Shortly after Mr. Cruden was placed under restraint, it was discovered that a criminal intercourse had subsisted between her and her own brother, by whom she was actually pregnant. About ten or eleven years afterwards, Mr. Cruden then resident in Loudon, was taken by Mr. Crialmers, a Printer of Aberdeen, to the house of a merchant near the Royal Exchange, who, was deemed likely to assist him in his business. The door was opened by the unworthy object of Mr. Cruden's tenderest regards; who, upon leaving Aberdeen, had, unknown to Mr. Cruden, or his friend, there found a refuge far from the scene of her guilt and ruin. Mr. Cruden started back; with the utmost intensity of feeling he grasped the hand of Mr. Cruden's, and exclaimed, "Ab! she has still her fine black eyes!" No inducement could prevail on him to have any communication with the owner of the house, who was a younger brother of the lady. TO THE KING.

SIRE,

THIS CONCORDANCE was begun with a design to promote the study and knowledge of the holy Scriptures, and the method taken therein is deemed by competent judges to be the best towards a complete Concordance that hath hitherto appeared in our language. It is acknowledged to be an useful book to private Christians who search the Scriptures, and to be very necessary for all the Preachers of the Gospel: Therefore to whom can this new Edition be more properly offered than to your Majesty, now in the beginning of your reign, having already manifested a great regard to religion, and an earnest concern for promoting it among your sub-

ALL other books are of little or no importance in comparison of the holy Scriptures, which are a revelation from God, and are given as the only rule of faith and practice. If the kings of Israel were required not only "to read the law of Moses all the days of their life, but also to write out a copy of it with their own hand, that they might learn to fear the Lord their God, and keep all the words of his law;" it may be reasonably expected that Christian Princes should make the glorious Gospel of our LORD and SAVIOUR JESUS CHRIST their daily study, that it may become their constant guide and rule for the government of their people, as well as for their own salvation.

It hath been often observed, that the most effectual way to a general external reformation is "to make Religion a step to preferment, and Irreligion a bar to it;" because example has a more powerful influence over the minds of men than precept, or even than punishment. The early declarations and strong resolutions your Majesty was pleased to make at your coming to the throne, "That you would encourage those who are religious, and discourage those that are otherwise," rejoiced the hearts of all who earnestly desire the revival of vital and practical ediction and to reach the residual to the resi tical religion, and to see your Majesty's subjects a holy and happy people.

True piety has been in all ages accounted the truest honour; for Religion diffuses the greatest glory around a human character, and sweetens and embalms the memory of Princes. A pious Prince, who hath shewn a hearty concern for the eternal happiness of his people, as well as for their present protection, will be remembered with great esteem and honour: for the Scripture says, that "the memory of the just is blessed." When they are spoken of, it is with praise and commendation by all good men. All other accomplishments, without true grace and real religion, cannot make the children of men happy, who must all die and rise again," and appear before the judgment seat of Christ, to receive according to what they "have done in the body, whether

The memory of Hezekiah, the religious King of Judah, is precious: he hath been celebrated in all ages of the Church for his pious zeal in the reformation of his people at the beginning of his reign; for "God honours those that honour him, and they who despise him shall be lightly esteemed." It is said of that pious King, that "he trusted in the Lord God of Israel, so that after him there was none like him among all the Kings of Judah, nor any that were before him: for he clave to the Lord, and departed not from following him, but kept his commandments, which the Lord commanded Moses." Hezekiah, like your Majesty, began his reign in his youth, yet his zeal for the worship of God, and for promoting Religion among his subjects, carried him through the great difficulties of reforming a people, who had so much degenerated into gross idolatry. May the great God be the guide of your life, and direct and prosper you, that it may be said by the present and future ages, that King Groots guy Turn hath been an Harrier to the Parket Lord. GEORGE THE THIRD hath been an HEZEKIAH to our British Israel.

I DOUBT not but your Majesty will pardon my forbearing to enter upon your valuable personal accomplishments: I shall only add that, when it pleased Gop, the sovereign Lord of life and death, to deprive us of the blessing of your Royal Grandfather King George the Second, the Protector of our Religion and Liberties for many years, it, was esteemed a national blessing that Gop had favoured Great Britain with a Prince born and educated among us, who makes the happiness of his people the rule of his government; and without Religion

there can be no real happiness for Prince or People.,

When your Majesty came to the throne, the loyal and affectionate addresses from your subjects in all parts of the British dominions, shewed their great hopes and strong expectations of being happy under your Majesty's government. We of the British nation have reason thankfully to remember the appearances of Divine Providence in the preservation of our Religion and Liberties, particularly in settling and establishing the Protestant Succession, and in disappointing from time to time all the contrivances and attempts of its enemies, whether secret or open; and in your Majesty's coming to the throne with the hearts of all your subjects united to you as the heart of one man.

MAY it please God to bestow his choicest gifts upon your Majesty, upon your Royal Mother the Princess Dowager of Wales, and all the Royal Family, and upon your numerous and powerful People. May you be blessed, and made a real blessing, and may your reign be long and prosperous; and after you have been enabled to serve God faithfully here upon earth, may you reign forever with him in heaven through Jesus Christ. This is the sincere and earnest prayer of him who is, with great humility and profound respect,

May it please your Majesty,

Your MAJESTY's most dutiful,

And most obedient subject and servant,

TO THE QUEEN.

MADAM,

THIS CONCORDANCE, the work of several years, was begun with a design to promote the study of the holy Scriptures; and, in pursuance thereof, is now published with many improvements beyond any book of this bird in the English lengths the control of the control o kind in the English language.

Long before this Work was ready for the press, I designed humbly to offer it to your Majesty, and to beg leave to publish it under your royal protection. Your Majesty's illustrious qualities and example in the great scenes of your valuable life, encourage me humbly to beg your countenance to a well-meant attempt for promoting the knowledge of our holy Religion.

The beauty of your person, and the fine accomplishments of your mind, were so celebrated in your father's court, that there was no Prince in the Empire, who had room for such an alliance, that was not ambitious of gaining a Princess of such noble virtues into his family, either as a Daughter, or as a Consort.

And though the heir to all the dominions of the house of Austria was desirous of your alliance, yet you generously declined the prospect of a Crown that was inconsistent with the enjoyment of your Religion. The great Disposer of all things, however, kept in store a reward for such exalted virtue, and by the secret methods of his wisdom hath brought your Majesty to a Crown, as famous for defending and supporting the Protestant Religion, as it is conspicuous for its glory and splendor; which is such a return of Divine Providence as is to be admired with great thankfulness, though without the least surprise, since He whose kingdom ruleth over all hath declared, that such as honour Him, He will honour.

It was the fame of this heroic constancy that determined his Majesty to desire in marriage a Princess who was now more celebrated for her Christian magnanimity, than for the beauty of her person, which had been so universally admired. We of the British nation have reason to rejoice that such a proposal was made and accepted, and that your Majesty, with regard to these two successive treaties, shewed as much prindence in your compliance with the one, as piety in your refusal of the other. You no sooner arrived at Hanover than you improved the lustre of that court, which was before reckoned among the politest in Europe, and increased the happiness of a people, who were before looked upon as the happinest in the Empire. And you immediately became the darling of the Princess Sophia, a Princess, justly acknowledged to be one of the most accomplished women of the age in which she lived, who was much pleased with the conversation of one, in whom she saw so lively an image of her own youth.

WE daily discover those admirable qualities for which your Majesty was famed in other countries, and rejoice to see them exerted in our Island, where we ourselves are made happy by their influence. We behold the throne of these kingdoms surrounded by your Majesty's royal and numerous Progeny, and hear with pleasure of the great care your Majesty takes to instill early into their minds the principles of Religion, Virtue and Honour.

Your Majesty is possessed of all those talents which make conversation either delightful or improving. Your fine taste in the elegant arts, and skill in several modern languages, is such, that your discourse is not confined to the ordinary subjects of conversation, but is adapted, with an uncommon grace, to every occasion, and entertains the politest persons of different nations. That agreeable turn which appears in your sentiments upon the most ordinary affairs of life, which is so suitable to the delicacy of your sex, the politeness of your education, and the splendor of your quality, is observed by every one that has the honour to approach you.

But the great regard your Majesty has shewn to Religion, which diffuses the greatest glory around a human character, encourages me to hope that this Work will meet with your favourable acceptance. May it, therefore, please your Majesty to take into your royal protection this Concordance, the design of which is to render the study of the Scriptures more easy. Whatever may be wanting either in the Work or Author, is abundantly supplied by the dignity of the subject; which consideration chiefly encouraged me to presume to offer it to your Majesty, whom God hath exalted to the most eminent station, and blessed with extraordinary endowments of mind, and with a benevolent and beneficent disposition: To whom then can I more properly offer this Work than to your Majesty, who is celebrated both for your inclination and capacity to do good?

May the great Gon continue to multiply his blessings upon the King, your Majesty, and every branch of your Royal Family: May your life be long continued to serve Gon faithfully on earth, and may you reign for ever with Him in heaven, through JESUS CHRIST our Lord. Amen.

THESE are the sincere prayers of him who is, with the most profound respect,

May it please your Majesty,

Your MAJESTY'S

Most dutiful, and

Most obedient servant,

PREFACE TO THE FIRST EDITION.

A CONCORDANCE is a DICTIONARY, or an INDEX to the BIBLE, wherein all the words used through the inspired writings are ranged alphabetically, and the various places where they occur are referred to, to assist us in finding out passages, and comparing the several significations of the same word. A work of this kind, which tends so much to render the study of the holy Scriptures more easy to all Christians, must be acknowledged to be very useful; for if a good index to any other book is to be valued, much more ought one to the Bible, which is a revelation from God, given as the only rule of our faith and practice, and to discover to us the way to eternal life through our Lord Jesus Christ.

