THE GRANT FAMILY HISTORY.

A few unsolicited Testimonials from Subscribers.

I enjoy it very much.—M. E. PINNEY.

GLASTONBURY, CONNECTICUT.

I find it very satisfactory.—J. B. GRANT.

OSAGE CITY, KANSAS.

The Grant Family History is a grand book.—ABBY ELIZABETH GRANT BURR.

BELOIT, WISCONSIN.

It is a book that one must see to be able to appreciate.—MRS. GILBERT BILLINGS.

NORTH STONINGTON, CONNECTICUT.

It is the most complete work of the kind I have ever seen.—FRANK GRANT.

ROCKVILLE, CONNECTICUT.

I would not take fifty dollars for my book if I could not get another.—J. A. G. SHERWOOD.

BRANCHPORT, NEW YORK.

The Grant Family book is admirable. I do not see how it could be improved.

LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY.

—H. B. GRANT.

We owe you a lasting debt of gratitude for compiling the record of our family.

E. BERKSHIRE, VERMONT.

—J. L. GRANT.

I thank you for your painstaking efforts to give us a correct history of the family.

FOWLerville, MICHIGAN.

—ELISHA W. GRANT.

I think it is wonderful—the systematic way in which the book is gotten up from beginning to end.

CHARLESTOWN, MASSACHUSETTS.

—ELLEN A. WARDNER.

It is something that will grow in value to all, even to those who are now apparently indifferent.

BURLINGTON, VERMONT.

—JENNIE M. ROYCE.

We are very much pleased with the Grant History. The work seems to have been so thoroughly done, and it is so conveniently arranged for ready reference.

MOORHEAD, MINNESOTA.

—JENNIE GRANT PELTON.

Allow me to congratulate you upon the completion of your labors in such an exhaustive manner, and upon their presentation in such an attractive style.

BUFFALO, NEW YORK.

—ROBERT W. DAY.

While I do not suppose father has written you as to his appreciation of the work, yet he does appreciate it, and frequently had it down from the shelves to read me some portion of it that pertained to those that he knew or knew of. I do not know of anything that I could have given him out of which he would have obtained so much enjoyment and satisfaction.

HOUSTON, TEXAS.

THE GRANT FAMILY MAGAZINE.

Editorial.

When the GRANT FAMILY HISTORY was published every possible effort had been made to render it complete. Yet it was not complete, as none knew better than the editor, and its very appearance in libraries brought in enquiries from branches that had baffled the most careful search. The publication of the records of these lost branches, and of such additional historical and biographical sketches and illustrations as are presented in this number, makes the MAGAZINE a necessity to owners of the book who desire to have a complete history of the Family. There will also be enough matter of general interest to make the MAGAZINE well worth its cost to all members of the Family. Its news items will serve to make us better acquainted with each other, and to promote the feeling of real relationship as members of one Family which the Grant Family Association has already aroused. But for the successful attainment of these ends we must rely upon the hearty cooperation of all members of the Family. Send in what interests you, and you will be reasonably sure of interesting others.

We thank our subscribers for the prompt and hearty manner in which they have seconded the proposal to provide a convenient means of communication between the members of the Family, and especially for the kind and interesting letters which in many cases accompanied subscriptions, but which could not be answered or even acknowledged save in this general way.

To avoid confusion in indexing, the MAGAZINE is paged continuously with the GRANT FAMILY HISTORY, of which it is a continuation. Slips containing a list of abbreviations are sent to all subscribers who have not the book; these should be carefully preserved, as they cannot be duplicated if lost.

A few sample copies of this number are being sent out. Those who receive them may rest assured that subsequent numbers will not be sent them unless they subscribe; and in order to secure the next number subscriptions must be received before April 15.

The second number will be devoted almost entirely to Clan B, of which a large branch has recently been discovered. Members of that clan should send in anecdotes, traditions, and portraits of themselves and their ancestors not later than April 1, so that a good showing may be made for this famous fighting clan. Terms for insertion of portraits will be sent on application.

Clan A.

ADDITIONAL FACTS ABOUT PERSONS RECORDED IN THE GRANT
FAMILY HISTORY.

Reuben Grant (1103,35) is prob. the person who m. Bolton, Feb. 1, 1787, Anna Loomis. The town clerk sent the record as Aaron or Anson Grant (see p. 513), but there was no Aaron or Anson who could have been m. then, so far as we know, while in the crabbed writing of the period it is often difficult to decipher names. The date of the m. would accord perfectly with the dates of birth of Reuben's children, and the wid. of Horace Lumis Grant (1103,3502) says that he was named for his grandmother.

Elnathan Grant (1103,60) while serving in the Revolution was put on picket duty one night after he had been deprived of sleep for two or three nights, and was discovered by one of the officers fast asleep, and was taken to the guard house and locked up. The next day he was tried for sleeping while on duty, found guilty, and sentenced to be shot. Later in the day some of the officers who had not heard of the affair until after the sentence took pity on him and interceded in his behalf, showing his youthfulness and previous good character as a soldier, and pleaded that possibly there was not even an officer in the army who could have done any better under the circumstances. After a long consultation it was finally decided to revoke the sentence and give him another trial as a soldier. It was said that he could not relate the circumstances in after years without being so filled with emotion that he could hardly find words to express the feelings and grief he underwent during that trial and sentence.

Anna Grant (1103,68) d. S. Coventry, Aug. 1867; her h. was b. Nov. 26, 1782, and d. S. C.; farmer.

Thankful Grant (1103,71) had great force of character and a wonderfully impressive personality; was kind and gentle, but the only authority in the house.

Almon Grant (1103,423) d.; res. nr. Kalamazoo, Mich.; 1 s.

Rockville.

[The first part of this article is by Nathaniel R. Grant (1103,660), who also furnished the photographs of the homesteads; the last part is from information furnished by Gardner L. Grant (1103,654).]

Early in 1726 the inhabitants of Bolton, being somewhat ambitious of appearance, desired to lay out through the center of the settlement a broad street or common. The owners were to throw the land into commons, of course without charges. In carrying out the project a certain farm owned by Samuel Grant (1103), of Windsor, was found to interfere, as he, being a non-resident, would not take sufficient interest in the improvement to induce him to give the land. A proposition was therefore made to him to exchange his farm in Bolton for certain lands belonging to the proprietors of Bolton and lying in the north end of the township. He mounted his horse and rode over from Windsor to look at the lands. Arriving at their western boundary, he plunged into the forest and clambered up the stream, over rocks and through thickets, until he reached the pond (now called Snipsic Lake), and, having prospected sufficiently, worked his way back to his starting point. He then rode down to Bolton, and offered to swap his farm there of 100 acres for 500 acres of the lands in North Bolton. This offer was eagerly accepted, and the writings hastened lest he should get sick of his bargain and back out, for they could not see what he could do with the rough lands on Snipsic outlet, then considered nearly worthless. The transaction, however, was fully consummated, as the following deed will show.

“Know all men by these presents that we Timothy Olcott, Francis Smith & John Bissel al of Bolton in the County of Hartford & Collony of Connetticutt agents to the proprietors of ye common & undevided Land in Bolton for and in consideration that samuel Grant of Windsor is oblindged to convey & confirm to us the sd Timothy Olcott Francis Smith & John Bissel as agents of the proprietors afore sd all that Right & title which the said Grant now hath to a certaine farme in Bolton formerly Granted to one Thomas Bull & surveyed to him by one James Steele in consideration afore sd. Thus Samuel Grant became the proprietor of five hundred acres of primitive lands, then rough and rugged, now Rockville. It was hardly possible that he foresaw what these tumbling waters were to be made to do, and what wealth they were to develop; but he doubtless saw a future possibility of grist and saw mills on his newly-gotten stream, and shrewdly saw money in the possibility. However, Samuel was not one of the dreamy sort of pioneers, but once in the possession of his lands he packed his saddle-bags of a Monday morning, and, amid the fears and tears of his kinsfolk in Windsor, set off and rode bravely along the forest paths, and finally hitched his horse at a point near what is now the corner of Union and West streets, and there sturdily set to work with his axe, erecting in the course of weeks a solid and comfortable log house.

Not far from this house he built a dam and a grist mill, which was operated by the family until 1837, and was probably the first mill in Rockville.

In 1808 the district of North Bolton was erected into the town of Vernon, and in this town has grown up a thriving city of nearly 8,000 people. This city of Rockville, with its seven churches, four banks, five large schools, thirteen large factories, to say nothing of smaller ones, and a grand list of more than $6,000,000, occupies the whole of the original Grant farm, and will ever be a monument to the sagacity and enterprise of its founder, Samuel Grant, 3d. Quite appropriately its finances are in charge of Francis Grant (1103,6601), while Nathaniel R. Grant (1103,6600) has also held offices of trust in it. The portraits of these two, together with those of six other descendants of Samuel and Ozias (Sanford, Gardner L., John D., Hezekiah K., and Schuyler Grant, and Edwin D. Northrup), and three of the homesteads, accompany this sketch.

Homesteads.

The main part of the homestead of Ozias Grant was built in 1809 on the site of the original log cabin built by Samuel Grant (1103), the first house in Rockville. In 1812 he deeded it to his son Francis (1103,66), who sold it to his son Harlow K. (1103,660) in 1849. After the latter's death it was bought in 1861 by his son Nathaniel R. Grant (1103,6600), who still resides in it, and in whose possession is the original deed printed above. The road on the left was called Grant Street for a hundred years, but is now West Street. It is at once the western boundary of the town of Vernon and of the original Grant farm. The road on the right is Union Street.

The homestead of Elnathan Grant was probably built by Ozias Grant about 1782. It was bought by Elnathan in 1797, and has since passed out of the family.

The homestead of Augustus Grant is over a century old, but when or by whom built is not known. It also has passed out of the family.

New Year's Day in Copenhagen.

MARY (GRANT) CRAMER (1104,0035).‡

The new year dawned in royal style upon the Danish capital, and therefore deserved to be marked with a white stone, for in winter such bright sunshiny days are the exception here and not the rule. To give a more regal appearance to the day, Nature wore her ermine, and old Boreas perhaps took a holiday, for the cold, bracing air did not, as usual, pierce like invisible spears; but long before the day closed Nature's ermine looked a little the worse for wear; besides, had it remained beautiful as when it fell from the heavens above, pure as an angel, gentle as love, the pitiless spade-brigade would have persisted in doing just what they did all day long. Perhaps they constituted the working force for the day, for stores and shops were closed, and almost every one seemed to be having a holiday.

New Year's Day in Copenhagen was observed as usual by gentlemen exchanging calls and the compliments of the season. It is not, however, considered out of place here for ladies to make New Year's calls on special friends. Yesterday they were out in great numbers, attracted by the pleasant weather and a curiosity to see the handsome turnouts, for persons of rank and high social position are expected to ride on such an occasion. But New Year's in Copenhagen is not such a gala day as it has long been in America, for gentlemen rarely call in person, but remain in their carriages, while their footmen leave their cards either with the porter at the main entrance of the house, or with a servant of the family called upon. The cards thus left indicate the calling acquaintance one will have during the year. Officials make out a list of those with whom etiquette requires them to keep up an official acquaintance, besides any others with whom they wish to be on social terms. Early New Year's morning footmen are dispatched with packages of visiting cards which are distributed as indicated in the list of names given to the servant. Yesterday before breakfast numerous cards were left at our door, and they continued to come till late in the day, our own cards meanwhile being sent out in various directions.

A few days ago the wives of the foreign ministers were informed at what hour on New Year's Day they could have an audience with the queen and the crown princess. Only four of the ministers have wives, and two of them were unavoidably prevented from paying their New Year's felicitations to royalty. At the hour designated I drove to the king's palace, and was first ushered into an ante-room where several servants in rich livery were in attendance. Passing up the broad staircase I entered another ante-room where there were more royal attendants in the same unique costume, which consisted of white hose, low shoes mounted with gilt buckles, light yellow breeches, and a scarlet coat, slashed and trimmed with broad silver braid. (I have seen them thus attired at evening entertainments in the king's palace, with the addition of a high crownless hat, from which projected a large bouquet of artificial flowers; it was amusing to see the flowers shaking as the wearers bent forward serving refreshments to the guests. I was told that this costume was peculiar to runners before royal carriages in former times, till one dropped dead while on duty, and the office was abolished.) One of these stylish looking attendants showed me into the reception-room, the walls and furniture of which are covered with yellow satin, the curtains too being of the same rich material. Opening into this apartment on one side are two deep alcoves; the walls of one are covered with handsome paintings, and those of the other with beautifully painted china.

In the reception-room I was met by the queen's ladies in waiting, while some who belong to the queen dowager's court and to that of the princess Caroline retired as I entered. After a brief conversation, Countess Reventlow accompanied me to the doorway of an adjoining apartment; here the queen, the princess Thyra and Prince Waldemar stepped forward and cordially shook hands with me, wishing me a "Happy New Year." All remained standing during the interview, and the young prince and his sister took no part in the conversation. The queen addressed me in very good English, though her majesty has fewer occasions for using our language than she has for speaking Danish, French and German. Several figure paintings upon the walls, executed by the queen, displayed genuine artistic merit; and the same skilful touch can awaken sweet music from the key-board of the piano. During my brief audience with the queen, and at former audiences that I have had, her majesty was as affable and unassuming in her manners as though she were not the mother of a prospective empress, of England's expected queen, of the present king of Greece, and of the future king of Denmark. Royalty need never be wearied with long calls, for it is a royal prerogative to terminate them, it being a breach of etiquette for a visitor to retire from the royal presence until the little nod is given that indicates the termination of the interview.

On leaving Amalieborg I drove across the public square to the palace of the crown prince. Here I passed a retinue of liveried servants on my way to the reception-room, the walls and furniture of which are also covered with yellow satin, but the curtains are relieved with festoons of blue satin and fringe of both colors like that around the sofas and chairs. In this apartment Baroness Zyphen Adler met me, and after some moments spent in conversation she conducted me through an immense and elegantly furnished saloon into a smaller one, lined with fawn colored satin, and like the other royal apartment carpeted with handsome tapestry. In this cozy room the tallest princess in the world waited to receive those who expected to have an audience with her royal highness.

The pleasant crown princess speaks English fluently, and remarked to me that she was daily in the habit of using it, the princess having an English nurse for her children.

In the presence of royalty my republican simplicity is in danger of betraying itself, for when one's tongue swings on an American pivot it is not always easy to substitute the lofty term, "your royal highness" for our simple pronouns "you" and "yours."

Of course court etiquette required me to back out of the royal presence, a difficult feat to perform gracefully with a long trail. In passing out, I observed in the adjoining apartment many Danish officials in glittering uniforms and their various orders waiting for an audience with the crown princess, having already had one with the king and the crown prince in Christiansborg Palace, a great building on a small island in the centre of the city. The diplomatic corps also had a royal interview there, arranged in an semi-circle, according to rank and length of time at the Danish court. The dean, in the name of the diplomatic corps, delivered a brief address to his majesty in French, wishing him health, long life and a prosperous reign. The king expressed his thanks for the good wishes of the foreign representatives at his court, and then addressed a few words of conversation to each one separately in his own language (the Russian excepted). The diplomatic corps next had an audience with the crown prince Frederick, who received each one separately. The king also received deputations from the different societies, public and private, as well as from the city authorities and the Rigsdag.

In the morning some of the royal family attended church; and at five o'clock the king gave a state dinner at Christiansborg Palace, to which the diplomatic corps (except the secretaries of legations), together with the higher civil, military and naval officers, were invited. The only ladies present were the queen, the crown princess, the princess Thyra, and their court ladies. A description of the toilets of the ladies would be the old story over again, of silk, satin, laces and diamonds; the latter I leave to the reader's imagination to distribute over the heads, necks, waists and arms of the fair owners. Christian IX and the crown prince wore the uniform of a full general, with the order of the elephant (the highest of all) and other orders. Of the large number of dignitaries of the kingdom of all branches of the service, and of the foreign ministers present on this august occasion, all wore splendid uniforms, orders and ribbons, except the American minister, who appeared in a plain black evening suit without decorations; for our foreign representatives are required by our government to be thus attired. The royal family passed into the dining-room before mingling with their guests. The East Room in the White House is small in comparison with this immense dining saloon. It was lighted with seven colossal chandeliers; in the central one were forty-two candles, for gas is not popular in Copenhagen. The dinner was a magnificent affair and consisted of fourteen courses and eleven varieties of wine, one of which, Rosenborg, was nearly three hundred years old. I once tasted that famous wine at a splendid royal banquet given in that same Knight's Hall to the king and queen of Sweden years before. The menu at the New Year's dinner was printed in gold letters on glazed card-board, the margin being ornamented with beautiful designs and surmounted by the Danish coat-of-arms. During the dinner the band played twelve popular selections from Danish and German composers. After the company adjourned to a suite of splendid apartments, with polished inlaid floors, the members of the royal family circulated among their guests, and an hour was spent in social intercourse, after which royalty retired and the company dispersed.

It is customary in Copenhagen for dinners to be given New Year's evening, to which special friends of the family giving them are invited; and it is probable that last evening was gay as the Christmas Eve that lately brightened so many homes, as the old year was drifting away into the misty past.

Copenhagen, Jan. 2, 1878.

Grant Family Association.

Of the 315 members 53 belong to Clan A.

Electa S. (Grant) Lawton (1554,023,10) is the second person to become a life member.

Members who have paid for badges but have not received them, are requested to notify the Secretary-Treasurer at once, stating whether they have received buttons.

Those who have not already done so should join the G. F. A. at once (send one dollar to Frank Grant, Box 1049, Hartford, Conn.). They will thus secure not only the report of the next reunion, but also, so long as the supply holds out, the report of the first reunion, a handsome pamphlet of 67 pages, containing much valuable information supplementary to the GRANT FAMILY HISTORY, as well as several new pictures.

Branches are being formed in Cleveland and Hartford. Strong branches could be organized in Boston, Chicago, Erie, Minneapolis, Rochester, Stonington, Syracuse and Washington, by inviting all of the family residing within forty miles of those places. Further suggestions will be sent on request.

The Metropolitan Branch will hold its second annual reunion and dinner Tuesday, February 27th, in the beautiful apartments of the Aldine Club, 111 Fifth Av., N. Y. C., where there is every requisite for a delightful social evening. Last year so many more came than were expected that the room proved too small for comfort; but this time there will be ample accommodations.

Items.

Roselle, widow of Chas. W. Grant (1103,705), died Jan. 18, 1900.

Reuben C. Grant (1103,3538) has removed to Philadelphia, Pa. (1507 Spring Garden St.).

Olive G. Foster (1142,125,302) is studying art in N. Y. C. (7 W. 65th St.).

Albert M. Grant (1103,7073) has removed to Minneapolis, Minn. (931 Nicollet Av.).

Chas. J. Carrington (1103,705,20) is one of the proprietors of the Westfield, Mass., Steam Laundry.

Mary F. (Heath) Cady (1103,6630) and Lillian E. (Cady) Reed (1103,663,00) have removed to E. Hartford (49 Hartford Av.).

Harriet L. Grant (1103,375) has removed to Stoneham, Mass. (Box 842); she has been perfectly helpless for months as a result of an attack of the grip a year ago.

George H. Grant (1103,3172) is a veteran of the Civil War (Sergt. Co. I, 25th Regt. Conn. V. I.), and was twice wounded at the battle of Irish Bend, La.

The oldest member of the family is Thomas H. Grant (1142,3003), who resides near Merrick, Mass., and will be ninety years old on March 16th.

Mattie L. (Grant) Headington is superintendent of public instruction of Latah Co., Idaho; her husband died Moscow, Idaho, Apr. 25, 1899; he had been admitted to the bar with high honors in 1897, was a member of the Presbyterian church and clerk of the Moscow Camp of Woodmen of the World.

Sidney A. Grant (1106,1057) has just invented a darner which does more than he claims for it; unlike other darners it is perfectly simple and requires no adjustment. Among his other inventions are envelope machines, a ball-bearing collar button that prevents profanity, and a machine for mining frozen ground. This last he introduced into Alaska, and on the trip his son Lewis carried a camera and secured a remarkably complete set of Alaskan photographs.

J. Grant Cramer (1104,003,51) is president of the American Students' Club of the University of Leipsic, where he has been studying during the last two years.

John B. Grant (1554,0501) is secretary and treasurer of the Merchants' Trust Co. of N. Y. C.

Philip W. Moen (1163,5810) is, judging from his letter-head, fourth vice-president of the American Steel and Wire Co.

Phebe J. (Grant) Welter (1556,448) has removed to Ovid, Mich.

The Countess of Essex is a daughter of the late David Beach Grant of N. Y. C. It is said that he claimed to be a descendant of Matthew Grant. Can any one give his line of descent?

Roland D. Grant (1120,3053) has, temporarily at least, abandoned the pulpit, and is devoting himself to lecturing. He is at present on a southern tour. His address is now Waterloo, N. H.

Hon. Theodore E. Burton (1558,0024) has introduced a joint resolution in congress requesting the president and the secretary of state to enter into negotiations with the government of Great Britain to secure, if possible, the abrogation of so much of the treaty of 1817 as forbids the building of war-ships at shipyards located upon the great lakes.

