Founded in 1670 as a “psychic garden” for the purpose of growing medicinal plants, the Royal Botanic Garden Edinburgh is, after Oxford’s, the oldest botanic gardens in Britain.

Nowadays, the RBGE is one of the largest botanic institutions as well, the herbarium housing about three million living specimens and preserved plants, a humongous core collection which represents at least one-half and possibly two-thirds of the world’s species of flora.

With its 72 acres of unusual landscapes and scenery, the RBGE was edified both as leisure gardens and for scientific and educational purposes. With botanical delights from the rock garden to Victorian glasshouses, orchids and cryptogamic plants to the Chinese hillside dotted with pagodas, pond and waterfalls, an afternoon spent strolling the vivid alleys of The Royal Botanic Garden will delight one’s mind as well as raise awareness of nature’s fragile biodiversity.

Year of events to mark 200th anniversary of the man who gave the one o'clock gun to Edinburgh - Charles Piazzi Smyth

With thanks to HistoryScotland.com

A new exhibition at the Nelson Monument in Edinburgh is now open, part of a series of events celebrating the life of Edinburgh's 'forgotten astronomer,' Charles Piazzi Smyth.

Housed in the Nelson Monument Museum on Calton Hill, the new exhibition aims to bring about a new awareness of Piazzi Smyth's work and that of his wife Jessica, forming part of a series of activity around the 200th anniversary of his birth. Piazzi Smyth is a significant figure in Edinburgh's history as in 1852 he started the Time Ball service which involved hoisting a large ball from the top of Nelson Monument which would drop at exactly one o'clock every day as a time signal to ships docked in Leith harbour.

A year earlier, he had added an audible element and set up the One O' Clock Gun service from Edinburgh Castle, stretching a cable all the way from Calton Hill to another clock on Castle Rock, which fired the Gun. Although the cable is no longer in place, both the Time Ball on Nelson Monument and the One O' Clock Gun still remain active today, providing a daily reminder of Piazzi Smyth's legacy to the city.

As Astronomer Royal for Scotland he spent much of his time and did much of his work from the City Observatory on Calton Hill, which recently reopened to the public after 100 years and can be visited today.

The exhibition is part of the celebration of Charles Piazzi Smyth's 200th anniversary including a series of public talks, a citizen science experi-

events and more information at the anniversary website. You may also go to: <<https://www.thecornershoppr.com/press/new-nelson-monument-exhibition-charts-edinburghs-forgotten-astronomer-charles-piazzi-smyth/>> for more information.

Regius Professor of Astronomy at the University of Edinburgh, Professor Andy Lawrence said: "Piazzi Smyth and his wife Jessie are great Edinburgh characters but are forgotten in the city where they worked. Astronomers tour the world to observatories because of Charles' work. His scientific work underpins much of our work today."

It is with the deepest sorrow we announce the passing of Seán Lee, 78 on the first of April. Seán was from Kells, County Meath in Ireland, and was an active member of the Arizona Irish Community. He will be greatly missed by his wife Janet, children Mairéad, Janet Anne and Seán Stephen, son-in-laws Tim and Mike, grandchildren Keira and Kylie, sister Mairéad, brother Rex and adoptive family friends Simone, Corey, Wyatt and Sienna.

Seán was a founder of the Irish Cultural & Learning Foundation and Emeritus Board Member. He was one of the 2016 Anam Cara (Soul Friend) Award Recipients, and was an incredible Board Member, former President, and volunteer. He was a founding member of ERIN (Executive Resource in Irish Networking) and it is through the generosity of him and his wife that the ICLF has a copy of The Book of Kells. We will remember Seán fondly for his love of everything Irish and his unwavering commitment to the Irish Cultural and Learning Foundation. Seán's memorial will most likely be in May. Details will be announced when finalized.

In lieu of flowers, memorial donations may be given to the St. Joseph the Worker, www.sjwjjobs.org.

