In the history of individual families may be traced the progress of the national wealth. Nor are those families whose names appear in Domesday Book to be specially regarded as the bulwarks of the Commonwealth. Many of the baronial families associated with our early history have no actual representatives, further than in their titles or appellatives; while those who, through the artificial system of entail, have contrived to retain their family possessions, have often failed to evince the noble qualities of their ancestors. The departure without succession of those nobles and barons who during the struggle for Independence in Scotland yielded to the Usurper, or who at the epoch of the Reformation snatched the lands of the Church without offering an equivalent, is a cause of satisfaction rather than of regret.

These pages present the genealogical annals of Four Scottish Families, whose claim to consideration rests chiefly on their industry, while the distinction achieved by individual members has been due solely to their energies. All the families are connected by intermarriage.
In producing his work the writer has sought by a congenial pursuit to occupy his hours of leisure. And what he has in this manner accomplished may stimulate others to rescue their kinsmen from oblivion, and to do special honour to the more deserving.

There has been abundant research and no inconsiderable correspondence. The former has not been irksome, the latter most profitable; for the renewal of early friendship, and the discovery that so many persons are willing to aid in one's literary inquiries, are sources of comfort and stimulants to exertion. To offer thanks to all who have supplied information is impracticable, and, if practicable, would be tedious. But one contributor must be named—General Elliot Playfair of St. Andrews, who in a lithographed "genealogical tree" has exhibited the several branches of his family in a manner which has been found largely helpful.

In conducting his inquiries the writer has not lacked diligence; and if, after exhausting every effort to procure correct details, he has nevertheless stumbled, he trusts that he may experience, even from the most exacting, some measure of forbearance.

FOUR PERTHSHIRE FAMILIES.

FAMILY OF ROGER.

SEVERAL centuries before the adoption of surnames the name of Roger was common in Europe. Of the companions of William the Conqueror twenty-seven bore the name. Quoting from the Cottonian ms. (Domit. vii.), Mr. Joseph Stevenson, in his "Illustrations," names one Roger, whom he supposes to have been Culdee sub-prior of St. Andrews in 1127. This sub-prior might have founded a family legitimately; for previous to 1139, though the clergy were recommended to celibacy, marriage, when it did take place, was not deemed unlawful.

On the 17th April 1256, "Roger the clerk" witnesses a quitclaim by Sir Alan Durward respecting the boundaries of the lands of Kingoldrum, in the county of Angus. When, in the reign of Alexander III., Gilbert de Umfraville became second husband of Matildis, Countess of Angus, and with her obtained large possessions, he engaged "Roger the clerk" to act as his chaplain and the clerk of his household. In this capacity he witnesses two charters. In the former, Gilbert de Umfraville, Earl of Angus, grants to Duncan, the King's dempster in Angus, a charter of the lands of Pitmulin, for making suit at the court of the granter, and rendering yearly a pound of pepper or twelve pennies at Stratdectin,\(^1\) on the annual fair at Dundee. In the latter charter, Gilbert, Earl of Angus, grants on the 18th October 1271, at Ballendaloch, Stirlingshire, to Alexander of Alredas, the lands of Inverquharity, near Kirriemuir. Both charters bear to be witnessed by "Roger, my chaplain;" the latter is also attested by Roger, "called Pater Noster."\(^2\) This Roger had doubtless read prayers as chaplain's assistant, while Roger the clerk had exercised the higher office.