C. Adelaide Grant (1106,690) is spending the winter with her brother in Washington.

Maude M. Grant (1109,3730) is teaching music.

Anna E. (Grant) Emison (1104,001,10) had her home destroyed by fire, and is now living with her daughter, Willie C. (Emison) Farrell, who has removed to Medford, Ok.

Emeline (Grant) Boylston (1120,3013) has removed to Riverside to reside with her son Chas. W. Boylston, who has been rector of St. Paul's Church there since Jan. 1, 1899; her husband died in Middletown, Nov. 18, 1899, and was interred at S. Glastonbury.

Rosette (Grant) Thrall (1120,3017) has removed to Springfield, Mass. (32 Osgood St.).

Wm. H. Wright (1120,232,01) has removed to Jamaica Plain, Mass. (141 Chestnut Av.).

Elmer G. Thrall (1120,332,13) has removed to Hartford (89 Hawthorne St.).

Amelia A. (Vogell) Walters (1136,5144) has removed to Richmond Hill, N. Y. (Welling St. nr. Myrtle Av.).

Augustus E. Vogell (1136,514,10) has withdrawn from the staff of the N. Y. Evening Post.

Mary A. (Grant) Chamberlain (1142,3504) has removed to High Bridge, N. J., with her daughter Alberta E. I. (Chamberlain) Lawrence, whose husband is pastor of the Reformed church there.

Lydia E. (Ladd) Hitchcock (1142,3712) and her son James L. Hitchcock have removed to Buffalo, N. Y. (508 Plymouth Av.).

Edwin M. Grant (1142,124,40) is the inventor of a penholder from which the pen can be removed with ease, even if rusty, and without soiling the fingers.

Willie D. Grant (1142,124,41) is mayor of Willimantic.

Wm. H. Reynolds (1142,353,22) has been promoted to be assistant secretary of the Hartford Loan and Trust Co.

Sophie Moen (1163,5811) is spending the winter in Boston, Mass. (Hotel Somerset).

Abbie L. (Grant) Wendte (1163,500,10) has removed to Newton Center, Mass., where her husband is pastor of the Unitarian church.

Chas. S. Grant (1550,342,14) has removed to Riverside, Iowa.

S. Hastings Grant (1554,0230) is spending the winter in N. Y. City.

Henry M. Grant (1554,0232) has removed to Eau Claire, Wis.

Flora R. (Grant) Scott (1554,0354) has removed to Asbury Park, N. J.; her son George has entered Princeton College.

Chas. E. Grant (1554,0391) has removed to Plainfield, N. J.

Grant Ford (1554,035,30) is in Amherst College.

Nelson G. Richie (1554,035,70) has entered Harvard University; last year he was in Rutgers College.

Orlando S. Grant (1556,4170) has removed to Cohoctah, Mich.

John C. Grant (1558,0030) is a trustee of Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute.

Edith Grant (1554,023,00) has been admitted to the bar; LL.B. University of the City of New York, 1899.

A. Henry Grant (1554,023,23) has removed to W. New Brighton, N. Y. (Wardwell Av.), where he is teaching Latin in the Westerleigh Collegiate Institute.

Mary L. (Harvey) Dunn (1556,4450) has removed to Ionia, Mich., where her husband is a keeper in the prison.

Emeline J. Harvey (1556,4453) recently read a paper on "Teachers' Pastoral Work" before the S. S. convention at Eureka, Mich., which was afterwards printed.

A large branch of Clan C, descendants of Elisha Grant (1106,40), has recently been discovered; also a large branch of Clan T, descendants of Josiah Grant (15502); also a branch of Clan Z, descendants of Mahala (Grant) Pinney (1558,20). All these will be printed in their proper order. If all subscribers would send in addresses of members of the Family not given in the book and of other Grants, many gaps would be filled up and some lost branches doubtless found.

Elizabeth E. Dana (1109,42xx) sends the following description of a Grant coat of arms which she had seen in the Marsh parsonage in Wethersfield, and which was embroidered by her great grandmother Anne Grant (11094) while at school in Boston, Mass.: "It consists of a shield, the upper half of which is white and the lower half silver, with three lions rampant; crest, a helmeted head, visor closed, and a little lion standing on it." She adds, "I notice that many shields are given as 'pale azure,' and it is possible that what is now white in the one just described may have faded in the 125 years since it was worked, and may have been originally pale azure. Somewhere in the family is a letter from Anne's father, Capt. Ebenezer Grant, in which he tells her to tell the Boston lady of Grant descent, who had asked her about the origin of the family, that all he knew was that they were said to be of Scotch extraction. It may be that Anne got the coat of arms from that lady and embroidered it at school as a gift to her parents, and in that case it would not prove anything about the Windsor Grants." The letter referred to above is especially interesting as being the earliest known expression of the belief that our family is of Scotch origin. Can anyone tell to what family the arms described belong? They are not those of any Grant family given by Burke.

THE GRANT FAMILY HISTORY

will soon be out of print and not to be had for love or money.

ITS 592 octavo pages contain the records of nearly 8,000 members of our Family. A large number of these are descendants in female lines, and so bear other names than Grant; but their ancestry is given as carefully as though they bore the family name. It is indexed very completely, and contains a town and city directory of living members. There are 32 pages of fine illustrations, including old autographs, pictures of old homesteads and prominent members of the Family, etc.

Before it is too late send your order to Arthur H. Grant, Montclair, N. J. The book will be sent express prepaid on receipt of price, which includes the GRANT FAMILY MAGAZINE to date; if you are a subscriber to the Magazine a discount of fifteen cents per number will be allowed you.

ADDITIONAL FACTS ABOUT PERSONS RECORDED IN THE GRANT FAMILY HISTORY.

Ruth Grant (1104,13) d. Pulaski (Richland), N. Y., July 6, 1849; rem. as early as 1790 to Saratoga Co., N. Y., and later to Oswego Co., N. Y.; it is related that she rode the whole distance from Tolland to Saratoga Co. on horseback, most of the way following blazed trails through the woods, and carried her youngest child all the way in her arms; another child was seated behind her and tied to her, to prevent its being thrown off by the floundering of the horse over logs and through swamps or pulled off by the branches that overhung the trail. + (p. 600).

Rufus Price (1104,30) d. Pulaski (Richland), N. Y., Sept. 1, 1829; farmer; an aide on Gen. Washington's staff during the Revolution, and after the war was col. of militia regt.; a man of inflexible will, and greatly respected as a natural leader of men. In the early decades of this century the laws of N. Y. required every voter to be possessed of at least $250 in property, while the U. S. pension laws excluded from their benefits those who owned property to the amount of $250; shortly before a general election in Oswego Co., when political feeling ran rather high, Samuel Vorce, a son-in-law of Col. Price, replying to some public statement of the colonel's, remarked that the colonel could not vote as he was a pensioner; Col. Price asserted that he would vote; at the election his vote was challenged on the ground that he had not the necessary property qualification, his son-in-law supposing that the known fact of his drawing a pension would be sufficient to exclude the vote; but the colonel swore to the possession of the necessary amount of property, and his vote was received, much to the discomfiture of his challenger; it resulted, however, in the suspension of his pension, but his widow collected the whole arrearage, receiving what for those days was a large sum of money.

Ulysses S. Grant (1104,0030); the rank of General was not created for him, as stated on p. 142, but was revived for him; he was, however, the first to hold the rank, for Washington, for whom it was created in 1799, died before it was conferred upon him.

Grant Family Association.

The Metropolitan Branch held its second annual reunion and dinner on Feb. 27, in N. Y. City. Geo. G. Shrive (L) officiated as toastmaster. Isabella G. (Dow) Meredith (K) responded to "Old Stonington," and Arthur H. Grant (W) to "The Old Home Town." Mary F. (Grant) Cramer (B) gave "Some Stale Scraps from Danish Diplomatic Dinners," and Dr. Henry R. Stiles, whom illness prevented from attending, sent a paper on "Priscilla the Second." Francis E. Grant (T), Agnes (Grant) Rowlands (W), and Geo. G. Shrive (L) were elected to serve as committee in charge for the ensuing year. Ten clans were represented, and the whole affair was very sociable and delightful. The guests from outside the district were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Grant (F), of Hartford, Maude M. Grant (E), of E. Windsor Hill, Mary D. (Meacham) Brown (K), of Boston, and Halsey F. Northrup (A) of Ellicottville, N. Y. And right here let it be said that this branch always holds its reunion on the anniversary of the birth of Priscilla Grant the First, and extends a cordial welcome to members of the Family who may happen to be in the city.

The Secretary-Treasurer has on hand a few of the reunion badges, which will be sold only to charter members who have not already purchased badges; price twenty-five cents. They will be valuable souvenirs.

Of the 319 members only 12 belong to Clan B, but a little more than half of its proportion. It is unfortunate that this clan does not take more interest in the G. F. A.

Laura (Colman) Hill (1106,51+) is the third life member.

Items.

The next number will be devoted almost entirely to Clan C, of which a large branch has recently been discovered. Members of that clan should send in anecdotes, traditions, and portraits of themselves and their ancestors not later than June 1. Terms for insertion of portraits will be sent on application; and remember that half-tone engravings will be as clear as ever when photographs have faded past recognition. It is possible that Clans D, E, F, and H will be included in this number.

When sending papers and clippings to the editor, please mark the former and date the later.

Some one asks if the coat-of-arms of our Family has been found. It may sound like a bull, but we shall not find our arms until we put our hands in our pockets and raise a fund to pay for a careful investigation of Matthew Grant's ancestry.

Lesbia A. (Grant) Cameron (1103,611,41) recently read a paper on the Social Life of Babylon before the Unity Club of Sioux City, Iowa.

On the day of our first reunion there appeared in the Hartford Times an article by Jeremiah S. Hallock (1120,3511), of New Hartford, entitled "Woman Suffrage Decisively Wrong." It is painfully evident that our kinsman wrote without making the thorough study of the subject that its importance demands, for he states that equal suffrage has been on trial for the longest period in Colorado, while as a matter of fact it was inaugurated there only about four years ago and has been in operation in Wyoming for more than thirty years. He says: "That Creator declared unto us that he made man in his own image, and gave him dominion over every living thing; that from one of his ribs he made woman and gave her as an helpmeet for him; in subsequent history the man was held first responsible for mutual misdoing, and in the penalty for the woman's forwardness in eating the forbidden fruit it was declared that her desire should be to her husband and he should rule over her." But he fails to add that there is not a first class biblical critic or scientist in the world who to-day accepts the story quoted above as historical truth, its accuracy having been disproved by both scientific and archæological investigations. One more quotation will show the general plan of Mr. Hallock's non-biblical argument. "The skilled burglar and the practiced highwayman must not be given liberty to pursue their nefarious work; and if woman displays undoubted faculty to use the ballot worthily she cannot be granted function to the destruction of the ballot principle and the dissolution of the family." The article has been reprinted in pamphlet form, and copies can be obtained from the author for two cents each.

Robert C. Northam (1211,134,0000) took second prize in the Hartford Baby Show, Nov. 9, 1899, over 400 competitors.

James F. Baskins (1162,4671) has removed to Glenwood, Iowa.

Henry W. Grant (1142,126,21) is editor and publisher of "Fraternal Aid," the official paper of the Fraternal Aid Association.

Timothy S. Williams (1550,342,31) was recently elected vice-president of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Co.

D. Carroll Thomas (1163,5621) has removed to Cincinnati, O. (325 Walnut St.).

Agnes (Grant) Rowlands (1554,0356) has removed to Brooklyn, N. Y. (103 Lenox Road).

Elizabeth F. Johnson (1550,341,41) has gone to Europe to spend several months.

Ulysses S. Grant (1104,003,001) is a student in the U. S. Military Academy at West Point.

The Lewisburg Female Institute, the most famous school for girls in W. Va., is thoroughly identified with the Family. A. Virginia (Tompkins) Brown (1104,0082) and her daughter Anna B. (Brown) Telford are its matrons, Mr. Telford is the principal, I. Virginia Brown (1104,008,24) is teacher of history and in charge of the primary department, and Bessie B. Brown (1104,008,23) is librarian. The school is incorporated and under the care of the Presbyterian Church.

Gertrude G. Brown (1104,008,27) is studying art in the Maryland Institute, Baltimore.

Willie D. Grant (1142,124,41) is president of the Willimantic Street Railway Co.

Alice M. (Fuller) Briggs (1106,105,10) is the youngest grandmother in the Family, having attained that dignity at the age of thirty-seven.

John G. W. Tompkins (1104,0089) writes as follows: "I will mention the tradition fondly dwelt upon and oft-times related by his children Susan, Margaret, Roswell, Jesse and Rachel that Noah Grant (1104,00) participated in the original 'tea-party' in Boston harbor in 1773. The watch, a large silver 'bull's-eye,' worn by him on that occasion has been an heirloom in our family, passing at my mother's death to my brother Charles. I have often heard my mother relate her narrow escape from drowning when the family was moving to Maysville, Ky., in a 'keel boat'; she fell overboard and was rescued with great difficulty. She had to walk four miles through the woods to school, and sometimes the Indians who were then near Maysville would overtake her and lift her upon their horses, asking if 'papoose wanted a ride.' My father had the distinction of being the first man on this continent, and perhaps in the world, to utilize natural gas in manufacturing. In 1841, while he was running a salt well 1200 feet in depth, suddenly the well frame, a structure 75 feet high, was blown to pieces and caught fire from the sudden ebullition of gas that escaped in vast volumes, frightening the workmen, and inspiring them with the belief that they had reached the region where 'the fire is never quenched.' But he, taking a more practical view, succeeded in smothering the fire with wet blankets and earth, and piping the gas to his furnace nearby used it to boil salt water for many years very successfully and at vast reduction in cost. At that place (Burning Springs, W. Va.) Washington when a young surveyor discovered gas on the surface of a spring, and finding that it ignited easily deeded one acre to the State of Virginia as a natural curiosity."

EMORY ALFRED GRANT

(1556,423—pp. 108 and 617)

Deaths.

Newton, husband of Permelia G. (Norton) Buckner (1104,001,54), in New Orleans, La., Oct. 21, 1899. He was a private in the 5th Co. Washington Artillery, C. S. A., and captain on Gen. Magruder's staff. He was the head of one of the largest and most influential cotton commission houses in New Orleans. He was a vestryman of Trinity Church, and a useful and public spirited citizen. He was of a kind and generous disposition, which won for him a large circle of friends.

Ellen E., wife of Garry Grant (1558,390), in Hartford, Jan. 10, 1899.

Helen B. Phillips (1558,018,02) in 1899.

Lorin M. Grant (1556,410) at N. Amherst, O., Dec. 25, 1899.

Emory A. Grant, M.D., LL.D. (1556,423) in Louisville, Ky., May 26, 1899. Before he was sixteen he taught in Albion, Mich., a school of over one hundred pupils, many of whom were older than he. Three teachers had been ejected bodily from the schoolhouse within as many months by the mischievous boys and young men. By unflinching kindness, courtesy and gentleness, sustained by a determined spirit and unwearied vigilance, he secured perfect order, rapid progress in scholarship and the confidence of every pupil. The older pupils informed every new comer that any disrespect to the teacher or any violation of rules would meet with condign punishment outside the school room. He studied law, was admitted to the bar, and was for a time in partnership with Gen. Clinton B. Fiske. He assisted, as a civil engineer, in the laying out of the Michigan Central R. R. Failing health compelled him to seek a milder climate. After a few months of editorial work on the Pittsburg, Pa., Gazette, he became a professor in the Masonic College at Lagrange, Ky.; but after a few years he left this to open a private school in Frankfort, which soon became one of the leading schools in the state, especially noted for its thorough scholarship and the self-discipline of its pupils. His classes in surveying did much of the public work of the county, such as laying out roads and building or superintending the construction of bridges. He was often appointed by the county court as commissioner to settle disputes about boundaries, and never was his allotment questioned, nor would the court require him to make oath to his reports. While conducting this school he assisted in the organization of the Kentucky Teachers' Association and was elected its president, to which office he was re-elected every year till the legislature passed a law making the superintendent of public instruction ex-officio its president. In 1859 he was offered, but was obliged to decline, an appointment as one of the commissioners to settle the disputed boundary between Kentucky and Tennessee. In 1859 he was elected principal of the Louisville Male High School, and spent seven years as principal of that institution. He resigned this position to establish a girls' school, but soon abandoned this to take up the active practice of surgery. He turned his attention particularly to the treatment of deformities and was so successful in this line that he attracted general attention from the medical world. He was one of the first to practice this branch of surgery in this country. He was a member of the Second Presbyterian Church, of the Sons of the American Revolution, and of the Association for the Advancement of Science; he had been an Odd Fellow 52 years, and a Mason nearly 50 years, having been a charter member of Louisville Lodge No. 400. Purity of thought was always evidenced by his speech, and his kindness of heart and willingness to aid made and cemented friendships. No cause that was for the betterment of mankind in any line, mental, moral, or physical, ever appealed to him in vain; and his time and labor were always at the service of humanity.

Harmon J. Grant (1556,4171) in Emmet Co., Mich., Jan. 3, 1900.

AN APPEAL.

The death of Harmon J. Grant, noted above, was peculiarly pathetic, both in the circumstances attending it and in its results. He dropped dead in a lumber camp after having been away from his family for more than three months. Although he had been an honest and industrious man he left almost penniless a family of eleven children, the eldest but eighteen, and the youngest a babe of seven months, and one, a little girl, a helpless cripple. He had just bought a farm, to secure which his aged parents have mortgaged their own home. His brave wife is determined to keep the family together, and to do this will work the farm with the help of the older children. But a house must be built, for there is none on the farm, and this she cannot accomplish unaided, and the near relatives are too poor to do much more than they have done. The editor has carefully investigated the case through a member of the G. F. A. in that vicinity, and now appeals to the Family to come to the aid of that heroic mother and her fatherless children, and secure for them the home that alone will make possible their continued existence as a family. Even small contributions will be thankfully received. All money sent to the editor will be promptly forwarded and will be acknowledged in the next number of the MAGAZINE.

THE GRANT FAMILY HISTORY

will soon be out of print and not to be had for love or money.

ITS 592 octavo pages contain the records of nearly 8,000 members of our Family. A large number of these are descendants in female lines, and so bear other names than Grant; but their ancestry is given as carefully as though they bore the family name. It is indexed very completely, and contains a town and city directory of living members. There are 32 pages of fine illustrations, including old autographs, pictures of old homesteads and prominent members of the Family, etc.

Before it is too late send your order to Arthur H. Grant, Montclair, N. J. The book will be sent express prepaid on receipt of price, which includes the GRANT FAMILY MAGAZINE to date; if you are a subscriber to the Magazine a discount of fifteen cents per number will be allowed you.

Price: Cloth (rough or trimmed edges), $6.75; Full Morocco (full gilt), $10.00.

Items.

The next number will be devoted to Clans D, E, F, H, K, and L, or as many of them as there is room for, and will go to press August 1. Members of those clans should send in supplementary items, anecdotes, traditions, portraits of themselves and their ancestors, and photographs of old homesteads.

Although Clan C is the fifth in size it has furnished only 16 members to the G. F. A.

John F., husband of Laura (Colman) Hill (p. 621), is the Republican candidate for Governor of Maine.

In response to the appeal in the last issue, the following amounts have been contributed to the fund that is being raised to build a house for the family of the late Harmon J. Grant:

W. D. Grant (K), Willimantic, . . . . .	$1 00
Alice M. Briggs (C), Arlington, Mass, . . . . .	1 00
A member of Clan F, . . . . .	5 00
Martha Grant (F), Westfield, Mass., . . . . .	5 00
Mary E. Grant (F), Westfield, Mass., . . . . .	5 00
Jennie G. Pelton (Y), Moorhead, Minn., . . . . .	1 00
A. H. G. (W), . . . . .	3 00
Total, . . . . .	$21 00

Mrs. Grant has received about $40.00 from other sources, and about $140.00 is still needed. If we do not promptly raise that amount it will show that, whatever other virtues we may have, generosity may still be cultivated to advantage.

Deaths.

Ruth Thompson Sperry (12100+) at E. Windsor Hill, Feb. 22, 1900. She was born in S. Windsor, July 4, 1854, and graduated from Mt. Holyoke College 1875; an accurate and painstaking genealogist, she probably did more to complete the history of the families in the eastern part of ancient Windsor than any one else. She was a member of the First Congregational Church. Her death makes the first break in the membership of the G. F. A.

John F., husband of Caroline E. (Grant) Phillips (1156,473) at Georgetown, Col., Sep. 4, 1899; buried in Denver. He was a member of Georgetown Lodge No. 48 F. and A. M. and Commandery No. 4 K. T.

Chester, husband of Martha A. (Grant) Woodward (1556,474), Nov. 16, 1899.

Myron Young (1556,4441) at Bengal, Mich., Apr. 5, 1899, unmarried. He was a young man of excellent character, beloved by all, a model of kindness and charity. No blot nor stain is left to mar the memory of so noble a young life. He joined the M. E. church at St. Johns when about fifteen years of age, was deeply interested in his Sunday school, and although living about six miles from church was almost a regular attendant. He was a member of the I. O. O. F. and Rebecca lodges.