I no not here propose to treat of the incomparable excellencies of that divine book, which is above all commendation, and will be in the highest esteem by all the true members of the church of Gon, whose faith, hope, and comfort are built upon these divine Oracles.

What I shall further do in this Preface, shall be to present the Reader with a short historical account of Concordances, which will tend to display their great usefulness; and then acquaint him with the method I have followed in this.

Hugo de S. Charo, a preaching Friar of the Dominican order, who was afterwards a Cardinal, was the first who compiled a Concordance to the holy Scriptures: he died in the year 1262. He had studied the Bible very closely, and for carrying on this great and laborious work the more successfully, we are told he employed five hundred Monks of his order to assist him. He framed an Index of all the declinable words, and referred to the places where they were to be found.

This Latin Concordance has been frequently printed with improvements; and since that time works of this sort have been brought to much greater perfection than formerly. At first it was thought sufficient to specify the chapter wherein the word occurred, with these letters a, b, c, d, as marks to point out the beginning, the middle, or the end of the chapter. But after Robert Stephens, in the year 1545, had divided the chapters of the Bible into verses, the verses likewise began to be numbered, and the letters in the editions of the Concordances to be suppressed. And in 1555 this eminent Printer published his fine Concordance, wherein the chapters and verses are exactly distinguished.

It could not be thought that when so useful a work as Cardinal Hugo's came to be known, men, who carefully studied the Scriptures, would be satisfied that such assistance should be confined only to those who understood Latin: Accordingly, several have been published in various languages, particularly Rabbi Mordecai Nathan, otherwise called Isaac Nathan, composed a Hebrew Concordance in imitation of Cardinal Hugo's. He began it in the year 1438, and completed it in 1448, being no less than ten years in finishing it; and besides, as he himself says, he was obliged to employ a great many writers in this work. After printing was invented, it was printed several times: first at Venice by Daniel Bomberg in the year 1523, under the title of Meir Netib, that is to say, Which giveth light in the way; at Basil by Frobenius in 1531, and at Rome in 1621. This was the foundation of that noble work published by John Buxtorf, the son, being assisted by his father's papers, at Basil in 1632.

As to the Greek text of the New Testament, a Concordance was published by Henry Stephens at Geneva in 1599, and republished in 1624: But a more accurate one was compiled by Erasmus Schmidius, and published at Wittenberg in 1638, which was republished more correctly at Leipsic in 1716, and is reckoned a very complete

A Greek Concordance to the Septuagint Version of the Old Testament, must be owned to be very useful to such as are for comparing the expressions used in it with those of the New Testament, and to those who read the Fathers. Conrad Kircher of Augsbourg is celebrated for his Greek Concordance of the Old Testament, printed at Francfort in 1602. This author has inserted the Hebrew words in an alphabetical order, and placed under them the Greek words to which they answer. But since that time, an excellent Concordance to the Old Testament has been published at Amsterdam in 1718, by the aged and worthy Minister of Groningen, M. Abraham Trommius, who instead of following the Hebrew alphabet with Kircher, has chosen rather to observe the order of the Greek alphabet.

There have been Concordances likewise published in various modern languages; in French by M. Gravelin; in High-dutch and Low-dutch by several; the most complete one in Low-dutch is that begun by M. Martinitz, and finished by M. Trommius before-mentioned. In English we have had many. The first was published by Mr. Marbeck in 1550, which is dedicated to the pious King Edward VI. but this referred only to chapters, not verses: Then Mr. Cotton published a pretty large Concordance, which has been often printed: Afterwards Mr. Newman published one more complete; and lastly, we have had one published under the title of the Cambridge Concordance. There have been several abstracts or small Concordances published: First by Mr. Downame, the next by Mr. Vavasor Powell, then by Mr. John Jackson, and afterwards by Mr. Samuel Clarke. As also other works of this nature have been written by way of a Dictionary or Concordance, but in a different method, as Mr. Wilson's Christian Dictionary, Mr. Knight's Axiomatical Concordance, Mr. Bernard's Thesaurus Biblicus, and Mr. Wicken's Concordance, &c.

PREFACE TO THE FIRST EDITION.

Thus it appears that we have had Concordances to the Bible some centuries ago; and the world has been so sensible of their usefulness, that many of them have been composed and published in different languages: But as there are several in our language, it may be inquired, What occasioned my undertaking this great and laborious work, or what advantage it has above any other hitherto published?

When I first began this work, I designed to compose an useful Concordance in Octavo; but after I had printed several specimens, I found it necessary to alter my scheme, and to compile one to be printed in this large volume, in order to make those improvements which now render it preferable to any other.

The method is easy and regular, and each text of Scripture is generally contained in one line, whereby the reader may readily find the place he wants, if he remembers any material word. When there are two or more texts of Scripture that are parallel, I have generally mentioned the first that occurs in order in the Bible, and have directly added the parallel texts. It is printed with a good letter, though pretty small, which was necessary in order to bring it into this volume, and make it contain, multum in parvo, much in a little compass; and great care has been taken that the figures referring to the chapters and verses of the Bible be exact and correct. When a text is marked with a †, it denotes a marginal reading.

THIS CONCORDANCE is divided into three Alphabets.

This first Alphabet contains the appellative or common words, which is the principal part. It is very full and large, and any text may be found by looking for any material word, whether it be substantive, adjective, week, &c.

In this part, I have given the various Significations of the principal words, which, I hope, will be esteemed an useful improvement, there not being any thing of this kind in the other large Concordances: By this improvement the Reader will have many texts explained, and difficulties removed; and the meaning of the Scripture may be here known by that which is accounted the best rule of interpreting Scripture, namely, by comparing one Scripture with another. There is so large a collection of the various Significations of many words in Scripture, as may, perhaps, be not only useful to private Christians, but also to those who preach the Gospel; for hereby many important things may be observed at one view, without the trouble of turning over several volumes; and occasion is sometimes taken to give an account of the Jewish customs and ceremonics, by which the Reader is led into the meaning of many passages of Scripture, as may be seen in the words, Elder, Ephod, Synagogue, &c.

Gogue, &c.

The second Alphabet contains the Proper Names in the holy Scriptures, which the Reader will receive with approvements, as in Abraham, David, &c. The texts referred to where those names are mentioned, give a short historical account of the remarkable things recorded in Scripture concerning them. To this part is prefixed a Table, containing the Significations of the words in the original languages from which they are derived.

THE third and last Alphabet is a Concordance for those books that are called Apocryphal, which is only added that this work might not be deficient in any thing that is treated of in any other Concordance; those books not being of divine Inspiration, nor any part of the Canon of Scripture, and therefore are of no authority in the church of God.

I conclude this Preface, with praying that God, who hath graciously enabled me to bring this large Work to a conclusion, would render it useful to those who seriously and carefully search the Scriptures; and grant that the sacred writings, which are so important and highly worthy of esteem, may meet with all that affection and regard which they deserve. May those who profess to believe the Scriptures to be a Revelation from God, apply themselves to the reading and study of them; and may they by the holy Spirit of God, who indited the Scriptures, be made wise to salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus. Amen.

PREFACE TO THE SECOND EDITION.

AS to what respects this New Edition, notwithstanding the great pains taken in the First, there was room for improvements. The filling up of the lines to make the text fuller could not so well be done in the manuscript copy as in the printed. This renders the sentences more complete in many thousands of places: moreover the texts are more distinct in many places by the leading words being distinguished in Italic characters. Some texts are added, and some improvements are made in the Significations of words, and an historical account is given of some eminent persons under their Proper Names; and other things that need not be particularly mentioned.

The labours of many persons to compile Concordances to the Bible, and their acceptance from time to time by the public, shew their great usefulness: It may be reckoned a good sign that religion is revived in some considerable degree in the present age, by the great demand for Concordances and religious books. The First Edition of several thousands in number has been long sold off, which shews this book's favourable reception from the public; and a demand has been long made for a new Edition. There are few books more necessary to those who study their Bibles than a Concordance, whether private Christians, or Ministers of the Gospel who make the Scripture the standard of their preaching. I was told by an eminent Minister, that the Bible and this Concordance taught him to preach: This Dictionary may be a help, but the Spirit of God is the best Teacher, who alone can powerfully and effectually teach and impress the heart with the truths revealed in the Scriptures, and make those who read and study the sacred writings wise to salvation.

My great aim and design in this Work is, that it may be the means of propagating among my countrymen, and through all the British dominions, the knowledge of God through our Lord Jesus Christ, and of ourselves, as the same is revealed in the Scriptures; for whose good I heartily wish that it were more complete than it is: For though it be called in the title-page, A Complete Concordance, poor sinful man can do nothing absolutely perfect and complete, and therefore the word complete is only to be taken in a comparative sense: yet competent judges are of opinion that the method here taken is the best which has appeared in our language towards a complete

Concordance.

It is hoped that the above-mentioned improvements in this new Edition will serve to recommend the Work more and more to the favour of the public. May it please Gop, by the powerful operations of his Spirit, to make it useful for the spiritual benefit of those who diligently and carefully use it.

London, June 11, 1761.

. A. C.