Gilbert de Umfraville, Earl of Angus, was descended from Sir Robert de Umfraville, a kinsman and one of the chief associates of William the Conqueror. His more immediate ancestor, Gilbert de Umfraville, received from David I. a grant of the lands of Dunipace, in the county of Stirling. Richard, the grandson of Gilbert, gave, as an English baron, his vigorous adherence to the Commons in their struggles with King John. He was one of those who, on the 15th July 1215, procured at Runnymede the great charter of English liberty. Grandson of the baron who contended at Runnymede, Gilbert de Umfraville, husband of the Countess of Angus, is believed to have been the adviser of Alexander III. in his youthful resistance to the efforts persistently put forth by Henry III. of England to induce him to surrender the independence of his sceptre. The son of Gilbert de Umfraville by the Countess of Angus succeeded his father in the councils of Alexander III. As hereditary governor of the castles of Dundee and Forfar, he refused to surrender them into the keeping of Edward I., subsequent to the death of the Princess Margaret, till he received the sanction of the national guardians. That sanction being allowed, he surrendered the castles to Edward on the 12th June 1291.2

\(^1\) Stratdectin, now Strathdichty, in the parish of Monifieth, was an ancient seat of the Earls of Angus. It stood on a crag above the river Dichty, nearly opposite the Mill of Balmossie. The remains of the chapel, long ruinous, were removed upwards of a century ago.

When Edward, in his character of arbitrator among the competitors for the Scottish throne, obtained a surrender of the strongholds, he planted each with an English garrison. And not improbably the Earl of Angus, on surrendering his castles, would retire from the district. At Dunipace he possessed a family seat. There one of his predecessors, Gilbert de Umfraville, reared a private chapel. It was on the 13th May 1195 confirmed by Pope Celestine III. to the monks of Cambuskenneth.3 There were subsequent proceedings, for the founder, in granting the tithes of the endowment to the Abbey of Cambuskenneth, had not contemplated that his private chapel would be subjected to ecclesiastical supervision. Accordingly Gilbert, husband of the Countess of Angus, made an appeal to the Ordinary of the diocese, Bishop Gameline of St. Andrews, who, after causing Robert, Dean of Linlithgow, to institute inquiry, gave judgment that the chapel was a mother church, and was consequently free from ecclesiastical control, being subject to the Pope only.¹ Of this endowed and free chapel at Dunipace, "Roger the clerk," in the charters of Gilbert, Earl of Angus, was obviously the incumbent.

The chaplain at Dunipace exercised no unimportant influence on the destinies of his country. According to a tradition, recorded by Henry the Minstrel, and accepted by the historians, Sir William Wallace was, as a youth, trained under the superintendence of his uncle, the priest of Dunipace. And by his clerical relative he was inspired with that love of liberty which led him to dedicate his life towards retrieving the freedom of his country. These lines, which his uncle composed, the patriot was in the habit of quoting:—

"Dico tibi verum, libertas optima rerum Nunquam servili sub nexu vivito, fili."²

Roger the clerk, along with —— Boyville and Michael de Miggel [Meigle], all being described as "esquires,"³ were

Scottish prisoners in the castle of Nottingham from the 1st of May 1298 till Saturday before Michaelmas 1299, when the last was set at liberty, the two others continuing in ward. They had probably been all taken prisoners by the Earl of Surrey at the battle of Dunbar, on the 29th April 1296. In “the Account” of the Provost of Perth rendered at Dundee on the 5th June 1342, there is a payment of forty shillings to the Clerk of Liverance, acknowledged by Roger, his clerk. And in the “Account” of William of Fordoun, clerk of the Queen’s Wardrobe, rendered at Scone on the 12th December 1331, there occurs among the expenses of the King and Queen in attending Parliament, an item of 6s. 8d. paid to “Friar Roger” for his travelling costs from Cardross to Scone.

A branch of the Roger family settled at Dundee on the 27th September 1510. John Roger is, in a charter granted by Elizabeth Mason, relict of John Scrymgeour, burgess of Dundee, named as owner of tenements in that burgh. To this branch probably belonged John Roger, the Pre-Reformation martyr. In connection with his death, which took place in 1544, John Knox writes: “Johne Roger, a Blake Freir, godly, learned, and ane that had fructfully preached Christ Jesus to the comforte of many in Angus and Mearnes, whom that bloody man (Cardinal Beaton) caused murther in the ground of the Sea-toure of Sanctandross, and then caused to cast him ower the craig, sparsing a fals bruyt (report) that the said John seeking to flie had broken his awin craig."