Wesley M. Albert (1556,441,020) in Fall River, Mass., Oct. 24, 1899.

Mary M. (Grant) Wilson (1554,025) in Des Moines, Iowa, Apr. 24, 1899. She went to Illinois in 1837 as a home missionary and teacher; her home was a station of the "underground railway."

Thomas, husband of Elizabeth J. (Grant) Bennett (1554,0350), in N. Y. City, Mch. 26, 1900.

Fanny Grant (1554,0512) in Bridgeport, Jan. 29, 1899, unmarried. She was a member of the Congregational church.

Wealthy (Grant) Skinner (1211,109) in Hartford, Nov. 6, 1899.

Capt. William G. Collins (1211,404) in Hartford, June 6, 1899. He was a member of the Second Congregational Church of S. Windsor.

Helen M. (Grant) Stevens (1211,1005) at Wapping, Sep. 22, 1898.

Dr. Frank G. Johnson (1211,1022) Jan. 1, 1900.

Francis L., husband of Emily S. (Rockwell) Jones (1211,1341), at S. Windsor, May 17, 1898.

Clarissa A. (Bacon) Bower (1211,1612) at Austin, Minn., (Mch. 1900?).

Sarah A., wife of Williver C. Driggs (1211,4091), at Vernon, 1899.

Viola C. Grant (1211,100,22) at Buckland, Nov. 5, 1899.

Emma E. (Sparks) Rumohr (1211,132,22) in the West, 1899; buried in Talcottville.

Hon. Frederick E. Grant (1163,4152) at Huron, S. D., Aug. 1, 1899.

THE GRANT FAMILY HISTORY

will soon be out of print and not to be had for love or money.

ITS 592 octavo pages contain the records of nearly 8,000 members of our Family. A large number of these are descendants in female lines, and so bear other names than Grant; but their ancestry is given as carefully as though they bore the family name. It is indexed very completely, and contains a town and city directory of living members. There are 32 pages of fine illustrations, including old autographs, pictures of old homesteads and prominent members of the Family, etc.

Before it is too late send your order to Arthur H. Grant, Montclair, N. J. The book will be sent express prepaid on receipt of price, which includes the GRANT FAMILY MAGAZINE to date; if you are a subscriber to the Magazine a discount of fifteen cents per number will be allowed you.

Price: Cloth (rough or trimmed edges), $7.00; Full Morocco (full gilt), $10.00.

ADDITIONAL FACTS ABOUT PERSONS RECORDED IN THE GRANT FAMILY HISTORY.

David W. Grant (1108,212) was the first president of the Hartford County Mutual Fire Ins. Co.; he was a first-class farmer, and his farm was one of the finest for dairy purposes; he made the butter himself, and supplied several noted Hartford families; from 1840 to 1860 he was very prominent in the state and county agricultural societies, and there was rarely a year that he did not receive a premium for something; a heavy silver cup, given for the best cultivated farm, is still owned by his children.

Rhoda E. Grant (1108,213) began her school career when but three years old; the teacher, "Aunt Sally Brown," tried to persuade her mother to let her accompany her brother to school, but was told that she could not go because she had to have a nap; but the teacher overruled this objection, and off to school the little one went, learned her letters and to sew, and had her nap.

ADDITIONAL FACTS ABOUT PERSONS RECORDED IN THE GRANT FAMILY HISTORY.

Samuel Brewer (1120,265) had glossy black hair and dark skin, was very tall and straight, but weighed only about a hundred pounds; he is said to have strongly resembled his mother, as did also his sisters Betsey and Pamela. As a lad he planned to see something of the world and succeeded in carrying out his plan when about nineteen; his father went twice a year to New York to buy tavern supplies, and on one occasion took his son with him, driving a large and valuable horse, which Samuel led out of the stable and sold soon after they reached New York, using the money to pay his passage to Cuba on a steamship called "The Driver." When his father was ready to go home he could find neither boy nor horse; after remaining for several days engaged in a vain search he went home disheartened. Samuel had yellow fever, from which nearly all on board the vessel died. He keenly regretted his deed, and after a year returned home and was forgiven. He was unlike men in general; often left his cows un milked at night, saying that they would give more in the morning; seldom bought improved farming tools, but clung to old ways and customs; raised little or no grain, always drove good horses, which he never worked on his farm; hired his servants by the day; but made more money off his 300 acres than most farmers, and laid up gold and silver to the amount of $50,000, on which he paid no taxes, but which he loaned at a low rate of interest. He kept large droves of market cattle over night in his pasture, reasoning that they would not eat much, being too tired at night and leaving too early in the morning; he kept the finest wool sheep, and let one go unshorn ten years, until the wool was 22 inches long. He was very eccentric in his dress, wishing to dress either better or worse than the majority. He could take a joke well, but had ready wit, and never in my§ remembrance was a joke passed upon him but in return he would give one much to the chagrin of the giver.

Frederic L. Gleason (1120,2050) was a man of unusual breadth and strength of character; while an active business man during his whole life, he allowed no day to pass without giving himself his time for reading; his library thus became like a loved friend, and although it contained more than 12,000 volumes if one was removed he could almost always tell its title. He inherited a large share of the Family characteristics—perseverance and honesty, the latter being not merely the common honesty of the market-place, but the finer sense of honor that is so much rarer, and which is well illustrated by the following incident. As administrator of an estate which included a foundry he had given his personal word through Gen. Hawley that a government marine engine should be completed within a specified time; the funds, however, proved inadequate as a result of frauds on the part of a previous manager, and the operatives refused to continue the work; in that emergency he poured in thousands of dollars of his own, and completed the engine; this drain on his resources caused him to lose his whole property, but he consoled himself with the knowledge that his word had been kept and that the engine exceeded the requirements and was the best of several similar engines made at the same time. Rev. Joseph H. Twichell, the well known pastor of the Asylum Hill Congregational Church of Hartford, writes as follows: "I have always accounted it a peculiar favor of Providence that I had such a man as Frederic L. Gleason for my parishioner and friend in the early years of my ministry. He was one of the most wise and gracious spirits I have ever known. During the period especially (from 1869 to 1875) in which he held the office of deacon, his sympathy and his counsel were of a value to me not to be overstated. In whatever perplexity, due to my inexperience, I was at all times sure to find in him an advisor, calm, judicious, reasonable, whose guidance it was safe to follow. He was never forward with his advice. His disposition was modest and retiring almost to the degree of shyness. But when his judgment was sought he spoke his mind frankly and sincerely. Rarely in my life have I met one whose thoughts seemed to be so entirely set to the key of good-will. This was far more than natural amiability. It was the charity that 'seeketh not her own, is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil.' I do not remember ever to have heard him speak a word in any circumstances that was otherwise than patient and kind. I often wondered at the completeness of his self-control. The art of the peacemaker was his—and the blessing."

Wapping.

FRANK GRANT (1120,3072).

John Grant

† (112) died young, but fortunately not until he had begotten a son, for otherwise there would have been no Clan F. This son, John (1120), after marrying, “went over east and took up land” in the south end of Wapping [as Thomas (1211) did in the north end §], thus becoming one of the first settlers of the district. A considerable part of this land has remained in the possession of his descendants to this day, being owned now by the sons of Leonard Grant (1120,304). The southern boundary of this tract, locally known as Grant Hill, was marked by a red sandstone monument in which the owner’s initials were cut; but as the old-fashioned capital J was merely an I with a mark across it, the stone finally came to be known as the I G stone. It stood not far from the corner of the road running west a little south of the house now occupied by Clayton Grant. Some years ago it was broken, but the top was preserved by Naaman (1120,305) and presented to his brother Lyman, whose daughters gave it to the writer, who cherishes it as one of his household gods.

John’s house, tradition says, stood on the west side of the road, then much wider than now, a few rods north by west of the present residence of Wilbur Grant and on the south bank of the little rivulet which there crosses the road. Uncle Naaman has told me of his remembrance of the remains of a cellar and chimney and an old pear tree which probably marked the site of this first homestead of Clan F.

His sons settled around him, the eldest, John 3d, building the old red house, now in a bad state of decay, on the east side of the road, a quarter of a mile or so north of his father’s and directly opposite the present house of the Messrs. Cady (see p. 640);|| the house was occupied at a later period by his grand nephews Warren and possibly Naaman. According to common report this John Grant was somewhat irascible, and as a result would hastily go to law and get beaten, when his brother Edward Chapman Grant would settle for him, taking security on his property. A story has been handed down which perhaps further illustrates his turn of mind: in his later years he employed a boy named Justin Steadman; while sitting at a south window affording a view of his cornfield, and reading his Bible aloud—perhaps at family devotions—he came to the words “the Lord said—,” when looking up he saw his brother’s pigs trespassing and hotly continued with no break “—run, Justin, run, Chap’s damned hogs are in the corn.”

†This autograph, which completes the line on p. 481, was found in the archives in the State Library after the publication of the GRANT FAMILY HISTORY; members of Clan F may obtain copies on thin paper suitable for pasting on p. 481 by sending a stamped envelope to the author of this article.

§The editor hopes that a future article may give an account of this branch of the Wapping Grants.

||The pictures of homesteads which accompany this article are from photographs taken by the writer and his sister, Mary E. Grant.

Matthew, the second son, evidently took the old homestead. In addition to his other service in the Revolution, he was named for a tour of duty at New London in 1799 as a member of the 19th Militia Regiment; he was one of the first to take the oath of fidelity to the state, as were also his son Justus and brother Edward. His descendants have almost entirely deserted the old town, and the male line is almost extinct, Chas. A. Grant, of Manitou, Col., and his son being the only known survivors of the name.

Edward C., the third son built his house on the east side of the road a little way north of his father’s where Mr. Dewey’s house now stands; in fact the extreme east end of Mr. Dewey’s house still shows the color with which the Grants seem to have “painted the town red” and is asserted on good authority to be a part of the original house (see p. 648); the main part, however, is gone and has had two successors, the first having been built in front of or on the site of the original house for Edward’s son Elliot; this was finally moved across the road, where it now serves as part of the barn (see p. 648); it was evidently quite a fine house in its day, and the present owner has repeatedly stripped off some of the wall-paper up-stairs to show the writer how finely the walls were frescoed, all the work being done by hand. Edward Chapman Grant, the first of the Family to indulge in the luxury of a triple name, is commonly referred to in the records either by his military title or as “Mr.,” a title which meant far more in those days than now, in fact he seems to have been the leading citizen of that part of the town, as Matthew (1113) and Ebenezer (1109) were in other parts of the town. He seems to have been not only a forceful, successful man, but a person of fine tastes as shown in his dress and deportment; in fact he dressed so handsomely and wore shirts with such generous frills that some of the simple folk around accused him of being a tory; as a matter of fact, however, his record during the Revolution shows him to have been an ardent patriot, and he was even a member of a committee to suppress toryism—“a committee of protection and safety, whose business it shall be attentively to observe the conduct of all persons in this town touching such association [the Continental Congress] and endeavor that the same be inviolably kept and observed”; under this appointment the assembly, at its session of November 1776, assigned Justus Miles, a reputed tory, to his care, and authorized him to keep and govern him in such manner as he should think prudent. § He was frequently elected selectman, and in that capacity it became his duty to carry out the order of the assembly to seek out and purchase all lead in the town, except sheet lead on buildings; under this authority the selectmen of East Windsor collected 730 lbs. of clock weights and 233 lbs. from fish nets, besides what was taken out of windows, even the meeting-house being stripped to provide material for bullets.† His commission as Ensign is still in the possession of one of his descendants; but on his election to the captaincy of the train-band the services of something like a modern "returning board" were asked for by some who were not present at the election, on the ground that many people didn't suppose so many others would be out to vote, with what final result the writer has not learned.§ He was buried in the church yard in Wapping, as was his father, his mother having been buried earlier in the old cemetery at East Windsor Hill.

Coming down to the next generation, we find that Justus (1120,20) built his house where Mr. Clark's house now stands, but a few years since it was removed to a site a few rods west of Mr. Stoughton's store, and a year or so ago was destroyed by fire; it was a gambrel roofed house, quite similar in architecture to that of his uncle John, and was painted with the same shade and quality of red paint which our fathers knew how to make and which seems almost to defy the ravages of time.

Russell (1120,30) built his house on the family domain a little south of his grandfather's on the east side of the road; it must have been built about 1798, but is still in good repair and is now the home of Mrs. Gilbert (see p. 649). Russell seems to have maintained the standard of the sturdy citizenship of his race. His first-born, Daniel, while a boy was kicked by a horse, the injury resulting in total blindness when he was twenty; he however did much farm work during nearly a score of years of darkness.

Warren (1120,301) first kept house in the old home of his great-uncle John, but after his second marriage spent most of his life in Manchester, where he made flavoring extracts and medicinal preparations which acquired quite a reputation for quality, and which, had they been made in these days of "that tired feeling" and "100 doses for $1.00," would have made him rich and famous.

The home of Lyman (1120,303), directly opposite the old house of John (11201), was always a model of neatness inside and out. He held nearly all the town offices, was looked to for kindly service by his neighbors in time of trouble, and, while liable to "size up" and caustically characterize one he did not believe in, he was always extremely kindhearted and thoughtful for others. His daughters were women of more than ordinary beauty of person and character, and it is interesting to note that the picture of Mrs. Cramer in the first number of the MAGAZINE would pass for a picture of Frances.

†Stiles' History of Ancient Windsor, vol. i, pp. 637-639; "many clocks in East Windsor stood still during the war, bearing mute witness to the emergencies of the time" says the author, but I think that yankee ingenuity found a way to make most of them go without lead weights; on p. 629 is printed the text (still to be seen on the old town records at Broad Brook) of an interesting note sent by the town just prior to the outbreak of the Revolution, tendering sympathy and grain "to our fellow citizens of the distressed town of Boston" then suffering from the effects of the Port Bill.

§Stiles' History of Ancient Windsor, vol. i, p. 620.

Leonard (1120,304) built his house just south of his father's on Grant Hill on a site overlooking the little valley to the west and the Talcot mountain range beyond the Connecticut. With his brother Lyman, from whom he had learned his trade, and with his brother Lemuel as "tender," he did some of the mason work on the earlier buildings of the famous Cheney silk mills at South Manchester. In his later years he became blind, but to the end he insisted that his place should be kept neat and tidy. He always found time to read, and when he could not read his wife read to him, so that to the last he "kept up with the procession" theologically, politically, and in economics to a remarkable degree, so that it was always a pleasure to spend an hour with the ruddy-faced, white-haired old gentleman. His three sons, Chester, Henry and Clayton, now the only representatives of Clan F of the name in the town, have pleasant homes close by, their children being the sixth generation living on the original Grant tract.

Naaman (1120,305) was the mechanic par excellence of his family, sometimes a manufacturer and for years the man about the mills of the vicinity who could "make things go." He was always fond of disputation, and, having become a convert to Millerism, as the Second Advent belief was termed in early days, found great pleasure in studying and expounding their particular views of the scriptures, until he had much of the Bible at his tongue's end—if it had an end, which became a question of grave doubt to the mind of one who differed with him. Believers in heredity will see a proof of their theory in the ready eloquence of his son Roland.

Hannah (1120,306) went to Westfield, Mass., where she worked in the then famous Woronoco (now Springdale) paper mills. There she met her husband, Henry Loomis, who was town treasurer, a whip lash manufacturer and a prosperous merchant there for many years.

Lemuel (1120,307), the youngest son, had a part of his father's farm deeded to him "in consideration of the love I bear my son" (an expression that Russell used in all his deeds to his children, so far as I have examined them), and took charge of the old home and parents while still little more than a boy. About 1842-3 he sold his land and followed his sister to Westfield, where he met the wife who proved a helpmeet worthy of the name. In his early business life he was the confidential clerk of the late Hiram Harrison, then the leading whip manufacturer of the world, for Westfield has long been the center of that industry. He was among the original subscribers to the stock of the American Whip Company and of the old Westfield Bank, and nearly all his life there was an officer of the M. E. church; a man whose word was most emphatically as good as his bond. He built the house at 78 Main St. (see p. 649), now occupied by his children, who always are ready to give a cordial welcome there to anyone of the blood.

All of Russell's children, with the exception of Leonard and Hannah (who were red-haired and of florid complexion), resembled their mother, having blue or grey eyes and black hair, that combination making Lemuel and Frances particularly fine looking in their younger days. Elliot's descendants, however, easily bore off the palm in that particular.

Of Elliot's sons, Sanford (1120,331) had his father's house, and Horace (1120,332) built the house since owned and occupied by Willard (1211,1041) and since his death by his son Willard W.

The Grants seem to have been a strenuous race in their religious beliefs and to have remained staunchly orthodox in the old town down to the present day. I am reminded, however, that uncle Leonard once said that his father "certificated off," and explained that to do so was to take advantage of a law providing that a man might be released from paying taxes or rates for the support of the established church by making formal statement that his denominational interests lay in other directions; it is not known whether this was due to a change of belief or was a case of "tax dodging," as rare then as it is common now, and will remain until the adoption of Henry George's single tax plan shall remove both temptation and opportunity.

The "seat of learning" was in the little triangle a few rods east of the present school-house, and in my father's day there were at one time forty Grant children in attendance, Horace Grant also being at one time the teacher. Indeed so general was the name in the community that given names were commonly used in speaking of the wives of Grants, e. g. Mrs. Horace, Mrs. Lyman, etc. In 1855 Lyman, Charles and Sanford Grant constituted the school committee, Leonard Grant was collector of the school tax, and the names of twelve other Grants appear on the tax list (Marvin, Willard, William, Willis, William C., Frank, Randolph, Norman, Sidney D., Lucina, Eliza, and Justina M.). May the success of the Memorial Fund show that the Family has not lost in any degree that interest in education which was from the start one of its most marked characteristics.

Clan H.

Through the kindness of Adah B. (Grant) Colt (1136,520,21) we are able to give our readers a picture of the famous Grant triplets taken on their seventieth birthday, and one of the house in which they were born. The house stands in the part of Torrington called Newfield, and was built by their grandfather Ira Grant (1136,52), who was married in it; it descended to his son Augustus, who sold it out of the family, and it is now owned and occupied by Wm. Bailey.

On the evening of their seventieth birthday a thousand of their fellow citizens gathered in the opera house in Torrington to celebrate the occasion. Old fashioned music was sung, letters were read, and addresses were made by G. H. Welch, Esq., Judge F. D. Fyler and E. J. Steele. Later in the evening a banquet was given them by the business men of Torrington, seventy covers being laid.

William is the only one of the triplets now living, and, with the exception of his uncle, Rev. Miles Grant, he is the only known survivor of the name in Clan H. In their later years he and Daniel so nearly resembled each other that it was very difficult to distinguish one from the other. They were all of a jovial disposition. One who knew them well for many years said that their prominent characteristics were honesty, truthfulness, temperance, conscientiousness, frugality, kindness, industry and politeness.

Grant Family Association.

The G. F. A. was incorporated under the laws of Connecticut on June 15, the certificate being filed in the office of the town clerk of Windsor, Matthew Grant's successor in office.

The Connecticut Valley Branch of the G. F. A. was formed on June 18 at the residence of Ralph M. Grant in East Windsor Hill by a committee chosen for the purpose by the members of the G. F. A. residing in the district. Ernest W. Grant (A), Maude M. Grant (E), Geo. D. Clark (F), Florice A. Watkins (F), and Ralph M. Grant (Q) were chosen to act as committee in charge for the ensuing year. A local reunion will be held on September 11 at Lake Compounce, near Bristol; it will be a basket picnic; all descendants of Matthew Grant will be welcome; those living in Hartford will take the "third rail" train at 9 a. m. All members of the G. F. A. residing within fifty miles of Hartford are de facto members of this branch.

Note the change of residence of the Secretary-Treasurer to Westfield, Mass.

Clans D and E, although the smallest in the Family, have set an example of loyalty to the G. F. A. that the larger clans would do well to emulate, in each case half of the adults being members of the G. F. A. Clan F, though one of the smaller clans, has more members than any other clan except A, which it is pushing closely for first place, having furnished 47 of the 322 members.

The Board of Directors has voted to hold the next Reunion in Hartford, October 26-28, 1901.

The President has appointed the following standing committees:

EXECUTIVE.

Eugene J. Grant (K), Brooklyn, N. Y., Chairman.
George Grant Shrive (L), Rutherford, N. J.
Mary L. (Phillips) Mallory (Z), Brooklyn, N. Y.

Deaths.

Lorana (Fitch) Northrup (1103,649) at Ellicottville, N. Y., Apr. 13, 1900; buried at Greene, N. Y.; she had been a staunch and faithful member of the Methodist church since her girlhood.

George Gorham (1103,4511) at West Stockbridge, Mass., Mch., 1900, s. p.

Evelyn M. (Fitch) Chase (1103,642,01) at Mechanicsville, Apr. 17, 1900. She had been closely identified with the Woman's Relief Corps, serving in various offices, including that of president; at the time of her death she was president of the Woman's Board of the Day Kimball Hospital. She was a woman of considerate courtesy, combined with efficiency and firmness, and had a deep sense of moral and religious obligation. She was the first of those who attended the Reunion to pass away.

Chas. R., husband of Mary A. (Grant) Allen (1106,1056), in 1898.