The family wishes to thank family, friends, the church community of St. Thomas More and the entire Irish community for your support through this difficult time.

Not everyone who emigrates in present day is required to serve in an armed service capacity for citizenship. Seán was extremely proud of this great country, to be American and to serve our country as a United States Marine. Oorah and Semper Fi!

I was fortunate for the last two years as my travel time from North Glendale to the ICC and back was filled with Seán's heartfelt thoughts and conversations about the Irish Cultural Center's accomplishments and future.

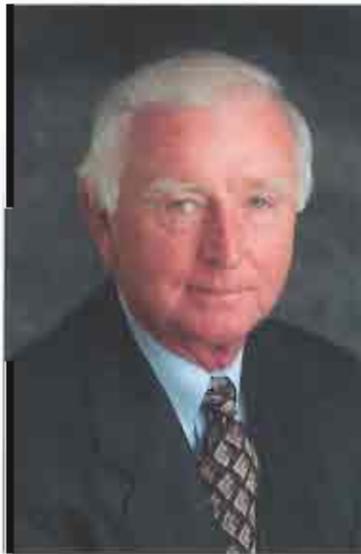

Seán brought his considerable business sense and spirit of volunteerism to the Irish Cultural Center with passion and tenacity. He and Janet could be found at many of our events volunteering at the ICC information tent.

Seán will be remembered for his swift decisions to act on opportunities when they are presented. Seán's passion and commitment to the ICC has set a high bar. His strength and leadership will be missed by all of us.

The Piper Jones Band is a lyrical, high energy trio based on the moving and beautiful sounds of the Highland bagpipes, accompanied by unique percussive chords from the bouzouki and inspired drums. While maintaining a strong musical base in traditional tunes from Ireland, Scotland, and Appalachia, the group also performs original instrumental compositions and powerful vocal harmonies, as well as stepping off stage from time to time to lead the audience in traditional Celtic dances. The Piper Jones Band brings authentic, traditional music to your audience in a fresh, entertaining way.

EJ Jones first played at GMHG with Clandestine in 1998 and is a professionally ranked competitive piper in the EUSPBA. He has had a performing career spanning over two decades with the recent distinction of representing the USA at the 2014 MacCrimmon Trophy at Festival Interceltique Lorient.

The result is a high-energy performance that has fans jumping out of their seats, and has sparked interest nationwide.

Lead singer/songwriter and founding member Kirk MacLeod attended bagpipe summer schools in these mountains from the age of 12 and won the first ever John McFadden award for "most promising piper."

Many years later he has led a band through almost a quarter of a million albums sold and some of the most brilliantly powerful and creative Celtic rock ever played. "We are lucky," says MacLeod, "because we come from two unique cultures. We love American pop and rock and roll, but we also love our Celtic roots. We want to touch everybody with our music."

Uncle Sam's Highlanders invited back to Scotland and the Mey Adaptive Highland Games & Cultural Festival

Uncle Sam's Highlanders received an official letter of invitation from HRH Prince Charles and the Mey Highland Games to return to Scotland and compete again! This year's event is going to be much larger, and HRH Prince Harry plans to be there with an increased number of his Invictus athletes! They're billing the event now as "Mey Adaptive Highland Games & Cultural Festival!" So, Uncle Sam's Highlanders' mission to bring a d a p t i v e sports to the home of Highland Games in 2018 was indeed "a smashing success!"

H R H Prince Harry plans to be there with an increased number of his Invictus athletes.

P r i n c e Charles is involved - and attends - the Mey Games each year.

This year, the games are being billed as the Mey Adaptive Highland Games and Cultural Festival.

This trip, at a minimum, for athletes and necessary support staff will cost $60,000. Your help is needed!

Elizabeth Hinson Roscoe, Director of Marketing and PR for Uncle Sam's Highlanders, says that this year, the group has the support of the Chairman of the Mey Games. He has offered to intervene where necessary to secure lower rates on rental vans, etc.

