane half mile below this ftands Orbiftoon corn miln: a very litle below this miln, there is a tolerable good foord throw the water, juft upon the highway betwixt Glaſgow and Lanark.

The next remarkable houfe which we meet with upon this water is Orbiftoon or Urbanftoun, as it was formerly called in time of Popery. This is a family of the name of Hamilton. It now belongs to James Hamilton of Dalyell, to whom William Hamilton of Orbiftoon difponed it, having no children of his own furviving him. This is a very fine houfe; its fiteuation is capable of all the embellifhments both of nature and art. Its bearing from the kirk is almoft due eaft, about a mile diftant. It hath the houfe and kirk of Dalyell to the eaft, about a mile and ane half diftant; and to the fouth it hath the town of Hamilton, a fhort mile diftant. Juft at the weft end of the park, below the houfe, there is a good ftone bridge, confifting of one arch. The water, a litle below this, falls into Clyde.

About a mile northweft from Orbiftoon, ftands the houfe of Parkhead,—a family once of the name of Hamilton; but now it is parcelled out to different perfons. Its bearing E. N. E. from the kirk, at a mile's diftance from it, and three quarters of a mile north from the water.

About a large quarter of a mile from Orbiftoon ftands the houfe of Boogs, upon a rifing ground, having a pleafant declivity towards Clyde, from which it is not above a quarter of a mile diftant. It ftands eaft from the kirk, about three quarters of a mile. This belongs to Sir James Hamilton of Roſeball.

About a fhort quarter of a mile fouthweft from Boogs ftands the houfe of Raith, pritty near the river fide. This is a family of the name of Hamilton. It ftands about half a mile juft eaft from the kirk. To the fouth of this houfe there is a pritty large meadow, betwixt it and the river, belonging to the Duke of Hamilton. To the north and N. W. of this, there are feveral meadows and woods belonging to his Grace of Hamilton, with a pritty large platt of firrs, as a viſée to the houfe, juft oppofite to the mouth of the great avenue.

Thus I have gone through the whole paroch, and have taken notice of every thing remarkable, so far as they did occur to me at present. Only I had almost forgot to take notice that the King's high street, the common passage betwixt Edinburgh and Glasgow, by way of the kirk of Shotts, goes the whole lenth of the paroch, from the one end to the other, and divides it almost into two equal halves, being scarce discernable which of the two Calders the highway is nearest. The highway enters the west end of this paroch at a place called the Winefoord, a very litle above Calder bridge, where, as we noticed before, the water emptyts itself into Clyde. Again, the highway goes out of this paroch, and enters into that of Bartrom Shotts, at ane house called Sandyfoord, a mile east from the house of Lachop. So the passengers betwixt Edinburgh and Glasgow travell full seven miles in the paroch of Bothwell.

I should have taken notice of some of the most remarkable places upon the highway, but neither the kirk nor any of the gentlemen's houses stand upon the road, tho' all, or most of them, are in view at some place or other of it; but these having been already describit, their bearing and distance marked, it would be needless to repeat.

DESCRIPTION OF THE SHERIFFDOM OF RANFROW, HOLDEN OF THE PRINCES AND STEWARTS OF SCOTLAND, DESCRIBED BY OF GREENOCK AND MR JAMES MONTGOMERIE OF WEITLANDS.*

THE sheriffdom of Ranfrow has upon the north the river of Clide, separating it from the sheriffdom of Dumbarton, except a little part of the parish of Ranfrow quhilk lyes benorth Clide. It is joynd on the west to Dumbarton shire, and on the east to the sheriffdom of Lanerick; on the west and south it borders with the sheriffdom of Air, and the part thereof called the baillery of Cuninghame marcheth with the burn called Kellie burn.—The river of Clide lyes on the north side of this shire, famous and portable for ships of great burden for ten miles.

There are in this shire three waters. The first is called Greiff, running out from the moor countries on the west side of this shire, and runs by the space of nine miles eastward, till it fall in Clide near the burgh of Ranfrow. The second is Blackart, having its beginning from the loch of Castle Sempill, within the parish of Lochquhinnoch, and runs eastward 5 miles, till it fall into Greiff. The water of Quhyttcart, coming from the moors on the south side of this shire, runs by the space of miles northwest, till it fall in Greiff, quhilk (as is before said) carries the other two with it into Clide.

The length of this shire is, from Kellie burn to Polmadie, at the march of Lanerick, 20 miles long; and eight miles of breadth at the broadest part.

It is for the most part a plain ground, without any great hills: the west and south

* SIBBALD MSS. This account would seem to have been written previous to 1653, the abbey of Paisley, which is here described as their chief residence, being then alienated by the family of Abercorn, and probably after 1647, when the family of Cochran were ennobled.—Of its joint author Montgomerie the following particulars may tend to gratify the curious, though probably their sole value.

“Ezechell Montgomerie seruitour to the Lord Sempill” appears Feb. 1611.—Com. Rec. Glas. In 1618, Ezechiall Montgomerie occurs in the same records, creditor of “vicareg teynd and kirk stent” in the parish of Largs, where Lord Sempill was proprietor of these duties. It is therefore probable that he acted as chamberlain to his Lordship. He is designed of Weitlandis, April, 1625.—Ibid.—“Ezechiall Montgomerie of Weitlandis within the parochin of Kilbarchane, &c. deceist in the moneth of Julij, 1644 yeiris.”—Test. Con. Aug. 8 following.—Ibid. This document, which certainly relates to the same individual, bears to be “maid & gevin vp be Barbara Sempill, relict of the said vmqle Ezechiall, In name and behalf of W^m. Montgomerie, lau^d sone, &c. And it is further stated that “The defunct, being ane old man, had no guidis nor geir, bot onlie the insyt^t of his hous, in vtncillis & domicillis, with the abullyment of his bodie, estimat to lij li. vj s. viij d. with ane kow, worth x li.” He had however, at least three servant maids, as we learn further here.

Our author was very likely the elder son of this person, whose property he appears to have inherited; and it has been supposed that Mr Ezekiel Montgomerie, at a subsequent period, Sheriff-depute of Renfrewshire, was the son of Mr James.

parts of it moorish, and the rest fit both for corns and cattel. It has in it coals, lime-stone, and peats for fewel.

The woods are: Crooktoun, Hawkwood, Pollok, Howtoun, and Barruchane, besides other lesser woods.

In this shire, at a part called the Knok, on Greiff near Ranfrow, was King Robert, called Blear-eye, cutted out of his mother's womb by Sir John Forrester * of Elliestoun (who being hazarded on extremity to use that remedy to preserve the child's life, the Queen having there taken her child ill, being on the fields and dying, the child being quick in her belly) who before that was reputed a simple man, —from whence the House of Sempill and Lords thereof have their name, and a part of their estate. In memory whereof, there is yet a stone pillar erected and standing in that place.

In it is the round hill called the Langside, where was fought that field betwixt Mary of Scotland and the Earl of Murray, Regent, called the field of Langside, where she was defeated, and forced to fly to England, her son, King James, being then but two years of age.

In it there is but only one burgh royal, called Ranfrow, and the burgh of regality of Paflay, with one abbacy, of Paflay, quhilk now is the chief dwelling house of the Earles of Abercorn.

There is in it one presbytery, called Paflay presbytery, having 16 kirks, viz. Cathcart, Eastwood, Egletham, Mearns, Ranfrow, Paflay, Neiltoun, Kilbarchane, Lochquhinnoch, Houftoun, Inchinnen, Arrefkine, Kilmaccolm, Greinok, and Innerkip. The parishes of Cathcart and Eistwood are adjoynt to the presbytery of Glasgow, all the remanent is called the presbytery of Paflay.

The most considerable houses in this shire are: Crooktoun, pertaining to the Duke of Lennox; Pownoon, pertaining to the Earle of Eglintoun; Cathcart; Over Pollok; Nether Pollok; the Castle of the Mearns, belonging to the Earle of Nidesdale; Cardonall, pertaining to the Lord Blantyre; Cochran, pertaining to the Lord Cochran; Hawkwood [Hawkhead], to the Lord Rofs; Caldwell; Castle Sempill, to the Lord Sempill; Craiganes; Ramferlie; Auchnames; Blacktoun; Castle of Houftoun, a strong hold; Barruchane; Boghall; Arefkine; Bishoptoun; Finlastoun, pertaining to the Earle of Glencarne; New-wark; Duchill; Greinok; Gorrok; Ardgowan; Dunrod; Allerslie, from which has descended William Wallace, sometime governour of the armies of Scotland.

There are no other lochs except the loch of Castle Sempill, wherein is a house vaulted.

Bridges in this shire are: Paflay, Pollok, Johnstoun, Ramforlie, Calder, Kellie, and Allerslie, &c.

DESCRIPTION OF RENFREW SHIRE. *

NATURE OF THE SOIL.—This shire lying next to Clidisdale partaketh of its soil, that part of it which lyeth near Clide being both pleafant and fertile, without mountains; but having many pretty little rifes of the ground, from which there are many fair prospects, both of the greater part of this shire and of the nether ward of Clidisdale, and the Lennox. The confines of the shire to the south and southwest and west, bordering on a part of Clidisdale, Cuninghame and the mouth of Clide, are more barren, hilly and moorish. The whole of it is stored with grafs and corn, sufficient to serve its own inhabitants, except about Greenock, where there is a great confluence of people for the herring fishing, in its season. The herring fishing, though it may more properly belong to the river of Clide than to any shire lying on its shore, yet of all the shires that border on Clide this may most claim a right unto it, the inhabitants hereof, at Greenock, Gourrock, Innerkip, and Newark, making the greatest number of fishers. This fishing of herrings, on all accounts, hath for many years been the most noted of any in Scotland, or about it, the fish that enter this firth of Clide being larger, fairer, firmer, of a better taste, and taking better with the salt than any other, and more valued both fresh and salted, at home and abroad, than any other the kingdom affords; the number likewise being incredibly great, considering in how narrow a firth they contain themselves. There have been reckoned 2500 last, which comes to 3750 tun of herrings, made and salted and exported in a year, beside vast quantities which are consumed within the country: thir herrings (when the take of them is good, as hath been many years together) being the daily food of all the shires adjacent, especially in harvest time. The fishers themselves may some years be reckoned to consume 1400 tun by their own eating. Thir herrings come together, as if they were under some government of their own, and swim with a great deal of order, as an army marching in battel aray. They enter the firth of Clide from the Mule of Kintyre yearly, sometime in June or July. When they first enter, they frequently come alongt the coast of Argile, and enter the lochs and take some time before they settle their principall residence. They come so throng that they are not visible to the fishers, but in calm weather they will swell and move the very ocean. They have sometime found them on the coast of Galloway and Carrick, about Ballantrae, but more frequently in the lochs on Argyle side, and within Clide at Greenock, and as far up as Armour [Ardmore], some of them coming to the freshes near Dumbarton, and are taken in the yairs : but these are not reckoned the best for salting. When the shoal of herrings enters the firth, the fishers gather in such number that five or six hundred boats have been seen together in one place at the take, and all these have been seen to lode their boats in a day or two. The herrings will sometime continue till December and January, from June or July. The chief time is in July and harvest quarter for fishing and making. The royal company for fishing did feat their trade here, and built an house at Greenock for that effect.

* SIBBALD MSS. By Mr William Dunlop, Principal of the university of Glasgow, as is evident from what Mr Crawford states.—Hist. of Ren. last ed. p. 14.

PEARLS.—The most noted peculiar rarity this shire affords is that of pearls, found in the water of White Cart, about Paullay and above it for three miles. Though it be not that considerable that the proprietor of the water and land adjacent claims an interest in them, but every person hath liberty to search for them, yet pearls are not only frequently here found, but of such a fineness and magnitude as may be compared with any, except what the Indies afford; and they are transported to other countreys in good parcels, so that Tavernier, the great French jeweller, in his Travells to the East Indies, taketh notice of them. They are found in the bottom of the water in a fishes shell, larger then that of the muscle. The fishing is most in the summer time.

FORRESTS.—There are no forests at present in this shire: formerly there was a Forrest about Paullay, on the south and southeast of it; and another, of the Ferinneis, adjacent thereto, as the account about the 1200 testifys.

WOODS.—The countrey is well stored with woods, every gentleman almost having some in his own bounds.

INCLOSURES AND PARKS.—The nobility and gentry are beginning to inclose and impark some of their ground, especially with stone dikes, particularly the Earle of Dundonald, quhair he hath plenty of fallow deer.

SPRINGS.—The countrey is well stored with springs, not a countrey house wanting them at its door; one whereof, in the lands of Newyards, near Paullay, is observable for that it's seen to ebb and flow with the tide, though it be on a far higher ground then any place where the tide comes, and half a mile from the nearest place of the water of Cart, where the tide comes.

RIVERS.—The countrey is very well watered with rivers, though the narrowness of the countrey doth not allow any long course to swell themselves navigable. These are chiefly three, all which have their rises on the confines of the shire, and do mix themselves together at their entry into Clide, within the shire likewise, viz. the two Carts and Greiff. The Carts are distinguished by their colours into White and Black. White Cart hath its rise out of these moors which ly betwixt Eglisshame in this shire, and Evandale and Kilbride in Clidesdale; from thence it runneth northward, and is in many places the border betwixt the shires, untill it comes within two miles of Glasgou, there it turneth westward, until it comes to Paillay, whence to Inchinan northward, where it both mixeth with the two others and entereth Clide. The tide floweth up Clide, and entereth this river as far up as the bridge of Paillay. The tide is reckoned to flow about three foot at Paillay, but all fresh. This river, all alongt, affords many pleasant seats of houses for the nobility and gentry.

The Black Cart taketh its rise out of Lochinoch loch, at the mouth of which it is many times not fordable. It runneth a straight course eastward. For the most part, it runneth dead and low, and through the mosses about Blackfoun, which maketh it blackish. It emptieth itself into Clide near Inchinan, quhair it joyneth itself to the other.

Griff riseth out of the northwest places of this shire, in Kilmaccolm parish, and runneth south and southeast, until it mixeth itself with the other in the lower country. All the three are increased by severall waters and burns or rivulets, not worthy the noticing. This Griff gave name to the northerly part of the shire, which was called Strath Griff about the year 1180: but that name is now out of use, and only preserved in the gentry's charters.

LOCHQUHINNOCH.—There are no considerable lochs but one, Lochquhinnoch. It is about 4 miles in length, and 2 in breadth. Many rivulets run into it. On the west end it bordereth this shire and Cunighame, where it receiveth a rivulet which cometh out of Kilburny loch, in Cunighame, from which it's distant about 2 miles. Round this loch there are several seats of houses, and many pleasant meadows. It's replenished with fish, such as pikes, perchies, and eels. In the midst of this loch there is an old tower called the Peel, belonging to the Lord Sempill, to which they used to fly formerly in times of the feuds, or of wars. We never hear that it was besieged, being a full mile from all sides. There are likewise some lesser lochs in the Mearns and Eglisshame moors, where are plenty of fish; and a little one called loch Libo in Neiltoun, where there is plenty of fish and fowl for diverse sorts of game.

ROADS, BAYS AND PORTS.—All the roads, bays and ports in this shire are on the river Clide. From the west end of the shire, the firth of Clide beginneth to narrow it self, it being at the Clochstone about 4 miles in breadth, within which there are almost every where good riding for ships. The first bay that openeth is that of Innerkip, without the Cloch, where there is a good fisher town. Then, more easterly and inward, openeth a fair bay, at the west end whereof stands Gurock, where is a good road and harbour lately built by Walter Gibson, and a village building. Next inward, stands Greenock, the place of best account on all this coast, this being the principal harbour to all the Glasgow merchants, and a good road, and a well built town, and the chief seat of herring fishing. Here the Royal Company did build an house, and made it the seat of their trade. To this adjoyneth Crawforddykes, and hath the same trade with that of Greenock; where good houses are fast building. Further, and a little more southward, lyeth Newark, where the town of Glasgow have built a good port, and called it Port Glasgow, and a large publick house, and there is a village building. Here is the custome house for all this coast; and the town of Glasgow of late oblige their merchants to lode and unlode here. Above Newark the river of Clide narroweth, being a mile's breadth over against Dumbarton, above which ships of burden do not come, and the river fresheth when the tide is out. But barks and boats of burden come up Clide to Glasgow, all alongst the coast of this shire, and so come to Ranfrew town. The tide floweth up two or three miles both the Carts and Griff, whereby boats come to Pailay with Highland timber and slates—6000 in a boat—fish of all sorts, and return with coals and lime. The coast all alongst is very safe, it being very rare to hear of any loss of vessels within the Cloch, which is most ordinarily reckoned in the innermost mouth of Clide. The tide at Greenock flows 12 foot; within the harbour at Gurock 18 foot; at Newark 12 foot, at a spring tide.