Mary E., wife of David D. Grant (1108,2122), May 20, 1898.

Ann E., widow of Frederick W. Grant (1109,37), in the old homestead at E. Windsor Hill, May 24, 1900; the funeral service was held on the ninetieth anniversary of her birth. Her mental faculties were bright to the last and she maintained an active interest in current affairs. She was a woman of cultivated tastes, of genial, pleasant manners, and widely esteemed in the community through all the years of her long life. She was deeply interested in the Grant Family reunion, and many who attended called at the old homestead to meet and chat with "Grandma" Grant. She was a member of the Congregational church, and prominent in its affairs for many years.

Henry C., widower of Elvira (Grant) Stoughton (1120,2012), at Wapping, June 21, 1899.

Wm. W., husband of Elvira A. (Grant) Rogers (1120,3050), in Hartford, Mch. 1, 1900. He was a member of the Woodward and Rogers Co., manufacturers of machinery.

Chloe, widow of Matthew A. Grant (1136,5201), May 24, 1900.

Clara E. Humphrey (1136,520,201) Nov. 3, 1898, "æ 13 yrs."

Francis A., husband of Almira W. (Grant) Levey (1142,3052), in Stonington, Feb., 1900. He was for many years a successful mate of a whaler, and one of the last survivors of that hardy race in Stonington.

John S. Grant (1142,3520) at Jewett City, May 31, 1900. He was the last member of the Family of the name in New London Co., which used to be a family stronghold. To the extent of his ability he aided those in distress, and was especially helpful in cases of sickness.

Sarah W. (Johnson) Holmes (1142,101,52) Jan. 15, 1899; she was a woman of sterling qualities; in her home and as a mother she was goodness itself, unselfish, always brave and true.

Chas. S., husband of Clara M. (Woodard-Grant) McDonald (1142,300,51), June 24, 1899.

Phebe A., wife of John H. Morgan (1142,320,60), in Westerly, R. I., Jan. 17, 1900.

Harriet B. Bissell (1142,371,41) June 11, 1899.

Nathaniel L. Grant (1143,641) Dec. 28, 1898.

Donna E. Kerr (1143,305,410) in Buffalo, N. Y., Apr. 23, 1899. She was a bright and promising girl, easily at the head of her class and school.

Benjamin F. Gilbert (1163,4140) at Lyme, N. H., June 6, 1900.

Chas. H. Johnson (1550,341,40) in Montclair, N. J., June 22, 1900; at the time of his death he was secretary of the board of education, president of the Republican Club, and trustee of the First Congregational Church; he was a man of large ability, a speaker of rare power, an earnest worker for the welfare of the community, a loyal friend, and leaves to his children an untarnished name.

Items.

The next number of the MAGAZINE will be devoted to Clans K, L, N, P, and Q, or as many of them as there is room for. Members of those clans should send in items, anecdotes, traditions, and portraits of themselves and their ancestors not later than September 15, as the date of publication will be changed from the last to the first of the month. Pictures of century-old homesteads are especially desired. There should be a systematic hunt by his descendants for the family Bible of Gustavus Grant (1211,10).

Our Secretary-Treasurer has received cordial letters of greeting from Mr. John Grant, the Honorary Secretary of the Clan Grant Society of Glasgow, and Mr. A. W. Grant, Honorary Secretary of the London Clan Grant Society. Both of these gentlemen have promised to aid us in the search for Matthew Grant's ancestry. As it will doubtless interest all our subscribers to know more about the Grants on the other side, we give the following items about the

LONDON CLAN GRANT SOCIETY.

(Formed in 1900.)

Chief—James Ogilvie Grant, of Grant, Earl of Seafield and Baron Strathspey, of Strathspey.

President—Lieut.-Gen. Sir Robert Grant, K. C. B., R. E.

Vice-Presidents—Capt. the Hon. Robert Abercromby Grant and John Cameron Grant, Esq.

Honorary Secretary and Treasurer—A. W. Grant, 29, Cornhill, London, E. C.

Objects—“The cultivation of social intercourse among its members; to do honor to any person of the name of Grant who may in the opinion of the Society have brought credit to the name either in war, art, science, literature or otherwise; to collect and preserve records and traditions bearing on the history of the name or Clan; to found a scholarship or bursary at some well known school or college open to children of the name of Grant; to assist clansmen and members of the society who may in its opinion be deserving of such aid.”

On Easter Sunday there was unveiled in the First Congregational Church of Montclair, N. J., a triple memorial window to Chas. H. Johnson (1550,3414). It represents Jesus blessing little children, and is very beautiful in conception and execution.

Walter S. Grant (1550,342,16) graduated last June from the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, standing eighteenth in a class of fifty-four. A fellow cadet says that more disputes were referred to him than to anyone else. He is now second lieutenant of the 6th U. S. Cavalry, and will probably go to China with that regiment.

Several years ago the Grand Army of the Republic commissioned Francis Simmons to execute in marble a statue of Gen. U. S. Grant, the money for which was raised by small contributions from its members all over the country. After one statue had been rejected by the library committee of Congress, (for the statue was to be a gift to the nation), another was made, which, although severely criticized by some, was accepted. It is a full length portrait of heroic size, and was unveiled on May 19 in the rotunda of the capitol in the presence of Mrs. Grant, Mrs. Sartoris, and other members of the family. S. Hastings Grant (W), who was present on the occasion, writes as follows: “The day was largely given up to its formal reception by Congress, and numerous addresses were delivered in each House by representative men from all sections and parties. It was very interesting to listen to their impassioned tributes to General Grant’s worth and distinguished ability, whether as a commander unsurpassed in any age, or as a supreme magistrate filling well the chair of state, or as a citizen of almost faultless private life and character. Time had evidently but added to his lustre in the estimate of Southron and Northerner alike, and his unexampled magnanimity was recognized and acknowledged by all.”

A year before this first statue of Gen. Grant in the present national capital was unveiled, a bronze equestrian statue of the General was unveiled in the first national capital, Philadelphia. It was erected in Fairmount Park by the Fairmount Park Art Association, and was unveiled on the 77th anniversary of Gen. Grant's birth by his granddaughter, Rosemary Sartoris. The statue is the joint production of two sculptors, Daniel C. French and Edward C. Potter. A handsome souvenir volume, giving an account of the ceremonies, was issued a year later, its appearance having been delayed by the destruction of a printing establishment by fire.

Not long ago Myron B. Vorce (p. 611) saved the life of a fellow employe of the City of Cleveland by unusual presence of mind, and at the risk of his own life.

The address of Jane A. (Grant) Sherwood (1556,471) is now Route 3, Penn Yan, N. Y.

Irving D. Fitch (1103,6481) has removed to S. Coventry.

Chas. J. C. Grant (1556,4233) has removed to Chicago, and is in charge of the office of the Pacific Mutual Insurance Co., 608 Marquette Bldg.

Wm. A., husband of Lucile H. T. (Foster) Erving (1142,125,32), is secretary of the Hartford County Mutual Fire Insurance Co.

William H. Grant (1554,020,31) has removed to Seattle, Wash.

Ida (Hale) Segura (1103,355,02) sailed for Italy last November with her daughter; they expect to be absent two years.

Willis C. Grant (1211,165,00) is president and secretary, and Lewis C. Grant (1211,1654) is vice-president and manager of the Grant Steel Fence Co. of Willoughby, O.

Nathan T. Bulkley (1143,4833) is a member of the board of education of Danbury.

Jane E. (Brown) Howard (1103,370,00) and her mother, Lucy A. (Grant) Brown, have removed to Ogdensburg, N. Y.; her husband, Richard L. Howard, died in Aurora, Ill., in 1898.

Rev. LeRoy Grant (1143,3054) is stationed at Pillar Pt., N. Y., this year.

Arthur L. Northrup (1103,649,21) has secured a position on the eastern division of the N. Y. C. and H. R. R., with headquarters at Albany, N. Y.; C. E. Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute 1900.

Mabel C. Grant (1142,123,310) is a student at Wesleyan University.

Henry B. Colburn (1163,5643) is with the Bradstreet Co.

Geo. E. Grant (1163,500,13) is a dealer in asbestos goods.

Wm. L. Grant (1162,4282) is shipping clerk with the Nairn Linoleum Co. of Kearney, N. J.

The editor has received from Mary (Grant) Cramer (1104,0035), who is travelling with her son in Great Britain and France, some interesting souvenirs of Castle Grant, Grantown, Scotland.

Clara M. (Meacham) Morse (1142,303,13) had the misfortune to lose a satchel containing $3,000 worth of jewelry while on her way to her summer home at Bayshore, N. Y.

Sidney A. Grant (1106,1057) has invented and is manufacturing a medicated corn file.

Aaron G. Grant (1103,385,05), Lathrop C. Grant (1554,023,22), and Mrs. Arthur H. Grant (1554,023,01) have been attending the summer school of the University of Chicago.

Two copies of the GRANT FAMILY HISTORY, very slightly damaged, will be sold for $6.00 each, with the regular discount to subscribers to the MAGAZINE.

Persons who pay for the insertion of half-tones may secure extra copies of the MAGAZINE at five cents each, if ordered in advance; other subscribers may order extra copies in advance at fifteen cents each, and a few copies of this issue will be sold at that price; the price of previous issues is 35 cents each.

Appropos of the present disturbance in China the following story, which recently appeared in the Colorado Springs Gazette, may prove interesting: "It seems that centuries ago the Loochoo Islands, now called the Ryu Kyu Islands, belonged to Japan. About 150 years ago China sent out a force strong enough to take and hold these islands. About 1872 or 1873 Japan quietly fitted out an expedition which went down and recovered possession of these islands, since which time they have remained a part of the Japanese empire. In 1876 or 1877, when Gen. Grant took his trip around the world, he visited China first, and the Chinese Government not only entertained him royally, but detailed the incidents connected with the Loochoo Islands matter to him, and requested him to act as arbitrator in this island dispute, then quite warm between the Pekin and Tokio governments. When Gen. Grant and suite reached Japan, the Mikado's government and people spared no means or expense in their efforts to outdo China in demonstrations of respect for Gen. Grant, whom the Japanese people, both high and low, have always considered the 'Dai Tori' (great man) of America. Their warships manned yards and gave him the full imperial salute. They assigned the En-ryo-kan Palace with an army of officials, soldiers, servants, horses and carriages, for the service of Gen. Grant and his suite. They decorated the great city of Tokio as it had never before been decorated. They held old-style tournaments of knights in ancient armor, showing severe tests of horsemanship with sword and spear, and exhibitions of falconry, all of which were witnessed by the Mikado and Gen. Grant from the imperial box and by hundreds of thousands of people. After every effort had been exhausted to honor the general in Tokio, Gen. Grant was invited to visit the shrines of 'Toshogu' (the post-obitum title of Iyeyas, the great lawgiver of Japan). These shrines are located at Nikko, 105 miles northwest from Sendai Gate of Tokio, which at that time (before railways were built) were reached by the Nikko-kaido, a wide, nearly straight avenue between Crytomeria cedar trees, standing about thirty feet apart on each side of the roadway. From the foot of each of these trees a long, straight bamboo pole leaned halfway across the roadway, where its upper end was crossed by the upper end of a similar pole resting at the foot of a tree on the opposite side of the roadway, and at the point where the two poles crossed each other they were tied together, and from the upper ends of each pair of poles American and Japanese flags were flying, and below the point where the poles were tied together Japanese lanterns were suspended, each lantern being decorated with the Japanese and the American flag. During the ten nights that Gen. Grant remained at Nikko, every one of these lanterns along the entire 105 miles was kept lighted, and the avenue kept clean, smooth and damp. As he returned to Tokio by this avenue, along which are many populous villages, the demonstrations of respect were continuous, not by noisy yelling, as we do it, but by the deferential bow and low murmured salutation usual in Japan. Upon his return to Tokio, Gen. Grant told us that he was more deeply impressed by the honors paid him in Japan than by those of any other country he had visited during his trip around the world. While at Nikko it is supposed that the Japanese high officials fully discussed their side of the Loochoo Island dispute with China; at any rate, Gen. Grant, as I understand the matter, decided in favor of Japan, intimating that the incident was already closed by possession acquired through war, the court of last resort, leaving nothing open to arbitrate."

THE GRANT FAMILY HISTORY

will soon be out of print and not to be had for love or money.

ITS 592 octavo pages contain the records of nearly 8,000 members of our Family. A large number of these are descendants in female lines, and so bear other names than Grant; but their ancestry is given as carefully as though they bore the family name. It is indexed very completely, and contains a town and city directory of living members. There are 32 pages of fine illustrations, including old autographs, pictures of old homesteads and prominent members of the Family, etc.

Before it is too late send your order to Arthur H. Grant, Montclair, N. J. The book will be sent express prepaid on receipt of price, which includes the GRANT FAMILY MAGAZINE to date; if you are a subscriber to the Magazine a discount of fifteen cents per number will be allowed you.

Price: Cloth (rough or trimmed edges), $7.00; Full Morocco (full gill). $10.00.

When calling please ask for Mr. Grant.

ISABELLA GRANT (DOW) MEREDITH (1142,122,13).

“Capt Oliver Grant Departed this life Tuesday 22d may 1798 at twelve o’Clock at night in the 68th year of his age & was Interred thirsday 24th of may. Was Born July 13th, 1729. Text 25th Mathew, 10th Verse.”

Copies of this notice in quaint and precise script were sent to each family of the nearest kin,—brothers, sisters, and grandchildren. These carefully pinned to the family records in the various family Bibles, have drifted, in the course of time, into the writer’s possession, and seem to indicate not only one clan custom, but traits of fealty and reverence, in the way these faded, time-yellowed scraps have been preserved.

This Capt. Oliver (11421) married Borodel Billings, great-granddaughter of Capt. George Denison and Lady Anne Borodel. His second son, Dr. Miner Grant, who served as a surgeon in “Washington’s Army,” is doubtless the Dr. Grant mentioned in a recent romance of the Revolution, as caring for the wounded after the battle of Breed’s Hill. Dr. Grant never lived in Stafford, but at one time made his home at Willington Hill. Desiring to retire from practice, and finding it impossible to do so among his old clientage, he removed eventually to Ashford. In person he was tall, stately, and dignified, with so marked a resemblance to the Father of his Country that it was a common saying in the family, “we need no portrait of him, for any good picture of Washington is an excellent likeness of him.” Though he lived to 1828, he never adopted the new and unpicturesque fashions in raiment, but was always seen in a ribbon-bound queue, knee breeches, and buckled shoes, which, no doubt, added to his commanding appearance. He won the much sought belle and beauty Eunice, daughter of Judge Thomas Swift of Swifttown, (Mt. Hope ?), a gentle, blue-eyed woman with a lovely smile, and a loving heart. Her arrival on a visit to her children was a gala-day delight to all the little ones, whose lives knew no greater joy. Fair, placid, tender, she felt none of the glooms and terrors of the faith she professed, but only its hope and promise. When she lay close upon her departure on the great journey, she opened her lovely blue eyes which dwelt seraphically on a vision invisible to those about her, exclaimed rapturously, "O! how beautiful!" and, smiling, fell asleep. Of their eight children, six early in this century, became dwellers in Stafford Street.

"The Street" is immortalized in the Diary of John Adams, who in 1771 came to the Stafford Mineral Springs for the benefit of his health, and lodged at Green's Tavern, at the lower end of the highway where it merges into roads running in other directions. He wrote: "The place where I now sit in the chamber of Green's house, has the command of a great view, and stands on very high land. Here is a spacious road laid out very wide, of great length and quite straight, which lies right before me now, with the meeting house in the middle of it, more than half a mile off." Nothing remains of the tavern where John Adams abode, or of the meeting house he saw, which must then have been old past repair, as it was abandoned in 1775 for a new one built at the far north end of the Street, to be in its turn deserted in 1839 for a handsome edifice of the familiar Greek temple order of architecture so beloved of New England, more centrally located. Famous taverns guarded each end of the Street, which was a portion of the Boston post-road, and resounded morning and evening with the cheery echoes of the horn, warning the landlord of whichever hostelry was the "baiting place" for the nonce to make ready for hungry guests, and provide relays of horses.

This home of our ancestors has picturesque environments. In the hollow below its southern dip lies "The Pool," whose medicinal waters the Indians lingered to drink on their way from their winter quarters by the seashore to "The Village" where their summer wigwams stood and they cultivated their fields of maize. "The Pool" became in time the Mineral Springs, and was a fashionable health and summer resort for half a century. Over the northern crest the Street dwindles into a country road leading to the "New Furnace," now known as Staffordville. In the lowland to the west lies the Old Furnace or "The Hollow," and eastward stretch away rough, stony New England pastures, to that place of mystery and dread to the childish imagination, the "Cedar Swamp," where unnameable dangers were supposed to lurk.

The first Grant to settle in the Street was Miner, eldest son of Dr. Miner Grant. He purchased the store of Dr. Willard, (a picture of which is given in "Stafford Illustrated,") and did business there as a merchant from 1800 to his death in 1850. He was an ardent supporter of the Congregational church, and locally prominent and influential in its affairs. The history of this last church in the Street, which was the idol of his heart, is to a large extent, the history of Miner Grant. To it for years came the dwellers of the outlying factory villages and farms, bravely bearing the more than a Sabbath day's journey over the bleak and "break-neck" hills. When at last the increasing population of the adjacent settlements created a demand for gospel privileges nearer at hand, and action was taken to move the church to Staffordville where a majority of its supporters lived, Miner, with true Grant tenacity, sought to protect the Street from such devastation. Possibly he foresaw the ruin to that locality that would follow such a change. Strenuously opposing it, he canvassed the whole region in all kinds of weather to influence the people to his views; and it is said that through such exposure, in an inclement season, he contracted the illness which ended his days. He did not live long to enjoy his victory; the church was not moved, but its members drifted to nearer sanctuaries, it fell into disuse, and was finally torn down. Its fine granite steps and base were donated to the new church at Stafford Springs, its bell to Willington, and its timbers doubtless made cheer for many a domestic hearth while passing into ashes and oblivion. With the closing of this church began the decadence of the Street.

On a gentle swell of ground, and quite centrally, stands "the old Grant Store," owned by Miner for fifty years, a quaint and ancient gambrel-roofed structure, now leaning sadly towards decay, vacant and desolate since the decease of its last owner, Clark H. Grant (1142, 1233). Before its doors were finally closed on the dust and silence of emptiness, its rooms and garrets were ransacked and found to contain a strange hoard of old time treasure, the forgotten accumulations of generations.

Miner married Eleanor Blodget, Nov. 9th, 1803, and for a time they lived in the store, the "counting-room" and other portions of which were fitted to receive them until their future abode was ready. This was a large, imposing mansion, shaded by a row of fine maple trees, and seemed to partake somewhat of the stern severity of its awe-inspiring owner. Miner inherited the Washington cast of features. He is photographed on an infant memory as on Sundays he walked up the church aisle, tall, dignified, in a blue swallow-tailed coat with gilt buttons, buff waistcoat, drab trousers and a resplendent gold fob chain with its bunch of seals. His married life of forty-seven years was one long honey-moon. All that was gentle and kindly in his nature was strongly drawn out by his domestic ties. Otherwise his character savored overmuch of the English squire and elder brother. He was rather an autocrat as to the walks and ways of his brothers and sisters and their children, being not only adviser-general, but self-elected dictator whose ukase, as in the case of the church, was not always fortunate in the result. The brothers and sisters were prone to yield to "what Miner said," but the younger generation murmured, and the neighbors, not being born under a squirearchy, though apt to submit, perhaps from a sense of favors received, still entertained some resentful heart-burnings when the edict was confounded by the event. Long before I knew the meaning of the "half-way covenant," I learned that "Uncle Miner's" wife had taken it, and associated it with some physical ill of a lingering but fatal nature. Every autumn this couple took a long, leisurely tour to Vermont, driving in their own chaise, and "Aunt Eleanor" is remembered not only for her fair face and kindly ways, but as having, from one of these jaunts, brought the first white climbing rose to the Street. One might be remembered by far less gracious deeds. His nephew Clark, being left fatherless at a tender age, was brought up as a son by Miner, inherited his estate, and lived in the old home until his death in 1892. A few years later, his family removed from the Street, but the estate, I believe, is still owned by a Grant

Not far north of the store stands the large mansion built by Hon. Wheelock Phelps, which became the home of Dr. John Grant (1142, 125) on his marriage with Mrs. Fanny Ladd in 1817. He lived only ten years, but four children were born to him there, and it remained a Grant domicile until his widow's death. His memorable trait was his extreme fondness for his children, it being a daily event to see him driving his gig, with all four crowded in between his arms and knees. His grandson, John Foster and his children, are now the only representatives of the Grant family remaining in the Street.

On the corner where the road turns to the Hollow is the one-time parsonage, for some years the home of Lucinda Grant, (Aunt Porter). She was tall, well formed, the Washington type becoming rather hard-featured when diverted to feminine uses, but softened by her kindly blue eyes and friendly social ways. She was intellectually the superior of her brothers, and delightful company. It was said of her with awe, and as not wholly complimentary in an epoch when the charming "female" was delicate, prone to swoon at nothing, and to be semi-invalid was thought most refined and desirable, that she had a man's powers of reasoning. She paid dearly for the gift when at the time of a great awakening and revival of religion she was deeply stirred in spirit. There were dogmas presented to her which those terrible reasoning powers of her's could not accept. She walked the house day and night, in agony of mind; Miner was sent for, and priest and neighbors shared her watches, laboring with her. At last, when mental and physical exhaustion might presumably have set in, she yielded, and there was great rejoicing on all sides.