The Uncle Sam's Highlanders team and support staff, plus Charles Murray, AD and official of the Scottish Highland Games Association. He is the kilt on the ground in front of the group. This photo was taken in Scotland at the Mey Games.

If you would like to read more about the Mey Adaptive Highland Games and Cultural Festival, visit their website: <www.meygames.scot>

The annual Mey Games - which Prince Charles is the chieftain of - was once one of the smallest events on the Scottish Highland games calendar.

Up to 10,000 spectators are expected this year after the Invictus Games Foundation, founded by the Duke of Sussex in 2014 to "harness the power of sport to inspire recovery," agreed to help promote the event.

Former servicemen and women from around the world will descend on John o'Groats in August to take part in the new games.

Immigration – Canada to the United States - St. Albans Records

Bryan L. Mulcahy, MLS

Anyone tracing ancestors who may have entered the United States through Canada should take the time to become familiar with the St. Albans records. Unfortunately, prior to January 1895, no official documentation exists for people who came across the United States/Canadian border. If you are searching for someone who came prior to January 1895, many professionals recommend checking church records, vital records, land/tax records, occupational licenses, and other types of civil records, and passenger lists generated at ports of entry in the Canadian Maritime Provinces of Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Quebec. Some other possible areas that may generate success are cities such as Boston, Portland (Maine), and various Pacific ports that had consistent traffic and commerce with Canada. One may find clues that could allow the researcher to make some educated guesses or lead to additional records.

St. Albans border crossing records are lists of immigrants who crossed the border from Canada to the United States between 1895 through 1954. The title can be misleading in terms of the geographical scope of information. Some beginners assume that the records only contain information for the immediate area surrounding St. Albans, Vermont. In reality, they contain records of immigrants crossing over from Canada to the United States in all states located along the border with Canada from the Pacific to the Atlantic Oceans. This encompasses the states of Washington, Idaho, Montana, North Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Ohio, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Vermont, and Maine.

St. Albans records contain much of the same information as would be found on ship passenger lists. Some are actual passenger lists. However, St. Albans records contain more specific information and details pertaining to individuals than would be found in standard passenger lists. Our companion study guides Canadian Research and Immigration Across the United States/Canadian Border provide more detailed information on this subject in terms of specific questions and procedures.

As of January 1, 1895, United States border inspectors stationed along the various entry points along the Canadian border required that those entering Canada through sea ports obtain a Certificate of Admission, after passing a health inspection and quarantine. Railroads required a Certificate of Admission if the passenger arrived in Canada within the previous 30 days. At land border "ports", inspectors prepared the List (or) Manifest of Alien Passengers Applying for Admission to the United States from Foreign Contiguous Territory form, which is also called the Form 1-Canada.

This list refers to two sets of people:

The Viking legacy in Scotland is still strong, according to a study conducted by BritainsDNA. Recently, researchers compared “Y” chromosome markers (which are inherited from the father) from more than 3,500 British men to six DNA patterns rarely found outside of Norway and Sweden. They found that nearly a third (29.9%) of the men from the Shetland Islands were of Viking Descent, followed by the Orkney Islands (25.2%) and Caithness in the Highlands (17.5%).

Go to somewhere in the present-day Gaelic heartland, such as the Isle of Skye, and you will, of course, find innumerable Gaelic place names. But, you will also find Fiskaviag and Sumardale and Pabay, just a few of the Norse names left over from the Viking era which ended 800 years ago - yet still so unchanged as to be understandable by a modern Norwegian as Fish Bay, Summer Valley and Priest’s Isle.

Orkney and Shetland, which belonged to the Kingdom of Norway until 1473, are replete with Norse place names. Here the hills are never bens, and the lakes are as likely to be named water, from the Norse vatn, as the usual loch. Sea inlets are voes and firths, the latter being close to the Old Norse, and modern Icelandic, pronunciation of fiord - fjorthr.