THE First and Second Editions of this Concordance having been well received by the public, seems to shew the great usefulness of such a Dictionary to the Bible; for it may be justly said, that, if Christians were convinced that Concordances tended so much as they really do to promote the study and knowledge of the holy Scriptures, they would be more desirous of having one: And some Ministers have expressed so great an esteem for this Concordance, that they have said, "If they could not have another copy, they would not part with it for many pounds." This there Edition now appears, with some improvements, which it is hoped will engage the continuance of the public approbation this work has already been favoured with. May it please God to make it more and more useful, and a blessing to the Church of God through our Lord Jesus Christ. Amen.

PREFACE TO THE OCTAVO EDITION.

NEXT to the Sacred Writings, no volume better deserves a place in the library of the Christian, than CRU-DEN'S CONCORDANCE TO THE HOLY SCRIPTURES. On the principle now generally recognized by Christians of all denominations, that Scripture is the best interpreter of Scripture, a more accurate knowledge of the contents of the Bible may be attained by means of a correct and copious Concordance, than by any other means. As a common dictionary is referred to, for the signification of words in ordinary use, so, by comparing together the different passages of Scripture in which any word occurs, as arranged in a Concordance, the Scripture acceptation of the term will be discovered; and the inquirer freed from the drudgery of consulting Commentaries, and antiquated systems of divinity, in which every passage is generally explained in conformity with the creed of the Author, rather than according to "the analogy of faith."

The learned Bishop Horsler has recorded his opinion on this subject. He says, "It should be a rule with every one who would read the Holy Scriptures with advantage and improvement, to compare every text which may seem important for the doctrine it may contain, or remarkable for the turn of the expression, with the parallel passages in other parts of Holy Writ; that is, with the passages in which the subject matter is the same, the sense equivalent, or the turn of the expression similar."—It is incredible to any one, who has not in some degree made the experiment, what a proficiency may be made in that knowledge that maketh wise unto salvation, by studying the Scriptures in this manner, without any other commentary or exposition, than what the DIFFERENT PARTS OF THE SACRED VOLUME MUTUALLY FURNISH FOR EACH OTHER. I will not scruple to assert, that the most illiterate Christian, if he can but read his English Bible, and will take the pains to read it in this manner, will not only attain all that practical knowledge that is necessary to his salvation: but, by God's blessing, he will become learned in every thing relating to his religion, in such a degree, that he will not be liable to be misled, either by the refined arguments or the false assertions of those who endeavour to engraft their own opinions upon the Oracles of God. He may safely be ignorant of all philosophy, except what is to be learned from the Sacred Books; which, indeed, contain the highest philosophy adapted to the lowest comprehensions.— He may safely remain ignorant of all history, except so much of the first ages of the Jewish and of the Christian Church as is to be gathered from the Canonical Books of the Old and New Testaments. Let him study these in the manner I recommend, and let him never cease to pray for the illumination of that Spirit by which these books were dictated, and the whole compass of abstruse philosophy, and recondite history, shall furnish no argument with which the perverse will of man shall be able to shake this learned Christian's faith. The Bible, thus studied, will indeed prove to be, what we Protestants esteem it—"a certain and sufficient rule of faith and practice; a helmet of salvation, which alone may quench the fiery darts of the wicked."*

The Rev. T. H. Horne, in his Introduction to the Critical Study of the Scriptures,† (a work which for extent of research, and felicity of arrangement, is unequalled in the department of literature to which it belongs,) observes: "The comparison of parallel passages is a most important help for interpreting such parts of Scripture as may appear to us obscure or uncertain; for, on almost every subject, there will be found a multitude of phrases, that, when diligently collated, will afford mutual illustration and support to each other; the truth which is more obscurely intimated in one place being expressed with greater precision in others. Thus, a part of the attributes, or circumstances, relating to both persons and things, is stated in one text, and part in another; so that it is only by searching out several passages, and connecting them together, that we can obtain a just apprehension of them."

If these remarks be just, (and the authorities from which they proceed place them above all reasonable objection,) then the value of such a work as "Cruden's Concordance to the Holy Scriptures," affording such facility to the study of the Sacred Volume, will be readily admitted. The peculiar claims of the present edition remain to be noticed.

The first and most important point to be regarded in such a work, is the general correctness of the various references to Scripture Texts. To secure this, the utmost pains have been employed; every passage has been carefully compared with the last edition published under the eye of the Author, in 1769, and collated with subsequent editions; and where any difference appeared, the passage was traced out, and corrected from the Scriptures. This extraordinary care will, it is confidently hoped, obtain for this Edition the high recommendation of being the most correct edition of Cruden's Concordance ever published.

The Octavo form in which the Concordance now appears, so much more portable than a ponderous Quarto, enables the publishers to offer it at a considerably reduced price; while the clearness and beauty of its type render it a specimen of that high degree of excellence the art of Stereotype Printing has attained in this country.

A Memoir of Mr. Cruden, on an extended scale, containing some searce and interesting particulars of his life, and several characteristic and authentic Anecdotes, has been compiled by the Editor, with great care expressly for this edition.

CAPTIVITY.

God generally punished the vices and infidelities row generating prints are the cites and injunctives of his people by different captivities or servitudes whereinto he permitted them to full. After the deliverance of the Israelites out of Egypt, there are reckned six hondages or captivities during aerrechaned six hondages ar captivities during the government of Jadges: The first under Chahan-tishant-tishathaim, king of Mesopotamia, which continued abant eight years, Julg. 3, 8. The second under Eglan, king of Monty, from which they were delivered by Ehud, Judg. 3, 11, 15. The third under the Philstines, out of which they were exceed by Shamgar, Judg. 3, 31. The fourth under thain, king of Hazor, from which they were delivered by Deborah and Barak, Judg. 4, 22, 23. The fifth under the Midamites, from which Gideon freed them, Judg. 6, 2, 12. The sixth under the Aumonites and Philstines, during the judicatures of Jephthah, Ibzan, Elon, Ahdon, Eli, Samson, Samuel.

The greatest and most remarkable captinities of the Hebrews, were those of Judah and Israel, which happened under the kings of each of these kingdoms.

And it is generally believed that there was no return for this authority and the turn from this captivity, and that the ten tribes never came back again after their dispersion. s to the captivities of Judah; in the fifth year of Rehoboam, son of Solomon, Shishak, king of Egypt, came up against Jerusalem with a numerous army, and sacked the city, took away the treasures out of the house of the Lord, and out of the house of the king, 2 Chron. 12. 2. king of Assyria sent a great army and laid close siege to it. Upon this Hezekiah fortified and repaired it, 2 Chron. 32. 5. and the hand of the Lord being with him, for he was a pious good king, the Assyrians, after a time, were forced to grain the state of the forced to raise the siege, not being able to take the city, yet after this, it was taken and plan-dered three several times by Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon; first, in the reiga of Jehoiakim; again, in that of Jehoinchin, his son; and a third time, in that of Zedekiah his bro-ther; when he burnt the whole city, and carried away all the people to Babylon, where they re-mained seventy years, Jer. 25. 12. Pop their being permitted to return by Cyrus king of Persia, after they had remained in cap-tiouty seventy years. Zerubbabel rebuilt the tomple, and Nehumiah the city; and Ezra the priest and scribe restored the law. And thus they stood, till the time of Antiochus, Epiphanes, who plundered the city, burned the law, and profuned the temple. 2Cor. 10. 5. bringing into c. every thought to obed.

But all was soon after set right again by the valorous conduct of Judas Maccaheus; and they continued in a flourishing condition for many years; till Hyreanus and Aristobulus, brothers, contending about the crown, Pompey, who at that time was at the head of the Roman and at that time was at the had of the Roman army in Syria, took advantage of the dissen-sion, and scircd the city; which Antigonus, the son of Aristobulus, by the assistance of the Parthians, soon after recovered.

From him it was presently after taken by the first Herod, who, by the favour of the Romans, and the assistance of their Proconsul of Syria, was declared king thereof. Thenceforward it continued in subjection, sometimes to the Herods, but mostly to governors sent from Rome, till about forty years after the Jews had crucified Christ, because of the re-bellious disposition of its inhabitants, it was, together with the temple, utterly destroyed and levelled with the ground, by Titus, the son of Vespasian Cosar. After which, the Jews never attempted more to return to it. It is said, Joh 42. 10, that The Lord turned the captivity of Job, that is, he brought him out of that state of bondage in which he had been so long held by Satan and his own spirit, and out of all his disteesses and miseries. In Eph. 4.8, He led captivity captive. He led them captive who had led others into captivity Our Lord Jesus Christ, the head of the church, by his ascension and victory over death, Satan,

This tree is much celebrated in the scriptures: It shoots out its branches at ten or twelve feet from ground: Its branches are large, and at a distance from one another; its leaves arc some-thing like those of rosemary; it is always green and distils a kind of gum, to which different effects are attributed: The wood of it is incor-ruptible, beautiful, solid, and inclining to a brown colour; it bears a small apple, like that of the pine. They made use of this wood not only for the houns and makes which covered wither for the beams and planks which covered edifiers and served for seilings to apartments, but they placed them likewise in the substance of their calls, and so disposed them ond the stone together, that there were three rows of stone and one of codor wood, 1 Kings 6. 36. Rom. 14. 15. brother grieved, now walkest not c. CHARITY

Is a principle of prevailing love to God and good will to men, which effectually inclines one en-dued with it to glorify God, and to do good to others; to be patient, slow to anger, and ready others; to be patchet, stow to unger, and ready to forgive wrongs; to show kindness to all, and seek the good of others, though with prejudice to himself. A person endued therewith does not interpret doubtful things to the worst sense, but the best; is sorry for the sins of others, but rejoices when any one does well, and is apt to bear with their failings and infirmities; and lastly, this grace is never lost, but goes with us into another world, and is exercised there, 1 Cur. 13. 1, 4, &c.