Near by, for a few years, lived a widowed sister, Eunice Howe, with her two daughters. Dr. Miner Grant's third son Elisha and his family also lived for a few years in the Street, occupying one of the houses built by Major John Phelps for his children. It still stands below the hill not far from "Ginger Brook," an old weather-worn structure, with boarded up doors and broken windows, on the verge of collapse. Not so many years ago it was a well-to-do red house of inviting aspect, with trim borders of ragged pinks and sweet-williams edging the path to its front door.

Major Phelps, owner of the Old Furnace (iron smelting works), and a man of mark in that region, was the second husband of Mrs. Peleg Sanford, whose daughter Lucy became the wife of Billings Grant (1142, 122). Opposite the store, far back from the highway and shaded by graceful elms, stands the house built by Dr. Willard, which Billings bought about 1812, and which he extensively altered and renovated. In this home came to Billings, with the varied joys and successes of life, an unusual portion of its tragedy. Many a funeral train wended from its doors, the last being that of his son John. On a leaf of his family record is inscribed: "John Miner Grant was drowned September 11th, 1839, in the Old Furnace Pond, early in the morning while attempting to swim to the shore with a Duck which he had just shot, it was supposed he was taken with a Cramp suddenly, he was aged 23 Years 9 months and 16 days." The new church had just been finished, and the last time the bell sounded from the old belfry it tolled for John Grant; the last time the old church was used was for his funeral service.

Shortly afterward Billings retired from business, sold his house, and moved to Ellington. For over thirty years he was the partner of his brother Miner in the Street store and a branch at the New Furnace. He was regarded as a man of strict uprightness and integrity. He was very social, appreciative of humor, and extremely fond of music and of flowers. The garden in Ellington is a thing to cherish in memory, with its well kept paths, its decorum of borders, its sunny, sweet-scented quiet, where the flowers seemed to love to live. They had a peculiar effect of being aristocratic and reserved, yet gently affable, as queens might be, and one felt in high and stately company among those gracious lilies, regal roses, delicate pride-of-the-meadows, graceful rose-acacias and all the pinks, irises and other delightful blooms. As for the music—well, when one's grandfather comes home daily from his round of morning calls to preside over one's practising (scales, too!) and when one is simply hungering to get away to such an enchanted spot as that garden, an ideal nook in which to revel in fairy lore, why, it does seem as if the love of music may be indulged to the exclusion of "the fit and beautiful."

Mrs. Lucy Grant was once described to the writer as being "as lovely in face and as sweet in manner as a rose." She was, perhaps, the only resident in the Street who ever owned a slave. According to a family custom, on her tenth birthday she received from her father a gold watch and a negress to be her own special attendant. She was much attached to "Dinah," who died at the age of nineteen, and cared for her tenderly in her last years. Bred an Episcopalian, she took her first two infants to her old home, New Haven, to be christened. Later she joined the church in the Street, and became a very devout member. It was her custom to spend the birthday of each of her children in solitude and prayer. Being of a gentle, timid nature, it would seem that a sunnier clime and a kindlier creed should have been hers. The cold gloom of Calvinistic teaching and the long bleak winters of those dreary uplands were a combination that might well crush a tender spirit. She was a true Lady Bountiful, indeed "unco" generous, having been known to take new garments off her own children to endue beggar waifs.

Their eldest daughter, Julia, who married Dr. Dow, had all her mother's beauty of face and loveliness of character, with a gracious nature, and a brilliant and liberal intellect. She was devotedly loved by all who knew her. Dr. Dow was not only a skillful surgeon, but an accomplished musician, playing on several instruments, and always "leading the choir." During his professional rides over these hills and dales he noted in their seasons the beautiful flora of the woodlands, filled his gig with the rare orchids and wild flowers, and had many a fine tree transplanted to adorn his home in the Street. He moved to Ellington, but soon took his family to a new home in Milwaukee, Wis.

None of the other children of Billings settled in the Street. His second daughter, Harriet Swift Crane, lived at Stafford Springs forty-five years; and two of his granddaughters, Kate Grant Bliss and Fanny (Bliss) Brown, are now the only representatives of his line in Stafford. Their only brother Alfred met his death in the same waters in which his uncle John was drowned.

In this old home of a branch of "Clan K" not one bearing the name of Grant remains, though many a tombstone inscribed with it may be found in the burial-ground on the hill.

The ancient glory of the Street has long since passed away. Of the spacious, rambling houses, built for families constructed on the colonial scale, once scattered along its length, few are left. Its four churches, the pretty school-house with its picturesque belfry, all are gone; and long rows of capacious red and gray barns that clustered around the vanished homesteads, have long fallen to dust. A few forlorn, gnarled apple trees alone mark where once were thrifty orchards and hospitable door-yards bright with beds of bachelor's buttons, spicy marigolds, and aromatic lad's love. The homes of man and the works of his hands have disappeared, yet there on the breezy uplands the Street still lies, basking in the sunshine, gay in August with acres of wild red lilies, hedged with thickets of huckleberries, tangled with blackberry vines, odorous with the scents of pennyroyal and sweet fern, and always with that subtle fragrance which belongs to youth and its tender memories.

Grant Family Association.

There are now 329 members. Of these K, although the largest clan, claims but 39, while L, the third clan in size, has furnished but 19. The Stonington branches have certainly done much less than their share to sustain the Association.

Arthur H. Grant (1554,023,01) is the fourth life member. As soon as six more have paid their life membership fees, a handsomely engraved certificate suitable for framing will be issued to all life members. Who will be the fifth?

The biennial dues of many of the original members are payable this month. When remitting why not save money by taking out a life membership, which takes the place of all dues?

The first reunion of the Connecticut Valley Branch was held at Lake Compounce, near Bristol, on Sept. 11, and was attended by about 125 members of the Family, chiefly members of Clans A, F and Q. The spot selected is one of the most beautiful imaginable, and the picnic was in every respect a marked success. After the delicious repast, which testified to the culinary skill of New England, Ralph M. Grant (Q) took the floor and introduced in succession the speakers of the day—Arthur H. Grant (W) of Montclair, N. J., John A. Collins (Q), of South Windsor, Francis E. Grant (T) of New York City, Roswell Grant (E) of East Windsor Hill, and Frank Grant (F) of Westfield, Mass. Roland D. Grant (F) of Waterloo, N. H., was present, but was prevented by illness from speaking.

The rest of the day was spent in climbing, boating, renewing old acquaintances and forming new ones. The committee elected for the ensuing year is Frank Grant (A) of Rockville, Samuel E. Hurlbut (A) of Manchester, Jane E. (Thrall) Watkins (F) of South Manchester, Bessie M. (Collins) Bill (Q) and Agnes E. (Talcott) Grant (A) of Hartford.

Items.

The next number will be devoted to Clans N, P, Q and T, or as many of them as there is room for. The space available will depend upon whether the subscribers hold the editor to the promise made in the prospectus of an index in this number. To us it seems premature, and unless the subscribers object the index will be postponed until such time as it seems to be required. Items, anecdotes, traditions and portraits should be in the editor's hands not later than November 10.

Articles like those on pages 584, 643 and 665 are desired from all branches of the Family.

John F., husband of Laura (Colman) Hill (p. 621), has been elected Governor of Maine.

Rev. Roland D. Grant (1120,3053) is so much in love with the Pacific Coast that, although he had intended to devote his time exclusively to lecturing, he could not resist the temptation to take one more pastorate there before abandoning the ministry, and has accordingly gone to Vancouver, B. C., having accepted a call to the First Baptist Church of that city.

Frances (Wheeler) Wilcox (1143,6950) has lately returned from an extended tour in Egypt and Palestine.

Henry C. Burrows (1143,343,06) has entered the University of Vermont.

Wm. H., husband of Harriet Sexton (Carter) Powell (1211,104,52) has been elected to a fellowship in Cornell University.

GRANT HOMESTEAD FOR SALE.

The D. Waterbury farm, situated on the East Branch of the Delaware River about  $2\frac{1}{2}$  miles from the Margaretville Post Office. Desirable property both as an artistic summer home, with abundant shade, and as a profitable dairy farm keeping twenty-five cows. About 350 acres in all, well watered—including a valuable timber lot, containing hemlock, basswood and hardwood, (timber lot will be sold separately if desired). The farm also includes about fifty acres of river flat first-class. Both the new creamery at Dunraven, and the milk station at Arkville are easy of access. From artistic standpoint, this place contains some of the finest bits of scenery in the picturesque Margaretville valley. The house is probably the oldest house standing intact in Delaware county, having been built by John Grant (11436) in or before 1799. It was the original center of the town of Middletown. The Stone School house nearby gives opportunities for school, Sunday school and occasional preaching services. Call on or address

The Song of Damaëta.‡

DANIEL WATERBURY (1143,693).

I love the early flowers of Spring,
 When first they pierce the forest loam;
 Sweet messages from heaven they bring;
 I bear them home.

When Summer sun and swaying tree
 Paint dryads dressed in brown and chrome
 At play upon the leaf-strewn lea,
 It cheers my home.

When Autumn tints the forest leaves,
 And kisses ripe the purple plum,
 The luscious fruits and golden sheaves
 I carry home.

When Winter comes with rest and cheer
 We deck with holly boughs each room;
 The happiest time of all the year
 In our dear home.

When morning gilds the eastern sky
 The lark springs toward the heavenly dome,
 Sings as she flies,—and so do I
 When going home.

When burdened by the heat of day
 I see my weary dear ones come,
 I haste to meet them on the way
 And lead them home.

The plains of Persia may be grand,
 Beyond the Adriatic's foam;
 But give to me my native land;
 I love my home.

I ask not for the lofty towers
 And palaces of haughty Rome;
 Give me the cot among the flowers,
 My own dear home.

Then tell me not of fairer skies;
 I do not care from here to roam;
 Here I, at last, would close mine eyes
 In my sweet home.

CHORUS.

I love the mountains and the hill,
 The rugged rock and rippling rill,
 The balmy bank where blue-bells bloom,
 But best of all I love my home.

THE GRANT FAMILY HISTORY

will soon be out of print and not to be had for love or money.

ITS 592 octavo pages contain the records of nearly 8,000 members of our Family. A large number of these are descendants in female lines, and so bear other names than Grant; but their ancestry is given as carefully as though they bore the family name. It is indexed very completely, and contains a town and city directory of living members. There are 32 pages of fine illustrations, including old autographs, pictures of old homesteads and prominent members of the Family, etc.

Before it is too late send your order to Arthur H. Grant, Montclair, N. J. The book will be sent express prepaid on receipt of price, which includes the GRANT FAMILY MAGAZINE to date; if you are a subscriber to the Magazine a discount of fifteen cents per number will be allowed you.

Price: Cloth (rough or trimmed edges), $7.00; Full Morocco (full gilt), $10.00.

E. BERKSHIRE, VERMONT.

We owe you a lasting debt of gratitude for compiling the record of our family.

—J. L. GRANT.

---

FOWLerville, MICHIGAN.

I thank you for your painstaking efforts to give us a correct history of the family.

—ELISHA W. GRANT.

---

WASHINGTON, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

An admirable and helpful record of the Grant Family of which every member should be justly proud.

—ELEANOR GRANT BAILEY.

CHARLESTOWN, MASSACHUSETTS.

I think it is wonderful—the systematic way in which the book is gotten up from beginning to end.

—ELLEN A. WARDNER.

---

BURLINGTON, VERMONT.

It is something that will grow in value to all, even to those who are now apparently indifferent.

—JENNIE M. ROYCE.

SUSQUEHANNA, PENNSYLVANIA.

Have enjoyed the History intensely; find very many acquaintances and friends mentioned there whom I little thought had the same ancestor as myself.—C. R. TELFORD.

---

BROOKLYN, NEW YORK.

You deserve great credit and much praise for this immense piece of work you have carried through so successfully and made so interesting to us all.—SARA M. LUDLAM.

---

MOORHEAD, MINNESOTA.

We are very much pleased with the Grant History. The work seems to have been so thoroughly done, and it is so conveniently arranged for ready reference.

—JENNIE GRANT PELTON.

BUFFALO, NEW YORK.

Allow me to congratulate you upon the completion of your labors in such an exhaustive manner, and upon their presentation in such an attractive style.

—ROBERT W. DAY.

HOUSTON, TEXAS.

While I do not suppose father has written you as to his appreciation of the work, yet he does appreciate it, and frequently had it down from the shelves to read me some portion of it that pertained to those that he knew or knew of. I do not know of anything that I could have given him out of which he would have obtained so much enjoyment and satisfaction.

—M. A. GRANT.

ADDITIONAL FACTS ABOUT PERSONS RECORDED IN THE GRANT FAMILY HISTORY.

Reuben Grant (11624) b. a. 1750; served all through the Revolution; he used to tell his grandchildren of the sufferings of the men from cold and hunger, for they were sometimes reduced to a handful of parched corn and potatoes roasted in the ashes of the camp fires; one night what was supposed to be a wolf came in over the lines, but when captured it proved to be a spy in a wolf's skin. On p. 683 is given a picture of the house that he built over a century ago in Lyme, N. H., and which stands to-day with only the addition of the projecting windows; after the death of his son Abdon this house was sold, and he went to live with his son Elihu in N. Y., but on receiving a pension he returned to his daughter-in-law and died in the "Seven Nation House" nearly opposite the church on Lyme Plain; his grave is in the southwest part of the old church-yard, near the main entrance; kind and loving to all, he truly walked with God.

Hannah Grant (1162,40) b. 1778; d. Lyme, N. H., Dec. 30, 1865; her h. d. L., Oct. 18, 1848; res. L.; farmer.+ (p. 676).

Abdon Grant (1162,42) was six feet four inches in height and had great physical strength; on one occasion, when "stumped" for a scuffle with a man who weighed about 200 lbs., he seized him by the collar and threw him several feet by main strength.

Noah Grant (1162,46) before his removal from Lyme, N. H., to Enosburg, Vt., was a farmer and lumberman; while driving logs he frequently walked in the water when it was so cold that his clothes froze. He was a quiet man ordinarily, but on occasion showed that he possessed great nerve; he had built a stone dam, and soon after its completion going early in the morning to examine it his foot slipped on a loose stone at the top, and he was thrown to the bottom, breaking his ankle; as there was no one near to help him, he crawled on his hands and knees half a mile to the nearest house. On another occasion one of the oxen in a six ox team stepped off a steep rock at the side of the road and hung suspended by its neck, the bow holding it to the team; the driver was helpless with fright, but Noah with one mighty blow with his six pound axe severed the bow at the top of the yoke. He was a man of refinement of feeling and deportment, careful of the feelings of others, and thoroughly honest and unselfish.

Martha Grant (1162,424) m. Lyme, N. H., J. H. Smith [d. in Minn. a. 1894; s. of Lyman Smith and Sophrona Davidson]; carpenter.

Lucy P. Grant (1162,427); her h. was a harness maker and carriage trimmer.

Henry S. Grant (1162,463) was in Dakota when last heard from; he is supposed to have lost his life in a flood a. 1880.

ADDITIONAL FACTS ABOUT PERSONS RECORDED IN THE GRANT FAMILY HISTORY.

Benjamin Grant (11634). One cold winter evening, when his wife and little children were alone in the house, four Indians came in and asked for something to eat and to be allowed to warm themselves; after they had eaten they sat down before the fire and sharpened their knives; twice they went out and remained away for some time, but finally returned and lay down before the fire; after a while she heard one get up, and, opening her eyes, saw him standing at the foot of the bed with hands uplifted, praying to the Great Spirit; seeing her awake, he said "no one harm white squaw and papoose; go to sleep; Great Spirit take care you"; in the morning she found that they had set and were watching traps, and that the knives were being sharpened to dress the game, of which a good breakfast was made.—Lucy P. (Grant) Litchfield.

Alice and Phoebe Cary.†

EMMA LOUISE GRANT THOMAS (1163,5612).

Irving somewhere speaks of the house in which Shakespeare was born as "a true nestling-place of genius, which seems to delight in hatching its offspring in by-corners. The same may aptly be said of the quaint old farm-house in Hamilton County, Ohio, where the poet sisters, Alice and Phoebe Cary, spent their early years. A humble country home it was,

" Low and little and black and old,
With children, many as it can hold,
All at the windows open wide,
Head and shoulders clear outside."

Here, far from opportunities for anything more than the most elementary education, the two rare-souled girls grew to womanhood, cherishing aspirations of which their practical-minded neighbors little dreamed.

From their father the sisters inherited, besides sound moral principles and a deep love of nature, a poetic cast of mind and a fondness for reading which even the struggles of a frontier farmer's life had never deadened. The mother, too, must have had a character of exceptional strength and beauty. In the poem above quoted, hers was

" The sovereign sweetness, the gentle grace,
The woman's soul and the angel's face."

She ruled wisely and well her large family of nine sons and daughters, performed all the household duties with only the children's help, and yet found time to read history, biography, politics, moral essays, and works of religious controversy. To her the sisters owed their interest in public affairs, passion for justice, devotion to truth and duty as they saw it, and their sturdy common sense.

The loss of such a mother when the girls were but fifteen and eleven, following closely upon the death of two idolized sisters, one older than Alice, the other younger than Phœbe, cast a gloom over their young lives which is plainly reflected in their early verses. The severest criticism passed upon their first joint volume of poems was that it was "full of graves." Poor girls! how could it have been otherwise? The coming of a grim, uncultured, utilitarian step-mother, who had no sympathy or patience with the dreams of idealists, made life still harder for the sisters. They had received all the education afforded by the little district school, and now work—unceasing household drudgery—was to be their share. Sadly but persistently they toiled on, doing the irksome tasks by day, and studying and writing at night. When candles were denied as too great an extravagance to be wasted on such nonsense, a rag dipped in a saucer of lard lighted them at their chosen work. Poems, some very crude, and some sounding notes of genuine depth and sweetness, gradually found their way into the columns of magazines and newspapers all over the land. Phœbe tells of her joy at seeing for the first time a poem of her own in print—one she had sent, without even Alice's knowledge, to a Boston paper, and which had been copied by a Cincinnati journal before the young writer even knew of its acceptance.

It was not with thought of financial gain that the sisters first wrote, but for the mere joy of expression. Not until 1847, when Dr. Bailey of the "National Era" sent Alice ten dollars as a gratuity after she had contributed several poems, did the thought of earning a living by the pen take definite shape. Then followed regular engagements with that and other periodicals; and in 1847 was published a volume including the poems of both sisters to that date. Alice's work, especially, attracted the notice of a few men eminent in the literary world. Poe praised "Pictures of Memory" as "one of the most musically perfect lyrics in the English language"; and Griswold, Greeley and Whittier commended the sisters in no uncertain terms. It was easier then than now to gain the ear of the public. Singers were not so numerous nor magazines so plentiful that one forgot the poems on their pages as soon as read. People had time to read more slowly and to think more about what they read than we have now in our mad efforts "to keep up with current literature." In later years the sisters realized more keenly than at this time their limitations and how they were handicapped in the race for highest artistic achievement by the lack of the systematic intellectual discipline which a liberal education affords. They always fell below their own standard of excellence; but in the early days hope and enthusiasm added to ignorance gave a courage which emboldened them to risk all and come to New York to seek their fortunes.

In 1850 Alice and Phœbe made a trip east, visiting New York and Boston, whence they went to Amesbury to see Whittier, a visit he has commemorated beautifully in "The Singer:"

- “ Years since (but names to me before),
 Two sisters sought at eve my door,
 Two song-birds wandering from their nest,
 A gray old farm-house in the West.
- “ Timid and young, the elder had E'en then a smile too sweetly sad;
 The crown of pain that all must wear
 Too early pressed her midnight hair.
- * * * * *
- “ She went with morning from my door,
 But left me richer than before.
- “ Years passed; through all the land her name
 A pleasant household word became;
 All felt behind the singer stood
 A sweet and gracious womanhood.
- “ Her life was earnest work, not play;
 Her tired feet climbed a weary way;
 And even through her lightest strain
 We heard an undertone of pain.
- “ Unseen of her, her fair fame grew,
 The good she did she rarely knew,
 Unguessed of her in life the love
 That rained its tears her grave above.”

In the fall of the same year Alice came alone to New York to find a home and greater opportunity for work. It is doubtful whether this bold break in life from the dull Ohio country home to the bustling eastern metropolis would have been made if all had gone smoothly in the one serious love affair of Alice's life; for hers was an essentially feminine soul,—shy, loving, full of tenderness and longings for home, and capable of an unswerving devotion to one central object of affection. She had poured out the whole wealth of her heart's love upon a man whom business interests had brought into her neighborhood—a man much her senior in age and superior in fortune and culture. Naturally he had been strongly drawn toward the one young woman in the vicinity who had congenial tastes, and an engagement resulted. Alas! the pressure of aristocratic family influence proved too strong when he was once away from the sweet, true woman to whom he had plighted his troth. He ceased to write; and finally Alice saw in a newspaper the notice of his marriage to another. This blow, which might have crushed a weaker nature, gave Alice purpose to map out her own road in life and determination to walk it with resolute step. After a few months in New York she sent for Phœbe and their youngest sister Elmina, then but nineteen, to join her. They made a home for themselves from the first, taking two or three rooms up two flights of stairs in an old-fashioned section of the city. To the maintenance of this little home they brought industry, frugality, and sturdy integrity. They would not have more than they could pay for, and they worked with an earnestness of which their subsequent prosperity was only the due reward.