THE ROMAN CONQUESTS.—This countrey being low, fertile, and adjacent to Clidedale, fell likewise under the Roman arms, and (as I take it) did set a bound to their conquest: the Romans never having past the firth of Clide to Argileshire, and the old Caledonian wood came to the border of this shire,—it having reached the Lennox or Dumbartonshire, on this hand, as it did Stirlingshire and Forth on the other hand. But that the Romans came this length is more then probable; for as there are in many places, from the one [end] of Clidedale to the other, visible, undeniable vestiges, for whole miles of way together, of an old Roman street, from Erickstane, in the head of Eufdale, to Maul's mire, at this end, where it bordereth this shire (called this day Watline street—corruptly, for Vitellian, or Vitellius' street), so there are continued vestiges of their being in this shire, for at Pailay there is a large Roman camp to be seen. The prætorium or innermost part of the camp is on the west end of a rising ground or little hill, called Oakshawhead, on the southeast descent of which hill standeth the town of Pailay. The prætorium is not very large, but hath been well fortified with three fougées and dykes of earth, which must have been large, when, to this day, their vestiges are so great that men on horseback will not see over them. The camp itself hath been great and large, it comprehending the whole hill. There are vestiges on the north side of the fougées and dyke whereby it appears that the camp reached to the river of Cart. On the north side, the dike goeth alongft the foot of the hill; and if we allow it to have gone fo far on the other side, it hath inclofed all the fpace of ground on which the town of Paflay ftands, and it may be judged to be about a mile in compafs. Its fituation was both ftiong and pleafant, overlooking the whole countrey. I have not heard that any have been fo curious as to digg the ground into the prætorium; but when they tread upon it, it gives a found as if it were hollow below, where belike there are fome of their vaults. Near to this camp, about a quarter of a mile, ftands two other rifes, or little hills, the one to the weft, the other to the fouth, which, with this, makes almoft a triangular form, where have been ftations for the outter guards. The veftiges of them appear, and make them little larger then the prætorium of the other camp; of the fame form, without any other fortification then a foffe and dike.

BATTEL OF LANGSIDE.—At Langfide there is the appearance of an old camp on the top of the hill, where was fought that memorable battel betwixt Queen Mary and Regent Murray, 1568.

CROSS BETWEEN PASLAY AND RANFREW.—Midway betwixt Paflay and Ranfrew, at the Knock, is a high crofs ftanding, but no infcription is legible. Tradition hath handed it down, that it was erected on this occafion: Marjorie Bruce, daughter to King Robert Bruce, and wife to Walter the Great Steward of Scotland, at that time lord of all this countrey, was hunting at this place, and got a fall; and ſhe being big with child of her fon Robert (afterward King Robert the Second), fell in labour, and there died in the field; and (as tradition will have it) the child was a Cæſar, cut out of his mother's womb, and had his eye touched by the chirurgion, from which he was called King Blear-eye, and his mother is by the tradition called Queen Blear-eye, though ſhe was never Queen; and the crofs is called Queen Blear-eye's crofs. This fell out about the year 1317, and ſhe is buried at Paflay.

NATURE OF THE INHABITANTS.—The inhabitants of this ſhire (both nobility, gentry and commons) are generally frugal; love to keep at home. The gentry are given to all manly ſports (as hunting, hawking and gunning); are friendly among themſelves, and their families in conſtant affinity by marriages one with another.

THIS SHIRE BELONGS TO GLASGOW DIOCESE.—In relation to the church, this ſhire, under Popery, was, and is ſtill, within the dioceſe of Glaſgow; and in the time of Preſbytery made up a preſbytery or claſs, in which are 15 pariſh churches, each church being well provided with a manſe and benefice for ane miniſter, and Paflay for two. The pariſhes are: Egglifhame, Neiltoun, Mearns, Eaſtwood, Ranfrew, Paflay, Inchinan, Lochquhinnoch, Kilbarchan, Killellan, Howftoun, Erkin, Kilmacolm, Greenock, and Innerkip. The churches are well built, yet none of them worth the noticing, except that of Paflay.

ABBACY OF PASLAY.—In the time of Popery there were no monasteries [here] except Paslay, which was a very considerable abbacy. Our historians have generally reckoned it to have been founded by Alexander the Great Steward, about the year 1260. But they have been in a great mistake. The charter of the foundation, being extant, runs thus: “Walterus filius Alani, dapifer regis Scotiæ, pro animis Regis David, et Regis Henrici, et Comitis Henrici; et pro salute corporis et animæ Regis Malcolmi”—gives such lands to 13 monks, who were to be Ordinis fratrum de Wenloch, Ordinis Monachorum Cluniacensium. By which it appears to have been founded by Walter the second Great Stewart, or dapifer Regis Malcolmi 4th called the Maiden, about the year 1160. This abbacy was so augmented by the Great Stewards, that the teynds of the greater part of this shire and of Kyle belonged to it. The Earles of Lennox and the Lords of the Isles were great benefactors to it. There were 32 churches under its patronage: to wit, Inerwick, in Lothian; Lidgerwood, in the Merse; Rutherglen and Cathcart [Carmunock], in Clidisdale; Riccartoun, Craigie, Dundonald, Monkton, St Evox, Prestick, Affleck, the Chappel of Crosbie, in Kyle; Largs, in Cunighame; Cumray, in Boot; Kilpatrick, in Lennox; Rosneth, Kilcolmannell, Kilfinnan, and Kilkerran, in Argyleshire; Mearns, Eastwood, Neilstoun, Paslay, Kilbarchan, Lochquhinnoch, Killellan, Howstoun, Kilmacolm, Innerkip, [Cathcart, and Erskin], in this shire.

The abbacy was well built, fair and large, and pleasantly seated on the river Cart, in a good soyl. The buildings are yet remaining, and shew forth much of the magnificence and luxury of that religion. There was a stately cross church built and a steeple, which was one of the greatest in the kingdom; but about a hundred years ago, the steeple fell with its own weight, and with it the quire of the church. The chancel [nave] only is now standing, and is a very fair building, and is indeed one of the most convenient and large houses for hearing that can be. The inscription on the porch tells that this church was built 14 - - . * The abbay and church, with all its fair gardens and orchards, and a little park for fallow deer, are enclosed within one of the fairest walls not in the kingdom only but in Europe, and perhaps in the world. It is altogether built, on both sides, of large squared free stone, so well that there is no appearance of lime in the wall, and it will be a full mile about, and of a great height. It was the work of many years. The inscriptions upon it shew it to have been begun by Schaw, abbot here about 1483.

BLACK BOOK OF PASLAY.—The monks of this abbacy wrote a Chronicle, which was continued by them, the authentick copy whereof perished when the abbay of Haly-rood house was burned during the English usurpation, it being then in the King’s

* This seems mistakenly to allude to an inscription to the memory of Abbot Lithgow, still remaining, within the north entrance to the church. It is included in the drawings of inscriptions inserted in a previous part of this volume.

bibliothek: but there are some copies and compends of it. There is extant a Register of all the charters granted to the abbacy, which, together with the charters themselves, are preserved after the Reformation. This abbacy was given to Lord Claud Hamilton, third son to James Duke of Chatterault, whose posterity sold it to the Earle of Dundonald, who is the present owner of it. This abbacy was honoured by being the burial place of King Robert the Second and of his mother, Marjorie Bruce, whose grave-stone is to be seen, cut out in the shape of a woman.

MANY NOBLE FAMILIES HERE.—There is no shire in Scotland of its bounds, where no noble families have been, both of the greatest nobility and gentry.

Of nobility, this shire may justly claim to have been the seat of the noble family of the Stewarts, who were lords of all this country. And this shire was then Baronia de Ranfrew. Our historians have much erred in the genealogy of this noble family, which is very evident by the charters extant in the abbacy of Pallay, where we find the line of the family thus, BANCHO, &c.

The following document, partly in abstract, possesses considerable interest, in relation to the see of Glasgow, whilst it furnishes several particulars of the respectable prelate to whom it relates. It is pretended that the noted adventurer John Law was a descendant of the Archbishop; but this is probably an honour to which his Grace has no just claim.

INQUISITIO FACTA PER DAVID PRINCIPEM

CUMBRIÆ. [Circa 1116.]

[CHARTULARIUM GLASGUENSE.]

“IGITUR quandoquidem predecessorum instituta mortalium [mortuorum vel nostrorum?] literarum ostentatione, et scribarum deliberatione, ad memoriam revocantur, Nos Cumbrensiū quedam gesta nobilium, presentibus apicibus memorie commendavimus. In Cumbria itaque, regione quadam inter Angliam et Scotiam sita, fide Catholica in illis climatibus prius exuberante ac propagante; domesticæ fidei ac proceres regni cum rege provincie co-operante, in honorem Dei et Sanctæ Mariæ pie genetricis, ecclesiam Glasguensem sedem scilicet pontificalem Cumbrensis regionis fundaverunt; et dignis functionibus pro pristina sanctorum religione patrum solidaverunt. Hoc vero pulcris initiatibus et ecclesiasticis institutionibus, sanctæ quoque fidei rudimentis inolevit; et dispositione divina Sanctum Kentegernum in Episcopum admisit, qui celestis affluentiam doctrine sitientibus propinaret, et cibum spiritualem ut fidelis Dispensator esurientibus ministraret. Verum enimvero fraudulentus exterminator, supradictam ecclesiam diu inviolabiliter constari ingemiscens, consuetis versutiis suis, post multa temporum curricula, scandala intolerabilia Cumbrensiū ecclesie machinavit. Sancto namque Kentegerno, proliquisque [pluribusque?] successoribus suis pie religionis perseverantia ad Dominum transmigratis; diversæ seditiones circumquaque insurgentes, non solum ecclesiam et ejus possessiones destruxerunt, verum etiam totam regionem vastantes, ejus habitatores exilio tradiderunt. Sic ergo omnibus bonis exterminatis, magnis temporum intervallis transactis, diversæ tribus diversarum nacionum ex diversis partibus affluentes, desertam regionem prefatam habitaverunt. Sed dispari gente et dissimili lingua et vario more viventes, haut facile [inter] sese conficientes, gentilitatem potius quam fidei cultum tenuerunt. Quos infelices et damnate habitacionis habitatores, more pecudum irrationabiliter degentes, dignatus est Dominus, qui neminem vult perire, propiciatione sua visitare: Tempore enim Henrici regis Anglie, Alexandro Scotorum rege in Scotia regnante, misit eis Deus David predicti regis Scotie germanum in principem et ducem; Qui eorum impudica et scelerosa contagia corrigeret, et animi nobilitate et inflexibili severitate, contumeliosam eorum contumaciam refrenaret. Hic nempe bene vivendi studio fervidus, profane multitudinis miserie condolens, ut pastorali sollicitudine qua diucius caruerant, eorumque obprobria deleteret; divino instigatus hortamine, Johannem quemdam religiosum virum, qui eum educaverat, vitamque ejus Deo non imbecilliter devota voverat, peritorum consilio clericorum, quem suorum auxilio in Episcopum elegit. Set cum Episcopus cognita infelicitatis populi feritate, et abominabili viciorum multiplicitate; utpote perterritus, Jerusalem proficisci disposuisset; ab Apostolico Paschali licet invitatus consecratus, officium suscepto sollicitudinis nullatenus differre voluit; set cum gaudio, sub plebis alacritate, a principe et a proceribus regni receptus, verbum predicationis Spiritu Sancto largius operante, per Cumbrensem parochiam diffudit. David vero Cumbrensis regionis Princeps, amore precipue Dei, partim quoque religiose dilectionem, et ammonitionem, terras ecclesie Glasguenfi pertinentes, singulis Cumbrie provinciis que sub dominio et potestate ejus erant, (non enim toti Cumbrensi regioni dominabatur,) inquirere fecit, ut avidus ipsius ecclesie restauracionis, possessionum earum quas antiquitus tenuerat, posteris et sequacibus suis certitudinem relinqueret. NOTES ON THE PRECEDING WRITING.

THIS deed has been printed repeatedly, but incorrectly; and in the present reprint, I am not satisfied it is accurately represented. It appears from the style to be rather a narrative of the steps taken to ascertain the property, which had belonged to the ancient Bishopric of Cumbria, than a legal document. It is perhaps extracted from some history, which if found, might afford further information as to this Bishopric, and the country where it was situated. I doubt whether the copy in the Charterulary of Glasgow, whence they are all taken, is correct; certainly it is not so in the names of places. Gibson in his History of Glasgow says, that it shows the names of places were, at the time of the inquest, quite different from what they are now. In this he was mistaken; for a number of places, as well in the neighbourhood of Glasgow, as elsewhere in the diocese, still bear the very names given in this Manuscript. It is true these names are disguised in the orthography, most probably by frequent and careless transcription, and partly because the transcribers were ignorant of the names mentioned; and as usual every copy has multiplied these errors. It is likewise probable that the original may have been written by a foreigner, since there is reason to suppose that, at the time, few natives were equal to the task of drawing up a deed in Latin, or perhaps to write at all, and that the names were written down by the ear.

The following observations are submitted:—

In Cumbria itaque, regione inter Angliam et Scotiam sita. The present county of Cumberland is but a small part of the territory of Cumbria. Besides including the north-west counties of England, viz. Cumberland, Westmoreland, Cheshire, and perhaps other territory, it extended into Scotland, so as to include Clydesdale, and the counties on the west and middle borders. Whether it included Galloway is not well ascertained; but it is most probably that at one time it did.

The part of Cumbria now included in Scotland, early became a part of that kingdom; and had or some time been usually granted to the eldest sons of the kings. Malcolm III. when driven out by Macbeth retired to it. It had been granted by Edgar, one of the sons of Malcolm when king, to David his younger brother, afterwards king; and was possessed by him at the time of this inquest. Its date must therefore be previous to 1124, when David succeeded to the kingdom on the decease of his immediate elder brother, Alexander I.

Cumbria was originally a British country. It was conquered by the Saxons of Northumberland, and became a part of that kingdom. Accordingly the names of persons occurring in this writing are mostly Saxon, and they must have been persons of consequence; though most of the names of places do not appear to be derived from that language, and are probably of British origin. Afterwards it appears to have been invaded and ruined either by the pagan Norwegians or Irish; perhaps both had a hand in the destruction alluded to in this document. From the life of St Patrick, referred to in Usher's book de Primordiis Ecclesiarum Britannicarum, it appears to have been his native country. His time goes back to the period of the Roman colonists of that part of Britain. He was carried off from it as a prisoner in his youth, to Ireland, in one of the predatory expeditions from thence. Before his time, the Christian religion had been introduced into this country by the Roman colonists; and it was thence propagated in Ireland by Saint Patrick and his successors. The accounts of his life would imply that he returned to it and died there, though the English authors say he retired to and died at Glastonbury, to which place they ascribe the name Glastun, which may have been readily corrupted from Glascu, the t and c being easily confounded in old MSS., and Glascu then only wanting the stroke above the u to make it Glastun, which a transcriber who knew Glastonbury, but had never heard of Glascu, would readily supply.

Kentigern's labours as a missionary were posterior to those of Patrick. He came from Wales, and appears to have instituted a religious establishment here, which our manuscript informs us was destroyed by the incursions of barbarians, by whom the country was wasted, and the inhabitants destroyed or driven out. Here then was a cessation of Kentigern's establishment represented as a bishopric. The writer, describing things according to the ideas of his own times, describes it as Sedes pontificalis Cumbrensis regionis, though probably only a small and poor Culdee monastery. But in the lives of the Saints, these early establishments begun by them, are usually represented in the most magnificent terms. If one of them fixed his dwelling in a pagan country, living in a cottage and preaching when the inhabitants would hear him, recommending himself by his harmless course of life, he is said to have converted the whole nation to Christianity. If by some skill in medicine, (a most useful accomplishment in rude countries,) he sometimes effected the recovery of a sick person, it is represented as a miracle, of restoring a dead person to life, by means of his prayers. And the Establishment, consisting of a few Culdees living in small huts, is erected into a bishopric and chapter, according to the notions of the biographer, of bishoprics at the time he wrote.