We are also left the occasional linguistic clue further back in time, to a mysterious era of warring tribes whose societies are mainly known through archaeology rather than written history.

The Iron Age tribes of the period before and after the Roman invasion include the Picts in east Scotland, about whom little is known except their ornately carved stones and a number of places with the word “pit” in the name.

So, we have Pitlochry, Pittenweem, Pitsligo with its castle, Aberdeen’s football ground at Pittodrie and up to three hundred more. “Pit” is believed to be the Pictish word for “piece of land.”

The Solway Firth, the sea inlet that divides Scotland from England on the west coast, takes its name from the Selgovae, a British tribe who put up fierce resistance to the Romans as they tried to extend their empire from England into Scotland.

English, too, has left its mark, especially in the southeast corner of Scotland, where the land periodically passed back and forth between the two countries. Here you find unadorned English village names like Coldingham, Colud’s hamlet, Haddington and Long Newton.

Most famously, the Like of Menteith, nor far from Stirling, is reputedly the only lake in the land of lochs. With this miscellany of languages, it is not surprising that many places have more than one name - Gaelic, English and Scots, too!

Congratulations! Clan Sutherland Society

Call for Proposals for Conference Papers

The decision to compose and send to the Pope at Avignon the letter known to history as the Declaration of Arbroath is thought to have been made at a meeting of King Robert I's Council at Newbattle Abbey near Dalkeith in the spring of 1320. In recognition of the Declaration's sept-centenary, its significance in the history of political theory, and its ongoing, if controversial, role in Scotland's political discourse, an international conference will be held at Newbattle Abbey College – Scotland's 'life-changing residential adult education college' – from 23 to 25 April 2020.

Organised in association with the Scottish Historical Review – and with support from a major Arts and Humanities Research Board research project – the conference aims to be of interest both to scholars and to a broader public. The intention is to cover topics relevant both to the origins and historical context of the Declaration and also to its influence and legacy since the Middle Ages through to the present. Possible themes include popular sovereignty and national identity; constitutional and legal implications; Anglo-Scottish relations; international contexts and parallels; medieval texts; the Declaration in literature; history and heritage.

Proposals for papers on these or other relevant topics are now invited. Deadline is Friday 10 May 2019. Proposals should be c.250 words long, and, accompanied by a short C.V., should be submitted – marked 'Declaration of Arbroath' – to the Conference Organising Committee at <DOAC@newbattleabbeycollege.ac.uk> or by post to DOAC, Newbattle Abbey College, Newbattle Road, Dalkeith, EH22 3LL, Scotland.

The community of the heraldic world was saddened last January to learn of the passing of Conrad Marshall John Fisher Swan, KCVO, FSA Scot.

Born in 1924 in British Columbia to a family of Polish origin called Swiecicki, which was changed to Swan when they emigrated to Canada in 1884. Conrad had a varied career as an educator and eventually served as an officer of arms in HM College of Arms, the first Canadian appointed to do so.

He set out originally to serve in the Indian Army, having studied at the School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London, but when Indian independence occurred in 1947, he retired from the Indian Army with the rank of captain and went back to Canada to earn a BA and an MA from the University of Western Ontario. He also studied for his doctorate at Cambridge University in the UK, completing it in 1955. Until 1961, he lectured in history at Assumption University of Windsor Ontario, as well as serving as a guest lecturer at many other institutions of higher learning.

In 1962 Swan began his service at the College of Arms - being first appointed Rouge Dragon Pursuivant of Arms in Ordinary and later being appointed York Herald of Arms in Ordinary in 1968. In this latter capacity, he served at the state funeral of Sir Winston Churchill in 1965 as well as the Investiture of HRH, the Prince Charles as Prince of Wales in 1969.

His appointment as Garter principal King of Arms came in 1992 succeeding the retiring Sir Alexander Colin Cole. His tenure as Garter was relatively short and Swan retired from the post in 1995 after having been diagnosed with cancer.