John Roger, skinner burgess of Dundee, died intestate in December 1598, leaving a widow, Isobel Cathrow, together with a son William and a daughter Helen. Among those who in his testament-dative are named as indebted to him is Thomas Roger in Muresyde.

On the 20th May 1615, James Roger, maltman burgess of Dundee, granted to John Ostler, weaver on the hill, a loan of fifty merks.

George Roger, skipper burgess of Dundee, is in the old burying-ground of the place thus commemorated on a recumbent tombstone: "Hic · dormienti · pietate · et · virtvte · insigni · viro · Georgio · Roger · Navclero · et · civi · hvivs · oppidi · qvi · obiit · anno · 1611 · die · primo · Octobris · ætatis · vero · svæ · anno · 33 · hoc · faciendvm · proevravit · eivs · conivnx · Elizabetha · Lochmalovnie · Mihi · hodie · cras · tibi."

By his wife, Elizabeth Lochmalony, George Roger had three sons, George, William, and David, also a daughter, Bessie.

William Roger, merchant burgess of Dundee, and one of the magistrates of that burgh, in his will, dated 6th July 1658, provides "one-half of his real and personal estate for the education and training of seven poor male children within the burgh." The bequest constitutes a fund of the present value of £1745. Bailie William Roger was husband of Euphan Man, who, surviving him, established in 1663 a Merchant Widows' Fund at Dundee, of which the stock now amounts to £2452, 4s. 10d.\(^1\)

On the 8th July 1434, John, Bishop of Brechin, in presence of Walter de Ogilvy, deputy-sheriff of Forfar, in the Cathedral of Brechin, presented letters-patent respecting his right to a portion of the Muir of Monremont, lying near the Grange of Fernewale [Farnell], and craving the sheriff to examine witnesses in support of his claim. As a witness appeared Adam de Roger, who had passed the age of ninety. He testified that his father, who resided at Fernewale, had leased the farm of Clothoc, with the portion of land in question, and with the mill of Achdùny—all from Bishop Patrick; that he was aware that his father had cultivated the land, and grazed upon it sheep and swine without interruption or hindrance. His father's name, he said, was John de Roger.\(^2\)

A probable descendant of Adam de Roger, Robert Roger,\(^3\) tenant farmer at Drumleithie, in the parish of Glenbervie and county of Kincardine, died in August 1613, leaving an only child, Elspet, wife of James Anderson, who succeeded to the lease.

Towards the close of the fifteenth century a branch of the Roger family were settled as husbandmen on a portion of the lands of Baikie and Rethey [Redie], in the county of Forfar. The Saxon family of Fenton held lands in Forfar-shire prior to 1261, when John de Fenton is named as sheriff of the county.\(^1\) They possessed the lands of Baikie, in the parish of Airlie, occupying a castle of that name on the western borders of a loch, which has yielded to modern culture. The locality is celebrated in ballad—

"Bonnie shines the sun on the high towers o' Airly;
Bonnie swim the swans in the loch o' the Baikie;
High is the hill, an' the moon shining clearly,
But the cauld Isla rins atween me an' my dearie." \(^2\)

On the 25th April 1403, an indenture was entered into between William de Fenton of Baky on the one part, and Margaret de la Ard of Ercles and Thomas de Chesehelme [Chisholm], her son and heir, on the other part, dividing between them certain lands, of which they were heriportners, the first named being the barony of Rethy. The indenture is confirmed by the Regent Albany.\(^3\) A daughter of the house of Fenton having married into the family of Abernethy, representatives of the Culdee abbot of the monastery of that name who secularised its revenues, Sir William Abernethy received from Robert \(\text{III.}\), on the 21st August 1404, a charter of the barony of "Rethie." This charter was granted by the king to Sir William Abernethy of Saltoun and Maria, his wife, on the resignation of the former.\(^4\) On the 28th January 1463-64 William Abernethy, second Lord Saltoun, described as son and heir of the late Sir Laurence, Lord Abernethy in Rothiemay, resigned his lands, including those of Rethie in Forfarshire, into the hands of James III., who thereafter granted him a charter of novodamus.