There is but an obscure description given us in scripture of these cherubinis, which Moses placed upon the ark of the coverant, Exod. 25. 18. as well as of those which God nosted at the currance of that those which God posted at the entrance of that delightful garden out of which he had driven Adam and Eve. But it is probable that both one and the other had a human figure, since it is said of those which were placed at the entrance of Paradise, that they had their station there assigned them, to guard the entrance to it, and assigned them, to guard the entrance to it, and sheld a flaming sword in their hands. And Exchicleompares the king of Tyre to the cherub that covered the ark of the coverant, Ezek. 98. 14. that is, he reas like to this cheruh, glittering all over with gold and glory. Moses says, that two cherubins covered the mercy-seat zeith their wings extended on both sides, and looked one to another, having their faces (wreat thought the another, having their faces turned toward the mercy-seat which covered the ark. God is supposed to sit on the mercy-seat, whose face the angels in heaven always behold, and upon whom their eyes are fixed to observe and receive his commands, and toward Christ, the true Propitommands, and toward clinist, the trate Hopi-tiatory, which mystery they desire to look into, 1 Pet. 1.12. not enrying mankind their near and happy relation to him, but taking pleasure in the contemplation of it. Childen, or Sons, are taken different ways in Scripture. The descendants of a man, how remote soever they may be, are called sons, or children. For example: the children of Edom, the children of Most, the children of Israel.
These expressions, the children of light, the children of darkness, are used to signify those who follow light, and those too remain in who follow light, and those who remain in darkness: the children of the kingdom, those darkness: the children of the kingdom, those who belong to the kingdom. Persons who are almost of age, are often called children. For example: Joseph is called a child, though he was at least sixteen years old, Gen. 37. 30. and Benjamin of the age of above thirty, is still called a little child, Gen. 44. 20. Likevise men.

Judges and magistrates are likewise termed children of God, Psal. 82. 6, I have said, ye are gods; and all of you are children of the Most High. In the New Testament, Believers are commonly called the children of God, by virtue of their admition, and the prerogatives shie Christ admition, and the prerogatives shie Christ

Afterwards the impious, the wicked Israelites were called the sons of men, Ps. 4. 2, O ye sons of men, how long will ye love vanity? See Psal. 12. 1. |57. 4. But very often, by sons of men, how long will ye love vanity? See Psal. 12. 1. |57. 4. CHRIST,
The anointed of God; the same with the Ilebrew Messiah, Psal. 45. 7. Isa. 61. 1. The eternal Son of God, the second Person of the glorious Trinity, Mat. 28. 19. 1 John 5. 8. In his divine nature he is equal with the Father, and over all, God blessed for ever; but in his human nature, subordinate and inferior to the Father, being subordinate and inferior to the Father, being like to men in all things, sin excepted. Both natures are united in the person of Christ, that he might be our prophet, priest, and king, and the author of a complete, perfect, all-sufficient, and eternul salnation. He ever lives to intercede for all that came to him, Heb. 7, 25. In Christ all the types, prophecies, and promises centre. He is the most suitable object for the singer to look to trust in, and expect all his centre. He is the most suitable object for the sinner to look to, trust in, and expect all his hopes, joys, and consolations from, as by him alone life and salration are precared. He is the head of principalities and powers, the brightness of his Father's glory; and the experse image of his person, 11cb. 1.3. the glory of all worlds, and the refulgent luminary of 4.41. the devils, they knew that he was C.

the universe, John 1.9. the inexhaustible foun tain of all the treasures of nature, gruce, and glory, Jer. 2. 13. and the matchless, incompaglory, Set. 2... 3. and the macchess, twohigher rable Redeemer of all that coine to him, John 6. 37. Christ was the grand subject of all the apostles' ministry, Acts 8. 5. and, indeed, a sermon without Christ is like a cloud without water, or a shadow without substance. One mo-ment's communion with Christ is of more worth than ten thousand worlds; his person most glorious, and he is altogether lovely, Cant. 5.16. The ancient Hebrews, being instructed by the prophets, had very clear notions of the Messish: but they were changed by little and little, so that when Christ appeared in Juden, they had enter-tained a very wrong notion of the Messius, expecting a temporal monarch and conqueror, that should bring the whole world under subjection. From whence it came to pass, that they were much scandalized at the outward appear-were much scandalized at the autward appearance, the humility, and seeming weakness of our Saviour, which hindered them from acknowledging him as the Christ whom they expected. The ancient prophets had foretold, that the Messian should be God and Man, exalted and abased, Master and Servant, Priest and Victim, King and Subject, mortal, and a conqueror of death, with and now, a time a conqueror of death, rick and poor, a king, a conqueror, glorious, yet a man of griefs, involved in our infirmities, in a state of great humiliation. All these seem-ing contrarities were to be reconciled in the ang contrarties were to be reconciled in the person of the Messiah, as they did really meet in the person of Christ. It was known that the Messiah was to be born of a virgin, of the tribe of Judah, of the race of David, in the village of Beth-lehem: that he was to continue for ever, that his name should be continued as long as the sun, that he was the great prophet pro-mised in the law, that he was both the Son and Lord of David, that he was to perform great miracles, that he should restore all things, that miractes, that he should restore all things, that he should die and rise again, that Elina should be the forerunner of his oppearance, that a proof of his coming should be, the cure of the lepers, life restored to the dead, and the gaspel preached to the poor: that he should not destroy the law, but should perfect and fulfilit; that he should be a stone of offence, and a stumbling-block, against which many should bruise themseloes; that he should suffer oppositions and contradictions and that a strange aconde should contradictions, and that a strange people should come and submit themselves to his discipline.

When Christ appeared, these nutions of him were still common among the Jews. Our Saviour herein appeals even to themselves, and osks them if these were not the characters of the Messiah, and if they do not see the completion of them in himself. The Evangelists take care to put them in mind of them, to prove thereby, that Jesus is the Christ whom they expected. The Evangelist Luke says, that our Saviour entering into a syuagogue at Nuzareth, there opened the book of the prophet Isuiah, where he read, The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor, I.uke 1.

And in Acts 10. 38, Peter, speaking to Cornelius the centurion, and to those that were with him, tells them that the Lord had sent peace to men, by Jesus Christ, whom God had anointed with the Holy Ghost and with power. So that when the Hoty Ghost and with power. So that when Christ, or his disciples, are said to be anointed, it is to be understood of the spiritual and internal unction of means. Ghost, of which the autward and sensible unc-tion, with which they anciently anointed kings, priests, and prophets, was but the figure and symbol. See Messian.

This term is taken from the Latin, circumcidere, which signifies to cut all round, because the Jeres who circumcised their children, cut off ths lettle skin, or prepuce after that manner, which cavers the nut of the penis, or natural part. God enjoined Abraham to use circumcision, as a sign of that covernant which he had entered into with him, Gen. 17. 10, 11, &c. This was a sign, evidence, and assurance, both of the blesssign, evience, and assurance, sound the dessi-ing promised by that God who appointed this ordinance, particularly that he would give them Christ, the promised seed, out of the loins of Abraham, and in him accept of them for his peculiar people, pardom their sine, and cleans them from their natural corruption, signified them from their metara correspons, significand by the cutting off of their fure-skins; and also of men's obligation to the duties required; namely, to believe in this Messiah, to put off the old man, and serve him as new creatures; the sid man, and serve arm as new creatures; which is signified by his acceptance of, and submission to the ordinance.
Circumcision is likewise put for the Jews, who were circumcision is numerouncision is put for the uncircumcision Gentiles, Gal. 2, 7, 8, 9

Signifies, [1] A congeries chiefly of watery partielsgames, [1] A congeries energy of watery parti-cles, drawn or sent out of the earth in vapours, into the middle region of the air, 28am, 22.12. [2] The heavens, Ps. 36, 5, 168, 34, 13] A great number, Heb. 12.1. [4] A fog, or mist, 10s. 63. The scripture represents the clouds as conservatories of water, or rain, which are scattered upon the earth at God's command, Job 26.8, He bindeth up the waters in his thick clouds. confines the waters in the clouds, as in a bottle: he scatters them afterwards upon the earth, as he scatters them afterwards upon the cartin, as it were through a watering-pot. Job speaking of the mutter of the Chaos, which covered the whole earth at the beginning of the world, says, that God had hemmed in the sea, or the teaters, as it were with a cloud, and covered it with dark ness, as a child is wrapped up in swaddling-clothes, Job 38.9. When the sacred writers speak of the second coming of Christ, they describe him to us as descending upon the clouds, encompas-sed with all his majesty, Mot. 24.30. Rev. 1.7. The prophet Isainh, speaking of the conversion of the Gentiles, compares their flocking into the of the Centuces, compares their flocking into the church to the flight or quick motion of a cloud; noting that they should come in great multitudes, and with great speed and cogerness, Isa. 60. 8. St. Peter compares seducers to clouds that are carried with a tempost, 2 Pet. 2. 17. By which comparison he sets forth both the inconstancy of these seducers, that, like clouds driven with the coind the many treatments. with the wind, they are tossed to and fro from one doctrine to another; and likewise their deone doctrine to another; and thereise their de-cififulness, that they make a skew of what they have not, as clouds do of rain, and yet are scattered without yielding any. And Solomon compares the infimities of old age, which arise successively one after another, to clouds returning after rain, Eccl. 12. 2.
When the Israelites departed out of Egypt, God gave them a pillar of cloud to direct them in their march. This pillar was commonly in the front of the Israelitish army; but when they were come to the Red Sea, and the Egyptian This pillar was commonly in the were come to the New Sea, that the Egyptian army appeared to them, the pillar of cloud which stood before the camp of Israel, placed itself between that and the camp of the Egyptians, so that the Egyptians could not come near the Israclites all night, Exod. 14. 19, 20. But in the morning about break of day, seeing the cloud moving on toward the sea, and following the Israelites who had possed through its channel, which was left dry for them in the night time, the Egyptions resolved upon pursuing them, and were oll covered with the vaters of the Red Sea, which returned upon them and destroyed them. This cloud continued always from that time to attend the Israelites in the wilderness. It was clear and bright during the night, in order to give them light when it grew dark; and in the day-time it was thick and gloomy, the better to defend them from the excessive heats of the Arabian descrits, through which they performed their journey.