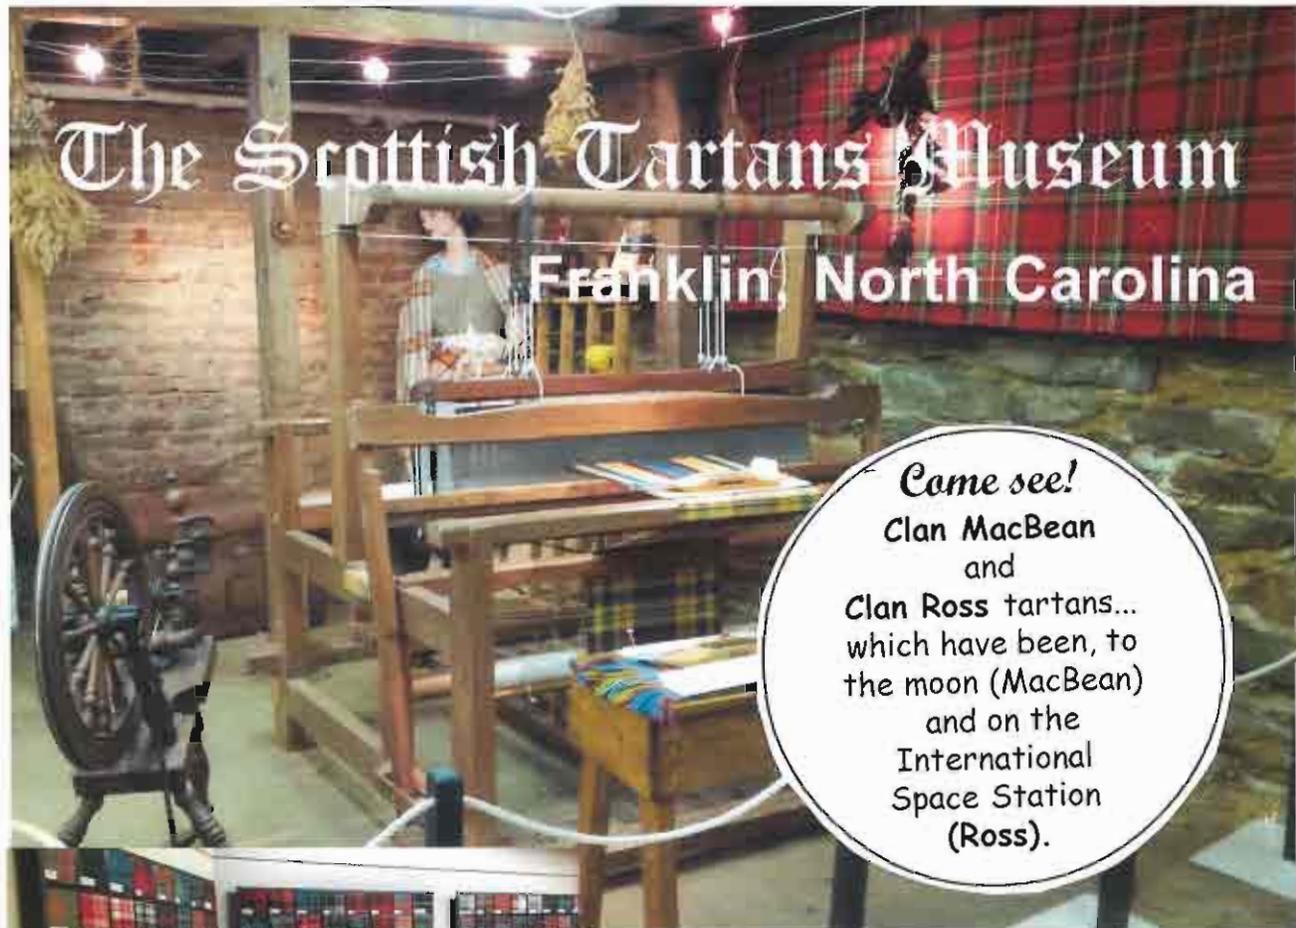

At the time, some allegations were made in a newspaper article concerning his decision, in his capacity as Genealogist of the British Association of the Sovereign Military and Hospitaller Order of St. John of Jerusalem, Rhodes and Malta (aka The Order of Malta) with regard to the grade in which one of his sons-in-law should enter the Order.