On the lands of Rethy, or Redie, Thomas Roger had, prior to the 16th June 1496, acquired a settlement. Of that date he appeared as a complainer before the Lords of the Council. The proceedings are reported thus—

"Aent the actioun and cause persewit be Thomas Rogethe aganis James, Lord of Abernethy, in Rothenay, for til have himself decernit to enter, or ger enter be his bailye, the saide Thomas Roger in and to the tak and assedacioune of the haif landis of the tovne of Redy, liand in the sherefdome of Forfare, to be bruikit and joisit be the saide Thomas Roger eftire the forme of the saide James' lettir of tak, and to warrant and defend the saide Thomas. Of these actions by Thomas Roger the records of the Lords of Council afford no further particulars, but inasmuch as the family of Roger are subsequently found occupying the lands which were the subject of controversy, it may be concluded that the pursuer’s claim was found valid. In the summary of the rental of Cupar Abbey, made in 1542-43, David Roger is named as one of four tenants occupying the lands of Redie who paid teind. That teind, forming an equal portion with that paid by the other tenants, is stated as one quarter eleven bolls two firlots of meal, and five bolls two firlots of barley.

David Roger, of the quarter lands of Redie, died in July 1581. His testament is dated 24th May of the same year, and the inventory of his moveable estate, consisting chiefly of farm stock and produce, is valued at £504. In his testament he sets forth that, being “lang vexit with seiknes, and being syngill, without wyf, and having foris familiat his haill bairnis,” he constitutes William Roger, his eldest son, sole executor, to whom he leaves all his gear, "that he may settle his debts, amounting to £472, 2s. 8d."

Among his debts is included the sum of £80, 13s. 4d. of "tocher guid to the bairnis of John Smyth in Cardanies," his grandchildren. To David Roger, his younger son, he bequeaths 400 merks, which were allowed him by his marriage contract. He describes Lord Saltoun as "maister of the grund," that is, feudal superior; while, according to the new arrangements consequent on the Reformation, the teind formerly payable to the Abbey is, to the extent of "four bollis, two firlottis of beir," made payable to Lady Uchiltrie.¹ Among the witnesses are David Roger, younger, and Thomas Man.²

William Roger, portioner of Redie, died in February 1589, his free substance amounting to £1456.³ By his wife, Isobel Roger, daughter of William Roger, first portioner of Cupar Grange, he had two sons, James and John. John, the second son, rented the farm of Muirtoun, in the parish of Alyth. He married Elizabeth Thom, who died about the year 1624.⁴ James, the elder son, succeeded to the lands of Redie. In 1606 he executed a settlement of his affairs, in which he specifies that should his sons die before succeeding him in his "rowme" or inheritance, his daughters should be permitted to enjoy the succession, only on the condition that if they married, the husband of her who succeeded to the estate should assume the name of Roger.¹

In the churchyard of Airlie a coffin slab of red sandstone is inscribed, "Lyis heir... Roger and Yofom Rolok, qvha died in Ridie, 1640;" the inscription is accompanied by the sculptured figures of a decorated cross, a sword, and a hunting-horn, also a blank shield. The lands of Redie possessed by the family of Roger have long been alienated.