The same cloud by its motions gave likewise the signal to the Israelites, either to encamp or to decamp; so that where that stayed, the people stayed till it rose again; then they broks up their camp, and followed it till it stopped. It their camp, and jottowed it till it simple. It was called a Pillar, by reason of its form, which was high and elevated, as it were a pile and heap of fors. This cloud not only enlightened the Ismelites, but also protected them, and was a continual piedge of God's presence, power, and protection. To this the prophet Isainh and protection. To this the prophet Isainh alludes, when he says, Tho Lord will create upon every dwelling-place of mount Zion, and upon her assemblies, a cloud and smoke by day, and the shining of a flaming fire by night, Isa. 4.5. that is, That God would be the director protector, and glory of his church.

COMMUNION. This word signifies fellowship, concord, or agreement, 2 Cor. 6. 14, What communion hath light with darkness? Such as are enlightened by the word and Spirit of God can have no profitable, agreeable, or comfortable converse with such as are in darkness or ignorance. Communion is likewise taken for a sacrament, or sacred sign of our spiritual fellowship with Christ, 1 Cor-10. 16, The cup of blessing, is it not the com-munion of the blood of Christ? Our drinking of thewine in the cup, is a religious action, whereby and wherein Christ communicates himself and hisgrace to us, and we communicate our souls to him; so that Christ, and believers in that action, have a mutual communion one with uno Believers have communion with Christ by election in him; by their kindred with his by election in him, by dient kindled with his humanity; and by a participation of his Spirit. They have communion with the Father and the Son, 1. John 1. 3. They partake of all those blessings that God the Father has promised to those that are in cavenant with him; and also of all those privileges which Christ has pur-chased for his members; such as, pardon, reconciliation, adoption, sanctification, &c.
The communion of saints: That fellowship which the saints have with Christ, and all his benefits by faith, and among themselves by love, 1 John 1.3. This Communion is both active and passive; 1.3. This Communion is both active and passive; that is, it consists both in doing good to, and receiving good from, one another. There be divers sorts of it, as, (1) Fellowship in doctrine, or betief, Acts 2, 42, Gal. 2, 9. (2) In exhortation, Heb. 10, 24, 25, (3) In consolation, Eph. 5, 19. Thess. 4, 18. (4) In humility, or submission, Ram. 12, 10, Eph. 5, 21, (5) In love, Rom. 12, 10, (6) In pity, Rom. 12, 10, (7) In prayer, Eph. 5, 18, 19, (6) In helping and relieving one another, Acts 4, 32, 34, 35.

Prov. 1. 21. she crieth in the chief place of c. Acts 19.40. whereby we may give account of this c. CONCUBINE.

This term in scriptures signifies a wife of the se-cond rank, who was inferior to the matron, or mistress of the house. The chief views differed from the concubines, (1) In that they were taken into fellowship with their husbands by solemn stipulation, and with consent and solemn re-viewing of friends. (2) Then hrought with them stipulation, and with consent and solumn re-joiding of friends. (2) They brought with them downies to their husbands. (3) They had the government of their families under and with their husbands. (4) The inheritance belonged to the children brought forth by them. Though the children of concubines did not inherit their the children of concubines and not inherit their father's estate, yet the father in his life-time might provide for them, and make presents to them: Thus Sarah was Abraham's wife, of whom he had Isaac, the heir of all his wealth; But he had besides two concubines, namely, Hagar and Keturah; of these he had other children when he distinguished from hear and dren, whom he distinguished from Isaac, and made presents to them. As polygamy was some-times practised by the patriarchs and among the Jews, either by Gad's permission, who could rightly dispense with his own laws when and where he pleased; or by their mistake about the lawfulness of it; as this was their practice, it vas a common thing to see one, two, or many vives, in a family; and besides these several concubines. David had seven nives, and ten concubines, 2 Sam. 3. 2, 3, 4, 5. [20. 3. Solomon had seven hundred vives, who all lived in the quality of queens, and three hundred concubines; and his wives turned awayhis heart, Wissell 20. Deut. 25. 1. judges may judge them, and e. the wick

But ever since the abrogation of polygamy by our Lord Jesus Christ, and the reduction of marriage to its primitive institution, the abuse of concubines has been condemned and forbid-of concubines has been condemned and forbia-den among Christians.

ed and did many mighty works among them. God condemned sin in the flesh, Rom. 8. 3. He adjudged it to destruction, passed sentence upon it, and necordingly punished it by the sufferings of his Son in the flesh; and thereby declared openly before all the world, by these sufferings of his Son, how abominable sin was to him, and how contrary to his nature. Christ, being no civil judge or magistrate, did not condemn the woman taken in adultery to a civil punishment: Neither did he acquit her, for that nould have been making void the law of God: He only performs the office of a minister, and speaks to her as the Mediator and Saviour of men, in calling her to repentance and reformation, John 8. 10, 11.

matton, Jonn 5. 10, 11.

The manner of passing sentence upon persons, varied in most countries. The Jews by a simple pronunciation of the sentence, as Thou N art just; Thou N art guilty; both absolved and condemned them. The Romans gave sentence, tonaemies them. The kontains gue sentence, by casting in tables into a certain box or urn prepared for the purpose. If they absolved any, they wrete the letter A in the table, it being the first letter of Absolve; if they condemned any, they wrote the letter C, the first of Condemno. Among the Grections, Condemnation was signifield by giving a black stone; Absolution by giving a white stone; To this last there seemeth to be an allusion, Rev. 2. 17, To him that overcometh I will give a white stone: that is, I will absolve and acquit him in the day of judgment. Rom. 8. 37. in all these things we are more than c. CONSCIENCE

Is the testimony and secret judgment of the soul, the testimony and secret judgment of the sout, which gives its approbation to actions that it thinks good, or reproaches itself with those which it believes to be evil: Or, it is a particular knowledge which we have with us of our own deeds, good or evil, arising out of the general knowledge of the mind, which shows us what is good or evil; and Conscience tells us when we have the other Roy 0.15 the constant of the constant of the second or evil; and Conscience tells us when we have the other Roy 0.15 the constant of the done the one, or the other, Rom. 2. 15. It is either (I) Good, I Tim. 1. 5. And this is called, [1] A conscience void of offence toward either (1) Good, 1 Tim. 1. 5. And this is called, [1] A conscience void of offence toward God and man; which does not accuse a person for any wilfol offence; citter against food, or men, Acts 24. 16. [2] A conscience bearing a person witness in the Holy Ghost, that is, by the conduct and guidance of the Holy Ghost, who cannot lie, Rom. 9. 1. [3] Pure and good, being purified by the blood of Christ, Heb. 9. 14. 1 Tim. 3. 9. [4] Purged from dead works; that is, freed from that sentence of death which it receives by reason of sin, Heb. 9. 14. [5]. A conscience not troubled with a sense of guilt, Heb. 10. 2. [6] A conscience against their light, and approving and justifying them, when they have gone against their light, and approving and justifying them, when they have conformed to it, Rom. 2. 15. Or, (11) Evil, Heb. 10. 22. when it is defiled with vicious habits, so that it does not perform its office aright. It is called, [1] A conscience seared with a hot iron; that is, quite extinct and cut off, or utterly hardened, which has lost all sense and feeling, 1 Tim. 4. 2. [2] A defiled conscience; when it is blinded and percerted, so that it cannot judge of its own actions, Til. 1. 15. This evil conscience is sometime. ed, so that it cannot judge of its own actions, Tit. 1. 15 This evil conscience is sometimes quiet, sometimes etriring and troubled. It accuseth when it should excuse, and excuseth when it should excuse, The conscience also even of the best, is now and then erroneous and doubtful.

he apostle Paul permits the faithful to go and eat he apostle Yaul permits the faithful to go and eat at the houses of the Grentiles, if they were invited thither, and to partake of every thing which was served up at their tables, without making particular inquiries out of any scrupulosity of conscience; asking no questions for conscience's ske, 1 Cor. 10.27, &c. But if any one says to them, this has been sacrificed to idols; do not eat of it, says he, for his sake who gave you this information; and like exist less the vacual nat your native. tion; and likewise lest ye wound not your oun, but another's conscience. Conscience, I say, not thine own, but of the other. If he who gives you this notice is a Christian, and notwithstand-ing the information so given you forbear not to eat, he will condemn you in his heart, or will eat of it after your example against his own Lev. 7. 37. this is the law of the c. and sacrifice conscience, and so the guilt of his sin will be 8.28, they were c. for a sweet savour to the Lor imputed to you. In another place the same Apostle requires Christians to be submissive to secular power, not only for wrath, but also for conscience' sake, Rom. 13. 5. that is, not only for fear of punish. ment from the magistrate, but more especially out of conscience of duty, both to God, who is the ordainer of him to that special ministry, under himself; and to the magistrate, whose due it is, in respect of his office. To consecrate, is to offer, or devote any thing to God's worship and scroice. In the Old Testa-ment, God ordained that all the first-born, both of mon and beast, should be consecrated, Exod. 13, 2, 12, 15. He consecrated the whole race of Israel particularly to his worship, Exod. 19.