As already said, this country came to be an ordinary possession of the eldest sons of the Scottish kings. Malcolm III. before he conquered Macbeth, was prince of Cumberland; so was David the son of Malcolm before he was king, though being the youngest son, he did not obtain it till the death of his brother Edgar, who was succeeded by the next brother, Alexander I.—Henry the son of David concurs in some gifts of his father to this church, as well as in the present Inquisition, and Henry's son, William, afterwards King, is a witness to it.

This writing shows that it was David, who when prince of Cumberland, restored the possessions of the church of Glasgow, and appointed a bishop. The proceeding adopted by David was to appoint several of the elder and more influential inhabitants (Seniorum hominum et sapientiorum totius Cumbriae), to ascertain what lands in former times belonged to this church, that they might be restored to it. These lands had doubtless been long in the possession of laymen, and those not the usurpers; and could not be wrested from them without trouble and risk. This may have been one reason for the reluctance of the bishop to accept the bishopric. But David certainly took the safest method, by giving the task of pointing out the ancient possessions of the church to persons of consequence and authority in the country. After all, the recovery of them could not be easily accomplished among a people so rude as they are here described.

After these general observations, some remarks shall be submitted upon the names of lands mentioned in the writing now under consideration, with a view to ascertain, if possible, the particular lands mentioned in it. They are here placed in alphabetical order.

Abercarf, Abertarf; this name remains unaltered.

Abermelc. There is a water of Milk in Galloway which gives name also to Castlemilk. Alnecrumba, Ancrum.

Afcheby remains unaltered.

Afchechirche, Askirk, remains unaltered. The difference in spelling is of no consequence. Aftanedene, Hassenden.

Ballanrik, Ballanark, Budlornac? Is Pathelanarke a corruption of this? There is a Ballernock near Glasgow, also Bedlormie.

Ballayn, Bedlay, in the parish of Calder.

Brunefcheyd. There is Brownsiede near Glasgow, but it is doubtful if it is the place here meant.

Bader, Badermonoch. Monoch in the names of places implies the place to have belonged to a convent; perhaps Baldernock.

Buthelule. Bonhill in Dumbartonshire is sometimes so written in old deeds; but here it probably signifies Bothwell.

Camcar. Can this be Sanquhar, though very unlike? Yet if we can suppose a French scribe, it is not impossible he might have so corrupted the name in writing it from the ear, and using c for s. Carclevien, written Carcleuien, and corruptly Carclemen, perhaps Carclue in Ayrshire.

Cameachethyn, Cambusnethan? The Cambus in names compounded with that word is commonly pronounced Cam.

Conclut, Conclud. In more modern deeds Kinclaith. The Green of Glasgow is said to have been part of these lands.

Chefcarnenwat. Here is ground for supposing a foreign scribe: Chef is French; and when introduced here seems to signify Upper or Over Carnwath, which the writer may have translated, when informed of the meaning of Upper or Over prefixed to a name. There can be little doubt that the Saxon language prevailed in this country at the time of the inquest. Carnewid also is supposed to denote Carnwath in the upper ward of Lanarkshire.

Carnetheyn, Carntyne, near Glasgow. Yet there is a service of Margaret Wright, 9th Feb. 1688, in the lands of Carnethan in parochia de Troqueir, et Senescallatu de Kirkcudbright, which name comes very near to that in the inquisitio under consideration.

Carwill, erroneously written for Carmyle, near Glasgow.

Couendal, Quendal. There is a parish in the upper ward of Lanarkshire called Covinton, the first two syllables of which agree with this name. A foreign scribe might readily turn Couendal into Quendal. Perhaps it may be said the reverse was just as natural.

Colchtaim; perhaps Coltram, that is, Homecultraum.

Casteltarras, this name still remains unaltered.

Dryvefdale, Drysdale.

Dalmuneh, perhaps Dalmarnoch.

Drumteblay, Duntiblae.

Dalkarn, in Galloway.

Drilton, Dirleton.

Edulviftun, Edulfton, now Eddilston.

Edyngahaym, Edenham, or Ednam.

Encarrach, a blunder for In Carrick.

Guvan, Govan, remains unaltered.

Galwaith, Galloway.

Gillemoriftun, the modern name of Penjacob.

Golyn, in Lothian.

Hachenkerach, Auchinraith, Auchinreach or Auchinreoch.

Houchiltre, Ochiltree.

Hodelm, Hoddam, in Dumfriesshire.

Hotun, Hutton.

Hardingeltrena, Hassenden?

Horda, Orda, Orde.

Ingoliftun, Ingliston.

Innenfchaden, Inienfchaddin, Inchinan in Renfrewshire, near Glasgow.

Kevearonum. Lands called Monach Kennaran are adjudged to belong to the monastery of Paisley by a decree in Annalibus Facultatis artium in Glasgow college. Can Kevearonum be a corruption of Kennaran, and signify other lands of Kennaran not belonging to Paisley? Kennaran is in Kilpatrick parish.

Kevertrold.

Kevergylt.

Kevegyrd, Traquair, or Troqueer; or it may be Cathcart, ordinarily pronounced Kerkert, and usually written Kethert in older writings. The two first syllables of these are perhaps corruptions of Caer, which occurs in many names in this country.

Keueayrd, Kiunaird?

Karneuid, Carnwath.

Kil, Incuill, corruption of In kyl.

Kerkentulacht, Kirkintilloch, both corrupted from Caerpentalloch, the ancient name of this place.

Lengartheyn. The first syllable of this name would seem to be Lan, the Welsh word for a church.

There are several places in Dumbartonshire, the names of which are compounded with Gartan.

Lilliefcliva, now Lilliesleaf; the last syllable corrupted from clive or cliff.

Lochorwar ecclesia, Locharret near Borthwick, Lochorward.

Levenaiche, Levenax, Lennox.

Laodonia, Lothian.

Mecheyn, Machan shire, in Lanarkshire.

Menenfchadin, probably an error for Inchinan.

Mereboda, corruptly written for Morebattle.

Morthewic, perhaps a corruption of Borthwicke, by miswriting of the transcriber.

Muckraht, Muckroft.

Planmichel; the first syllable may be an error for Lan; or is it Carmichel?

Penjacob; Pentnacob is a corruption of it. The more modern name in the Chartulary is Gille-moristune.

Perdeyc, Perdehic, Pertheit, Perthic; Partick, near Glasgow, where the bishop had a residence.

Polmadie, still bears the same name: near Glasgow in the parish of Govan.

Rokele, is a misreading for Possele, which retains still the same name.

Sadinfon, Schadinfon, villa filia Sadin, now corruptly called Shettleston, a village near Glasgow, named from Sadin a brother of St Patrick.

Selefchirea, Selkirk.

Sleindaff.

Stralahane, Strathblane.

Travequer, Travercuer, Traquair.

Traverenni, Taverenni, Travernent. Can this be Tranent in East Lothian?

Wilthon, Wiltona, Wilton.

Thus only three or four names of the whole, are unaccounted for in the modern names of the country.

CARTA WILLIELMI REGIS DE ERIGENDO BURGO APUD

GLASGU. [Circa 1172.]

CARTA WILLIELMI REGIS DE NUNDINIS APUD

GLASGU. [Circa 1190.]

W. DEI gratia Rex Scottorum, Episcopis, Abbatibus, Comitibus, Baronibus, Justiciariis, Vicecomitibus, Prepositis, Ministris, et omnibus probis hominibus tocius terre sue, clericis et laicis, salutem. SCIANT presentes et futuri ME dedisse et concessisse, et hac carta mea confirmasse Deo et Sancto Kentegerno et ecclesie de Glasgu, et Jocelino ejusdem loci Episcopo, omnibusque successoribus ejus, in perpetuum, Nundinas apud Glasgu habendas, et singulis annis tenendas, ab Octavis Apostolorum Petri et Pauli, plenarie per octo dies; cum firma et plenaria pace, et cum omnibus libertatibus aliquibus Nundinis in tota terra mea concessis; et cum omnibus reſtitudinibus ad Nundinas pertinentibus, ita libere, quiete, plenarie, et honorifice sicut alique Nundine in aliquo burgorum meorum, liberius, quietius, plenus, et honorificentius teneatur aut teneri debent. TESTIBUS Johanne Dun-keldenfi Episcopo, Hugone Cancellario meo, Archibaldo Abbate de Dunfermelin, O. Abbate de Kelcho, Comite Dunecano, Rollando filio Uëtredi, Willielmo de Lindefeia, Waltero Corbet, Willielmo Cumin, Roberto filio Werneburc, Alexandro vicecomite de Strivelin, Henrico de Graham, Henrico de Cormanoc, Apud Edenburc.

CARTA WILLIELMI REGIS DE ACCESSU LIBERO AD
NUNDINAS DE GLASGU.

WILLIELMUS Dei gratia Rex Scottorum, omnibus probis hominibus tocius terre sue, clericis et laicis, salutem : SCIATIS Me firmam pacem meam iuste dedisse omnibus qui venient ad Nundinas de Glasgu, quas conceffi Deo et Sancto Kentegerno, et burgo de Glasgu, ad veniendum illuc et ibi standum, et inde iuste redeundum ; ita ut faciant quod iuste et secundum assisam burgenfium meorum et terre mee facere debebunt. TESTIBUS Willielmo de Boscho Clerico meo, Philippo de Mu-bray, Apud Edeneburgh xxvij die Junij.

The following Charter suggests an inquiry, whether the building of cathedral churches, monasteries, and other important ecclesiastical buildings, may not have given rise to the societies of Free Masons.

CARTA WILLIELMI REGIS QUA CONFIRMAT FRATERNITATEM
CONSTITUTAM AD CONSTRUCTIONEM ECCLESIE GLASGU-ENSIS.

WILLIELMUS Dei gratia Rex Scottorum omnibus probis hominibus tocius terre sue, clericis et laicis, salutem : Neceffitati Glasguensis ecclesie, pietate debita compa-cientes, et eam summi regis, et Sanctissimi Kentegerni confessoris intuitu, devo-cione non modica diligentes, defolacioni ipsius curam volumus consolacionis adhi-bere ; Et eam quoad possumus regie protectionis munimine conservare. Quum autem mater multarum gentium, exilis antehac et angusta, ad honorem Dei ampliari desiderat ; et preterea in hiis diebus nostris igne consumpta, ad sui reparationem, amplissimis expensis indigens, et nostrum et plurium proborum hominum subsidium expostulat ; Fraternitatem quam ad ejus constructionem venerabilis Jocelinus ejufdem ecclesie Episcopus, de consilio Abbatum, Priorum et alterius cleri Episcopatus sui constituit, devote recipimus, et regie concessionis munimine usque ad ipsius ecclesie perfectionem confirmamus: Et omnes ejusdem fraternitatis collectores, et ad ejus fabricam auctoritate Episcopi et Capituli ipsius ecclesie auxilium postulantes, in nostra firma pace et protectione suscepimus: Omnibus Ballivis nostris et ministris firmiter precipientes, ut eos ubique in regno meo protegant et manuteneant: Et districtè prohibentes, ne quis eis injuriam, violenciam, aut contumeliam aliquam inferat, super meam plenariam forisfacturam: TESTIBUS Hugone Cancellario nostro, Archembaldo Abbate de Dunfermelin, Willielmo de Lindefeia Justiciario, Philippo de Valoniis, Apud Rokesburg.

This Charter shows that the church had been burnt in the time of King William, and when Jocelin was bishop. The following two grants to the Bishop of Glasgow show that slavery was not unknown at the time in Scotland.

CARTA WILLIELMI REGIS QUA CONCEDIT GILLEMACHOI DE CONCLUD ECCLESIE DE GLASGU.

WILLIELMUS Dei gratia Rex Scottorum, Omnibus probis hominibus tocus terre sue, salutem: SCIATIS Me concessisse et quietum clamasse de me et de heredibus meis, Deo et Ecclesie Sancti Kentegerni de Glasgu, et Episcopo Jocelino suisque successoribus in perpetuum, Gillemachoi de Conglud, cum liberis suis, et tota ejus secta que de ratione eum sequi debuerint. Quare prohibeo firmiter, ne quis ballivorum meorum impediatur quin eos libere habere possint. TESTIBUS Ricardo de Morvilla Conftabulario, Roberto de Quinci, Waltero Olifard, Apud Selekirke.

LITERA DECANI ET CAPITULI SARISBERIENSIS DECANO
 ET CAPITULO GLASGUENSI.

VIRIS venerabilibus et discretis W. Decano et Capitulo Glasguensis ecclesie, R.
 Decanus et Capitulum Sarisberienfis ecclesie, salutem [in Domino sempiternam, QUUM nobis supplicastis humiliter ac devote, ut libertates et approbatas consuetu-dines quibus utitur ecclesia nostra, ad vestram et ecclesie vestre informationem vobis

scribere curaremus; Vestris supplicationibus inclinati, prefens scriptum vobis transmittimus. PERSONAS et eorum officia, dignitates et consuetudines quibus ecclesia Sarisberienfis ordinatur et regitur, juxta institutionem felicis memorie Ofmundi ejusdem ecclesie fundatoris et Episcopi, prefens tractatus explanat. Quatuor itaque sunt persone principales in ecclesia Sarisberienfi, Decanus, Cantor, Cancellarius, Thesaurarius. Quatuor Archidiaconi, videlicet, Archidiaconi Dorset, Berkfir, et duo Wiltesfir. Preterea subdecanus et succentor. DECANI officium est, cum omnibus canonicis et vicariis, in animarum regimine, et morum correctione premineat; Causas omnes ad Capitulum spectantes audire, et judicio Capituli terminare; Excessus clericorum corrigere, et delinquentium personas juxta delicti quantitatem, et personarum qualitate, digna animadversione punire. Canonici ab Episcopo institutionem, a Decano vero possessionem de Prebendis accipiunt. Decani est etiam Canonicis jam institutis, ecclesie communia suo jure conferre; et in Stallum in Choro, et in Capitulo locum assignare: Vicarias etiam vacantes ad presentacionem Canonicorum presentium, vel ex justa et rationabili causa, de licencia Decani et Capituli ob quamcunque causam abfencium, de clericis idoneis ordinare. Verum si ultra mare absente Canonico quacunque de causa, vicaria aliqua vacaverit, Decanus vicariam sua auctoritate, citra assensum ipsius Canonici, cum voluerit, clerico idoneo poterit conferre. Preterea nullus clericorum de superiore gradu vel de secunda forma in choro admittitur, nisi auctoritate Decani. CANTORIS officium est, chorum in cantuum elevatione et depressione regere, cantores et ministros altaris in tabula ordinare. Ad illum etiam pertinet puerorum instructio et disciplina, et eorumdem in choro admissio et ordinatio. Preterea in majoribus festis duplicibus, tenetur interesse regimini chori. Preterea in omni duplici festo, Rectores chori de cantibus injungendis et incipiendis, tenetur intruere. Preterea omnes cantus ab Episcopo incipiendos, ipsi Episcopo in propria persona tenetur injungere. CANCELLARIJ officium est, in scolis regendis et libris reparandis et corrigendis curam impendere; lectiones auscultare et terminare, sigillum Capituli custodire, literas et cartas componere, et literas in Capitulo legendas legere, lectores in tabula notare; omnes etiam lectiones ad missam, que non scribuntur in tabula, tenetur injungere. THESAURARIJ officium est ornamenta et thesauros ecclesie conservare, luminaria administrare, magnum etiam cereum paschalem, sacristis quoque suis expensis tenetur Thesaurarius exhibere, campanas ecclesie congrue suspensas, in statu congruo conservare, et earum usibus necessaria providere, ornamenta etiam ecclesie suis expensis reficere; Panem, vinum, aquam, et candelas singulis altaribus ecclesie, excepto parochiali, administrare; incensum, carbonem, stramen, juncum, et nattas [mattas?] statutis temporibus per totum annum ecclesie comparare. SUBDECANI officium est, si Decanus defuerit ecclesie, vices ejus supplere, curam Archidiaconatus in urbe et suburbio gerere. SUCCENTORIS officium est vices cantoris absentis supplere, scolam cantus per officialem suum regere; si quis Canonorum, sive ad dedicationem ecclesiarum, sive alias cum Episcopo ejusdem ecclesie fuerit, partem oblationis sicut alius capellanus habebit. Item, si Episcopus ecclesias vel capellas Prebendarum dedicaverit, nichil ibi percipiant capellani Episcopi nec alii, nisi solus Canonicus cujus fuit Prebenda: Quando vero aliquis constituitur Canonicus, debet jurare coram fratribus presente ewangelio, se dignitates et consuetudines Sarisberienfis ecclesie inviolabiliter observaturum. Dignitas Decani et omnium Canonicorum est, ut Episcopo in nullo respondeat, nisi in Capitulo cathedralis ecclesie Sarisberienfis, et iudicio tantum ejusdem Capituli pareant. Habent etiam curiam suam in omnibus Prebendis suis, et jurisdictionem Archidiaconalem ubicunque Prebende assignate fuerint in diocesi Sarisberienfi, sive in ecclesiis, vel decimis, vel terris, ita quidem ut nulla exigencia omnino in dono vel assisa aut aliqua alia consuetudine ab Episcopo vel aliquo alio fiat in Prebendis eorum; sed omnes libertates eorum, et omnes dignitates plenarie et pacifice habeant, quas predictus Osmundus Episcopus in eisdem Prebendis habuit creatas in suo hereditario dominio; in quibus Episcopi et Archidiaconi, nec visitacionem nec procuracionem ratione visitacionis, nec pecuniarium auxilium hactenus habuerunt: Sic enim optentum est ex libera et approbata consuetudine a tempore cujus non extat memoria. Eisdem etiam libertatibus et consuetudinibus gaudet ecclesia nostra in ecclesiis, terris et decimis ad communiam ipsius infra Sarisberiensem dioecesim assignatis, quas habet in Prebendis infra eandem dioecesim existentibus, exceptis quibusdam ecclesiis de novo ad communiam assignatis, in quibus premissas libertates nondum optinuit. PRETEREA noveritis, quod communia ecclesie nostre inter residentes tantum clericos, vel qui pro negociis Capituli sunt absentes distribuitur, secundum consuetudinem hactenus approbatam. Istud etiam notorium est, quod libera electio Decani, ad Canonicos ecclesie pertinuit a tempore Beati Osmundi predicti. IN CUJUS REI testimonium prefens scriptum Capituli nostri sigillo roboravimus. Datum Sarisberie die assencionis Domini, anno gracie M^o. cc^o. quinquagesimo nono. [1259.]