The story of their twenty years of New York life is of great interest, especially to independent self-supporting young women, who, like the Cary sisters have strong domestic instincts, love of home and children, such as most people seem to think can find adequate satisfaction only in marriage. These sisters, whether in their humble flat or in the more comfortable and pretentious house to which they removed a few years later when their finances permitted, made a home in the best and fullest sense of the word. The children of their brothers and sisters were much with them, adding to their joy if also to their care. They lived busy, helpful lives, rich in what makes life best worth living—congenial work and hosts of friends.

The house on Twentieth Street was for many years a favorite gathering place on Sunday evenings for many of the most interesting and distinguished men and women in New York. The sisters were faithful attendants at church Sunday morning, but the evening they gave to their friends, as it was the only one in the week when both sisters could be sure of leisure, and the same was true of most of their friends. Horace Greeley, who had called to see the young poets when on a western trip the year before they left Ohio, remained their constant friend, and was seldom absent from their house on Sunday evening, whether storms kept every one else away or not. Their hospitality was free and unconventional. Costly apparel increased no one's welcome and a shabby coat placed no one at a discount. "All sorts and conditions of men"—editors, actors, publishers, writers, clergymen of diverse creeds, from the Roman Catholic John Jerome Hughes to the "adjective-yet-to-be-discovered Frothingham"—met on friendly grounds and exchanged views on all subjects. Bayard Taylor, Richard Henry Stoddard and his poet wife, Oliver Johnson, Robert Dale Owen, Richard Watson Gilder, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Anna Dickinson, Jennie June, E. P. Whipple, Kate Field, Henry Wilson, T. B. Aldrich and Rev. Drs. Field, Chapin, Stevens and Deems are only some of the names that may be mentioned among the more distinguished of the Cary's guests.

Perhaps neither sister alone could have drawn about her so many varied minds, but the combination was perfect for social success. Alice's ready tact, sympathy and gentleness and Phœbe's scintillating wit made these gatherings occasions ever to be pleasantly remembered by those whose privilege it was to come. Certainly they go far to disprove the assertion of an English writer that "single women can do little to form a circle; they can only adorn one when found."

I must quote here part of Mrs. Ames's account of these gatherings because of the insight it gives of the character of the sisters:—

"They drew about them not only the best but the most genial minds. True men and women equally found in each, companion, counselor, and friend. They met every true woman that came to them with sympathy and tenderness, feeling that they shared with her the toils and sorrows of womanhood. They met every true man as brother, with an open, honest, believing gaze. Intensely interested in all great public questions, loving their country, devoted to it, devoted to everything good and true; alive to everything of interest in politics, religion, literature, and society; the one pensive and tender, the other witty and gay, men of refinement, culture, and heart found in them the most delightful companions. Besides (which was much) no man welcome was afraid to go to their house. Independent in their industry and resources, they asked few favors. They had no 'designs,' even the most harmless, on any living man. Men, the marriageable or unmarried, could visit the Carys without fear or question. The atmosphere of the house was as transparent as sunshine. They loved women, they delighted in the society of agreeable men, and fearlessly said so. The weekly refreshment of the house was its hospitality, its daily habit, labor. I have never known any other woman so systematically and persistently industrious as Alice Cary. Hers was truly the genius of patience. No obstacle ever daunted it, no pain ever stilled it, no weariness ever overcame it, till the last weariness of death."

Those twenty years in New York certainly were full of serious, steady work, especially for Alice, who was always the stronger spirit, and who forced herself to write whether inspiration came freely or not. She, too, was the managing genius of household affairs, taking, in fact, all the burdens of the little family as her share. She was deeply conscientious also in regard to duties outside her home. Though she shrank from public personal participation in reform movements, she was the earnest and sympathetic helper of those actively engaged in efforts for the benefit of mankind. The anti-slavery cause and woman suffrage and temperance reforms had her warm sympathy and the aid of her ready pen. She was the first president of that pioneer woman's club, Sorosis, a post which she accepted with unfeigned reluctance and resigned on account of failing health after a short period.

All too soon the happy, busy life of the Cary household came to a close. The beloved youngest sister, Elmira, who had married a few years after the founding of the New York home, came back there to die in 1862. Alice worked too hard and constantly both before and after this bereavement to do always the best of which she was capable. Poetry, especially, cannot be written satisfactorily to order; and Alice Cary's work suffers in artistic quality from the fact that she was obliged to spend herself too freely for others and to keep up with the demands of an importunate public. Besides writing constantly for Harper's, the Atlantic, and the Riverside magazines, and the New York Ledger, Independent, and Weekly, and irregular contributions to other periodicals, she produced eleven volumes of prose and poetry during this period, while Phoebe published only two volumes of poems. Both sisters left enough uncollected poems to fill two additional volumes. This disparity between the sisters in actual product is the result not so much of a difference in ability as of the compelling will, industry and patience of the elder sister. Alice could scarcely ever be persuaded to take a vacation, but wanted to work on continuously summer and winter. This constant strain resulted in a complete breakdown in 1869. For seventeen months the brave woman battled with disease, then passed to her reward in February, 1871. Phœbe courageously tried to go on with life as she knew Alice would have wished, but the main-spring of action was gone with the life of the sister on whom she had always leaned, and when illness came the ensuing summer she had no power to rally. United in death as in life the sisters sleep in Greenwood Cemetery. Equally applicable to both are Whittier's lines on the death of Alice:—

“ God giveth quietness at last!
The common way that all have passed
She went, with mortal yearnings fond,
To fuller life and love beyond.

“ What to shut eyes hath God revealed?
What hear the ears that death had sealed?
What undreamed beauty, passing show,
Requites the loss of all we know?

“ O silent land to which we move,
Enough if there alone be love;
And mortal need can ne'er outgrow
What it is waiting to bestow!”

The world is forgetting all too soon the literary legacy of the Cary sisters. So many new writers have arisen that our brains whirl amid the multitude of books—good, bad and indifferent—that are thrust constantly upon our attention, till with the Preacher we cry in distress, “Of making many books there is no end.” Of writers in the past who failed to reach the very highest round of fame we have no time to think, though we patiently search through much rubbish of recent production in the hope of discovering what may be destined to prove a classic. Certainly the best of the Cary poems compare most favorably with the magazine poetry of to-day, and, if we but take time to read, we shall find in Alice Cary's prose a freshness and beauty which lapse of time cannot wither. The “Clover-nook Papers” and “Pictures of Country Life” are most worthy of note. Even British critics praised these sketches as having “nothing feeble, nothing vulgar, and, above all, nothing melodramatic.” The same critic also says, “To the analytical subtlety of the French school of romance she has added the purity and idealization of the home affections and home life belonging to the English, giving to both the American richness of color and vigor of outline, and her own individual power and loveliness.”

The poems of both Alice and Phœbe Cary breathe an intense love for nature—from inanimate to human. “An Order for a Picture” by Alice and “The Old Homestead” by Phœbe describe vividly their early home; and scores of others, such as “A Dream of Home,” “Field Sweet-Brier,” and “The Old House” reflect the scenes of their rustic surroundings. Alice's ballads have the genuine old English ring and swing; they are scarcely equalled by any other American poet. Phœbe also excelled in the writing of ballads, many of which were of a pathetic turn. On the other hand, her keen sense of the ridiculous and ready wit made her humorous satires and parodies most delightful. Of the latter “Kate Ketchem,” a parody on the "Maud Muller" of her admired friend, Whittier, is probably one of her best.

In the religious poems of the two sisters we see their inmost selves. They are devout in utterance and helpful in spirit. Phœbe's hymn, "Nearer Home," is deservedly popular among Christians of all names. More melodious and in other ways more beautiful is "Resurgam." "Field Preaching," full of the worship of God in nature, "Reconciled," and "A Woman's Conclusions" breathe that absolute trust in the goodness and wisdom of the Almighty which only loving, believing souls can know. Equally spiritual are Alice's "Hymns" and "Thoughts and Theories," published in 1866. "Life's Mysteries," "My Creed," "One Dust," "The Great Question," and "A Penitent's Plea" are a few of the many that go straight to the reader's heart. Though in later years the sisters were members of Congregational and Methodist churches, it is the Universalist faith in which they were reared that finds fervent and beautiful expression in their poetry:

" Great God we know not what we know
Or what we are, or are to be !
We only trust we cannot go
Through sin's disgrace outside of Thee.

" And trust that though we're driven in
And forced upon thy name to call
At last, by very strength of sin,
Thou wilt have mercy on us all !"

Again we find the same note in—

" Nay, but 'tis not the end:
God were not God if such a thing could be ;
If not in time, then in eternity
There must be room for penitence to mend
Life's broken chance, else noise of wars
Would unmake Heaven."

Broader than any man made creed of established sect these sisters felt the love of God to be. The deepest desire of their hearts was to see human nature lifted from misery to happiness, from sin to holiness; and to do their share toward that end they spent their time and talents. Trite, yet true in this case, is the old saying that "their lives were their best poems." The "sweet and gracious womanhood" behind the singers was surely greater than any poems could be. Yet thirty years ago the poems of the Cary sisters were almost as familiar to the reading public as Longfellow's and Whittier's; for, like theirs, they were of a character to appeal to the hearts of everyday men and women, helping them to live more truly and nobly. We cannot measure the influence of the life and writings of these women in moulding the character of their generation of readers; but we can all join in applying to them the words of Longfellow in his tribute to another:—

" Honor to them whose words and deeds
Thus help us in our daily needs,
And by their overflow
Raise us from what is low."

Notice.

With this number all subscriptions that began with the first number expire. Copies of the next number will not be sent to or printed for those who do not renew their subscriptions before it goes to press. Therefore if you do not want to lose a number, send a dollar for the next year by return mail, before you have a chance to forget it. Do not send checks.

Remember that the 300th anniversary and reunion comes this year, and that the Magazine will keep you posted on all the plans and arrangements for it. Besides continuing the departments which have been begun this year, it is the intention of the editor to print a series of articles on the ancestry of the several clans in other lines than the Grant line.

Grant Family Association.

Of the 332 members Clan N claims three and Clan P ten. N has the unenviable distinction of having fewer members than any other clan, although by no means the smallest.

Items.

The next number will be devoted to Clans Q, T, W, and Y, or as many of them as there is room for. Items, anecdotes, traditions and portraits should be in the editor's hands not later than January 12.

In bringing this first volume to a close the editor extends his thanks to all who have sent in items; this cooperation is thoroughly appreciated, although it cannot usually be acknowledged in detail.

The interesting items pertaining to Clan N are due to Mrs. Litchfield and Joseph L. Grant, while credit should be given Mrs. Holt for most of the new names and for the photograph of the homestead.

If you want to make a Christmas present that will be appreciated and that will increase in value as the years go by, give a copy of the GRANT FAMILY HISTORY or a subscription to the MAGAZINE. This is probably the last time that the HISTORY will be offered at the present price (see third page of cover).

The veteran genealogist, Dr. Henry R. Stiles, is about to publish a History of Ancient Wethersfield in two volumes, uniform in style with his History of Ancient Windsor, provided a sufficient subscription can be obtained. If you want to assist in assuring the publication of this important work and to secure a copy for yourself, send your subscription to him (Box 1810, N. Y. City), as the edition will be strictly limited to the actual subscription list. The towns of Rocky Hill, Newington, and Glastonbury (to 1693) are included in the work. Price $18.00, payable upon notification of completion.

Write to your representative in congress for a copy of the proceedings at the unveiling of the statue of Gen. Grant in the capitol.

THE GRANT FAMILY HISTORY

will soon be out of print and not to be had for love or money.

ITS 592 octavo pages contain the records of nearly 8,000 members of our Family. A large number of these are descendants in female lines, and so bear other names than Grant; but their ancestry is given as carefully as though they bore the family name. It is indexed very completely, and contains a town and city directory of living members. There are 32 pages of fine illustrations, including old autographs, pictures of old homesteads and prominent members of the Family, etc.

Before it is too late send your order to Arthur H. Grant, Montclair, N. J. The book will be sent express prepaid on receipt of price, which includes the GRANT FAMILY MAGAZINE to date; if you are a subscriber to the Magazine a discount of fifteen cents per number will be allowed you.

Price: Cloth (rough or trimmed edges), $7.00; Full Morocco (full gilt), $10.00.

When calling please ask for Mr. Grant.

THE GRANT FAMILY MAGAZINE.

Editorial.

This year is a notable one in the annals of our Family, for it marks the completion of the third century since the birth of our ancestor Matthew Grant, who was one of the first in all Europe to recognize that the true value of the discovery of Columbus did not consist in the treasures of the Aztecs and Incas, or in fabled fountains of youth, but rather in a boundless extent of unoccupied land, where brave and determined men could establish homes and rear families free from the crushing weight of political, ecclesiastical and social tyranny. This three hundredth year should see completed the ten thousand dollar memorial fund, which, according to the recommendations of the committee adopted at the reunion, would result within five years in the erection of a monument to Matthew Grant, in the careful investigation of his (and our) ancestry in Great Britain, and would then go on through the centuries providing a college education for his descendants. Every member of the Family should feel it a privilege to contribute to this fund in accordance with their means. Subscriptions may be sent to the Treasurer, Frank Grant, Westfield, Mass.; and, beginning with this issue, they will be noted in the MAGAZINE.

There are other things that should be done this year, especially as it will be the last year in which this MAGAZINE will be published. Pictures should be published of all the remaining century-old homesteads of the Family. The following list includes all that have come within the knowledge of the editor; but there are undoubtedly others, which should be reported at once by those who know of them:

Aaron Grant (11033), at East Windsor Hill,
Gideon Grant (11034 or 1103,40), at Wapping (?).
Alexander Grant (11037), at Westfield, Mass., †
Epaphras Grant (1103,37), at East Windsor Hill,
Ebenezer Grant (11066), in Tolland,
Daniel Grant (1142,19), in North Stonington,
Joshua Grant (1142,30), in North Stonington,
Noah Grant (11432), in Preston, †
John Grant (11436), near Margaretville, N. Y.,
John Grant (15501), at East Poultney, Vt.,
Levi Grant (15584), at Grantville. †

If members of the family will furnish photographs of these, they will be printed without charge. The same offer applies to autographs of those who lived before the Revolution; photographs may be sent, or the originals will be carefully returned if sent.

Then we should preserve by printing in the MAGAZINE the pictures of members of the Family, the living as well as the dead, the young as well as the old; all will be of profound interest to future generations. As we yearn for pictures of our ancestors, so will our descendants in future centuries long in vain for ours when our ordinary photographs shall have faded away. In order to bring this within the means of all, arrangements have been made to print half-tone engravings for one dollar each. These will be two and a half square inches in size, and will be printed twelve on a page, without regard to clans. The photographs will be destroyed in the process unless fifty cents extra is sent to insure their preservation. We should have enough of these to show what the Family looks like now that it is three hundred years old.

†Photographs of these are promised or on hand, but that of the one at Preston is poor.

Now don't wait for special requests, but send in these autographs and photographs promptly. But above all send in traditions, anecdotes, and personal descriptions of your ancestors, so that they may not go down as mere names to your posterity; and do it before it is too late.

All material for clans T, W, Y and Z should be sent to the editor at the earliest possible date.

Items.

After years of investigation, Judge Richard A. Wheeler, of Stonington, has published a History of the Town of Stonington, (with a genealogical register). All descendants of Stonington families, including Clans A, B, C, D, E, K and L, will find much of value in its 760 pages. Only 500 copies were printed, and the price is $5.00.

One dollar will be paid to the first person who sends in the address of a living descendant of any of the lost Grants on page 658.

Note the increase in the price of the GRANT FAMILY HISTORY; see third page of cover.

If you do not receive your copy of the MAGAZINE when it is due, notify the publisher promptly; otherwise the loss will not be made good. If in the past year the Magazines have not been received in good order, please inform the publisher, so that the trouble may be remedied in future.

Credit for Clan Q items is due especially to Ralph M. Grant, and for Clan T items to Reed A. Barnes, Mrs. Telford, Henry G. Newell, and to Mrs. Chauncey L. Grant, Jr., who should also have been given credit for discovering the lost branch of Clan K in Ithaca, N. Y.

Robt. E. Grant (1106,691) was recently unanimously elected commander of Kit Carson Post, No. 2, G. A. R., the largest post in the Department of the Potomac. His war record is as follows: taken prisoner at Chancellorsville and incarcerated in Libby Prison until exchanged; shot through both lungs at Honey Hill, Grahamsville, S. C., while in command of Co. B. 157th Regt. N. Y. V. I.

Caroline A. Grant (1106,690) is spending the winter at Galen Hall, Atlantic City, N. J.

Harold C. Grant (1106,6912) is an employé in the District Government Engineer's Office.

Grant Family Association.

Of the 342 members Clan Q has furnished 36, but Clan T only 10, much fewer than its proportion.

The following subscriptions to the Memorial Fund have been paid:

Electa S. (Grant) Lawton (1554,023,10)..... $5 00

Arthur H. Grant (1554,023,01)..... 50 00

February 27 will be the 300th anniversary of the birth of Priscilla, wife of Matthew Grant. It should be observed by her descendants everywhere. In cities or districts where there are many members of the Family meetings should be held, even if only a dozen people come together informally in a private house. Such meetings could organize themselves into branches of the G. F. A. and arrange for annual local reunions. But some one must take the initiative; who are the ones who will do it, for example, in Boston, Chicago, Cleveland, Erie, Minneapolis, Rochester, Stonington, Syracuse and Washington?

The third annual reunion of the Metropolitan Branch will be held on February 27 at the restaurant of J. B. Guttin, 58 W. 25 St., New York, where two floors have been reserved for the use of the Family. The guests will gather as near six o'clock as possible, so that introductions may be completed before dinner is served at seven. The evening will be given up chiefly to social purposes. Tickets, $1.00 each, should be secured in advance from F. E. Grant, 23 W. 42 St.; but members of the Family from other parts of the country will be cordially welcomed even if they have not been able to secure tickets, so if you happen to be in town drop in.

The Executive Committee has passed the following resolutions:

“That we hereby request and authorize the Secretary of the Grant Family Association of America to purchase and forward to the Secretary of the Clan Grant Society in London, England, also the Clan Grant Society of Glasgow, Scotland, each a copy of the Genealogy of the Grant Family in America, with the compliments of the Grant Family Association in America.

That as soon as there are ten life memberships paid in the Secretary-Treasurer be authorized to prepare and issue an engraved certificate of membership, suitable for framing, at a cost not to exceed fifty dollars.”

In prompt response to this last resolution Frank Grant (1120,3072), Martha Grant (1120,3073), Mary Grant (1120,3074), Georgeanna M. (Vogell) Kingsley (1136,5143), and Kate D. Grant (1108,212,30) became life members. One more is needed to make the resolution effective. Will you be that one?

Clan Q.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION ABOUT PERSONS RECORDED IN THE GRANT FAMILY HISTORY.

Isaac Grant (12114). His house was torn down last September; the muskets that he and his brother William carried in the Revolution are now owned by his grandson John A. Collins, who also owns a little pitcher which Isaac had in his hand when a workman asked him how deep he was to dig the cellar; "so deep," said Isaac, "that I can drink cider from this pitcher and not hit the joist overhead;" on this pitcher are the following lines, which show what a farmer of the Revolution thought of his state:

A little health,
 A little wealth,
 A little house and freedom,
 And at the end
 A little friend
 And little cause to need him.

Let the wealthy and great
 Rule in splendor and state;
 I envy them not, I declare it.
 I eat my own lamb,
 My own chickens and ham;
 I shear my own fleece, and I wear it;
 I have lawns, I have bowers,
 I have fruits, I have flowers;
 The lark is my morning alarmer.
 So, jolly boys, now
 Here's God speed the plough,
 Long life and success to the farmer.

In those days farmer's made as well as used tools, and Mr. Collins has the bit and iron-bound shovel made from planks by Isaac, together with the chest of tools with which he built his house.