At Whitsunday 1457, one half of the lands of Polkak, Blarachnoch, and Achnekathyl, on the estate of Cupar Abbey, was granted in lease to John Roger, the other half being leased to William Haldane.² A son of John Roger, styled John Rogerson, obtained a renewal of the lease in 1467. At Whitsunday 1474, John Roger received in lease the eighth part of Arthurlstone, on the lands of Balbrogie, while, in 1479, a croft at Chapelton of Balbrogie was let to William Rogerson, probably a brother of the former.³

The Grange of Cupar Abbey was in 1454 leased for seven years by ten husbandmen, a twelfth portion being rented by William Roger. In the lease it was stipulated that each of the tenants should have under him not more than two cottars, who were not to be allowed the aid of neyfs or serfs. Each cottar was to be provided with

"yards" for "kale [colewort] and fuel" [broom]; he was also to be allowed to keep a single pig.\(^1\) When, at Whitsunday 1468, the lease was renewed for five years, it was provided that each tenant should plant trees of ash, osier, and sauch, that is, provide timber for spear handles and twigs for basket-making. He also became bound to cultivate the marsh, that is, prepare peat from the morass or common muir. His rent was made to include certain personal services.\(^2\) To William Roger the lease was further renewed at Whitsunday 1473.\(^3\)

At Pentecost 1505, William Roger, son of the preceding tenant, obtained a lease of his father's "twelfth" for five years. He paid on entry a "gressum" of five merks.\(^4\)

William Roger, second renter of Cupar Grange,\(^5\) died prior to the 15th May 1508, when his portion was leased by James Ireland.\(^6\) He was survived by a son and daughter, who at the time of his death were infants. The daughter, described as "Jonet Rogeare, wife of William Hudson," received conjunctly with her husband, on the 19th September 1542, a lease of the twelfth part of the lands of Cupar Grange. She married, secondly, John Findlay, and as his

\(^5\) In the Rental Book of the Abbey, and in the elder writs and records, the word Cupar is spelt in twelve different modes. These varieties are—Coupar, Couper, Coupir, Cowpar, Cowper, Cowpir, Cowpyre, Cubre, Culpyre, Cuper, Cupir, and Cupre. We have adhered to the original orthography, the name being derived from the Celtic cuibhear (pronounced Cupar), which signifies a place of shelter.

relict she is, on the 9th March 1557, described as obtaining in lease a portion of the lands of Downy, in the barony of Glenisla.¹

William Roger, third renter of Cupar Grange, obtained on the 1st May 1542, from Abbot Donald Campbell, a life lease of that portion of land leased by his father and grandfather. By the granter he is in the lease styled "our familiar," and is in his life lease conjoined with his wife Marjorie Blair, also with a son, or, whom failing, a daughter, and the survivor of the three.² On the 23d April 1544 he appears as bailie-depute of the monastery.³ In this capacity he was, in 1561, associated with David Campbell of Denhead, a son of the abbot, and grandson of Archibald, second Earl of Argyle.

A record of proceedings in the Abbey court, dated 7th April 1561, has been preserved. It proceeds thus:—

"Curia balliatus terrarum et dominium de Cupro, tenta in pretorio eiusdem, die septimo mensis Aprilis, anno Domini quinuagesimo primo, per Magnum Davidem Campbell et Williamum Roger ballivos deputatos dictarum terrarum. Curia affirmata, sectis vocatis," etc.⁴

William Roger, third renter of Cupar Grange, and one of the bailies of the monastery, died in June 1562. His moveable estate was valued at £452, 18s. 6d., exclusive of silver lent to the laird of Ruthven. His testament, with corresponding inventory,⁵ thus proceeds:—

\(^1\) The "deid's part" is that portion of a moveable estate which one is entitled to dispose of by testament. If a man leaves a widow and no children, the widow is entitled to one-half of the free moveables as jus relictum. If children are left and no widow, one-half of the free moveables go to the child or children as legitim. When both widow and children are left, the widow has a third as jus relictum, the children a third as legitim, while the remaining third constitutes "the dead's part," which may be disposed of by will according to inclination.