LITERA GREGORII X. PAPE PRO LIBERTATIBUS ECCLESIAE GLASGUENSIS CONFIRMANDIS.

GREGORIUS Episcopus, servus servorum Dei, dilectis filiis Decano et capitulo ecclesie Glasguensis, salutem et apostolicam benedictionem: CUM a nobis petitur quod justum est et honestum, tam vigor equitatis quam ordo exigit rationis, ut id per sollicitudinem officii nostri, ad debitum perducatur effectum. Sane petitio vestra nobis exhibita continebat, quod bone memorie Willielmus Episcopus Glasguensis prudenter attendens, quod libertates et consuetudines que habentur in Sarberienfi ecclesia laudabiles existebant; quodque Glasguensis ecclesia, si eadem libertates et consuetudines inibi fervarentur, quoad decorem et ornatum ipsius, suscipere poterat incrementum, de quondam decani et nostro filii capitulum ejusdem ecclesie Glasguensis assensu, statuit predictas libertates et consuetudines, tam circa executionem officiorum personatus, et dignitates obtinencium in eadem; et divina officia inibi celebranda; quam eciam erga alia in quibus prefatas libertates et consuetudines competebant, debere perpetuis futuris temporibus in dicta ecclesia Glasguensi observari, de observandis eisdem libertatibus et consuetudinibus prestito a dicto decano et nobis [vobis?] predicti capitulum juramento prout in literis inde confectis plenius dicitur contineri: Nos Itaque vestris supplicationibus inclinati, quod super hoc proinde factum est, et in augmentum cultus divini redundat, ratum et gratum habentes, illud auctoritate apostolica confirmamus, et presentis scripti patrocinio communimus. Nulli ergo omnino hominum liceat hanc paginam nostre confirmationis infringere, vel ei ausu temerario contraire. Si quis autem hoc attemptare presumpserit, indignationem omnipotentis Dei, et Beatorum Petri et Pauli apostolorum ejus, se noverit incursum. LITERA GREGORII PAPÆ X. EPISCOPO DUNBLANENSI DE W.

DE LINDSAY ET W. SALSARIO IMPEDIENDIS OBSERVATION-EM LIBERTATUM SARISBERIENSIS ECCLESIAE.

GREGORIUS Episcopus servus servorum Dei venerabili fratri . . . Episcopo Dunblanensi, salutem et apostolicam benedictionem. SUA nobis dilecti filii Decanus et Capitulum ecclesie Glasguensis petitione monstraverunt, quod bone memorie Willielmus Glasguensis Episcopus, prudenter attendens quod libertates et consuetudines que habebantur in Sarisberienfi ecclesia, laudabiles existebant; Quodque Glasguensis ecclesia si eodem libertates et consuetudines inibi fervarentur, quoad decorem et ornatum ipsius suscipere poterat incrementum. De quondam Walteri Decani et Capituli ejusdem ecclesie Glasguensis assensu, statuit, predictas libertates et consuetudines, tam circa executionem officiorum personatus et dignitates et canonicas obtinentium in eadem, et divina officia inibi celebranda, quam etiam circa alia in quibus prefate libertates et consuetudines competebant, debere perpetuis futuris temporibus, in dicta Glasguensi ecclesia observari. Nosque postmodum eorundem Decani et Capituli supplicationibus inclinati, quod super hoc provide factum extitit, ratum et gratum habentes, illud autoritate apostolica duximus confirmandum; VERUM Magister Willielmus de Lyndesay, qui pro Archidiacono Glasguensi, et Magister Willielmus Salsarius, qui pro officiali suo se gerunt, quominus predictae libertates et consuetudines, in eadem Glasguensi ecclesia, juxta tenorem statuti et confirmationis hujusmodi observentur, contra justitiam impedire presumunt. QUARE predicti Decanus et Capitulum nobis humiliter supplicarunt, ut prefatos Magistros Willielmum de Lyndesay et Willielmum Salsarium ab hujusti modi impedimento compesci, per discretum aliquem mandaremus. QUOCIRCA fraternitati tue per apostolica scripta Mandamus, quatinus vocatis qui fuerint evocandi, et auditis hinc inde propositis, quod justum fuerit, appellatione remota decernas; Faciens quod decreveris per censuram ecclesiasticam firmiter observari: Testes autem qui fuerint nominati, si se gratia, odio, vel timore subtraxerint, censura simili, appellatione cessante, compellas veritati testimonium perhibere. Data Lugduni Nonis Aprilis, Pontificatus nostri anno quarto. [1275.]

LITERA ALEXANDRI PAPE GALWELENSIBUS DE DECIMIS SOLVENDIS.

ALEXANDER Episcopus servus servorum Dei, dilectis filiis Galwelni [Galwelenibus?] et aliis in Episcopatu Glasguensi constitutis, salutem et apostolicam benedictionem. Grave delictum incurrunt, et merito timere possunt periculum animarum, qui sacris Dei ecclesiis, de decimis et aliis justiciis suis respondere contempnunt. Quapropter univervitatem vestram per apostolica scripta monemus atque mandamus, quatinus ecclesiis in quarum parochiis habitatis, juxta commonitionem venerabilis fratris nostri Glasguensis Episcopi, decimas que de canonico jure debentur, sine contradictione, cum integritate solvatis, ne eas de cetero in hac parte fraudare temptetis. Quod si monitis apostolicis duxeritis resistendum, indignationem poteritis formidare, et sententiam quam idem Episcopus canonicè tulerit in rebelles, a nobis noveritis autoritate dominica [autore Domino] ratam habendam. Datam Laterani viij Kal. Julij.

ALEXANDER Episcopus servus servorum Dei, venerabili fratri Episcopo, et dilectis filiis canonicis Glasguensibus, salutem et apostolicam benedictionem. Decet personas ecclesiasticas viros seculares a viciiis diligenti commonitione retrahere; et verbo et exemplo ad virtutes, et ad pietatis opera informare. NOVERITIS autem, Galwelenibus et aliis in Episcopatu vestro morantibus, dedisse nos in mandatis, ut ecclesiis in quarum parochiis habitant, decimas sine contradictione cum integritate persolvant, nec eas in hac parte de cetero defraudare presumant; Quocirca disfre-tioni vestre per apostolica scripta mandamus atque precipimus, quatinus predictos viros ad monita nostra complenda, inducere laboretis: Quod si monitis vestris et nostris duxerint resistendum, in eos qui magis contumaces fuerint et rebelles, excommunicationis, et in alios interdicti sententiam, tu frater Episcopo, auctoritate nostra et tua, non differas promulgare: Ricardo de Morvilla, et Alano filio Walteri, et aliis a quibus predicti decimarum detentores, terras vel pascua acquirunt, ex parte nostra et tua, sub interminationem anathematis prohibens, ne predictis viris in malicia sua perfidium vel favorem impendant; Sed si quam sententiam in eos protuleris, inconcussa studeant observare: Quod si contra prohibitionem tuam temerario presumpserint ausu venire, eos, nullius contradictione vel appellatione obstant, ecclesiastica censura percellas. Data Laterani viij Kal. Junij.

This is an ancient instance of the mode of giving seisin in burgage property, viz. in open court before a magistrate and assize of twelve burgesses, and attested, not by a notary or clerk, but by the town seal, which appears in those days to have represented Saint Kentigern's head and bell. No trace of the tree and salmon at this period.

The following passage of Rymer's Fœdera, page 401, Vol. II. new edition, Part I. shows, that during the contest with Robert Bruce, Edward II. did not cease to grant benefices in the church of Scotland, even when it was not in his power to give or to maintain his presentees in possession. It is inserted here, because most of the benefices are in the diocese of Glasgow.

BULLA INDULGENTIARUM PAPÆ NICHOLAI V. PRO LACTI-CINIIS, OBTENTA MAGNIS LABORIBUS ET EXPENSIS PER DOMINUM WILLIELMUM EPISCOPUM GLASGUENSEM.

NICOLAUS Episcopus fervus fervorum Dei. Ad perpetuam rei memoriam. Etsi cunctorum votis honesta petentium, ex injuncto nobis desuper apostolice servitutis officio, benignum impertimur assensum; cum etiam illa nobis presertim et fedi apostolice devotis personis, libenter gaudemus concedere, que eorum concedimus indemnitatibus profutura. CUM itaque, sicut karissimus in Christo filius noster JACOBUS Scottorum rex illustris, nobis nuper exponi fecit, in regno Scotie maxime in civitate et dioceſi Glaſguenſi, Olivarum olei liquor, quo incole et habitatores civitatis et dioceſeos hujusmodi, ac in eiſdem moram pro tempore trahentes commode veſci poſſint, aliquatenus non excreſcat, nec ibidem niſi aliunde ad civitatem et dioceſim eandem afferatur; Et eciam tunc cum ſemper inibi in caro foro eſſe conſueverunt, commode haberi non poſſit. Et quia butiri et aliorum lacticiniorum, de quibus in civitate et dioceſi hujusmodi, ac eciam partibus circumvicinis, ubertas habetur largiflua, et admodum copioſa, quamplurimi ex quadam conſuetudine, quadrageſimalibus et aliis diebus, quibus de jure vel conſuetudine, eſus lacticiniorum et butiri hujusmodi uſus eſt interdicitus, veſci conſueverunt: Et quod preſatis habitatoribus et incolis predictis, uſus et eſus lacticiniorum et butiri fore noſcantur plurimum opportuni; Pro parte ipſius regis ac incolarum et habitatorum civitatis et dioceſeos earundem, nobis fuit humiliter ſupplicatum, ut providere ſuper hiis paterna diligentia curaremus; Nos ad ea que incolarum, habitatorum, et aliorum predictorum commoditate, ſuper hiis reſpicere diſcuntur, ut ea potiffime ſedi memorate devociore ſe exhibeant, quo ſe amplius noverint illius ubertate ſoveri favorabiliter intendentes, hujusmodi ſupplicationibus inclinati, incolis, habitatoribus, et commorantibus predictis, univerſis et ſingulis utriuſque ſexus, preſentibus pariter et futuris; QUOD ipſi et eorum ſinguli, quadrageſimalibus et aliis diebus quibuſcunque, quibus uſus carniſum per eccleſiam ſeu alias prohibitus exiſtit de jure vel conſuetudine, butiro et aliis lacticiniis etiam abſque cujuſvis conſcientie ſcrupulo, ita eciam quod eis id ad culpam nequeat imputari, ac cujuſcunque licencia ſuper hoc minime requiſita, pro ſue libito voluntatis veſci libere et licite valeant, quibuſvis apoſtolicis, necnon forſan in provincialibus et ſynodalibus editis conſtitutionibus et ordinationibus, ceteriſque contrariis nequaquam obſtantibus, auctoritate apoſtolica, tenore preſentium, de ſpeciali gratia, licentiam elargimur, perpetuis temporibus duraturam. NULLI ergo omnino hominum liceat hanc paginam noſtre conſeſſionis infringere, vel ei aſu temerario contraire: Si quis autem hoc attemptare preſumpſerit, indignationem omnipotentis Dei, et Beatorum Petri et Pauli apoſtolorum ejus ſe noverit incurſurum. Data Rome apud Sanctam Mariam Majorem, anno incarnationis Dominice milleſimo quadringenteſimo quinquageſimo primo, Septimo kalendas Aprilis, pontificatus noſtri anno quinto. [1451.]

CARTA DAVIDIS COMITIS DE CENTUM SOLIDIS DE HARDINGSTRONA AD EDIFICATIONEM ECCLESIE.

DAVID comes omnibus eccleſie fidelibus, ſalutem: NOTUM ſit omnibus vobis Me in perpetuum prebuiſſe redditionem centum ſolidorum in Hardingeſtrona Glaſguenſi eccleſie, in elemoſina, ad edificationem et reſtaurationem ejuſdem eccleſie; et hoc

This Walterus filius Gilberti is moſt probably the ſame perſon as Schyr Walter Gilbertson in Barbour's Bruce, book 9, v. 587, who was captain of Bothwell at the time of the battle of Bannockburn, and in the English intereſt. After the defeat, the Earl of Hertford made for this caſtle of Bothwell, as mentioned in the following verſes:—

" The Erle of Herfurd fra the mellé
 " Departyt with a gret mengné ;
 " And ftraucht to Bothwell tok the vai
 " That than in the Ingliſh mennys fay
 " Was, and haldyn as [a] place of wer.
 " Schyr Waltre Gilbertſon was ther
 " Captaine, and had it in ward.
 " The Erle of Herfurd thidderward
 " Held, and wes tane in our the wall,
 " And fifty of his men withall,
 " And fet in howfis findryly,
 " Swa that thai had thar na mercy.
 " The lave went towart Ingland."

These lines imply that the Earl was not received with welcome at Bothwell, he being admitted with only fifty of his men. The gates were not opened to them, but such of them as were taken in were taken over the wall, and placed in confinement, no doubt lest the rest should have entered by force.

The castle of Bothwell was surrendered to Edward Bruce, detached by King Robert for that purpose, by Sir Walter.—v. 856 :

" And fyne to Bothwell fend he
 " Schyr Eduuard, with a great menye ;
 " For thar was than fend him word
 " That the rich Erle of Herford
 " And othyr mychty als wer ther.
 " Swa tretyt he with Schir Walter,
 " That Erle and castell, and the lave,
 " In Schyr Eduuardis hand be gawe
 " And till the king the Erle send be," &c.

Crawford, on the authority of Hamilton of Wishaw's Genealogical History of the Family of Hamilton, sets forth that this Walter Gilbertson was an Englishman, trusted by King Edward of England with the command of Bothwell castle, which he gave up to Robert Bruce and the English in it, and became a subject of King Robert, who gave him lands and treated him as a favourite. The charter before quoted is evidence of a grant of part of the estate of John Cumyn, slain by Robert. But I have doubts of Walter being an Englishman, and acting treacherously towards his sovereign. I think it much more probable he was a Scotsman in the English interest, as most of the nobility and gentry of Scotland were, till Robert overcame his difficulties, (which was accomplished by the victory at Bannockburn,) and then took part with the Bruce. It favours this presumption that his wife bears a Scottish name, Mary de Gordon.