Gustavus Grant (1211, 10). His family Bible was found by Hester J. (Grant) Stoughton in the old homestead, but it gives only the dates of birth of his chil.; but the pension records show that he m. E. Windsor, Oct. 6, 1799, Phebe Goodale (an excellent ambrotype of whom is owned by Mabel H. Hosmer); the testimony of his descendants to the fact that his only other w. was Lucina Grant is so overwhelming that it can prob. be safely assumed that the date of her death was 1798 instead of 1789; he was a private in Col. Erastus Wolcott's regt. 1776, in Col. Ely's 1777, and Col. Roger Eno's 1778-9; his homestead (see p. 697) was built as early as 1793 on land purchased in 1770 by his father, probably by Gustavus or his father; at Gustavus' death it passed to his s. Frank, and at his death to his s. Lucius, who now owns it. His grandson, Geo. Hosmer, who lived with him in 1832, writes of him as follows: "Gustavus Grant, as I remember him, was a large man; he was very erect and had a strong manly face; he claimed to be and was recognized by his children and grandchildren as the head of the family to a great degree; he seldom showed emotion about anything, rarely laughed or smiled; he received with great indifference the news that he had been granted a pension; as a business man he was very successful, acquiring a large amount of property, consisting of houses and lands in the vicinity of his home; in politics he was a Whig; he attended the Congregational church until 1832, when the Methodist church was built, and then attended it, as did most of the Grants in the neighborhood; on Sunday there was usually an informal gathering of them at the old homestead, during the noon hour between services, to exchange greetings and perhaps get a piece of grandma's pie or gingerbread; he gave up inn-keeping about 1830." In its day this inn saw many strange guests, for the Indians who stopped there on their travels, disdaining beds, would sleep on the floor of the bar-room.

Clan T.

ADDITIONAL FACTS ABOUT PERSONS RECORDED IN THE GRANT FAMILY HISTORY.

Josiah Grant (1550); his will drawn 5 yrs. bef. his d. was declared informal by the court when presented for probate; whereupon his heirs, chil. and grandchil., united in a declaration that his will was their will, and that they would abide by it in spite of its informality; and upon receipt of this the court ordered the estate to be divided in accordance with the will. This is in marked contrast with the present treatment of wills, especially as by this action some of the heirs surrendered portions which the law would have given them. + (p. 705).

John Grant (15501) rem. to Orwell, Pa., 1804-5; capt. (It is probable that Oratio, Orente, James and Zachariah Grant, who were charter members of Union Lodge No. 108, F. and A. M., in 1807, were his sons or grandsons; they all lived in or nr. O., but no record can be found of them after 1819).

Maria Grant (1550,340) b. Catskill, N. Y.; d. Owego, N. Y.; m. Feb. 22, 1817, B. Drake [b. in Pa., June 9, 1792; d. Ithaca, N. Y., Feb. 4, 1835]. + (p. 708).

Frances Roxana Johnson (1550,3411) m. Ithaca, N. Y., John Kerr Chamberlayne [b. Guilford, N. Y., Nov. 1822; d. San Diego, Cal., Oct. 5, 1893; s. of Joel Chamberlayne and Elinor Kerr]; physician. + (p. 714).

Maria L. Grant (1550,3442) d. s. p. N. Y. C.

Louis B. Grant (1550,342,11) was promoted in 1898 through corporal to 2d lieut. and detailed as acting commissary.

Charles S. Grant (1550,342,14) m. Iowa City, Iowa, Apr. 18, 1900, Marie Wilhelmina Slater, dau. of John W. Slater; was mustered in for the Spanish War as asst. hospital steward of the 50th Regt. N. G. Iowa, and during 1898 was promoted through hospital steward and asst. surgeon to surgeon major.

THE GRANT FAMILY HISTORY

will soon be out of print and not to be had for love or money.

ITS 592 octavo pages contain the records of nearly 8,000 members of our Family. A large number of these are descendants in female lines, and so bear other names than Grant; but their ancestry is given as carefully as though they bore the family name. It is indexed very completely, and contains a town and city directory of living members. There are 32 pages of fine illustrations, including old autographs, pictures of old homesteads and prominent members of the Family, etc.

Before it is too late send your order to Arthur H. Grant, Montclair, N. J. The book will be sent express prepaid on receipt of price, which includes the GRANT FAMILY MAGAZINE to date; if you are a subscriber to the Magazine a discount of fifteen cents per number will be allowed you.

Price: Cloth (rough or trimmed edges), $7.25; Full Morocco (full gilt), $10.00.

When calling please ask for Mr. Grant.

THE GRANT FAMILY HISTORY.

A few unsolicited Testimonials from Subscribers.

---

ROCKVILLE, CONNECTICUT.

It is the most complete work of the kind I have ever seen.—FRANK GRANT.

---

BRANCHPORT, NEW YORK.

I would not take fifty dollars for my book if I could not get another.—J. A. G. SHERWOOD.

---

LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY.

The Grant Family book is admirable. I do not see how it could be improved.

—H. B. GRANT.

---

E. BERKSHIRE, VERMONT.

We owe you a lasting debt of gratitude for compiling the record of our family.

—J. L. GRANT.

---

FOWLerville, MICHIGAN.

I thank you for your painstaking efforts to give us a correct history of the family.

—ELISHA W. GRANT.

---

WASHINGTON, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

An admirable and helpful record of the Grant Family of which every member should be justly proud.

—ELEANOR GRANT BAILEY.

CHARLESTOWN, MASSACHUSETTS.

I think it is wonderful—the systematic way in which the book is gotten up from beginning to end.

—ELLEN A. WARDNER.

---

BURLINGTON, VERMONT.

It is something that will grow in value to all, even to those who are now apparently indifferent.

—JENNIE M. ROYCE.

SUSQUEHANNA, PENNSYLVANIA.

Have enjoyed the History intensely; find very many acquaintances and friends mentioned there whom I little thought had the same ancestor as myself.—C. R. TELFORD.

---

BROOKLYN, NEW YORK.

You deserve great credit and much praise for this immense piece of work you have carried through so successfully and made so interesting to us all.—SARA M. LUDLAM.

---

MOORHEAD, MINNESOTA.

We are very much pleased with the Grant History. The work seems to have been so thoroughly done, and it is so conveniently arranged for ready reference.

—JENNIE GRANT PELTON.

BUFFALO, NEW YORK.

Allow me to congratulate you upon the completion of your labors in such an exhaustive manner, and upon their presentation in such an attractive style.

—ROBERT W. DAY.

HOUSTON, TEXAS.

While I do not suppose father has written you as to his appreciation of the work, yet he does appreciate it, and frequently had it down from the shelves to read me some portion of it that pertained to those that he knew or knew of. I do not know of anything that I could have given him out of which he would have obtained so much enjoyment and satisfaction.

—M. A. GRANT.

ADDITIONAL FACTS.†

Orin Grant (1550,70—p. 705) d. unm. Orwell, Pa.

Clarissa Grant (1550,73—p. 705); her h. built at Windham, Pa., the stone inn known as the Stone Jug, afterwards kept by her dau. Clarissa.

Josiah W. Grant (1550,75—p. 705) was, like his father, generous and chivalric; his homestead was the home of his dau. Lysena and her son, but is now owned by J. M. Spalding.

Josiah N. Grant (1550,710—p. 706) rem. 1837 to Ill., returning to Pa. a. 1839; rem. 1843 by prairie schooner to a farm a. 4 m. N. of Milledgeville, Ill., where all his chil. but the eldest were b., and where they attended their first school in a log school house which he built on his farm on the bank of Otter Creek; rem. in the same way to Hamilton Co., Iowa, 1860, and to Marshall Co., Iowa, 1862. In his youth he was inclined to be a little wild and enjoyed a practical joke; a neighbor made his bed in an old ox-cart in his orchard, threatening to shoot any one he saw there after nightfall; during the night "Nel" (as he was called) and another boy crawled up to the cart, found the man asleep, took his gun and stood it up against a tree, removed the blocking from the wheels and started the cart down hill toward an old rail fence, through which it dashed, turning bottom side up in the road; thereafter the man slept at home. He was a man of integrity and honor, and his word was never disputed; if a family was in need he was the first to respond with a load of wood or a sack of flour; see p. 724.

John Russell (1550,735—p. 707) d. in y. manhood.

Lysena A. Grant (1550,750—p. 707) d. 1892; her h. d. 1892; a remarkable woman, brilliant, versatile, and full of social sunshine and helpfulness; he was for several years a traveling salesman in the South; elder in Pres. ch.; a prominent man.

Cyprian A. Grant (1550,7100—p. 708); when his father moved to Marshall Co., Iowa, the family was almost penniless, but by breaking prairie and running a thresher he managed to buy a farm and build a house for the family, which he gave to his parents in 1875, when he rem. to Manning, Iowa, there being then but three houses in the tp.; in 1876 he built an addition to his house in which the first school in the tp. was started and remained several years; rem. 1882 to Sheldon, Iowa, and to Rolfe, Iowa, 1886, where with two others he organized the Exchange, afterward the State Savings Bank, of which he was cashier 1896-1900, and his w. director 7 yrs.; in his possession are the silver masonic jewel, home-spun linen masonic apron, and razor of Josiah Grant (15507—p. 715); see p. 724.

Henry N. Grant (1550,7102—p. 709) b. May 24, 1846; m. 1865, C. D. Pierson, who was b. Nov. 16, 1847; served in Civil War 1863-5.

Simeon Grant (1550,7103—p. 709) b. Feb. 24, 1848; m. Marshall Co., Iowa, Sep. 1, 1867, M. A. Pierson [b. in Ill., July 28, 1851; dau. of Elijah Pierson and Sophia Ackley]; real estate agent, form. farmer. + (p. 714).

†Many returns received too late for insertion here will be printed in the October number.

Aurelia Grant (1550,7105—p. 709) m. Marshall Co., —, Oct. 7, 1869, Elisha Baxter [b. Bradford Co., Pa., July 4, 1846; s. of Jas. Baxter]. + (p. 715).

James J. Newell (1550,7500—p. 712) res. O.; taught several yrs.; county surveyor 9 yrs.; held town offices; ch. treas. and trustee; had an admirable reputation in his profession and not an enemy in the world.

ADDITIONAL FACTS ABOUT PERSONS RECORDED IN THE GRANT FAMILY HISTORY.

Increase Grant (1554); his 1st w. was b. Aug. 3, 1712; his 2d w. m. (1) Oct. 29, 1741, J. Strong (b. Feb. 6, 1704; d. Sep. 5, 1776; s. of Jacob Strong and Abigail Bissell).

Hannah C. Grant (1554,021) d. June 7, 1804.

Rachel Lovina Grant (1554,022) d. Jan. 10, 1830.

Asahel Grant (1554,023) was b. in a house that is still standing and was built by his father soon after his rem. to N. Y. on the top of Grant's Hill a. a mile and a half N. of Hanover Green on the stage road to Utica; he settled in Black Walnut, Braintrim Tp., Wyo. Co., Pa. (correction); where his w. d. and his s. Edwin (see p. 727) was b.; in his boyhood he was noted for his reckless daring, and this quality was not lost in his later years, as is illustrated by the following anecdote related by Mrs. A. M. Peck in the Waterville, N. Y., Times:

“He was frequently summoned to attend the emir, but was never quite sure of returning, for although the letters sent would be friendly in tone the proverbial treachery of his race was to be taken into account and his hostility to Mar Shimon, a bishop who was Dr. Grant's co-worker, and most influential among the tribes, was great. On one occasion having been sent for to the castle of Julamerk, he found the bridge over the Zab gone, and crossed on frail poles resting on rocks twenty feet above the water; his attendant then led him out of the usual road along a solitary foot-path to the very summit of the mountain, a device to avoid any ambush that might have been laid for him. He entered the castle just at dusk and was led through iron-bound doors and long winding passages; to a vaulted room, assigned him by the chief. He was faint and exhausted and threw himself on a rug in one corner, questioning himself why he was brought to such a remote part of the castle, to an apartment he had never seen on his previous visits, nor could he exclude from his mind the bishop's warning. He was, however, soon conducted to a spacious room spread with rich Persian carpets and ornamented with a profusion of arms and porcelain. The emir sat on a yellow satin divan bolstered with pillows of the same material. Ten or twelve of his chief officers, an uncle, his cousin Suleiman Bey were with him; his greeting was most cordial, the emir expressing his appreciation and gratitude. The doctor was detained for some days, and embraced the opportunity to plead with the emir in behalf of the Nestorians.”

THE REUNION AT CLEVELAND, OHIO, FEBRUARY 27, 1901

He took with him on his journeys his son Henry (see p. 727) when he was but three years old, thereby winning the confidence of the people, who said "he trusts us or he would not bring his son," hence he was called his father's savior. This son remembers that on one occasion his father suddenly dismounted, and moving cautiously, partially lifted a flat stone that covered the mouth of a cave, and showed him a number of robbers lying fast asleep. In Duffield's "English Hymns" the hymn beginning

" On the mountain-top appearing, Lo! the sacred herald stands," is characterized as typical of Dr. Grant, whose favorite it was. The portrait on p. 727 is reproduced from a daguerreotype taken in 1841, by S. F. B. Morse.

Grant Family Association.

Of the 345 Members Clan W has furnished 12.

Francis E. Grant (1550,3443) has become a life member, thereby completing the number necessary to secure the engraved certificates.

Thirty members of the Family in Northern Ohio held a very successful reunion and dinner on February 27 in the Colonial Hotel, Cleveland, the committee in charge being Edward R. Griswold (Z), Chas. M. Vorce (B), and Ella (Grant) Wilson (K). Mrs. Wilson, who has no superior as a floral artist, furnished the decorations, which made the room a bower of verdure and floral beauty. In the center of the table on a miniature ocean floated a model of the "Mary and John." Eva C. Murray (Q) furnished exquisite hand-painted menu cards, and with her father brightened the evening with music. Mrs. Wilson gave the address of welcome, Mr. Vorce spoke on "The Ancestry of the Grants," and Judge Griswold gave an account of the first reunion at Windsor. Many letters and telegrams of regret were read, congratulatory telegrams were exchanged with the Metropolitan Branch, and flash-light photographs of the assemblage were taken. Mr. Vorce was empowered to appoint a committee to perfect the organization and arrange for future meetings. (See p. 728.)

The Metropolitan Branch held its third annual reunion and dinner on Feb. 27 in N. Y. City. It was the most successful and enjoyable of them all, some sixty persons representing nine clans being present. The evening was devoted almost entirely to social pleasures, which were enhanced by the fact that the members are getting better acquainted with each other. Francis E. Grant (T) presided in his usual facetious manner, and addresses were delivered by Rev. Wm. N. Richie (W) on "Grant Persistence," and Eli P. Ellsworth (*) on "Old Windsor." Brief remarks were also made by Mary F. (Grant) Cramer (B) and Chas. C. Taintor (*). The committee in charge, Francis E. Grant (T), Agnes (Grant) Rowlands (W), and Geo. G. Shrive (L), were elected to serve another year. The guests from outside the district were Sidney A. Grant (C), of Springfield, Mass., Martha and Mary Grant (F) of Westfield, Mass., Charlotte L. Johnson (T), of Ithaca, N. Y., and Ellen A. (Griswold) Phillips (Z), of Winsted. Two hundred and fifty-five dollars were subscribed toward the Matthew Grant Memorial Fund.

Notice.

The next number will be devoted to Clans Y and Z. Items, anecdotes, traditions and portraits should be in the hands of the editor not later than May 11. A few copies of this and the February number may be had for fifteen cents apiece. Members of Clan T should avail themselves of this opportunity promptly.

THE GRANT FAMILY HISTORY

will soon be out of print and not to be had for love or money.

ITS 592 octavo pages contain the records of nearly 8,000 members of our Family. A large number of these are descendants in female lines, and so bear other names than Grant; but their ancestry is given as carefully as though they bore the family name. It is indexed very completely, and contains a town and city directory of living members. There are 32 pages of fine illustrations, including old autographs, pictures of old homesteads and prominent members of the Family, etc.

Before it is too late send your order to Arthur H. Grant, Montclair, N. J. The book will be sent express prepaid on receipt of price, which includes the GRANT FAMILY MAGAZINE to date; if you are a subscriber to the Magazine a discount of fifteen cents per number will be allowed you.

Price: Cloth (rough or trimmed edges), $7.25; Full Morocco (full gilt), $10.00.

THE GRANT FAMILY MAGAZINE.

Grant Family Association.

Of the 350 members Clan Y has furnished but 12, much fewer than its proportion, and Clan Z 22, while 28 have come from those who are not in clans.

Mortimer N. Grant (11104,001,16) and Luella E. (Talcott) Clark (1211,104,20) have become life members.

The following subscriptions to the Memorial Fund have been paid:

Previously acknowledged, . . . . .	$55.00
Emerett (Grant) Miner (1120,2325), . . . . .	5.00

The Secretary-Treasurer has on hand a few of the badges of the first reunion, which will be sold to charter members only for 25 cents apiece; he has also clan buttons of all clans except B, D, N and P, which will be sold to any members of the G. F. A. for 10 cents each. These will be valuable souvenirs of the first reunion.

THE SECOND REUNION

of the descendants of Matthew Grant will be held in Hartford on October 26-28, in honor of the tri-centenary anniversary of the birth of Matthew Grant.

The Reunion Committee held its first meeting on May 18 at the home of Hon. Ralph M. Grant, and requested the four eastern officers of the G. F. A. (Messrs. Roswell, Francis E., Frank, and Arthur H. Grant) to act as an advisory committee. The appointment of sub-committees was entrusted to the chairman. Hon. W. D. Grant, of Willimantic, has charge of securing special rates from the railroads. Hon. D. Ellsworth Phelps, of Windsor, will take charge of local excursions to places of historic interest, to which it is proposed to devote a considerable part of October 28. The general business meeting, including addresses and other exercises will be held on Saturday, and a banquet on Monday evening. It has also been proposed to arrange for an exhibition of Family relics, of which many are known to exist both in the vicinity of Windsor and elsewhere. Permanent headquarters will be secured at some suitable place in Hartford, where members may gather, the reception committee be found, general information obtained, and the exhibition of relics probably given. Other features have been discussed, and full announcements will be sent out as early as possible. The committee will welcome suggestions from any member of the Family, and these should be sent to the chairman, Hon. R. M. Grant, East Windsor Hill.

This shows that the committee means to do all in its power to make the reunion successful. What can the members of the Family do to help? In the first place, if you are not a member of the G. F. A., send $1.00 or $10.00 to Frank Grant, Westfield, Mass., for a membership or life membership, for money will be needed to carry out these plans. Make your plans to be present with your children, if possible, and correspond with those you would like to meet there urging them to come. Notify the committee of any interesting Family relics that you are willing to bring or send. If you are a minister, arrange for an exchange with some Hartford minister, so that Matthew Grant may speak through the lips of his descendants in every pulpit in Hartford on his 300th birthday, October 27. We must help the committee to make this THE BEST FAMILY REUNION EVER HELD.

Homesteads.

The homestead of Alexander Grant (p. 747) on Main Street was purchased by him probably soon after he settled in Westfield from John Moseley (probably 11026); it was also the home of his son Erastus, and grandson Charles, by whom it was sold; it is now occupied by the heirs of Ruel O. White.

The homestead of Levi Grant (p. 747) was built by him in 1792, and on his death passed to his son Harvey, who sold it in 1834 to Garry C. Grant (1558,34); on his death it was bought by Riley A. Grant (1558,39), who has lived there ever since; to his kindness and that of Harvey F. Grant (1558,403) this picture is due.

ADDITIONAL FACTS ABOUT PERSONS RECORDED IN THE GRANT FAMILY HISTORY.

Elihu Grant (15563) enlisted as a private in the regt. of Col. Andrew Ward, Jr., 1776; became a Capt. and was detailed to guard Gov. Franklin; his bro. Isaac, who was in the same squad, used often to say: "Confound Ben. Franklin; watching his son kept us out of many a fight and me a sergeant."+ (p. 735).

Charles Grant (1556,44); the nearest trading point to his home was Lyons, Mich., 20 m. distant; one Nov. night as he was returning from there on foot with a roll of cotton factory it began to snow and became so dark that he could not follow the path; he wrapped the cloth about him, and spent the night in a hollow log; wild animals were numerous, wolves devouring some of his stock, and a bear helping itself to one of the hogs from the pen near the house. His picture taken at the age of 90 is given on p. 733.

George M. Grant (1556,408) d. Aug. 13, 1899, at Cooperstown, N. Y., where he had res. since 1841; a member of Otsego Lodge, F. and A. M.; he was firm, true, loyal, industrious and courteous, a man of high character and fine taste, to whose worth his fellow citizens testified by suspending business during the funeral.

Eliza Grant (1556,420) d. Grand Rapids, Mich.

Elihu Grant (1556,441) bur. in Oak Grove Cemetery, Fall River, Mass.; after leaving the U. S. Mil. Acad., where he was a roommate of the future general U. S. Grant, he made a whaling voyage, taught at Westport, Mass., and went into business in New Bedford, Mass., before entering the ministry; he recruited Co. C, 3d Regt. Mass. V. I., and was a member of the G. A. R. post of N.