William Roger, third renter of Cupar Grange, married Marjory, daughter of William Blair of Balgillo, one of the four bailies of the monastery. The family of Blair of Balgillo were cadets of the house of Blair of Ardbalair in Perthshire, which, about the year 1430, gave an abbot to the monastery. In 1460 David Blair was one of the abbey cellarers. David Blair of Bendochy had, in 1462, a lease of the church of Bendochy. In 1472 David Blair of Jordanston held in lease the church of Mathy; he also rented the parish church of Airlie under certain restrictions. Rachel Blair of Ardbalair was wife of Dr. Joseph Robertson, and their only child, Christian, married in 1795 Laurence Oliphant of Gask, brother of Carolina Oliphant, Baroness Nairne, the celebrated poetess.

Of the marriage of William Roger and Marjory Blair were born one son and two daughters.

Beatrice, the elder daughter, married John Dickson, portioner of Banchory. Their younger daughter, Marjory, married Patrick Small, portioner of Cupar Grange. The marriage contract of Patrick Small, described as "son and heir of the late William Small and Janet Follay," and Beatrice Roger, relict of the late John Dickson, portioner of Banchory, on behalf of Marjory Dickson, her younger daughter, is dated at the Abbey of Cupar 28th April 1598,—the instrument of sasine following thereupon bearing date 10th July 1603. In the instrument of sasine

"William Roger, portioner of Cupar Grange," appears as a witness.¹

Janet, younger daughter, married, first, John Brown in Leitfie, parish of Airlie, to whom she had three sons, William, Ranald, and David; also three daughters, Elspeth, Beatrice, and Marjory. Ranald Brown received a letter under the Privy Seal, dated at Stirling Castle 1st April 1579, in which he had a "gift of the escheit of all the gudis, etc., which pertenit" to Janet Roger, relict of John Brown and mother of the said Ranald.² Janet Roger married, secondly, Thomas Bell in Leitfie, apparently without issue. In an instrument dated at Stirling 22d June 1579, "Thomas Bell in Leitfie, his aires, etc.," obtained a gift of the estate which "pertenit to Janet Roger in Leitfie and Ranald Brown, denuncit rebel" for not producing a legal decreet of service before the Commissary of Dunkeld.³

William Roger, only son of William Roger and Marjory Blair, became fourth renter of Cupar Grange.

In or prior to the year 1586 he had granted to him by John Campbell of Calder, conjunctly with his wife Margaret Rollock,⁴ and the survivor, and to their heirs-male, a charter of feu-farm of the twelfth part of the lands of Cupar. While the date of this charter is uncertain, William Roger is described as "portioner of Cupar Grange" in a process in

In an action before the Lords of Council and Session, raised on the 2d March 1595, John Lindsay, parson of Menmuir, one of the senators of the College of Justice, on behalf of his wife Lady Corstorphine, described as "life-rentrix of the lands of Cupar Grange, pursued the twelve portioners of the estate, including" [Margaret] Rollok, relict of umq¹ William Roger,² whereby we discover that William Roger, the fourth renter and first portioner, died prior to the date of summons.

On the 21st December 1604, William Roger, son of William Roger, first portioner, being "of lawful age," obtained sasine of the twelfth part of the lands of Cupar Grange, sasine proceeding on a precept of clare constat in his favour by John Campbell of Calder, as superior.³ He died about the year 1618.

Ireland of Parkhead, enacted in the Sheriff Court of Perthshire a process of poinding—

"Against William Roger, son and heir to the late William Roger, portioner of Coupar Grange, David Hill, Isobell Gillice, relict of the said William Roger, Gilbert Robertson, now her spouse, and Alexander Campbell of —, heritable proprietors, liferenters, and rentallers of the tenth part of the town and lands of Coupar Grange."¹

William Roger, son of William Roger and Isobel Gillies, became sixth renter and third portioner of Cupar Grange. He died in 1664. He married Elspeth, daughter of John Angus, one of the portioners of Cupar Grange, whose ancestors were early settlers on the abbey estate. About the year 1443 John Angus received in lease from the abbot a portion of the lands of Keithock. In 1463 Patrick Angus obtained a five years' lease of the fourth part of the lands of Percy. When, on the 8th December 1544, James Angus and his wife Katherine Brown received in lease a twelfth part of the lands of Cupar Grange, it was stipulated that it should be forfeited—

"In cace, as God forbeit, the said James, Katrine his spous, or an male forsaid, happinnis to hald ony oppinnionis of heresy aganis the ordinanses or constituttioun of haly kirk."