Barbour proceeds to narrate, that the Earl of Hertford was set at liberty without ransom; except that Robert Bishop of Glasgow, who was old and blind, the Queen, and her daughter Marjory, whom Edward II. had long detained as prisoners, were received in exchange for the Earl.

I think it more creditable to the founder of the Hamilton family, that he should be represented as a Scotsman returning to his duty, than as an Englishman guilty of treason against his lawful sovereign, by making his commanders and soldiers prisoners and delivering them to their enemies the Scots.

It is probable, that in the next Parliament held after the battle of Bannockburn, forfeiture was awarded against those who did not make their submission to King Robert, and their lands granted out to his faithful followers. Of this there are several instances in the first remaining roll of Robert's charters. The charter to Walter Gilbertson of the lands of Machan is one of these; and of course must have been granted after 1314. The records of Parliament are lost till 1319, printed in Skene's Collection, and has no reference to the forfeitures, which must have been previous. The first remaining roll is marked C, indicating that there were two others previous to it.

CARTA J. [JOHANNIS?] EPISCOPI, DOMINO WILLIELMO DE CADIHOU, DE AREA IN GARDINO SUO DE GLASGOW.

UNIVERSIS Sancte matris ecclesie filiis prefens scriptum visuris vel auditoris, J. miseracione divina Glasguensis Episcopus, salutem in Domino sempiternam. Universitati vestre notum facimus, Nos de communi consensu et assensu Capituli nostri Glasguensis, Deditisse, Concessisse, et hac presenti pagina Confirmasse, Domino Wilhelmo de Cadihou ecclesie Glasguensis Canonico, aream illam de Gardino nostro apud Glasgu, cum arboribus, et edificiis sumptibus suis constructis et construendis in eadem, quam sibi per ejusdem loci Decanum, et Magistrum Adam de Dertford officialem nostrum limitari fecimus et assignari. Tenendam et habendam, de nobis et successoribus nostris toto tempore vite sue, ita libere quiete et honorifice, sicut alie aree et edes aliorum Canonicorum circa ecclesiam, liberius et quietius tenentur aut possidentur. Hoc proviso, quod inter eandem aream suam et gardinum nostrum, bonam claufuram faciat et sustineat, ita quod ex illa parte pro defectu claufure, nullum nobis dampnum eveniat vel gravamen. Volumus etiam et concedimus quod dictus Dominus W. propter magnos sumptus quos fecit ibidem in edificiis construendis, possit easdem edes in sua ultima voluntate onerare in rationabili pecunie quantitate; ut consideratis expensis circa easdem factis, et considerata temporis quantitate, ac usus sui utilitate habita in eisdem, ratio et equitas suadebit: Et quod ille cui dicta area cum edificiis post mortem dicti Domini W. assignabitur, teneatur ad solutionem predictæ pecunie executoribus ejusdem W. faciendam. Et quod ad hoc si necesse fuerit, per Nos aut successores nostros legitime compellatur. IN CUJUS REI

CARTA ALEXANDRI II. REGIS DE NON CAPIENDO TOLNEUM IN VILLA DE GLASGOW.

ALEXANDER Dei gratia Rex Scottorum, omnibus probis hominibus tocius terre sue, clericis et laicis, salutem. SCIANT presentes et futuri, Nos Concessisse et hac carta noſtra Confirmaffe Deo et eccleſie Sancti Kentigerni de Glaſgu, et Waltero Epifcopo ejuſdem loci, et ſucceſſoribus ſuis Epifcopis, ne prepoſiti vel Ballivi, vel fervientes noſtri de Rutherglen, Tolneum aut conſuetudinem capiant in villa de Glaſgu; Set illa capiant ad Crucem de Schedineſtun, ſicut illa antiquitus capi ſolebant. QUARE prohibemus firmiter ne Prepoſiti vel Ballivi, vel fervientes noſtri de Rutherglen, tolneum aut conſuetudinem capiant in villa de Glaſgu. TESTIBUS Thoma de Strivelin, Cancellario, Henrico de Baillol Camerario, Rogero de Quinci, Johanne de Maccufwell, David Marifcallo, Henrico Mayn [Mareſcallo?] Waltero Biſſet, Apud Jeddeburch 29^{no} die Octobris, anno regni noſtri duodecimo. [1236.]

The Cruz de Schedineſtun is probably Tolcroſs, where no doubt a cross was erected to mark the boundary on that ſide of the lands of the Biſhopric. Schedineſtun is no doubt the villages now corruptly called Shettleſton. The name is moſt probably derived from a brother of St Patrick called Sadin, mentioned by his biographers.

LITERA ARBITRORUM DE PROCURATIONIBUS DE ECCLESIIS

IN DIOCESI GLASGUENSI AD CONVENTUM DE PASSELEHT
SPECTANTIBUS, [1227.]

UNIVERSIS sancte matris ecclesie filiis, prefens scriptum auditoris vel inspecturis, Magister Hugo Archidiaconus, Robertus Precentor Glasguensis, Radulphus Domini regis Scotie Capellanus, Magister Christianus Clericus, Philippus de Perthec rector ecclesie de Rotherglen, eternam in Domino salutem. Cum controversia mota esset inter venerabilem patrem Walterum Episcopum Glasguensem ex una parte, et Willielmum abbatem et conventum de Passeleht ex altera, super procurationibus exigendis de ecclesiis ad monasterium de Passeleht spectantibus in dyocesi Glasguensi: Tandem dictus Dominus Episcopus, de Capituli sui assensu, et idem abbas et conventus de Passeleht, in Nos amicablem compromiserunt, ut certas pro-curaciones de ejuſdem monaſterii eccleſiſ, ad pacem utriuſque partis perpetuam, provida deliberatione taxare ac moderari deberemus. Nos autem in nomine Domini noſtri Jeſu Chriſti, anno incarnationis ejuſdem M^o.cc^o.xxvij^{mo}. menſe Novembris, die Martiſ proximo ante feſtum Sancti Martini in eccleſia de Pebbles, ad firmam pacem et ſtabilitatem perpetuam inter eccleſiam Glaſguenſem et monaſterium de Paſſeleht; poſt longam deliberationem ſuper eſtimationem dictarum eccleſiarum habitam, omnes in unum concordem, et ſolum Dominum pre oculis habentes; Providimus et ordinavimus, ac eciam arbitrando pronunciavimus moderando, viz. Quod de omnibus eccleſiis ad predictos monachos in Strathgrif tunc ſpectantibus, Epiſcopus Glaſguenſis et ejuſ ſucceſſores, duo tantum hoſpitia nomine procurationis recipiant in loco Epiſcopiſ competentiori: De eccleſia de Kylpatric, unum habeant hoſpitiuſ nomine procurationis: De eccleſiis vero de Curmannoc et de Mernes, unum habeant hoſpitiuſ nomine procurationis: De eccleſiis vero de Rutherglen et Katkert, de Polloc, unum habeant hoſpitiuſ nomine procurationis: De eccleſiis vero de Craggyn et de Preſtwic monachorum unum habeant hoſpitiuſ nomine procurationis: De eccleſia vero de Turnebyry unum habeant hoſpitiuſ nomine procurationis; Eccleſia vero de Preſtwic burgo, eccleſia de Neleſtun, et eccleſia de Neveht, a procurationibus ſint exempte. De predictis vero procurationibus, et de omnibus honeribus ad que ipſe eccleſie tenentur de jure, earum vicarii reſpondeant. Et quia videbatur nobis, in hujusmodi moderatione, in aliquibus Epiſcopo deperire, in recompensationem hujusmodi detrimenti, ordinavimus, ut eccleſia de Hyrefkyn, que tunc ad dictum monaſterium de Paſſeleht pertinebat, in juſ cedat Epiſcopi Glaſguenſis et ſucceſſorum ejuſ, et penſionem duarum marcarum que ex ipſa eccleſia monaſterio ſolvebatur percipiet Epiſcopus, donec eadem eccleſia vacaverit. Hanc ſiquidem ordinationem ſeu provisionem per Nos factam, Dominus Epiſcopus et Capitulum Glaſguenſe, et predicti abbas et conventus acceptaverunt, et perpetuam habere promiferunt. Et ut preſens ordinatio ab utraque parte fideliter approbata et gratis recepta firma maneat, et in perpetuum inconcuſſa, dictus Epiſcopus et Capitulum Glaſguenſe, et Abbas et conventus predicti huic ſcripto in modum cyrographi conſcripto, ſigilla ſua alternatim appoſuerunt. Et Nos predicti taxatores ſigilla noſtra apponi fecimus. Actum anno menſe et die et loco preſcriptis, PRESENTIBUS Magiſtro Ric. de Bradie et R. de Eywud, Canonicis Glaſguenſibus, Adam et Hugone Capellanis Domini Epiſcopi, Thoma Capellano Archidiaconi ſui, Johanne vicario de Pebles, Magiſtro Radulfo de Brade, Magiſtro Ingelramo, Warino, Waltero, Clericis Epiſcopi, et multis aliis.

CARTA DAVIDIS 1^{MI}. REGIS DE GOVAN.

D. DEI gratia Rex Scottorum, omnibus sancte ecclesie fidelibus, salutem. SCIATIS Me Dedisse et Concessisse ecclesie Sancti Kentigerni de Glasgu et Episcopatu eiusdem ecclesie, Guven cum suis divisis, solutam et quietam, perpetuo in elemosinam possidendam, sicut aliqua elemosina liberius et quietius potest et debet dari. LITERA MARTINI V. PAPÆ DE ERECTIONE ECCLESIAE DE
STRABLANE ET HOSPITALIS DE POLMADE IN PREBENDAM
ECCLESIAE GLASGUENSIS.

MARTINUS episcopus Servus fervorum Dei, ad perpetuam rei memoriam. Exposcit nobis injunctum desuper apostolicæ servitutis officium, ut ea quæ pro ecclesiarum præfertim Cathedralium indemnitatibus et divini cultus augmento, rationabiliter processisse comperimus, ne impugnationi subjaceant, apostolici muniminis solidemur. Sane pro parte dilecti filii Roberti Scorm (Forman?) Canonici ecclesiæ Glasguensis, Nobis nuper exhibita petitio continebat; quod olim venerabilis frater noster Johannes episcopus Glasguensis, ad augmentum numeri Canonicorum et personarum in dicta ecclesia, Domino pro tempore famulantium, cum consensu filiorum dilectorum Capituli ecclesiæ ejusdem, hospitale de Polmade Glasguensis dioceſeos Clericis secularibus in titulum perpetui beneficii ecclesiastici assignari solitum; Cujusque dispositio ad episcopum Glasguensem pro tempore existentem pertinere noscebatur, in Prebendam dictæ ecclesiæ autoritate ordinaria Eredit, talibus inter cætera (conditionibus?) quod ipſius prebendæ collatio, plenaque dispositio, ad Johannem prædictum, et successores suos pro tempore existentes Glasguenses episcopos, in antea, (ut antea?) pertineant; Eademque prebenda cum vacaverit clerico conferratur idoneo, in Cantu bene ac notabiliter instructo; et quibusdam aliis conditionibus adjectis, prout in patentibus desuper confectis, ipſorum episcopi et Capituli sigillis munitis literis, et quarum tenorem de verbo ad verbum presentibus inferi fecimus, plenius dinoscitur contineri. Cum autem sicut eadem petitio subjungebatur, postea quondam Willelmo de Cunyngham, olim ipſius hospitalis Rectore, extra Romanam curiam vita functo, dictus episcopus præfatam Prebendam eidem Roberto autoritate prædicta contulerit; et de illa etiam providerit; ipſeque Robertus vigore collationis et provisionis earundem, dictam prebendam affectus, illam ex tunc tenuerit, prout tenet pacifice de presenti; Pro parte Roberti præfati, nobis fuit humiliter supplicatum, ut erectioni prædictæ, singulisque in ipſis contentis literis, pro eorum subsistentia firmiori, robur apostolicæ confirmationis adjicere, de benignitate apostolica dignaremur: Nos itaque, dictis supplicationibus inclinati, erectionem et contenta hujusmodi, ac quæcunque inde secuta, rata habentes et grata, illa autoritate apostolica et certa scientia confirmamus, et presentis scripto patrocinio communimus, suppletes omnes defectus, si qui forsitan intervenerint in eisdem. Tenor vero dictarum literarum talis est.—“JOHANNES miseratione divina Episcopus Glasguensis, ac Cancellarius Scotiæ, omnibus has literas visuris vel audituris, salutem in omnium Salvatore: NOVERIT universitas vestra, quod Nos, cum consensu et assensu totius Capituli nostri Glasguensis, solenni tractatu præhabito, in honorem et laudem omnipotentis Dei, Beatæ Mariæ Virginis matris ejus, Sanctique Kentigerni confessoris, et omnium sanctorum; atque in augmentum numeri canonicorum et personarum in dicta ecclesia nostra Glasguensi Deo fervientium, et futuris temporibus serviturozorum, ereximus, et per presentes erigimus hospitale de Polmade infra Baroniam nostram de Glasgu existens, cujus fundatio et plena dispositio ad Nos et predecessores nostros dinoscitur pertinere, una cum ecclesia de Strablahane eidem hospitali annexa, in unam Prebendam in dicta ecclesia nostra Glasguensi, perpetuis temporibus duraturam sub modo, forma, et conditionibus infra scriptis, viz. Quod dictæ Prebendæ plena collatio et dispositio ad Nos et successores nostros qui pro tempore fuerint, pertineat; Et quod dicta prebenda cum contigerit vacare, clerico idoneo, et in cantu bene et notabiliter instructo, conferatur. ITEM, ordinamus et volumus, quod in dicta ecclesia de Strablahane, sit perpetuus vicarius curam parochiæ gerens animarum, cui quidem vicario dictus Prebendarius et ejus successores qui pro tempore fuerint, solvent annuatim quatuordecem marcas usualis monetæ Scotiæ ad duos anni terminos, viz. ad festum Pentecostes et Sancti Martini in hyeme per equales portiones, et unam marchatam terræ prope ecclesiam sibi assignandam: Et quod dictus vicarius solvet nobis et successoribus nostris qui pro tempore fuerint, procuraciones et alia onera ordinaria. Item dictus Prebendarius, solvet quatuor pueris in Choro ecclesiæ nostræ predictæ, in horis divinis cantantibus, sedecem marchas usualis monetæ Scotiæ, viz. Cuilibet ipsorum puerorum quatuor marchas in anno, ad quatuor anni terminos, sub modo et forma quibus Canonici dictæ ecclesiæ nostræ solvunt vicariis in eorum stallis fervientibus; quorum quidem puerorum admisso et remotio ad Nos et successores nostros qui pro tempore fuerint volumus pertinere: ITEM dictus Prebendarius per se vel per alium, predictos quatuor pueros qui pro tempore fuerint, in cantu sufficienter et diligenter instruere teneatur. IN QUORUM omnium fidem et testimonium, sigillum nostrum, una cum communi Capituli nostri sigillo, presentibus est appensum, die duodecimo mensis Januarij in ecclesia nostra Glasguensi predicta, anno Domini 1427 secundum computationem ecclesiæ Scoticanæ, et consecrationis nostræ primo.” Nulli ergo omnino hominum liceat hanc paginam nostræ confirmationis et communitiois infringere, vel ei aufu temerario contraire. Si quis autem hoc attemptare præfumpferit, indignationem omnipotentis Dei, et Beatorum Petri et Pauli apoftolorum ejus, fe noverit incurfurum, DATA Romæ apud Sanctos apoftolos, nonis Decembris Pontificatus noftri anno 13^{to}.

LITERA URBANI PAPÆ CONFIRMANS ECCLESIAM DE CARNE-WID ECCLESIAE GLASGUENSI.