Grace Grant (11656) d. S. Windsor; her h. was a private in Col. Gay's Conn. Regt. 1776, in Col. Erastus Wolcott's 1776-7, and in Capt. Cone's Co. 1779; the following sketch is furnished by her great-grandson, Chas. C. Taintor:

Being the seventh daughter, she was frequently called "the doctor." As she was of a helpful disposition, she naturally went where she could be of service. She was quick witted, had good judgment, and was self-reliant, so that she became skillful in the care of the sick. After her death it was said of her by a lifelong friend "May be being the seventh gal did not help her any, but she sartainly was the best person in sickness I ever see, she had the garret full of 'arbs' and she knew how to use them." She was healthy and strong, enjoyed all kind of exercise, and would sometimes indulge in what were considered hazardous feats. She was well formed, of good complexion, and at one time it was said that she was the handsomest woman in Windsor. She attended the "deestric" school which was about a mile and a half from her home, most of the way through a woods. About a third of the way was a deserted log cabin which the children called the "Nigger cabin." One day when Grace was about thirteen years old, she "missed in her sums," and had to stay and do them after school. It was in the fall or early winter when the days were short, and it was nearly dark when she left the school house. Having "chores" to do at home, she started off at a good pace but without fear. She heard the howling of wolves, but as that was not an unusual sound thought but little of it. Soon, however, she became conscious that a pack of wolves were following her. She ran with all her might but the wolves gained on her rapidly, they were but little behind her when she reached the cabin. The door was wide open and she rushed in, but so close were the wolves to her that she had no time to close the door. She was thoroughly familiar with the place, and though it was pitch dark she ran straight to the ladder, climbed it, and pulled it up after her. She was none too quick, for as she was drawing it up, she felt them snapping at the lower end. The wolves in their rage began to run around the lower part of the cabin, growling and snarling at one another, and running against the door they shut themselves in. Grace knew that now she had nothing to do but to wait until some one should come to her aid. Her sisters had reported to the family what had detained her at the school. As she did not appear in due time, the family became alarmed, and the men folks of the neighborhood started in search of her. As they neared the cabin they heard the noise of the imprisoned wolves, and thought that Grace must have been devoured by them; but she, hearing the men's voices, called out to them "I am safe in the loft." There was but one window in the cabin and that was now closed by a board. This the men removed so as to let their lanterns down inside the cabin; then by making a hole on the opposite side of the room they could see to shoot the wolves. It was nearly morning before Grace was released. When asked how she felt while locked up with the wolves, she said "I was afraid the folks at home would worry about me." This was characteristic of her: always to think of others first.

Returning home after the expiration of his first term of enlistment, Asahel Green commenced to build a house on a part of the Green farm. The frames of the houses of that day were held together by wooden pins being driven into places prepared for them, and it was the custom for the bride elect to drive the first pin in the frame of the house that was being built for her, this being the way of announcing her engagement. In fact a young man would sometimes "pop the question" by asking a girl to drive the first pin in his house. The day for raising the frame of a building or "raising day" as it was called, was a great day at that time. The men gathered from far and near, for the raising of the heavy timber then used required stout arms. It was a day not only of hard work but also of frolic and fun, for after the frame had been raised, bread and cheese, nutcakes and cider were passed around, the girls being invited for the purpose, and the day usually ended with a ball game. Early on the morning of raising day Grace Grant appeared on the scene and drove the first pin in the frame of the house that was to be her home for more than seventy years.† Before the completion of the house

† This house, a picture of which is given on p. 748, is now owned by her great-grandson, Walter Green, being still held under the original deed given by George III. It is on the W. side of the Ellington road, a mile and a half N. E. of the Wapping ch. The picture is due to the kindness of Chas. C. Taintor.

Asahel again entered the army. On his return it was talked among the young people that Grace and Asahel were to "jump the broomstick." This meant that the marriage was to be solemnized quietly in the presence of a few friends. This was an unpopular thing to do, for the young people expected a wedding which would give them a chance for a jolly time; and in retaliation it was said that Asahel Green was too stingy to pay the fiddler's fee. Asahel Green was of a religious turn of mind, and did not believe in any kind of worldly amusement. Dancing, especially, was his aversion. "It is a device of the Devil to draw people from the Lord" he used to say. It was also true that he would rather save for the proverbial rainy day than spend his means on frivolity. In all of this Grace fully sympathized with him. There was in that region a custom known as "stealing the bride." If the young people were not invited to witness the marriage, an attempt would be made to steal the bride from her husband, take her a distance to some place previously arranged, hire a fiddler, and spend the time until morning in dancing. Then they returned the bride to her husband, wishing them much joy. The arrangement for Grace's wedding was that Asahel would work on his farm most of the day, then ride to Grace's home at Ellington, where the ceremony was to be performed at early candle-light. After this, Grace was to ride on a pillion behind her husband to their new home. While the ceremony was being performed two farm wagons approached the house from opposite directions, passed each other, and stopped opposite the house. Three young men hid themselves near the door. The ceremony over, Asahel went to the barn to saddle his horse and arrange the pillion. Grace went out and stepped on the horse block, preparatory to mounting the horse, when she was seized by the three men, who muffled her attempts to cry out, and placed her in one of the wagons; both wagons then started off at a rapid pace in opposite directions. Asahel, hearing the noise occasioned by these movements and apprehending their cause, mounted his horse and pursued one of the wagons, soon overtaking it; but it was not the one containing his captured bride. He then rode back to the house to hold council. It was decided that, as the capturing party had so much the start, it was useless to hunt for them, and, as they would either return the bride to her father's house, or send her to her new home in the morning, the thing to do was for Asahel to go to his home and wait events. If she was returned to her father's home then her family would send her to the new home.

The wagon containing the bride was driven to the rendezvous, and preparations were set on foot for a jolly time. Two of the young men were left to guard the captive, and the other was to attend to the general arrangements, while the two wagons were employed in bringing in the young people. As they arrived they would enter the dancing room, express their happiness at meeting Mrs. Green, and ask her why she had not brought her husband to enjoy the festivities of the occasion. In one of the loads was a very popular young woman, of whom there had been some doubt of her being induced to join the company. When her arrival was announced the excitement ran high, and the guards, wishing to greet her, stepped out of the room, shut the door, and at first held it shut, then seeing the slice or fire-shovel by the fireplace, they put this through the handle of the door and left the bride a prisoner in the room. As it was quiet in the adjoining room, Grace pushed against the door, loosening the slice which fell to the floor. She then went out, but closed the door and put the slice back in the handle to make it appear that she was still in the room. Making her way to the door, she slipped out, went behind the wagon, and climbed to the driver's seat; and as the last one was helped to alight she drove off. Being a good horse-woman and knowing the country well, she drove with all speed to her home where she found her husband, who had been waiting less than an hour. The team was hidden where it would not be found by the owner before morning. The next day when the young men who owned the team called for it, they found Mr. Green using it to gather his crops, and they were told that the best thing they could do was to turn in and help for the rest of the day, and by so doing they would be permitted to eat of the first boiled dinner in the new home.

Grace conscientiously practised all the doctrines of the church of which she was a member. No work was to be done between "sun and sun on Sabberday," and the children had to know the catechism. She was a hard worker, and it was said that she had an "amazing knack of filling in time and bringing things to pass; she could even spin yarn and rock the cradle at the same time." She was an expert spinner both of woolen yarn and linen thread, and the wheels were always at hand with rolls of flax on them that the moments need not go to waste. After her family had reached the time that they did not need her care, and she felt the infirmities of age coming on, she carded and spun a large amount of yarn, for she said "perhaps the Lord will permit me to use my fingers after my feet have given out, and then I can knit warm mittens for the grandchildren." There are bits of her handiwork still in existence which are carefully treasured as heirlooms. + (p. 749).

THE GRANT FAMILY HISTORY

will soon be out of print and not to be had for love or money.

ITS 592 octavo pages contain the records of nearly 8,000 members of our Family. A large number of these are descendants in female lines, and so bear other names than Grant; but their ancestry is given as carefully as though they bore the family name. It is indexed very completely, and contains a town and city directory of living members. There are 32 pages of fine illustrations, including old autographs, pictures of old homesteads and prominent members of the Family, etc.

Before it is too late send your order to Arthur H. Grant, Montclair, N. J. The book will be sent express prepaid on receipt of price, which includes the GRANT FAMILY MAGAZINE to date; if you are a subscriber to the Magazine a discount of fifteen cents per number will be allowed you.

Price: Cloth (rough or trimmed edges), $7.25; Full Morocco (full gilt), $10.00.

When calling please ask for Mr. Grant.

THE GRANT FAMILY HISTORY

will soon be out of print and not to be had for love or money.

ITS 592 octavo pages contain the records of nearly 8,000 members of our Family. A large number of these are descendants in female lines, and so bear other names than Grant; but their ancestry is given as carefully as though they bore the family name. It is indexed very completely, and contains a town and city directory of living members. There are 32 pages of fine illustrations, including old autographs, pictures of old homesteads and prominent members of the Family, etc.

Before it is too late send your order to Arthur H. Grant, Montclair, N. J. The book will be sent express prepaid on receipt of price, which includes the GRANT FAMILY MAGAZINE to date; if you are a subscriber to the Magazine a discount of fifteen cents per number will be allowed you.

Price: Cloth (rough or trimmed edges), $7.25; Full Morocco (full gilt), $10.00.

When calling please ask for Mr. Grant.

---

ROCKVILLE, CONNECTICUT.

It is the most complete work of the kind I have ever seen.—FRANK GRANT.

---

BRANCHPORT, NEW YORK.

I would not take fifty dollars for my book if I could not get another.—J. A. G. SHERWOOD.

---

LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY.

The Grant Family book is admirable. I do not see how it could be improved.

—H. B. GRANT.

---

E. BERKSHIRE, VERMONT.

We owe you a lasting debt of gratitude for compiling the record of our family.

—J. L. GRANT.

---

FOWLerville, MICHIGAN.

I thank you for your painstaking efforts to give us a correct history of the family.

—ELISHA W. GRANT.

---

WASHINGTON, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

An admirable and helpful record of the Grant Family of which every member should be justly proud.

—ELEANOR GRANT BAILEY.

CHARLESTOWN, MASSACHUSETTS.

I think it is wonderful—the systematic way in which the book is gotten up from beginning to end.

—ELLEN A. WARDNER.

---

BURLINGTON, VERMONT.

It is something that will grow in value to all, even to those who are now apparently indifferent.

—JENNIE M. ROYCE.

SUSQUEHANNA, PENNSYLVANIA.

Have enjoyed the History intensely; find very many acquaintances and friends mentioned there whom I little thought had the same ancestor as myself.—C. R. TELFORD.

---

BROOKLYN, NEW YORK.

You deserve great credit and much praise for this immense piece of work you have carried through so successfully and made so interesting to us all.—SARA M. LUDLAM.

---

MOORHEAD, MINNESOTA.

We are very much pleased with the Grant History. The work seems to have been so thoroughly done, and it is so conveniently arranged for ready reference.

—JENNIE GRANT PELTON.

BUFFALO, NEW YORK.

Allow me to congratulate you upon the completion of your labors in such an exhaustive manner, and upon their presentation in such an attractive style.

—ROBERT W. DAY.

HOUSTON, TEXAS.

While I do not suppose father has written you as to his appreciation of the work, yet he does appreciate it, and frequently had it down from the shelves to read me some portion of it that pertained to those that he knew or knew of. I do not know of anything that I could have given him out of which he would have obtained so much enjoyment and satisfaction.

Homestead.

The homestead of Joshua Grant (p. 769), known as the Orrin Grant place, is on a private road that goes N. from the New London Turnpike a quarter of a mile W. of the main road from Stonington to N. Stonington. It was owned successively by Caleb Grant (1142,307) and Samuel Orrin Grant (1142,3071) by whom it was much altered and modernized. It is now owned by Sarah E. (Grant) Brown (1142,3073), who does not occupy it. The picture is due to the courtesy of Wm. O. Sternberg (1142,302,70) and Mary A. (Hewitt) Billings (1142,1623).

Grant Family Association.

The Tricentenary Reunion promises to eclipse in every way the reunion of 1899. Even from far-off California and Texas members of the Family are coming to attend it. You will regret it, if you don't come too. Make arrangements to meet there the cousins you have not seen for years.

The contributions to the Memorial Fund to date are as follows, by clans: A, $13.50; B, $15; C, $45; D, $5; F, $7; K, $6; L, $4.50; N, $5; Q, $7; T, $8; W, $87; Y, $8; Z, $40; not in clans, $6; total $257. As this represents the contributions of but 66 persons, if the 2900 not yet heard from do their share we may meet on Matthew Grant's 300th birthday without being ashamed of our memorial to him.

The life membership certificate is at last ready. The most noteworthy feature is a series of five half-tone vignettes, including the oldest homestead (that of Samuel, Sr., at East Windsor Hill), and four representative members of the Family, viz.: (beginning at the upper left hand corner) Ulysses S. Grant (1104,0030), President of the United States; Oliver Ellsworth, son of David Ellsworth (1256), Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States; Zilpah P.

Grant (1558,04), the pioneer in the higher education of women; Asahel Grant (1554,023), one of the first medical missionaries. The links that form the border are symbolic of Matthew Grant's career as a surveyor, his compass being reproduced in a vignette at the top, together with his autograph and a book emblematic of his long service as town clerk or recorder.

Items.

The next number of the MAGAZINE will be the last. All items, anecdotes, traditions and portraits must be in the hands of the editor by November 1.

The price of the GRANT FAMILY HISTORY and the two volumes of the MAGAZINE (complete) is now $7.50. On October 26th the price will be raised to $7.75.

Herbert S. Grant (1103,453,16) and Leone T. McDonald (1103,-641,101) should have been given credit in our last issue for valuable contributions to the records of Clans A and B.

Fred M. D. Ingersoll (1143,301,0110) is a clerk in the office of the U. S. Ex. Co., 54 W. 18 St., N. Y. C.; a neighbor in his former home recently left him her entire fortune, amounting to $120,000.

Della M. Ripley (1143,307,44) was valedictorian of the class of 1901 of the Inter-State Univ. of Music.

Rev. Chas. W., husband of Abbie L. (Grant) Wendte (1163,500,10) was one of the two American delegates to the International Unitarian Council in London. He has accepted a call to the pulpit of the Parker Memorial Church of Boston, Mass., and has been elected secretary of the Benevolent Fraternity of Churches.

Willis C. Grant (1211,165,00) is manager of the Grant Cooperage Co. of Ashtabula, O., manufacturers of veneers, hoops, crating and hardwood lumber.

Henry G. Newell (1550,750,02—p. 719) is the author of excellent articles on libraries in the Journal of Education (Mch. 21) and good dirt roads in the N. Y. Tri-Weekly Tribune (Mch. 11 and 27).

Geo. L. I. Dorr (1554,014,61) is with the Sprague Electric Co., Watsessing, N. J.

Edith Grant (1554,023,00) is assistant lecturer in the Woman's Legal Education Society of N. Y. C.

Arthur H. Grant (1554,023,01) is a trustee of the public library of Montclair, N. J.; in 1892-3 he was pres. of the public library of Sioux Falls, S. D.

Douglas G. Scott (1554,035,40) is attending Amherst College.

Deaths.

Rev. Salmon D., husband of Abigail A. (Crane) Jones (1103,3425), at Ocean Grove, N. J., July 29, 1901; buried at Wethersfield.

Fannie J. (Grant) Riblet (1103,3851) in Fort Wayne, Ind., Apr. 16, 1901.

Col. Oliver A., wid. of Rachel E. (Tompkins) Patten (1104,0087), at Deepwater, W. Va., July 3, 1901; buried at Charleston, W. Va.

Lucy A. (Grant) Barrett (1142,1252) at Zumbrota, Minn., Jan. 20, 1901, where she had res. since 1857; a charter member of the Cong. ch. and active in the S. S.; a charming woman.

Sarah E. (Miner) Reynolds (1142,140,30) Apr. 15, 1900.

Elizabeth H. (Grant) Turner (1211,169) in Geneva, O., Feb. 20, 1899.

Mary, wife of Daniel W. Grant (1211,1310), in Hartsgrove, O., Mch. 11, 1900.

Almira R. (Grant) Johnson (1211,1681) in Middlefield, O., Sep. 18, 1900.

Elizabeth L. (Grant) Callendar (1211,131,02) in Hartsgrove, O., Feb. 23, 1900.

Edmund Beach (1554,014) at E. Orange, N. J., Sep. 14, 1901; buried in Greenwood Cemetery, Brooklyn, N. Y.; the oldest member of Clan W, and, with two exceptions, of the Family; a truly religious man.

Minerva L., widow of Hiram P. Grant (1554,039), in Plainfield, N. J., Feb. 3, 1901.

Edward R. Griswold (1558,017) in Cleveland, O., July 5, 1901; he was a dry goods merchant in Massillon, O., and later in Cleveland (Griswold and Taylor); soon after the war the firm failed, and he entered the insurance business; in 1885 he was elected J. P. and has served almost continuously since. He was the first life member of the G. F. A., and all who met him at the first reunion will deeply regret the loss of this admirable representative of the family.

THE GRANT FAMILY HISTORY

will soon be out of print and not to be had for love or money.

ITS 592 octavo pages contain the records of nearly 8,000 members of our Family. A large number of these are descendants in female lines, and so bear other names than Grant; but their ancestry is given as carefully as though they bore the family name. It is indexed very completely, and contains a town and city directory of living members. There are 32 pages of fine illustrations, including old autographs, pictures of old homesteads and prominent members of the Family, etc.

Before it is too late send your order to Arthur H. Grant, Montclair, N. J. The book will be sent express prepaid on receipt of price, which includes the GRANT FAMILY MAGAZINE to date; if you are a subscriber to the Magazine a discount of fifteen cents per number will be allowed you.

Price: Cloth (rough or trimmed edges), $7.25; Full Morocco (full gilt), $10.00.

When calling please ask for Mr. Grant.

Edited and Published by
ARTHUR HASTINGS GRANT
18 The Crescent, Montclair, N.J.

TERMS: $1.00 PER YEAR
Single copies thirty-five cents; extra copies may be ordered in advance at special rates.

Keep in Touch with your Family.

---

If you send $1.00 at once to Frank Grant, Secretary-Treasurer of the Grant Family Association (Incorporated), Westfield, Mass., you will become a member of the Association for two years, you will receive without charge a copy of the handsomely illustrated Report containing all the exercises and addresses at the Tricentennial Reunion, and also without charge the Report of the Reunion to be held in 1903. The payment of $10.00 will make you a member for life, entitled to receive all future reports without charge, as well as the handsome, engraved certificate of life membership, which contains portraits of four of the most distinguished members of the Family. Copies of the Report of the first Reunion (1899), a well illustrated pamphlet of 67 pages, will be sold to members at 25 cents each while the supply holds out. Less than 100 copies each of the Reports of 1899 and 1901 are still unsold.

The Life Membership Certificate

is not only elegant in itself, it is unique. No other family has yet issued such a valuable reminder of family ties. The various features of the design (see description on page 782) recall people, places and performance in which our interest grows with the passing of the years. Every descendant of MATTHEW AND PRISCILLA GRANT has an ancestry to be proud of, one that should spur him to the attainment of his highest ideals. The line of descent, the number of years, carries us back to days antedating those on which most of the popular societies founded on ancestral activities are based.

The Grant Family Association

aims to gather up and preserve the records and traditions of the Family. If you wish to coöperate, ask your elders what they know of your branch of the Family; jot it down now, and so be ready when occasion offers to contribute to family publications in the years to come, to the delight of those who follow you. How many times we hear the remark: "If I had only written down what my father used to tell me!" Join the G. F. A., and get and give in this line. If you have not already done so, write to the Secretary-Treasurer to-day, enclosing $1.00 for biennial, or $10.00 for life, membership fee.

Notices.

Sets of the MAGAZINE will be bound in cloth, uniform with the HISTORY, for subscribers for fifty cents (including return postage) if sent on at once and paid for in advance.

Any whose files are incomplete should order the missing numbers at once, as the entire stock is being sold off.

The half-tone plates used to illustrate the HISTORY and MAGAZINE will be sold for fifty cents each, post-paid. They will come in handy for use in local papers or town histories.

Postface.

In these MAGAZINES have been recorded 1569 descendants of Matthew Grant who did not appear in the HISTORY, making a total registry of 9429. Many others already recorded in the HISTORY have been reëntered in the MAGAZINE under "New Names" for the sake of clearness.

It is a matter for regret that the expense involved prevents reprinting appendixes D and E with all the additional facts gathered since the publication of the HISTORY incorporated in them.

In laying down finally the self-imposed task of publishing the records of our Family, the editor would extend thanks, which are none the less cordial because thus impersonally expressed, to all those who have in various ways assisted in the undertaking. All additional records and items that may be sent to the Grant Family Association will be carefully filed in the archives, and it is not improbable that such of them as relate to members of the Association will be printed in its future Reports.

A. H. G.

One More Chance.

---

As some copies of the GRANT FAMILY HISTORY AND MAGAZINE

Still Remain Unsold

they will be sold without reserve to the highest bidders as follows:

1. Bids will be received up to midnight, March 1, 1902, when the list will be absolutely closed.
2. Payment may be made any time within 30 days after receipt of notice that the bid is successful.
3. Bids will be received for the HISTORY alone only from those who have the MAGAZINE, and for the MAGAZINE alone only from those who have the HISTORY.

You want it;

This is your chance to get it

At your own price.

DON'T BE AFRAID to bid low if you cannot afford to bid high. This will be your last chance, as this sale will doubtless exhaust the supply, and the book will not be reprinted. EVEN A LOW BID MAY BE SUCCESSFUL.

If you already have the complete work

Tell your Cousins

about this opportunity to get it at their own price.

Attend to it to-day.