The lease was in 1549 confirmed to James Angus, son of the preceding, and to his wife Janet Thom.²

Subsequent to the death of William Roger, Elspeth Angus, his widow, resigned that portion of the lands of Cupar Grange held by her late husband into the hands of the superior, Patrick, Earl of Strathmore, who granted a charter of the lands in favour of Patrick Meik of Lednassie, whose ancestor, William Meyk, was in 1469 one of the tenant-portioners of the same lands.

Of the marriage of William Roger and Elspeth Angus were born a son George, and a daughter Jean.

Jean, only daughter of William Roger and Elspeth Angus, married Andrew Soutar, renter of a portion of the lands of Cupar Grange, with issue two sons, Andrew and William, and two daughters, Margaret and Janet.

Andrew was baptised 23d December 1677; William, 5th September 1682; Margaret, 29th September 1672; Janet, 25th February 1675.¹

The family of Soutar are believed to have sprung from one of the two sons of Sir Adam Johnstone of Westerraw in Lanarkshire, who, early in the fifteenth century, left their native district and settled in Perthshire. Having discharged the duties of soyter, or judge in a court of justice ayre, his family assumed as a surname the name of his office. At Pentecost 1457 Thomas Soutar obtained from the abbot of Cupar the lease of a portion of the land of Muirton, in which he and his three sons were afterwards linterented. In 1549 John Soutar in Banchory is named as one of the bailies of the abbey.²

George Roger, son of William Roger and Elspeth Angus, was baptised at Bendochy on the 28th January 1649.³ He leased the farm of Millhorn and Grange, and

He was living in 1719, when he is discharged by his son-in-law, John Stewart in Milltoun of Rattray, of 200 merks, given in dower with his second daughter Katherine. He married Katherine, daughter and heiress of William Bisset in Welltoun of Balbrogie, by his wife Janet Soutar.¹

The family of Bisset, or Byset, were brought into Scotland by William the Lion, on his return from his captivity at Falaise.² Henry Byset witnessed a charter of William the Lion prior to 1198.³ A branch of the family which settled in Morayshire also obtained lands in other northern counties.

Sir Robert Byset was one of the witnesses to a charter, by which David de Strathbolgy, Earl of Athole, confirmed to the monks of Cupar, the lands of Dumbolenthyn.⁴

James Bisset, portioner of Balbrogie, died 8th July 1592.⁵ In an instrument of sasine, dated 28th June 1609, whereby Archibald Ogilvy of Grange granted to James, Lord Ogilvy of Airlie, the hereditary office of porter of the Abbey of Cupar, "William Bisset, portioner of Balbrogie," on the 18th June 1670 a William Roger and his wife Bessie Duncan had a daughter named Elspeth baptised (Bendochy Register).

Of the marriage of George Roger and Katherine Bisset were born four sons, William, Charles, James, and Patrick; also three daughters, Anne, Catherine Bisset, and Janet.

Anne, the eldest daughter, baptised 7th May 1680, married John Davie, of the parish of Cupar Angus.

Catherine Bisset, second daughter, baptised 9th April 1682, married, November 1716, John Stewart, farmer, Greendykes, Perthshire, with issue.

Janet, third and youngest daughter, baptised 19th September 1686, married, 1st April 1709, James Playfair, farmer, Couttie, in the parish of Bendochy (see postea).

Charles, second son of George Roger and Katherine Bisset, baptised 16th June 1689, married, first, in June 1716, Grizel Mackie, of the parish of Bendochy, without issue. He married, secondly, March 1718, Margaret Hill, of the parish of Eassie, by whom he had a son John, baptised 7th May 1722, also a daughter, Catherine, born 1719; both died young.