URBANUS Episcopus servus servorum Dei, venerabili fratri Episcopo, et dilectis filiis Decano et Capitulo Glasguensi, salutem et apostolicam benedictionem. Significantibus vobis agnovimus, quod cum ecclesia de Carnewith, ex concessione nobilis viri W. de Sumervilla, ecclesie vestre canonice collata fuisset; Tu frater Episcopo, aucto in ecclesia tua, tam prebendarum, quam canonicorum numero, ecclesiam pretaxatam, uni prebendarum in perpetuum assignasti. PORRO licet factum hujusmodi, tam tuo quam prenominata W. scriptis sit autenticis confirmatum, et auctoritate sedis apostolice roboratum; quia tamen eadem ecclesia infra terminos parochie de Libertun constructa esse proponitur, et jus patronatus ipsius ecclesie de Libertun, ad illum postea dicitur pervenisse; ne occasione hujus vobis et ecclesie vestre, aliquod in posterum prejudicium generetur, pretaxatam ecclesiam de Carnewith vobis, et per vos ecclesie Glasguensi, ad exemplar felicitis recordationis Lucii pape predecessoris nostri confirmamus, et presentis scripti patrocinio communimus. NULLI ergo omnino hominum liceat hanc paginam nostre confirmationis infringere, vel ei ausu temerario contraire: Si quis autem hoc attemptare presumpserit, indignationem omnipotentis Dei, et Beatorum Petri et Pauli apostolorum ejus, se noverit incursum. Datum Verone iij nonas Augusti.

me et heredes meos de firma ipſorum denariorum, et reſpondebunt amodo monachis de Paſſelet de ipſis denariis: Libertas autem foreſti de Maphelim remanebit michi et heredibus meis, prefatis monachis de Paſſelet tantum denarios quos ego dictis monachis de Melros percipi imperpetuum recepturis: HIS TESTIBUS Wilelmo Epifcopo Sancti Andreae, Oſberto Abbate de Kelkou, Roberto Croc, Magiſtro Alwyn, Alano de Mungumri, Willelmo de Paſſelet, Henrico de Nes, Alano filio ſuo, Ranulfo de Ketkert, Wilelmo filio Maidi, et aliis teſtibus.

CARTA ALANI FILII WALTERI FUNDATORIS, MONACHIS DE PASSELET, TERRÆ INTER KERT ET GRYFE.

SCIANT preſentes et futuri, quod ego ALANUS filius Walteri, Dapifer regis Scotiae, Concedo, et hac mea carta Confirmo Domui meae de Paſſelet, et monachis ibidem Deo ſervientibus et imperpetuum ſervituris: Donationem illam quam Henricus de Sancto Martino eis fecit, per conſilium meum, et voluntatem, et conſenſum Gilberti filii ſui et heredis, de tota terra ſua inter Kert et Griſ, in liberam et perpetuam elemoſinam eis ſemper habenda; Ita plene et integre, ſicut idem Henricus diſtam terram plenius et integrius tenuit, vel tenere debuit ex dono Walteri filii Alani patris mei; PRETEREA ego ipſe, pro anima regis David, et pro anima regis Malcolmi, et pro anima patris mei Walteri, et matris meae Eſchinae, et pro ſalute Domini noſtri Willelmi regis Scotiae et heredum ſuorum, et pro ſalute mei ipſius et heredum meorum, Dono, Concedo, et hac mea carta Confirmo, eidem Domui de Paſſelet; et monachis ibidem Deo ſervientibus, eccleſiam de Kingaiſ in infula de Bote, cum omnibus capellis et tota parochia ejuſdem infulae; Et cum tota terra quam Sanctus Blanus ſicum dicitur olim cinxit a mari uſque ad mare, per metas certas et apparentes; Ita libere et quiete ſicut aliqua eccleſia in toto regno Scotiae tenetur, liberius et quietius: HIS TESTIBUS Waltero de Coſtentin, Nigello fratre ejuſdem, Roberto filio Fulberti, Petro fratre ejuſdem, Galfrido de Coſtentin, Rolando de Merins, Rogerio de Nes, Macolmo Lockart, et multis aliis.

CARTA REGINALDI FILII SOMERLED DOMINI DE INCHEGALL, DE UNO DENARIO EX QUALIBET DOMO IN TERRA SUA, DE QUIBUS EXIT FUMUS, MONACHIS DE PASSELET.

SCIANT omnes tam preſentes quam futuri quod ego REGINALDUS filius Sumerled, Dominus de Inchevall, factus sum frater, et uxor mea Fonia foror, in Capitulo Domus de Passelet, et in toto ordine Cluniacensi: Et ego verus frater et bonus amicus predictis monachis fratribus meis de Passelet in perpetuum mansurus, cum heredibus meis et hominibus meis. Testimonio figilli mei Concessi eis, me daturum tibi, pro salute mea et uxoris meæ, et heredum meorum et hominum, in hoc anno octo boves, et duos denarios ex qualibet domo unde fumus exit. Et post hunc annum, singulis annis, unum denarium ex qualibet domo tocus terræ meæ unde fumus exit dabo illis, et post me heredes mei dabunt, aut maledictionem meam habebunt, nisi promptissime dederint. PRETEREA uxor mea Fonia Concessit eis se daturam illis in elemosinam, decimam omnium rerum que sibi Deus dederit; Scilicet, tam ex ipsis que apud se retinere voluerit, quam ex illis que per terram vel mare, ad vendendum imperpetuum miserit: Et quia ego et heredes mei participes fumus, et imperpetuum erimus, omnium bonorum que in domo de Passelet, et in toto ordine fiunt, vel imperpetuum fient, tam in orationibus quam in ceteris divinis servitutis obsequiis; Dedi eis et Concessi, et hoc presenti scripto, auctoritate figilli mei roborato Confirmavi, pacem meam et omnium heredum meorum et hominum, cum manuteneamento bone fraternitatis ubicunque ipsi vel homines eorum fuerint vel venerint, in terra vel in mari; Supplicans amicis meis et precipiens omnibus hominibus meis, ut ubicunque invenerint predictos monachos fratres meos, aut eorum homines, ipsos manuteneant, et in suis auxilientur negotiis, scientes pro certo, quod per Sanctum Columbam, si aliquis heredum meorum eis malefecerit, maledictionem meam habebit; Vel si quid mali forte ab hominibus meis, vel ab aliis de quibus eos vindicare potero, tibi vel suis factum fuerit, mortis pena punientur. HIIS TESTIBUS Ameleo filio Gillecolmi, Gillecolmo filio GilMichel, Mauricio Capellano meo, et multis aliis ibi tunc presentibus.

CARTA DOVENALDI FILII REGINALDI FILII SUMERLED, DE
 UNO DENARIO CAPIENDO EX QUALIBET DOMO IN TERRA
 SUA UNDE FUMUS EXIT, MONACHIS DE PASSELETO.

SCIANT omnes tam presentes quam futuri, Quod ego DOVENALDUS filius Reginaldi filii Sumerled, factus sum frater, et uxor mea foror, in Capitulo domus de Passelet, et in toto ordine Cluniacensi; Et ego verus frater et bonus amicus predictis monachis fratribus de Passelet, et imperpetuum mansurus, cum heredibus meis et hominibus meis quibus fraternitatem predictæ domus, et participationem orationum et omnium beneficiorum tocus ordinis Cluniacensis a jam dictis monachis adquisivi;

Concessi eis me daturum sibi, testimonio sigilli mei, octo vaccas pro salute mea et uxoris mee [et heredum meorum et hominum, et duos denarios ex qualibet domo unde fumus exit. Et post hunc annum singulis annis, unum denarium, ex qualibet domo unde fumus exit*] vel quolibet anno pro ipsis denariis octo vaccas. Et quia ego et heredes mei et homines mei participes fumus, et imperpetuum erimus, omnium bonorum que in domo de Pafselet, et in toto ordine fiunt, vel imperpetuum fient, tam in orationibus quam in ceteris divine servitutis obsequiis; Dedi eis et Concessi, et hoc presenti scripto, auctoritate sigilli mei Confirmavi, firmam pacem meam et omnium heredum meorum et hominum meorum, cum manutenemento bone fraternitatis ubicunque ipsi vel homines eorum fuerint aut venerint in terra vel in mari; Supplicans amicis meis, et precipiens omnibus hominibus meis, ut ubicunque invenerint predictos monachos fratres meos, aut eorum homines, ipsos manuteneant, et in suis auxilientur negociis: Scientes pro certo, quod per Sanctum Columbam, si quid mali forte ab hominibus meis, vel ab aliis de quibus eos vindicare potero, sibi vel suis factum fuerit, mortis pena punientur. Et notandum quod ubicunque ego vel heredes mei, aut aliqui ex hominibus meis mortui fuerimus in terra vel in mari, predicti monachi orabunt pro nobis imperpetuum, ut salvi simus, et per totum ordinem Cluniacensem orationes pro nobis fieri faciant. HIS TESTIBUS, Ameleo filio Gilcolmi, Gilcolmo filio Gilnichel, Mauricio Capellano, et multis aliis ex propriis hominibus meis.

CARTA DIMIDIE MARCE, ET UNIUS DENARII ANNUATIM DE

LITERA EXAMINATIONIS DE TERRA MONACH-KENNARAN IN-JUSTE ALIENATA.

INTENTIO Abbatis et Conventus de Pafflet est probare, quod tota illa terra de Monach-Kennaran, super annem de Clud, injuste in Gilbertum filium Samuelis alienata est; quia de jure ad ecclesiam eorum de Kylpatric debet pertinere; unde petunt ipsum Gilbertum a dicta terra amoveri, et eandem terram ad jus et proprietatem dicte ecclesie legitime revocari. PRIMA productio testium per abbatem et conventum contra dictum Gilbertum, die lune proxima ante festum Sancti Mathei, in parochiali ecclesia de Yrewin, anno gratie millesimo ducentesimo tricesimo tercio. ALEXANDER FILIUS HUGONIS juratus dicit, quod sexaginta annis et eo amplius elapsis, vidit quendam nomine Bede ferdan, habitantem in quadam domo magna fabricata de virgis, juxta ecclesiam de Kylpatrick versus orientem, et tenuit illam terram de Monach-Kennaran quam Gilbertus filius Samuelis nunc tenet. Interrogatus, cujus nomine dictam terram possedit, dicit quod tantum nomine ecclesie, nullum aliud servitium faciendo pro dicta terra, nisi tantummodo recipiendo et pascendo hospites illic venientes. Dicit etiam, quod cum puer esset, aliquando receptus est ibi cum patre suo sicut hospes; et quod dictus Beda eodem jure et servitio tenuit terram de Cultbutle et de Duntechglunane. THOMAS GASKEL juratus dicit, quod vidit dictum Bedam ferdan manentem in eadem domo, in terra ecclesie Sancti Patricii sita, tenentem easdem terras, eodem modo, eodem jure, et idem servitium faciendo, sicut Alexander testatus est: Addidit etiam, quod vidit postmodum Cristinum filium dicti Bede possidentem easdem terras, eodem jure quo pater ejus possidebat: Et quod totalis terra ecclesie divisa erat in quatuor partes, quarum unam partem dictus Beda ferdan possedit; et tres alii tres alias partes, quorum quilibet nomine ecclesie respondebat hospitiibus inter se divisus. Requisite de tempore, dicit quod plusquam quadraginta anni elapsi sunt, quia ibidem nutritus est ab infantia. Interrogatus que alie terre pertinent ad ecclesiam, dicit, quod Cochmanuch, Fimbelach, Edimbernan, et Cragentalach, et quedam alie terre quas Dufgallus filius Comitis nunc tenet. DUGALLUS filius Comitis, juratus dicit, idem per omnia quod Thomas Gaskel; et adjecit, quod dicta terra de Monachkennaran et plures alie terre, per defectum et negligentiam ipsius, a dicta ecclesia fuerunt alienate, quia noluit patrem vel fratrem suum, vel parentes suos offendere. SECUNDA productio testium, per abbatem et conventum de Passelet, contra dictum Gilbertum filium Samuelis, die Sabbati proxima post festum Sancti Martini, in parochiali ecclesia de Are, anno supradicto. MALCOLMUS BEG juratus dicit, quod vidit Bedam ferdan habentem domum suam sitam juxta Cimiterium ecclesie de Kylpatrik, ex orientali parte; et tenuit nomine ecclesie illam terram de Monachkennaran, quam Gilbertus filius Samuelis modo tenet, et [in] predicta terra et aliis quas tenebat de ecclesia, recipiebat hospites ad ecclesiam venientes, nullum aliud servitium faciendo pro eis. Requisite, in tempore cujus Comitis hoc vidit, dicit quod in tempore Alwini Comitis; Et quod idem Comes dedit Sancto Patricio et ecclesie illam terram de Kachconen quam ipse Malcolmus postea tenuit et vendidit pro timore: Et dicit quod omnes terre ecclesie quas dictus Beda tenuit, et quas Dufgallus et alii modo tenent, libere et quiete erant ab omni temporali servitio, et quod homines in illis terris manentes et habitantes, defensi erant semper per ecclesiam, et in curia ecclesie contra omnes. ANEKOL juratus, idem dicit per omnia quod Malcolmus beg, et adjecit, quod Comes David frater regis Wilelmi, eo tempore quo habuit comitatum de Levenax et possedit, voluit de dictis terris ecclesie de Kylpatrik habere auxilium, sicut de ceteris terris Comitatus, et non potuit, quia defensu erant per ecclesiam. GILON juratus, idem dicit per omnia quod Malcolmus beg. GILBERTHOC juratus, concordat in omnibus cum Malcolmus et Anecol, et adjecit quod dictus Beda interfectus erat pro jure et libertate ecclesie. FERGUS filius Cunigham, juratus, concordat cum Gilbethoc in omnibus. HILARIUS juratus, dicit idem per omnia quod Fergus et Gilbethoc. NEMIAS juratus, idem dicit per omnia quod Anecol, et adjecit, quod quinquaginta anni et eo amplius elapsi sunt, postquam hec vidit, et pro certo habet quicquid dicit, quia natus fuit in illa parochia. KESSIN juratus, idem dicit per omnia quod Nemias. GILLEMOR juratus idem dicit per omnia quod Kessin et Nemias. ROTHERIC BEG de Carric juratus, concordat in omnibus cum Malcolmus beg fratre ipsius. Requisite qualiter hoc scivit, dixit, quod hoc vidit ab adolescētia sua, quia natus et nutritus erat in parochia de Kylpatrik. KATHEL juratus, concordat in omnibus cum predicto Rotheric. GILLEKONEL MANTHAC frater Comitum de Carric juratus, dicit idem per omnia quod Malcolmus beg.

LITERA DELEGATA CONDEMPNATIONIS EPISCOPO GLAS-GUENSI.

VENERABILI patri, WILELMO Dei gratia Glasguenfi Episcopo, Laurencius et Ricardus de Carric et de Cunigham Decani, et Allanus Magister scolarum de Are, salutem, et debitam reverentiam. Paternitati vestre significamus, quod cum effemus iudices a Domino papa delegati, in quadam causa que vertebatur inter abbatem et conventum de Paffelet ex parte una, et Gilbertum filium Samuelis de Renfrw ex altera; super illa terra de Monachkennaran quam dictus Gilbertus tenuit et adhuc tenet, lite coram nobis rite contestata, testibus productis, attestationibus visis, allegationibus partium auditis, et totali causa sufficienter examinata: QUIA constabat nobis, dictum abbatem et conventum intentionem suam sufficienter probasse, De consilio virorum prudentum et jurisperitorum, possessionem petite terre eidem sententialiter adjudicavimus, et dictum Gilbertum in expensis legitimis eisdem condempnavimus, videlicet in triginta libris, a parte Monachorum juratis, et a nobis taxatis et moderatis: VESTRE igitur paternitati, auctoritate apostolica qua fungimur, Mandamus et Injungimus, quatinus ob reverentiam Domini pape, et obedientiam ei debitam, sententiam nostram contra predictum Gilbertum latam, ad executionem demandare dignemini: Resistentes per censuram ecclesiasticam compescentes. Valeat paternitas vestra semper in Domino.

LITERA CONDEMPNATIONIS MISSA DOMINO REGI ALEXAN-
DRO, CONTRA GILBERTUM FILIUM SAMUELIS, DE TERRA MONACHKENNARAN.