6. And likewise he devoted the tribe of Levi. and the family of Antou, in a more especial manner to his service, Num. 1. 49. | 3. 12. Besides these consecrations, which God thus ordained by his own absolute and sovereign outhority, there were others which depended on the good will of men, who consecrated themselves, or good will of men, who consecrate alternstices, or the things belonging to them, or the persons de-pending on them, to the service of God, for ever, or for a time only. Hannah, Samuel's mother, offered her son to the Lord, to serve all his life-time in the tabernacle, 1 Sam. 1.11, 22. Some of the Nazarites consecrated them-selves to the Lord only for a certain time, Num. 6. 13. And the Hebrews sometimes deroted their fields, or cattle to the Lord; ofter which they were no longer in their power, Lev. 27. 28. In the New Testament all the fuithful zr. v2. In the New Yestament an explicit are consecrated to the Lord; they are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a prentitur people, 1 Pet. 2. 9.

The prophets used to comfort the people of God among the Jews, against all their sad lidings they brought them, with the prophecies of the coming and kingdom of Christ, Isa. 66.12, 18. CORBAN.

Mark 7. 11. it is c. that is to say, a gift, shall be free CORD.

The cords of the wicked, are the snares with which they catch weak and unwary people, Psal. 129. 4. The cords of sin, Prov. 5. 22. are the consequences of crimes and bad habits. Sin never goes unpunished; and the bad habits which are contracted, are as it were indissoluble bands from tracted, are as it were itsessed on ourself from which it is almost impossible to get free. Let us cast away their cords from us, Psal. 2.3. Let us cast off their government, and free ourselves. from subjection to their laws, which like fetters restrain us from our purposes. To draw injuly with cords of vanity, Isa. 5. 18. that is, to spare no cost nor pains in the pursuit of sin. These cords of vanity may signify worldly vanities and pleasures, profit or preferment, by which, as by cords, the devil withdraws persons from God and his laws, and the way to heaven, and leads them down to the bottomless pit. Or, and leads them down to the bottomiess pit. Or, those vain and deceifful arguments and pretences, whereby sinners generally draw themselens to sin, as hope of impunity and the like. I drew them with the cords of a man, Hos. II. 4. I used all fair and gentle means, such as are fitted to man's temper, as he is a reasonable creature, to allure them to obedience: I found them backword and unapt to lead, I therefore in the line with laid on them, and as a father them backword and unapted lead, I therefore in my pity laid my hand on them, and as a father or friend drew them gently to me. To stretch a line or cord about a city, Lam. 2.8. signifies, to rain, to destroy it utterly, to lend it with the ground. This word is sometimes taken in a good sense, or in 1 Cor. 12. 31, Covet earnestly the heat gifts in 1 Cor. 12. 31, Covel carnestly the lost gits. This coorciousness is good and commendable, when spiritual blessings are rarnestly desired and sought after. But most commonly it is taken in a bad sense, for an rager and immoderate desire after earthly things, Josh. 7. 21. Prov. 21. 26. Covetousness is called idolity, Col. 3. 5. because the covetous man places that love, delight, and confidence in riches, which are due to God alone. This sin is condemned in all sorts of persons, and is expressly forbidden by the tenth commandment, Thou shall not covet, Exod. 20. 17. Such as are addicted to this sin, are hated of God, Psal. 10. 3. They are cruel and oppressive, Mic. 2. 2. The riches they are so eager in the pursuit of, prove but poison to kill them, and thus they are miserable, Job 20. 15, 16, 17. Prov. 1. 19. The inordinate love of wealth does likewise betray men to manifold sins, and exposes them to manifold sufferings; sins, and exposes them to many our operands; both from themselves, in denying themselves the comfort of their estates; and from others, as extortioners, thieves, and the like, Deut. 16. 19. Eccl. 4.8. Mat. 26. 15. 1 Tum. 6. 10.

Some think that it is the same with scarlet; others that it is of a deeper dye. In the Hebrew it is called Tolahat Shani; that is, the double worm, or the worm Shani; as if Shani were the proper name of this worm: In the Arabic it is called Kermes, or Karmes; whence comes the word crimson, because they made use of these little worms to dye this colour. The Kermes is a small range shall wand shall member or this small round shell, membraneous, thin, smooth, and shining; of a reddish brown colour, mixed and shuing; of a readish brown colour, mized with a whitish ask colour, about a quarter of an inch diameter, generally divided into two unequal cavities, the greatest of which is full of a vast number of little oval eggs, very red, or vermilion; and the smaller cavity is full of a kind of liquor, which is red likewise, and not much different from blood. This cod, or shell, arons were a kind of greened the much different from blood. This cod, or shell, grows upon a kind of green oak, that grows only to the height of a shrub. They loosen these cods, or shells, from the leaves to which they are fastened, and the worms of which they are fastened, and the worms of which they are they are justemed, and the worms of which they are full come out of the hole made by taking them from the leaf; they separate these little animals from the shells with a sieve, and put them together by pressing them lightly, and make them into balls of the size of a pullet' segg. 2 Chron. 2. 7. send a man cunning to work in c. 14.

CROPPED.

Ezek. 17. 4. he c. off the top of his young twigs CROSS.

By the word cross is understood a gibbet made of two pieces of wood put across; whether they cross with right angles at the top, as a T. or in the middle of their length like an X. The cross was the punishment of the vilest slaves, and was called a servile punishment: This punishment our Saviour underwent, Mat. 27. 35. Phil. 2.8. This penaltywas so common among the Romans, that pains, afflictions, troubles, and unprosperous affairs were called crosses; and the verb cruciate was used for all sorts of chastisements, and pains of body and mind. See Punishment. our Saviour says often in his gospel, that he who would be his disciple, must take up his cross and follow him, Mat. 16. 24. He must submit readily to whatsoever afflictions God lays upon him, or any suffering that hefalls him in the service of God, even to death itself Cross is taken for the whole of Christ's sufferings, from his birth to his death, but espe jernings, from his birth to his death, but espe-cially those upon the tree, Eph. 2, 16. Heb. 12. 2. And for the doctrine of the gospel; that is, of salvation through Christ crucified, 1 Cov. 1.18. False teachers, who pressed the obser-vation of the law of Moses, as necessary to salvation, besides fuith in Christ, are called enemies of the cross of Christ, Phil. 3, 18. be-cause his such doctring they did not the cause by such doctrine they did really oppose and undermine the power and merit of Christ's passion, and sought to avoid persecution, which they would have been exposed to, had they preached saturation only by Christ cruci-fied, as the apostle Paul was, Gal. 5, 11. o crucify, is not only taken for putting to death on a cross, Mat. 27, 35, but also for the subduing and mortifying sin; for breaking subaumg and moretyping san, jo. vectors, the strength, and suppressing the motions and breakings out, of corrupt nature, Gal. 5. 24. They that are Christ's have crucified the flesh. Christ's death on the cross has not only merited reconciliation with God, but is also made effectual to mortify and subduc the lusts of the fiesh, Gal. 2. 20, I am crucified with Christ. It is said of them, who for some time have made profession of religion, and afterwards turn apostates, that they crucify to themselves the Son of God afresti, Heb. 6, 6, that is, They show themselves to be of the same appries with three these in the same opinion with thuse that did cracify Christ, opinion with those that did crucify Christ, and would do it again, were it in their power. The apostle tells the Galatians, that Christ Jesus had been evidently set forth crucified among them, Gal. 3. 1. They had been as fully and clearly informed of the nature and design of Christ's sufferings, as if all had been transacted in their sight. Mat. 10. 38, be that taketh not his c. Luke 14. 27.

