INTRODUCTION

IMMEDIATELY after the conclusion of the Great World War in 1918, the citizens of Selkirk resolved that steps should be taken to perpetuate the memory of those men from the Royal Burgh and Parish who had seen active service under the banner of the King. A representative Committee was appointed, and it was decided that, not only should a worthy Architectural Monument be erected to those who had fallen, but that a Roll of Honour should be distributed containing the names of all who had served on land or sea. This book is the result of that resolution. Although every care has been taken to make the list complete, the Committee regret to say that, owing to objections on the part of relatives, and to indifference on the part of surviving combatants, several names have had to be omitted. The qualification for entry was (1) birth in the Burgh or Parish, or (2) residence in either for one year prior to enlistment. Particulars of rank, regiment, and honours have in every case been supplied by relatives or intimate acquaintances of those who perished, and, in the case of survivors, either by themselves, relatives, or friends. Attached to the printed matter are eight pages of writing paper on which it is hoped that relatives of the dead, as well as surviving combatants, will record incidents of service and other particulars for which no room could be found in a list of names. It is also suggested that a portrait of the sailor or soldier to whom, or to whose relatives, this book is presented should be inserted.

Besides her sons who took part in the warfare, Selkirk had daughters who took part in the work, not less arduous and sometimes as dangerous, of tending the sick and wounded in hospitals at home and abroad, or of assisting in the hostels established, often close to the fighting line, in the various countries where troops were engaged. Whether they ' strove to stanch the gushing wound,' soothed the fevered brows of men struck down by sickness, or busied their unwearying hands in providing food and refreshments to those who were exhausted, these women played a noble part in the terrible years of war. Many a stricken man, lifting his half-closed eyes to the watchful sympathetic face bending over him, must have remembered the lines of Selkirk's immortal Sheriff, himself a soldier in every fibre of his being—

' When pain and anguish wring the brow,
A ministering angel thou !'

The Memorial Committee were not insensible to the claim of these self-denying heroines to be enrolled along with their fighting brothers ; but it was found impossible to compile a list that could be either complete or accurate, and the idea was regretfully abandoned.

Little need be said of the honourable share taken by men of Selkirk in this war, the greatest, the bloodiest, and the most critical that history records—perhaps ever will record. Here, as throughout the Empire, youngsters added years to their actual age and old men took years off it, that they might qualify for the fighting ranks ; and surely of these ' white lies ' it may be said that ' the recording angel dropped a tear upon the page and blotted them out for ever.' From the time of Wallace when, it is recorded, many archers of Selkirk, ' men of lithe form and unusual stature,' fell before an overwhelming English force at Falkirk, to the famous fight of Flodden when 'Flowers of the Forest' were slain around King James, and in many wars since then, Selkirk has never failed when need arose for men to face death for their country. This Roll of 1296 honoured names is for ever witness of the patriotism with which its sons carried on the warlike tradition of their ancient Burgh and rallied to withstand an aggressive and implacable military conspiracy which, had it been successful, would have put the world under the heel of a selfish and relentless tyranny. Many, no doubt, of the men of Selkirk fought and died thinking of their distant homes and of the dear ones for whom they were facing danger, wounds, and death. For such noble service no acknowledgment could ever be commensurate; but this Roll of Honour testifies at once the gratitude of the Community of Selkirk to its gallant heroes, and its determination that their names at least will never be forgotten. Centuries after this, men and women, pointing to this one or to that, will say with pride: 'That is the name of one of our forebears, who fought in the Great War of 1914-18, saved Europe from German domination, and preserved the liberties of the whole world.'

THE FLOWERS O' THE FOREST

Written by Miss Jean Elliot of Minto between 1767 and 1772, after an old Flodden song or ballad all of which had been lost except the first line and last. Sir Walter Scott recovered another imperfect line: 'I ride single on my saddle,' which, as he says, 'presents a simple and affecting image to the mind.'

1

I've heard a liltin' at the ewe-milkin',
 Lasses a-liltin' before dawn o' day;
 But now there's a moanin' on ilka green loanin';
 The Flowers o' the Forest are weeded away.
 At bughts in the mornin' nae shepherds are scornin',
 Lassies are lonely and dowie and wae:
 Nae daffin', nae gabbin', but sighin' and sabbin',
 Ilk ane lifts her leglin and hies her away.

2

In hairst, at the shearin', nae blithe lads are jeerin',
 Bandsters are wrinkled and lyart and grey;
 At fair or at preachin', nae woin', nae fleechin'—
 The Flowers o' the Forest are weeded away.
 At e'en in the gloamin' nae younkers are roamin'
 'Bout stacks wi' the lasses at bogle to play;
 But ilk ane sits drearie, lamentin' her dearie—
 The Flower o' the Forest that's weeded away.

3

Dool and wae for the order sent oor lads to the Border!
 The English, for ance, by guile wan the day;
 The Flowers o' the Forest, that fought aye the foremost,
 The prime o' our land, are cauld in the clay.
 We'll hear nae mair liltin' at the ewe-milkin',
 Women and bairns are heartless and wae;
 Sighin' and moanin' on ilka green loanin'—
 The Flowers o' the Forest are weeded away.