EXCELLENTISSIMO et reverendissimo Domino suo, ALEXANDRO Dei gratia illustri regi Scocie, sui devoti et fideles de Carric et de Cunigham Decani, et Magister Scolarum de Are, salutem in eodem qui dat salutem regibus; NOVERIT excellentia vestra Nos mandatum Domini pape, in hec verba suscepisse: "GREGORIUS Episcopus servus servorum Dei, Dilectis filiis de Carric, et de Cunigham Decanis, et Magistro Scolarum de Are Glasguensis diocesis, salutem et apostolicam benedictionem; Dilectorum filiorum abbatis et conventus monasterii de Passlelet, Cluniacensis ordinis, precibus inclinati, presencium vobis auctoritate Mandamus, quatinus ea que de bonis ejusdem monasterii et ecclesiarum suarum alienata, inveneritis illicite distracta, ad jus et proprietatem ejusdem monasterii et ecclesiarum suarum legitime revocetis, contradictores per censuram ecclesiasticam, appellatione postposita, compescentes; Quod si non omnes hiis exequendis potueritis interesse, duo vestrum ea nihilominus exequantur. DATUM Spoleti vi idus Junij pontificatus nostri anno sexto." Hujus igitur auctoritate mandati, cum dicti abbas et conventus, Gilbertum filium Samuelis de Renfrw laicum, coram nobis traxissent in causam, super tota illa terra de Monachkennaran, quam in Comitatu de Lévinax tunc tenebat, quam dicti abbas et conventus dicebant ad ecclesiam eorum de Kylpatrik de jure pertinere; et in eundem Gilbertum illicite alienatam, premisis citationibus, et datis induciis legitimis, post intentionem Monachorum fundatam, et post litem inter eos rite contestatam, partibus presentibus, et testibus ex parte Monachorum productis, admisis, et diligenter examinatis: Cum idem Gilbertus, primo et secundo per intervalla legitima citatus, ut die prefixa ad attestaciones publicandas compareret, quod jus diceret facturum, per contumaciam se absentasset, ipsas attestaciones, nihilominus publicavimus et inspeximus, et eundem Gilbertum iterum ex habundanti citavimus; Quo nec per se, nec per procuratorem ad diem statutum comparente, sed in contumacia sua perseverante; Nos in nomine Domini nostri Jhesu Christi, ipsum solum habentes pre oculis, cum nobis de causa liqueret et sufficienter constaret, per testes fide dignos et omni exceptione majores, intentionem dilectorum abbatis et conventus plene fuisse probatam, de consilio virorum prudentum, et tam in jure Canonico quam Civili peritorum, nobis in judicio assidentium, dictis abbati et conventui de Passlelet, nomine ecclesie eorum de Kylpatrik, possessionem predictae terre de Monachkennaran quam petebant, sententialiter adjudicavimus; et in legitimis expensis predictum Gilbertum eidem condempnavimus; et Domino Episcopo Glasguensi executionem sententie nostre demandavimus. Et quoniam dictus Gilbertus, a die Jovis proxima ante festum Sancti Dunstani, huc usque sententie excommunicationis ligatus permansit, quia sententie nostre parere contempserit, Vos in ipsum ob reverentiam Dei et ecclesie, secundum juris et consuetudinis approbate observantiam, brachium seculare extendistis; Super quo vobis gratiarum referimus actiones, regie majestati vestre significantes, quod cum alias ob contumaciam, aliquis excommunicatione innodatur, prestita cautione de parendo juri, absolvitur; Cum autem sententie diffinitive non paret condempnatus, et ob hoc excommunicatur, etiam prestita cautione de parendo juri non absolvitur, nisi primo satisfaciat judicatis; Hinc est quod excellentie vestre supplicamus, quatinus brachium seculare quod in ipsum Gilbertum extendistis, in excommunica-tione perfeverantem non laxet, [laxes?] donec ſententie paruerit et iudicatis fatiſſecerit. Valeat excellentia veſtra ſemper in Domino.

CONVENTIO FACTA INTER MALDOVENUM COMITEM DE LE-
VENAX, ET GILBERTUM FILIUM SAMUELIS. [1235.]

ANNO ab incarnatione Domini milleſimo ducentefimo triceſimo quinto, die Sancti
Marci Evangeliſte, apud Nigram aulam, facta eſt conventio inter Maldovenum

LITERA URBANI PAPÆ QUÆ CONFIRMAT ECCLESIAM DE
RENFREW ECCLESIAE GLASGUENSI.

URBANUS Episcopus servus fervorum Dei, venerabili fratri Episcopo, et dilectis filiis Decano et Capitulo Glasguensi, salutem et apostolicam benedictionem. Significantibus vobis intelleximus, quod cum bone memorie David Rex Scottorum, tanquam princeps Catholicus et Christiane fidei ampliatus, burgum de Reinfrii in fundo proprio construxisset, et ecclesia ejusdem loci, ex ejusdem regis concessione, ecclesie vestre canonice collata fuisset; Pie recordationis Johannes Glasguensis ecclesie tunc Episcopus, ordinatis in ea canonicis et prebendis, ecclesiam pretaxatam, uni prebendarum illarum in perpetuum assignavit: Porro, licet factum Episcopi auctoritate fuerit sedis apostolice roboratum, et tam ipse quam successores illius; et tu frater Episcopo, liberam ipsius ecclesie ordinationem jugiter habueritis, et ecclesia vestra ipsam, haftenus in pace tenuit; Quia tamen ecclesia de Passeled, infra cujus parochie terminos ecclesia sepe dicta constructa fuisse proponitur, quibusdam Monachis per nobilem quondam virum W. filium Alani postmodum tibi concessa; ne occasione illius, vobis aut ecclesie vestre aliquod prejudicium in posterum generetur, prescriptam ecclesiam de Reinfrii, cum omnibus pertinentiis suis sicut a prima sui fundatione, ecclesie vestre canonice collata fuisse dinoscitur: Et eam a multis retro annis et nunc pacifice possidet, et quiete; VOBIS et per vos eidem ecclesie, auctoritate apostolica confirmamus, et presentis scripti patrocinio communimus. Nulli ergo omnino hominum liceat hanc paginam nostre confirmationis infringere, vel ei ausu temerario contraire: Si quis autem hoc attemptare presumpserit, indignationem omnipotentis Dei, et Beatorum Petri et Pauli apostolorum ejus, se noverit incursum. DATA Verone vi nonas Junii.

The church of Renfrew is included in papal confirmations of the possessions of the church of Glasgow in the years 1172, 1179, 1181, and 1186.

APPENDIX III.

BAROCHAN CROSS.

SEMPLE is the only individual, to our knowledge, who has alluded to this singular monument. In his continuation of Crawford's History of Renfrew, that single-hearted and pains-taking man states: "A few score yards south from this place, (Barochan mill,) stands a Danish stone, which is called Barochan Cross, being full of wreathed work, such as lions, and other wild beasts; but no letters are legible. The stone is about 20 inches broad and 9 inches thick, being about five feet to the cross, and about three feet above that to the top, standing upon a pedestal about three feet," * p. 108.

An accurate representation of this memorial stone is given in the plate which forms

* After this was written we happened to notice the following in the Statistical Account of Scotland:— "In the Barony of Barochan, and on the side of the public road, stood an ancient cross, about 11 or 12 feet high, set in a large pedestal of undressed stone. The cross had been neatly hewn, with much wreathed carving on all sides. No letters appear on it. It is much defaced with ruin and storm. In a square part of the front are two rows of small images; in the upper row there are four with garments to their feet; and four in the under row. Each seem to hold, in their left hand, a club over their shoulders, that is thickest at the far end. In a square on the back part there are also two rows of small figures, four in each row, much defaced, and coarsely executed: but when, by whom, or on what occasion it was erected, there is no record or tradition. Some call it a Danish cross. Perhaps it might be intended as a devotional cross for travellers. The cross above-mentioned was lately removed by Malcolm Fleming, Esq. the present proprietor, to a neighbouring hill, where the old mansion-house of Barochan formerly stood."—Statistical Account of Scotland, vol. I. p. 326. Vide Houstoun and Killelan.

the frontispiece of this volume. Semple's account of the stone, so far as its dimensions are concerned, is tolerably accurate; but from the draughts we have made of the east and west sides, where the only sculptured figures are, it will be seen, that, although there is no lack of "wreathed work," not a vestige exists of "lions and other wild beasts." This writer, however, had a faculty of seeing beasts of the chase on these monuments which no other person has enjoyed since his day. In describing a cross at Stainly Castle, he mentions, that on its west side were sculptured "the figures of two lions near the base, and two boars a little above," p. 264. We have looked at the same stone, but, saving a little wreathed work on its edges, it has never yet been our good fortune, by any chance, to see the slightest resemblance to either lion or boar. "No letters are legible," says Semple. This phrase is a little ambiguous, and, therefore, we beg, from a close personal inspection, to say, that the Cross is at this moment totally letterless; nor does it bear the slightest indication of having at any period borne an inscription. Renfrewshire Antiquaries, like Semple, see further into stones than most others; for the same writer, in describing another "statue of Stone, with the effigy of a man riding upon an ass," which stood upon Calderhaugh, near the village of Lochwinnoch, says it had "letters and writing upon the same, in the old Saxon language." This ancient monument now forms an ornament to a kail-yard in the village of Lochwinnoch; and having also carefully scanned it, we can bear testimony to the effigy of a man upon an ass, or some such beast of burden, but must positively deny the existence of any "letters and writing upon the same, in the old Saxon language," or of any characters in any alphabet whatsoever.

The Cross of Barochan is greatly weather-wasted, and the sculptures upon it consequently rather indistinct. In the upper compartment of the east side there is a representation of four figures clad in garments reaching to the ground; and in the lower compartment other four men are sculptured, bearing spears or battle-axes in their right hands.

In the upper compartment of the west side a combat betwixt a knight on horseback and a person on foot is very distinctly traced. The knight is in the act of couching his lance, and the footman is prepared to meet the attaint on his shield. In the under compartment there are three figures, the centre one being more diminutive in stature than the other two,—and to our apprehension this little fellow appears to be the subject of dispute between them, the figure on the right hand evidently interposing a shield over the head of the stripling, to save him from the uplifted weapon of the figure on the left hand. Beneath this last mentioned compartment there are some sculptures, but what these are we pretend not to explain. They are faithfully delineated on the plate, and, thus preserved, some one more cunning in such antiquities may be enabled hereafter to decipher them.

It is to be remarked also, that in the costume of the figures there is an evident difference. The figure on horseback agrees in this particular with the one immediately below him on the left hand, and with the procession of four figures, marching with halberds or axes, on the eastern face of the Cross—while the dress of the person who opposes the knight, and of the other who defends the stripling in the compartment below, agree with the four figures represented in long robes on the other side of this curious monument.

History is silent regarding this ancient memorial ; but we find there is a local tradition which ascribes its erection to a defeat sustained, at a very remote period, by the Danes in that neighbourhood. Some names in the vicinity of the Cross smell rankly of war. The Turning-shaw and the Brig of Weir are bloody names, —and from time to time, at a place not far distant, many stone coffins have been disinterred.

Were we to hazard any conjecture on this subject, we should be inclined to consider it as commemorative of the defeat of Sumerled, Lord of the Isles, when he made his descent upon Renfrew in 1164. We quote from Wyntoun, b. vii. :

Sowyrl of Argyle that yhere
 Til hym gadryd a gret powere
 As twelf yhere he oysyd in bataille
 Hys Lord to warray and assayle,
 The Kyng that wes of Scotland :
 Than wyth a gret Ost of Ireland,
 And of other steddis sere,
 That by hym ware lyand nere
 At Renfrew arrywyd swne.
 That Were swa at the last was dwne
 That he, and hys Swne bath was Left dede slayne into that plas.
 And mony wyth thame in that sted
 Thare than ware slayne and left for dede.

Sumerled's armament was very considerable, and his route complete.* Opposed to this opinion, we know, is that which places the field of battle in the immediate neighbourhood of Renfrew. But the one guess is as good, if not better, than the other ; and the evidence of tradition is, moreover, on our side, while history, at the same time, lends us a hand.

According to Fordun, Sumerled landed with his forces at the bay of St Lawrence, that is Greenock. His route, therefore, into the heart of the country, if he wished to march upon Renfrew, led in a line past Barochan. He would take the uplands to avoid the woods and morasses, almost impassable, which at that early period must have obstructed his march, had he pursued a route nearer the Clyde. Again, had he followed the coast, the debouchure of the united streams of the Black and White Carts would have presented a serious obstacle to his progress. Pursuing, however, the route which we suppose he took, he had none of these local disadvantages to overcome, and, moreover, enjoyed, as he skirted the rising grounds, a capital coup d'œil of the whole of Strathgryffe; and could thereby make every disposition for successful aggression, for retreat, or defence.

* Sumerlidus collegit classem CLX navium et applicuit apud Rinfriu volens totam Scotiam sibi subjugare. Sed, ultione divina, a paucis superatus, cum filio suo et innumerabili populo ibidem occisus est.—Chronicon Mannie sub anno 1164. MCLXIV Sumerlidus, regulus Eregethel, jam per annos XII contra regem Scoticæ Malcolmum dominum suum naturalem impie rebellans, cum Copiosum de Hibernia et diversis locis contrahens apud Renfrui applicavisset, tandem ultione divina cum filio suo, et innumerabili populo, à paucis provincionalibus ibidem occisus est.—Chron. de Mailros.

But, admitting that there was a conflict between him and the men of Renfrew, in the neighbourhood of that burgh, this is not irreconcilable with our notion, that there was a succession of contests. Perhaps he marched on unmolested till he neared that town, and was there repulsed. The check might have been so severe as to induce him to retreat upon Greenock, where his galleys were moored. Harassed in retiring, by the increasing number of assailants who would rise to avenge themselves on a flying foe, we imagine that, to secure his retreat, he first disputed the passage of the Gryffe at the "Brig of Weir," and then made a last desperate stand at the Turningshaw. Indeed, it is in this neighbourhood that we suppose both Sumerled and his son Gylle Colane were slain, and his forces finally scattered. The sculptures on the stone evidently refer to a conflict between parties diversely clad and diversely armed. According to our theory, the figures on the east side of the Cross would represent the retreat of one party, and their pursuit by another—while the figures in the upper compartment of the west side would refer to the death of Sumerled, and those in the under compartment to that of his son. He is evidently a youngling that is between the two taller figures; and his dress corresponds with that of the one who is represented as extending a shield, or something else, over his head for protection.

Pennant, who travelled in this quarter in 1772, is the only writer who mentions a different memorial stone as being that which conjecturally might be referred to this event; but we shall soon see that he refers to the Cross so frequently alluded to in this volume, as indicating the place where Marjory Bruce was thrown off her horse on Renfrew Muir. His words are: "Continue my journey towards Renfrew. "On the road see a mount, or tumulus, with a foss around the base, and a single stone erected on the top. Near this place was defeated and slain Sumerled, "Thane of Argyle, who, in 1159 [1164], with a great army of banditti, collected "from Ireland and other parts, landed in the bay of St Lawrence, and led them in "rebellion against Malcolm IV. That this mount was raised in memory of so signal "an event, is not improbable, especially as we are told by a most respectable wri“ter, that his troops retired unmolested; therefore might have leisure to fling up “this usual tribute to the honour of their leader,” p. 172, vol. 2. Lond. 1790.

Pennant, in riding from Paisley to Renfrew, has never quitted his saddle, otherwise he would have observed that the upright stone was totally unconnected with the tumulus and its circumjacent foss. The tumulus and foss to which he obviously refers, lay to the west of the road, about 80 yards; and 160 yards farther west stood the Cross, which unvarying tradition says, was commemorative of the “woeful hunting” of Dame Marjory Bruce, mother of Robert II. The proximity of the Cross to the mound, and lying, as it does, in a straight line west of the mound, may have deceived his eye.

As we are talking of Crosses, we may as well bestow a word or two upon “Queen Blearie’s Stane,” as it was designated by the country folks of that neighbourhood.

This stone stood on the Farm of Knoc, midway betwixt Renfrew and Paisley, and about 240 yards to the west of the present road. It was an octagonal column, about ten feet in height, without any inscription or sculptures whatsoever. It was inserted in a solid pedestal, also eight-sided, and about six feet in diameter. Part of the shaft was seen by Semple serving the undignified purpose of a lintel to the barn door of the farm standing at Knoc; but that fragment, like the rest of it, has now disappeared. The pedestal was dug up in the year 1779, and the materials were used to mend fences. We have conversed with one who assisted in this piece of wanton sacrilege. From the same authority we learned with regret, that, had it not been for the indifference of the ancestor of the present Mr Campbell of Blythwood, on whose property the Cross stood, that monument might have remained there to this day. It had become loosened in the socket, and required a little repair. The tenant on the farm offered to repair it for a very slight consideration; this was refused, and time did its work. It either fell, or, to save it from breaking, it was removed and built into the barn a short time before the foundations of the pedestal were dug up.