Is properly taken for a cap of state worn on the heads of sovereign princes, I Chr. 20, 2. But in a figurative sense it signifies honour, splendour, or dignity, Lam. 5. 10, The crown is lalled from our head. And the apostle says of the Philippinans, that they were his joy and crown Phil. 4. 1. They were his honour and glory, the great of the state of the Phil. 4.1. They were his honour and glory, the great ornament of his ministry, by means whereof they had been connected to Christ. It is used likewise for teward, breause conquerors in the public games were crowned, 1 Cor. 9. 25, They do it to obtain a corruptible crown, but we an incorruptible: that is, the wrestlers in we an incorruptible: that is, the wrestless in those games which are practised among you, contend in order to obtain a wreath, or garland of flowers, herbs, or leaves of laurel, olive, and the like; but we Christians strive for an inheritance incorruptible, undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for us. St. John, speaking of Christ governing the affairs of his church, says, that on his head were many crowns, Rev. 19. 12. noting his absolute sovereignty, and many trumphs. It also work is a sign of victory, Rev. 4. 4. The high priest among the lews were a crown, which girt about his mitre, or lower part of his bonnet, and was tied behind his head. 11. 21. (2) For those sufferings and afflictions which God sends upon a person or people: To drink of this cup, signifies to undergo and endure those sufferings: Isa. 51. 17, Stand op, O Jerusalem, which hast drunk at the hand of the Lord there is a cup, the dregs thereof all the wicked of the earth shall wring them out, and drink them. In these and the like massages. all the wicked of the earth shall wring them out, and drink them. In these and the like passages God is compared to the master of a feast, who then used to distribute portions of meats or drinks to the several gaests, as he thought fit. Our Saviour prays, Mnt. 26. 39, Let this cup pass from ne. Let mebe freed from these sufferings both in my soul and body: Ind he tells his disciples, Mat. 20. 23, That they should indeed drink of his cup; that is, They should taste of inward afflictions and descritons, and have their share of outward sufferings for the have their share of outward sufferings for the gospel, as well as himself. (3) For God's blessings and favours, Psal. 23. 5. Babylon is called a golden cup, Jer. 51. 7, because Babylon is called a golden cup, Jer. 51.7, because of her great rickes and plenty. And it is said of the vooman arrayed in purple, or of the antichristian church, that she had a golden cup in her hand, Rev. 17.4 which may denote the enticing means, and specious pretences, which she uses to allure people to idolatry, particularly by sensuality, luxury, and a ffluence, I will take the cup of salvation, Psal. 116.13. I will offer the sacrifices thanks giving unto God. It denotes joy and thanks giving, and is a phrase taken from the common practice of the Jews in their thank-offerings, in which a feast was made of the remainder of their sacrifices, and the offerers, together with the priest, did ent and drink before the Lord; and, among other rites, the before the Lord; and, among other rites, the master of the feast took a cup of wine into his hand, and solemnly blessed God for it, and for the mercy which was then asknowledged; and then gave it to all the guests, of which every one did drink in his tarn, 1 Chr. 16. 2, 3. To curse, signifies to imprecate, to call down misckief upon, or to wish evit to: Noah cursed his grandson Canaan, Gen. 9. 25. Cursed be Canaan; may he be hateful to God, aborred by men, and miscrable in his person and posterity. Jacob cursed the fary of his two sons Simeon and Levi, who massacred the Sheehemites, and plundered their city, Gen. 49.7. Moses enjoins the people of Israel to denounce curses against the violators of the law, Deut. 27. 13, 16, &c. Ind 30shua cursed him who should undertake to build sericho, Josh. 6. 26. These curses were either ordained by God himself, and pronounced by men abounding with the Spirit; or were predictions of what evil should happen to a person, dictions of what evil should happen to a person, or people, uttered in the terms of imprecations which had their accomplishment: They were not which had their accomplishment. I negweether the effects of passion, impatience, or revenge, and therefore, were not such as God condemns in his law, and in his word. For example: he ordains that no one shall presume to curse his father or his mother upon pain of death, Exod. 21. 17. He shall not wish any mischief to be-fall them, nor use any kind of malicious reviling jait them, nor use any time of matteins recturing speeches, which argue a contempt of his parents. He ordains that no one curse the prince of his people, Exnd. 22. 28. or one that is deaf, Lev. 19. 14. In the gaspel, our Saviour pronounces those of his disciples to be blessed, who are loaded with curses, and requires them to bless those that curse them, to render blessing for cursing, Mat. 5. 11. Luke 6. 28. Rom. 12. 14. God denounced his curse against the serpent which seduced Eve, and against the earth, which thenceforth was to produce briers and thorns :

theneeforth was to produce briefs and thorns: it should produce both fewer and worse fruits, and that with more trouble of men's minds and labour of their bodies, Gen. 3. 14, 17. He cursed Cain also, toko had imbrued his hands in his brother Abel's blood, Gen. 4. 11. He was devoted to destruction, east out from God's presence and the communion of the church, and the society of his kindred and nequaintance, and wandered from one country to another by reason of the trouble and perplexity of his conscience. The divine maledictions are not merely imprecations, impotent and fruitless desires; they carry their effects with them, and are attended with all the miseries denounced by God.

Psal. 119. 147. I prevented the d. of the morning Mat. 28. 1. as it began to d. toward the first day 2 Pet. 1. 19. till the day d. and the day-star arise in

The day is distinguished into natural, civil, and the day is distinguished into natural, civil, and artificial. The natural, or solar day, is the duration of four and twenty hours. The artificial day, is the time of the sun's continuance above the horizon, which is unequal, according to different times and seasons, by reason of the obliquity of the sphere. God called the light day, that is, the artificial day. The evening and the morning were the first day, namely, natural, Gen. 1.5. The civil day, is that, the beginning and and where of is determined by the reason. and end whereof is determined by the common custom of any nation. Thellebrews began their civil and ecclesiastical day from one evening to another. From even unto even shall ye celebrate your sabbath, Lev. 23, 32. The Babylomians reckoned their days from one sun-rising to another; the Italians from one sun-set to

to another; the Italians from one sun-set to another; some from mon to noon; and others from midnight to midnight.

This day, or to-day, do not only signify the particular day on which one is speaking, but likewise any indefinite time. Thou art to pass over Jordan this day, Deut. 9. I that is, in a short time after this, the word day being often put for time, as in Gen. 2. 4, 17. In the day when God made the earth and the heavens: in the day thou entest thereof thus halt surely die. day thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die, that is, at the time when thou eatest thereof To-day, if ye will hear his voice, Heb. 3. 15; that is, in this present season of grace, while you enjoy the means of grace. The night is far spent, the day is at hand, Rom. 13. 12. The time of heathenish ignorance and profaneness is an a great measure over; and the time of gospellight and saving knowledge is begun among us. The day of Jerusalem, is the time of its calamity and destruction, Psal. 137. 7. Abraham deand destruction, Psal. 137. 7. Abraham desired to see my day, says our Satiour, John S. 6. He desired to have a prospect of the time of my coming in the flesh. One man esteemeth one day above another, Rom. 14. 5. He thinks that the Jewish festicals are holier than other days, and still to be observed. He seeth that his day is coming, Psal. 37. 13. The time appointed by God for his numishment and estate. pointed by God for his punishment or destruc-tion. This day have I begotten thee, Psal. 2.7. that is, from all eternity, in which there is no succession, no yesterday, no to-morrow, but it is all as one continued day or moment, without change or flux. Or, this day, may refer to the unnufestation of Christ's eternal sonship in time; either in his birth and life, when his being the Son of God was demonstrated by the testimony of the angel, Luke 1.32. And of God the Father, Mat. 3.17. | 17.5. But chiefly at his resurrec-tion, by which he was declared to be the Son of God with power, Rom. 1. 4. In one day, that is, suddenly and unexpectedly, Rev. 18. 3. The Christian sabbath is called the Lord's day, Rev. 1. 10. as the sacrament is called the Lord supper, I Cor. 11. 20. because Christ instituted it, or, because the end of its institution was the remembrance of Christ's resurrection, as the end of the Lord's supper was the commonaration of his death; or, because it is employed in his worship and service. The day of judgment is likewise called the Lord's day, I Thees, 5. It is his by destination, because thereon he has appointed to judge the world; but the sabbath is his hy consecration, choice, and institution. Gen. 1.5. In what is due by one man to another, Neh. 10. 31 Sins are by resemblance called debts, Mat. 6. 13.

As a debt obliges the debtor to payment, so sin doth the sinner to punishment. And as the creditor hath a right to exact the payment from the debtor, so God hoth a right to inflict punishment debtor, so that had a right to injust pulsus mens on the guilty. Thus men are debto s to God, by trespassing against him; and to their neighbours, when they wrong, vipure, or aftend them, Mat. 6, 12. The apostle Paul says, Roin. 1, 14, I am a debtor both to the Greeks and Harbarians I am bound by my office to preach the gospel to all nations, whether more civilized, or more rule. And speaking of such as looked upon circumcision as necessary to their justification and salvation, he says, I testify to every man that so is returned to the such that is a circumcised, that he is a debtor to do the whele law Gal. 5. 3. DEGREE, S.

Psalms, or Songs of degrees: This title is given to fifteen Psalms, which are the 120th, and all that follow to the 134th, inclusive. The Hebrew text follow to the 134th, inclusive. The Hebrew text calls them, A song of ascents. Junius and Tremellius, translate the Hebrew by, A song of excellencies, or An excellent song; because of the excellent matter of them, as eminent persons are called men of high degree, 1 Chron. 17. 17. Some call them Psalma of elevation; because, say they, they were sung with an exalted voice, or, because at every Psalm the voice was raised. But the common translation, or, Psalms of degrees, has more generally obtained. Some interpreters think that they were so called, because they were sung wigh the fifteen steps of the tempreters think that they were so called, because they were sung upon the fifteen steps of the temple; but they are not agreed about the place where these fifteen steps were. Others think they were so called, because they were sung in a gallery, which they say, was in the court of Israel, where sometimes the Levites read the law. But others are of opinion, that the most probable reason why they are called songs of accest, is, because they were composed and sung by the Jews on the occasion of their deliverance from the captivity of Babylon, Prov. 1.22, bow long will scorners d. in scorning? whether it were to implore this deliverance from 2.14, and d. in the frowardness of the wicked God, or to return thanks for it of the 't thad hap.' Eccl. 2.124, than that he d. his senses in good pencel. All these Psulins have some relation to this great event. And the scripture commonly applies the phrase, to ascend, or go up, to express this return, Ezra 1. 3, 5, 11. | 7. 6, 7, 9. because Babylon was situated in a plain, and Jerusalem in a mountainous country. And al-though one of the Psalins is ascribed to David, and another to Solomon, yet they also, as well as the rest, might have been used on this occasion, though they were composed by David and Solomon upon other occasions.