He denied these allegations, noting that he had never been interviewed by any reporter on this subject.

His heraldic career had been filled with many "firsts" such as being the first Officer of Arms of the English College to exercise his official duties while wearing his heraldic tabard in both the Western and Southern Hemispheres doing so in Bermuda in 1969 and in Brisbane in 1977. He wrote numerous articles and books on heraldry including Canada: Symbols of Sovereignty in 1977 and his autobiography, A King From Canada in 2005 and was also a special advisor to the Prime Minister of Canada from 1964-67 on the devisal and design of the national flag of Canada (with its unique “Canadian Pale”) and the Order of Canada. He also advised on the development of the honors systems of more than one territory or country. He was a founding member of the Royal Heraldry Society of Canada.

Swan received numerous honors in his lifetime including an appointment as an Officer of the Order of St. John in 1972, later promoted to Commander in 1975 and to Knight in 1976. In the 1978 Birthday Honors List he was made a Member (4th Class) of the Royal Victorian Order. In 1984 all the (4th Class) Members became Lieutenants (LVO) and in the 1986 New Year Honors List he was promoted to Commander. In the 1994 Birthday Honors List the Queen knighted him as KCVO. That was, however, not his only knighthood. Swan was also a Knight Grand Cross of the Order of the Nation of Antigua & Barbuda, a Knight of Honor & Devotion of the Order of Malta, Knight Grand Cross of Justice of the Sacred Military & Constantinian Order of St. George, a Knight Grand Cross of the Order of Francis I and a Knight Grand Cross of the Royal Order of the Lion of Rwanda. He was the Knight Principal of the Imperial Society of Knights Bachelor from 1995-2000, Commander with star of the Royal Norwegian Order of Merit, Grand Cross with Collar of the Imperial Order of the Holy Trinity of Ethiopia.

In addition, Swan received the Cross of Commander of the Order of Merit of the Republic of Poland (of which he was, no doubt, very proud), and the Knight’s Cross of the Order of Grand Duke Gediminas, the Coronation Medal of the King of Tonga and the Commemorative Medal for the Centennial of Saskatchewan in 2005.

In 1957 He married Lady Hilda Mary Susan Northcote (1937-1995) the younger daughter of the 3rd Earl of Iddelsleigh. She had an untimely death when she was struck by an automobile at age 58.

Between 1959 and 1966 they had five children. The Swans also had numerous grandchildren who became much more the focus of Conrad’s life in his later years.

Those who knew him always spoke of him being a very kind gentleman as well as knowledgeable and affable.

May he rest in peace.

City of Dunedin, Florida DPB - Grade 2 World Champions!

The City of Dunedin, Florida, Pipe Band traveled to Glasgow, Scotland, the week of August 18th 2018 to compete in the World Pipe Band Championships put on by the Royal Scottish Pipe Band Association after securing the 2018 North American Pipe Band Champions title in Ottawa, Canada just two weeks before. After a week of rehearsing on the west side of Glasgow (Kelvingrove Park), the band was ready to storm Glasgow Green.

The band placed 6th overall in the qualifier and took straight firsts (1,1,1,1) in the final earning both the World Champion title as well as Best Drum Corps. This is the first time a US band has won a World title in 20 years and the first time (as far back as we can track) a band has ever had straight firsts in a final. This is also the first world title for the City of Dunedin and something the band has sought after for many years.