The tradition of Queen Blearie’s mishap has been ridiculed by Lord Hailes, and other smaller annalists have sneered in concert with him. It is not the purpose of the present writer to reconcile the discrepancies which the incredulous school have pointed out as existing between the traditionary versions of this story itself, and the facts of history which run counter to it. He may, however, contend that it is altogether improbable that such a story took its rise wholly independent of some foundation in fact. The historical facts may be disguised by oral embellishment, or corrupted by being fused with other events prior or subsequent to their own era, but they can never be wholly suppressed. From Montgomerie’s description of Renfrew, it will be seen that the tradition was much more ancient than Lord Hailes was aware of.* Lord Hailes piques himself upon the historical fact, that Dame Marjory Bruce was never queen; and thereupon argues that it is wholly improbable the monument in question can be referred to her. To men acquainted with the changes which time produces in oral records, there can appear nothing startling, extraordinary, or irrefutable, in his lordship's argument. Lady Marjory Bruce, although no queen herself, was the mother of a king who went under the soubriquet of Bleareye. The vulgar have a wondrous aptitude to dignify and embellish their narratives; seldom do they deign to speak of characters under the degree of kings and princes. When Robert II. ascended the throne, and when they were speaking of the accident of his birth, is there any improbability, we would ask, in them designating his mother as a queen? We think not. As early as 1318 the child of the princess Marjory was designated by the Scottish parliament to the throne, in the event of his maternal grandfather dying without issue male. But the Bleareye, how is that accounted for? Though her son had a frightful scar, there is no mention of his mother being so disfigured. We remember that Lord Hailes scoffs at the notion of the redness of Robert II.'s eyes being occasioned, as tradition reports, by a scar received at the time of his birth. Now, the "reed bleered eye" of Robert, which seemed as if they "were lyned with cendall," is an indisputable fact which Froissart vouches for; yet this circumstance, according to his lordship, affords no presumption in favour of the tradition: "A man bred up in war, as he was, might have had his eye hurt without the unskilfulness of a surgeon." So he might; but where is the historical evidence for this supposition? The authors whom his lordship quotes against the tradition are as silent respecting this guess, as they are with regard to the circumstances of his birth. While we are indulging in conjecture, why may we not as well suppose, that this remarkable inflammation was a hereditary malady, and that the same blemish existed in his mother's? This will remove one of Lord Hailes' conscientious scruples, when he asks why Marjory Bruce should be called Blear-eye because her son was wounded in the Cæsarean operation. We are aware this will be met by the assertion, that no such circumstance is alluded to by any historian. But the silence of history on this unimportant affair goes for nothing. We may ask, by way of retort, what writer of the period spends a word upon the height, figure, complexion, or even mental endowments, of this descendant of the martial Bruce—of this mother to an illustrious line of monarchs? They do not even mention where she was buried,

* Mr James Montgomerie was the son of the Ezekiel Montgomerie referred to in the note, p. 140. He was Sheriff-Depute of Renfrewshire, and Bailie-Depute of the Regality of Paisley, about the year 1642. The same offices were held, by his son, Ezekiel Montgomerie, also designed of Weitlands, a person who rendered himself sufficiently notorious in his day. Notices of him occur in Fountainhall's Decisions—and Diary. He is canonized as a conventicle hunter, in the Elegy upon Grierson of Lag.

although it is certain that this was within the church of Paisley, where her tomb is still to be seen. "Again," says his lordship, "it seems extraordinary that there should have been at hand any person so capable of performing the operation as not to hurt the child any farther than by a flesh wound in the eye-lid, or in the ball of the eye." When we find Robert II. granting charters of lands in the immediate vicinity of Renfrew to Thomas of the Hall, surgeon, for his faithful service, a great part of this counterfeited astonishment will evaporate.

Lord Hailes has perhaps been at too much pains in demolishing an interesting, an ancient, and by no means an inconsistent or improbable tradition. Traditions are only questionable when they go to flatter family pride. When there is any thing derogatory to the glory of an ancient name, or melancholy in the tissue of their family annals, we are disposed to consider them entitled to credit. The tradition now under review comes not under the description of those stories which record the superhuman feats of Wallace, or the marvels wrought by the bloody yoke of the Hays, although his lordship would fain blend it with such poetical figments, or heraldic inventions.

To follow out the various arguments, adduced by Lord Hailes, to shake this ancient tradition, we do not profess. But, before we have done, we may allude to another, to which he triumphantly appeals, as settling the manner in which the name Queen Blearie may have been attached to this stone. "Cuine Blair" in Gaelic, it seems, signifies "memorial of battle;" and hence, argues his lordship, this stone, or memorial of combat, has derived its name, and must refer to events more ancient than the birth of Robert II. It is singular enough, that the field whereon the stone stood is, to this day, named the Kemp knowe, or Kemp field, which is a fair rendering of "Cuine Blair" into the Scoto-Saxon. With the Kemp knowe, however, there is a tradition associated which has no reference to the stone. The stone refers to one distinct story, that of Dame Marjory Bruce; and the tumulus, with the fosse described by Pennant, to another, concerning a singular combat which tradition says took place there in very remote times. This traditionary story has never appeared in print, and, to preserve it, we may be excused for here narrating it as succinctly as we can. We have another reason for doing so, inasmuch as it illustrates the tomb, copied from the inside of Renfrew church, raised to the memory of Sir John Ross, of Hawkeheide.* The stone effigy, which once rested under the arch, is now displaced, and removed into the burial aisle of the Earl of Glasgow, adjacent to the church. To this day it is called by the worthy burghers of Renfrew, Palmyarn Ross. The occasion of this epithet we knew not, till we fortunately met with some old people who remembered the traditionary story which records the prowess of this stalworth knight, and which we give in nearly the same words as we received it:

* Vide plate 4, facing p. 126. This inscription in Crawford is erroneously printed "Josias Ros;" and after Editors, either from ignorance or indolence, have perpetuated the blunder.

THE STORY OF PALMYARM ROSS.

A LONG, long while ago—tradition seldom condescends to traffic in precise dates—when the Kings of Scotland and England were on excellent visiting terms, it happened that the King of Scotland, with his Queen, went to spend some weeks of summer in the Court of England. Here every description of splendid pageant, pastime, and knightly entertainment, befitting the quality of such exalted guests, was lavishly displayed, and, among the rest, various martial exercises formed no inconsiderable portion of each day's amusement. In the English Court there was a champion of surpassing height and strength, and so expert in wrestling and sword-manship, that neither knight nor knave, in all merry England, could match him. He was in high esteem with the King of England, who never ceased jibing the Scottish King to produce any one of his subjects who would overthrow the English champion. Irritated at these repeated boasts, the Scottish King coolly said, that next year, when his royal cousin visited Scotland, he would prove to him that the smallest man in Scotland was more than a match for the biggest born of England. Wagers were accordingly laid between the rival sovereigns, and these, as may be supposed, were equal in amount to the ransom of seven kings. All preliminaries of the combat were arranged agreeably to certain articles. These principally consisted in a condition that the champions should fight within a circle out of which neither could escape. By fire or water the vanquished was to perish. The circle was to be surrounded by a deep and broad ditch, sufficient to drown the coward who would be so base as attempt flight; and in its centre was to be kindled "a bauld bane fire," into which the victor might cast his antagonist to be consumed.

The King of Scotland had, in his pride, undertaken what his prudence told him was of difficult accomplishment. With a heavy heart he turned his back on London, and went home to find out a champion to redeem his pledge. But the fame of the Englishman had reached Scotland, and this was no ways diminished by the marvellous testimony which the King's retinue bore to the prowess of the gigantic wrestler, whose feats they had witnessed. Day after day passed away, and yet none of the Scottish knights offered to venture life and limb in the king's quarrel. In vain the King summoned his chivalry around him, and proffered vast honours to anyone that would redeem the regal, and the national honour. In vain the King said he would gladly bestow on the person who vanquished the English champion his own pleasant Inch and Castle of Renfrew, where he resided, and which he loved as the apple of his eye. All were silent; they had seen or heard of the Titan to whom they were to be opposed, and already heard, in imagination, their own bones crashing under his enormous bulk.

Meanwhile preparations were making for the combat on the Knoc, and for the accommodation of the respective Courts. A mound was raised—a deep ditch was dug around it, and filled with water, across which a single plank was thrown to give access to the combatants.

While almost in despair of finding one courageous enough to undertake the “adventure perilous,” Ross, of Hawkhead, offered himself, and he was gladly accepted by the King, while all the Court marvelled at his extraordinary temerity. The eventful day at last arrived. The gigantic Englishman stood within the circle—the “bauld bane fire” was crackling in the centre—and beside him stood the comparatively diminutive, but dauntless, laird of Ross. From neck to heel Ross had clad himself in a garment which fitted tightly to his body, made of the skin of some beast, the fleshy side outermost, and this glistening and smooth with oil. The English champion smiled at his antagonist, and both addressed themselves for the combat. Deafening cheers now rent the air; the heralds sounded their trumpets; and at the signal the Englishman attempted to pounce on Ross, and truss him up as a hawk would a sparrow. Here, however, he was disappointed; for Ross eluded his grasp, and leapt clean aside. Again and again the champion of England made a snatch at Ross, but the slipperiness of his skin armour, or his agility, saved him. For a long while they continued engaged in this manner, the Englishman endeavouring to get his favourite hold of Ross, and to toss him on the fire at once, and have done with such child’s play; but his attempts proved abortive. Despairing at length of accomplishing his object, the Englishman, almost breathless with anger and unavailing exertion, stood still, and invited Ross to take his favourite hold. “Palm my arm,” said the Englishman; and Ross, who waited for such an invitation, and depended upon the strength of his grasp, and a peculiar sleight he had, immediately sprung forward, seized the Champion by his wrists, and, by a desperate wrench, dislocated them, both at the shoulder joint. A scream of agony burst from the lips of the unsuspecting Englishman. Disabled in this summary fashion, he could offer no effectual resistance to his wily antagonist, who immediately made short work of him, and, with little difficulty, dragged him into the burning pile. Thus terminated the savage combat, to the immense contentment and glory of the King of Scotland; but to the inexpressible chagrin and sore dismay of him of England.

Having accomplished this splendid feat, Ross demanded the proffered reward. The King hesitated to surrender the Inch to his faithful vassal, for which, as mentioned above, he had a great local attachment. “Ross,” said the King, “for this Inch I will give thee a span in any other part of my realm.” “Nay, my liege,” retorted Ross indignantly, “I will content me with the inch even now, and when I have again to defend thy honour I shall expect the span.”

The King could not retract his royal promise; so, from that time, the gallant Ross bruiked the lands and castle of the Inch, which he had so valiantly won, and ever after he was distinguished by the soubriquet of Palm-my-arm, in consequence of the circumstance above narrated.

Another version of the tradition says, that these kemps fought with swords, and that the catastrophe happened as described in the ballad of Johnie Scot :

“ The Italian, like a swallow swift,
O'er Johnie's head did flee ;
But on the point of his good sword
The Italian stickit he.”

And it is superfluous to add that the fundamental injury then received proved mortal. A love of truth also obliges us to state, that this version of the story records, that, in place of a beast's skin, Ross was sheathed in scaly armour, so exquisitely polished, that a fly could not walk upon it for very smoothness. Furthermore, it is said, that as Ross paced to and fro upon the battle-ground, “ shimmering in the sun,” all eyes were so dazzled with the excessive effulgence of his flexible scale-armour, that no one could look upon him steadfastly for any length of time. In other respects both versions of the tradition concur.

A story, something like the preceding, is narrated by Boece, lib. XIII.,* as having occurred under the reign of Alexander the Third ; and, singular enough, it refers to the origin of the Earls of Ross.

The conclusions we would draw from the above desultory remarks are these : 1st. That Pennant is wrong in conjecturing that the stone pillar, which he saw on the Renfrew road, referred to Sumerled's defeat, as being, from its style of architecture, and the unvarying tradition of the country, wholly irreconcilable with that event. 2d. That this pillar is truly a memorial of the unhappy accident which tradition says befell Lady Marjory Bruce. 3d. That the name of “ Queen Blearie's Stane” may have been appropriated to it, in the course of that process of transmutation incident to all oral records which we have attempted before imperfectly to describe—a species of mental alchemy, by which names, facts, circumstances, and the occurrences and remembrances of various ages, are imperceptibly fused together in

* Paulo deinde post fratres Eduardi Henrici regis Angliæ filii, in Scotiam ad sororem sororiumque visendos venire, ac postea Alexandrum cum uxore Londinum, ut Eduardi coronationi interessent, adduxere : ubi quum plurimi omnis generis ludorum celebrarentur tum magna Scotorum gloria singularia edita sunt certamina. Erat ea tempestate in aula Eduardi haud ignobilis quidam genere vir natione Normanus, admiranda corporis virtute, ac rei equestris summa peditus peritia. Hunc, quum omnes magna gloria totam diem certando devicissent, Scotus quidam Ferquardus nomine ex nobili familia ortus Rossus natione ad illam solemnitatem honoris gratia regem prosecutus tandem cum maximo Scotorum gaudio superavit. Quem rex Alexander victorio suorum lætus comitatu Rossie donavit. fol. ccci.

Time's crucible, till oral tradition streams forth to posterity a current of imperishable bronze—a mixed, but a useful and right beautiful metal. 4th. That the field where the cross stood—when a dialect of the Celtic prevailed among the peasantry of this portion of Strathclyd—may have been denominated, from the singular combat above referred to, Cuimhne Blair, till it was gradually superseded by the Scoto-Saxon Kemp knowe; and, being retained to a comparatively recent period, it, at length, lost its primitive signification, and assumed a corrupted form after the accident to Dame Marjory Bruce, and the accession of her son, named the Bleareye, to the throne.

We are grave sticklers for the authority of oral traditions, and never like to see them rancorously impugned. But for the length to which these idle speculations on a couple of old grey stones have extended, we deem it right to offer an apology to those rigid antiquaries, whose sympathies for by-past times are circumscribed within an alphabet of written signs, and to whom all history appears fable until it is transferred to a sheep's back, or a piece of perishable rag. It is only necessary for us to add, that in the county of Renfrew there are not more than six individuals who can now point out the site of "Queen Blearie's Stane," and still fewer who can show the spot where Palmyarm Ross so signally distinguished himself. We take the merit to ourselves of suggesting to the intelligent farmer in the Knoc the propriety of putting up a stake to mark the exact spot where the cross stood, and of saving the mound from further obliteration by the plough.*

The other engravings explain themselves. Some of the inscriptions having been inaccurately copied in other works, correct transcripts which rectify errors become of use. It was with some difficulty a perfect seal of the Convent of Paisley could be obtained, most of those appended to the charters which have come under the observation of the present writer being either broken or much effaced. Abbot Schaw's inscription, which records the erection of his famous wall around the orchard of the Abbey, forms the lintel of a dwelling-house at Wallneuk of Paisley, and seems not to have been removed from the spot where it originally was fixed. The wall ran from the northern transept of the church, along what is the present line of Lawn-street, to the Wallneuk, where it turned east, and ran along

* It was in the year 1782 that, in the course of some agricultural improvements, the first attempt was made to level the mound and fill up the fosse. Previous to that time, the ditch was about six yards in width, and four feet in depth. The mound was twenty yards in diameter.

the line of what is called Ince-street. At the extremity of this street, it then turned southwards, skirting what is still called the Mill-road, till it terminated at the Columbarium, which stood close to the brink of the Cart, opposite the waterfall at the Seedhill mills. The inscription of Abbot Lithgow, in the north porch of the church, has been sadly mangled by local antiquaries. They could not read it, and seeing a date upon it, they guessed that it referred to the building of the church, instead of being, as it is, the simple announcement of the place where a pious man wished to have his bones laid. No other monument appears of any of the Abbots of this once flourishing monastery. It occurs to us, however, that there has been at one time a mural tablet erected to the memory of John Hamilton, Archbishop of St Andrews, of which some vestiges still appear. Any person who visits the ruined portion of the church will see, on the west side of the north transept, a stone in the wall with the arms of Hamilton sculptured upon it, as also the words "Misericordia et Pax," and the initials "I. H." The rest of the monument has been destroyed; but, when entire, we believe it referred to this able scholar and ecclesiastic, but unfortunate statesman.