To destroy, signifies to pull down, or ruin a city, or building, levelling it with the ground, Gen. 19, 14, The Lord will destroy this city. Exod. 34, 13, Ye shall destroy their altars; that is, yo shall not leave one stone upon another, as our Saviour speaks in Luke 21.6. Also it signifies, to take away a thing quite, so as it be no more in this scuse Christ is said to destroy sin Rom. 6. 6. That the body of sin might be destroyed; that is, that it might be weakened and subdued more and more, until it be quite taken out of our nature. Sometimes it signifies taken out of our nature. Sometimes it signifies to bring persons into irrecoverable and utter ruin, and misery; thus God destroys the vicked, Psal. 37. 38, The transgressors shall be destroyed together: and Job 21. 30, The wicked is reserved to the day of destruction. God preserves the wicked from the common culamities of this life, only to destroy them, and display his vergeance against them. It is taken for punishing transgressors by death, as magistrates do; Psal. 101. 8, I will early destroy all the wicked of the land, says David. I will set about this work upon the first opportunity, as soon os I am scated on the throne, that so I may both prevent all that mischief which otherwise they might do: and hinder the infection of others by their evil example; and discourage and deter all my subjects from the like practices. The apostlo my subjects from the like practiers. The apostle Paul says, Rom. 14. 15. Destroy not him with thy meat for whom Christ died. To edify signifies to build up, strengthen and encourage be-lievers in their fuith and profession, by endeav-ouring to make them more wise, holy, and hum-ble, and to live more to the glavy of God. On the ble, and to live more to the glory of God. On the contrary, to destroy, implies a doing of that which may tend to the destruction of a weak believer, by drawing him to act against his conscience in the use of things indifferent, or by giving him so great an offence as may alienate his mind from the Christian profession. The evil spirits say to our Saviour, Mark 1,24. Art thou come to destroy us? that is, either, art thou come to dispossess us; or, art thou come to execute the final judgment upon us and to command us to our chains, before the day of judgment? And Christ by his death is said to destroy him that hadthe power of death, that is, he dehim that had the power of death, that is, the devil. Heb. 2.14. The devil is said to have the powerof death because he induces men to commit sins that meritoriously render them liable to death; because he inspires them with furious thoughts and inflames the passions. from whence proceed strifes and wars, that efficiently rause death; stryes and wars, that efficiently rause death; because he is many times the executioner of God's wrath, and inflicts death upon rebellious and incorrigible sinners; hence, saws the Psalmist, That God east upon the Egyptians the fierceness of his anger, wrath, indignation, and trouble, by sending evil angels among them 127

he makes death more formidable to sinners, by he makes death more formidable to sinners, by heightening their gailty fears of God's tribunal; and this title may also signify his tormenting sinners with unrelenting cruelty in hell, which is the second death. These penal evils which Satan brings upon mankind, are upon the account of our disobedience; and his mighty power in temptation is from our inward corruption. The Lord Jesus by his death hath taken wanthe evailt and power of sin; the gailt, corruption. The Lord Jesus by his death hath taken away the guilt and power of sin: the guilt, in enduring the curse of the law, thereby satisfied the same of the law, thereby satisfied the same of the law, the power of the law, the law of the law, the law of the law, the law of the law, the law of the law fying the injured justice of God; and the power of it, by crucifying our old man with him, that of it, by cruentying our on an an with min, that the body of sin might be destroyed, Rom. 6. 6. And thus our Saviour by his death destroys the cruel tyranny of the devil. Destruction is taken for a temporal death, Psal. 90.

3, Then turnest man to destruction. For morti-fication, 1 Cor. 5. 5, To deliver such a one to Sa-tan, for the destruction of the flesh. For damnatan, for the destruction of the ness. For damna-tion, 2 Pet. 2, 1, And bring upon themselves swift destruction. Also for hell, the place where the wicked are eternally tormented, Mat. 7, 13, Proad is the way that leadeth to destruction. For extirpation, or utter rooting out, Esth. 8.6, How can I endure to see the destruction of my kindred? For a consuming plague, Psal. 91. 6, The destruction that wasteth at noon-day. And The destruction that wasteth at noon-day. Ind for a corrupting, painful, and deadly disease, 1 Sam. 5. The Destroy signifies to afflict, Joh 2. 3, to destroy him without cause.

DEVIL,

A most vicked angel, the implacable enemy and tempter of the human race, especially believers whom he desires to devour, I Pet. 5.8. He is called, Abaddon in Hebrew, Apollyon in Greek, that is, destroyer.—Rev. 9. 11, Angel of the bottomless pit.—Prince of the world, John 12.

grand rebellion against God, whereby they all fell into a rooted camity againstholiness, and in-Jetti no aronce animic againstiniums, and in-to endless horror, bluckness, and despair, Jude 6. Devil is put for, [1] Idols, Psal. 106, 37, 2 Chron. 11, 15, [2] A wicked man, John 6, 70, [3] Persecutors, Rev. 2, 10.

This word comes from the Greek, Diabolos, which signifies a Calumniator, or Accuser, who accuse the self-defined by 10. Hence he is called, The accuser of the brethren, Rev. 12. 10. He hath east off all obedience to God; and likewise called Belial, overaence to God; and theevise catted Belind, which is a Hebrew word, and signifies one who is good for nothing, a libertine, one that is extremely wicked. 2 Cor. 6.15, What concord hat Christ with Belial? Also Satan, which signifies an Adversary, or an Accuser, in a court of justice. Job 2.1, Satan came also among them. He is likening rallud the full Scroot. Hen. 19.0. He is likewise called the old Serpent, Rev. 12. 9. Recause he conveyed himself into the serpent, when he tempted Eve; and in respect of his serpentine disposition; his poison is allooys ready, as in a found win; and runneth continually reaggust a journum, and runned continually as in fall streams, both against Christ and against all his members for his sake: He is also crafty, wise, and sabtle, as serpent; concerning whose subtility, see Skrekky.
The most subtle of these spirits contrived a temptation, which might be most taking and danger ous to main in his exalted and happy state: He attempts him with art, by propunding the lare of knowledge and pleasure, to inveigle the spiritual and sensitive appetites at once. And that he might the better succeed, he addressed the wo-man, the weakest and most liable to seduction. He hides himself in the body of a serpent, which before sin was not terrible unto her, and by this instrument insinuates his temptation. He first allured with the hopes of impanity, Ye shall not die; then he promised an universal knowledge of good and evil. By these pretences he rained innocence itself. For the woman, deceived by these specious attractives, swallowed the poison of the serpent; and, having tasted death, she per-

of the serpent; and having tasted death, she per-sanded her husband, by the same motives, to de-spise the law of their Creator. Thus sia en-tered, and brought confusion into the world. Man, since his fall, is under the tyranny and slavery of Satan, who is called the god of this world, 2 Cor. 4. 4. because he rules in wicked nen. His old cumity and harred against the souls of men continue: It is another hell to kin to see them restored to the favour of God, and his glorious image re-engranen on them. He is a jaclous jailer, and, if possible, will not lose any of his captives. The scripture represents him as a strong and subtle adversary; a roaring lion that goes about seeking whom he may devour, 1 Pet. 5.8. His title, the Tempter, Mat 4.3. implies his constant practice. He bribes some with profit, and allures others with pleasure. He is surprisingly subtle; his strength is superior to ours: his malice is deadly; his activity and diligence are equal to his malice; and he has a nighty number of principalities and powers under his command.

tine, a treacherous person, John 6. 70, Have not I chosen you twelve, and one of you is a devil? It is taken also for idols, 2 Chron. 11. 15. so called, because the dovil is eminently served in the worship of them; and the spirits which were supposed to inhabit them, were eril spirits or devils; and breause in and by them the devil oftentimes manifested himself to men, and gave them answers, and received their norship. Their worship is an invention of the dwil; for what other deity besides the dwil could require human victims, the thase that were sacrificed to Moloch? Devil is likewise taken for persecutors, those instruments which he makes use of in executing his wicked designs against the godly, Rev. 2.10.

Is a small rain, which fulling on the ground in the nurning doth keep it moist, and make it fruit-ful. In warm countries, and in places where it rains but seldom, the night-dews supply ia some raine but seldom, the night-dews supply ia some sort the want of rain. And therefore the bestowing of it is a blessing from God, Deut. 33. 13, Blessed of the Lord be Joseph's land for the devic and the withholding of it a curse: 2 Sam. 1. 21, Ye mountains of Gilboa, let there be no dew on you. Hushai compares an army sallying upon the enemy to the dew descending on the ground, 2 Sam. 17. 12. God promises to be as the dew unto Israel, Hos. 14. 5. Though they were as withered and dying grass, yet he would refresh and strengthen them: By besturing upon them his grace and Spirit, he would make them fruitful and flourishing. This comparisons of God's visitation of his people to dew; is remarkable in several places of scripture. Isa. 26. 19, Thy dew is as the dew of herbs; Or, thy cow is a bright dew, a dew of hight and dawn. 25. 19, Thy devo is as the dev of herbs; Or, thy cew is a bright dew, a dew of light and dawn. The prophet there speaks of the captivity of Babylon, as of a state of death: Thy deal men shall live; but God's visitation of his people, his favour and blessing, would recover them in some sort to life and light, would make them revie and fourish again. Heavenly doctrine, some sort to life and light, would make them revive and flourish again. Heavenly doctrine, or the word of God, is likewise compared to

DIDRACIMA
Is a Greek word, signifying a piece of money of two drachms in value. A Didrachm was worth about fourteen-pence English; two Didrachme, two shillings and four pence, which made a Hebrew shekel. The Jews were by the law obliged to pay every one half a shekel to the temple. It is said in Mat. 17. 24, that they that received the tribute or capitation of two drachus, or half a shekel, came and demanded it of our Saniour, and that he having it of our Saviour; and that he, having sent Peter to fish in the lake, told him, that the first fish he should take, would have a piece of mojust he should take, would have a piece of morey in its mouth, of four drackins in value; that he should take it, and give it to the receivers of this tribute for both of them.