James, third son of George Roger, baptised 22d April 1691, died on the 11th December 1708, at the age of sixteen. In the churchyard of Bendochy he is, by his parents, on an altar tombstone, thus commemorated:—

“Heir lies James Roger, lawfyl son to George Roger and Katharine Bisset, in Cuppar Grange, who departed the 11 day of December 1706, of his age 16 years.

"His humble temper was so good,
    His virtues in their blossom;
And to his parents was so kind,
    It was their grief to lose him."

Patrick, fourth son, baptised 22d March 1693, rented the farm of Northern Cupar Grange. He married, 14th August 1718, Margaret Kidd, of the parish of St. Martin's, with issue six sons and four daughters.

Janet, the eldest daughter, baptised 15th January 1727, married, 11th June 1748, John Blair, with issue two daughters,—Margaret, baptised 18th March 1753, and Jean, baptised 29th April 1764.

Jean, second daughter, baptised 11th July 1735.

Barbara, third daughter, baptised 3d March 1738.

Margaret, fourth daughter, baptised 2d April 1743.

James, the eldest son, baptised 7th November 1719, was renter of Cupar Grange, afterwards of Hallhill, in the parish of Caputh. He married Margaret Corson, by whom he had two sons and two daughters.

Peter, baptised 30th September 1748.

James, baptised, 13th April 1750.

Margaret, baptised 15th March 1752.

Sophia, baptised 22d September 1754.

George, second son of Patrick Roger and Margaret Kidd, was baptised 23d December 1722. He settled in Dundee as a merchant, and married, with issue.

William, third son, baptised 12th February 1725, rented a farm in the parish of Tealing, Forfarshire. He married, with issue.
Thomas, fourth son, born 7th November 1728; died, s. p.
Charles, fifth son, baptised 2d April 1731, settled in Dundee, where he prospered as a manufacturer, and was elected Convener of the Incorporated Trades. He married, first, 19th September 1764, Grizel, eldest daughter of Thomas Davidson of Wolfaw, without issue. Secondly, 10th August 1792, Catherine, daughter of James Young, manufacturer, Dundee, with issue, a son, Charles Young, also a daughter, Catherine.

Catherine, only daughter of Charles Roger, manufacturer, Dundee, born 30th December 1797, died unmarried.

Charles Young, only son of Charles Roger and Catherine Young, died in July 1858. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Charles MacKenzie, manufacturer (born 4th July 1797, died 26th January 1862), and by her had a son, Charles Raitt; also three daughters, Elizabeth Soutar, Catherine Young, and Wilhelmina Margaret.

Patrick, sixth and youngest son of Patrick Roger, was baptised 22d April 1733.

William, eldest son of George Roger and Katherine Bisset, was baptised 20th January 1684. Renter of Northern Cupar Grange, he married, first, in 1710, Margaret, daughter of — Wright of Lawton, Perthshire. She died 24th December 1721, and is by her husband commemorated on a tombstone in the churchyard of Bendochy in these lines:

"In tom'd here lies the beauteous Margaret Wright Whose fame untainted shines for ever bright"
Her virtuous soul this naughty world flyes
And mounting rests in peace above the skyes;
Thrice happie she who acted here in life
A pious mother and a loving wife."

By his first wife, Margaret Wright, William Roger had a son, George, who was baptised 25th May 1716, and died unmarried; also four daughters.

Jean, eldest daughter, was baptised 18th January 1711. She married her cousin, George Playfair, reuter of Knowhead of Bendochy, by whom she had one son, James, afterwards D.D., and Principal of the United College, St. Andrews. She died at St. Andrews in 1804, aged ninety-three (see postea).

Janet, second daughter of William Roger and Margaret Wright, was baptised 9th June 1714.

Barbara, third daughter, baptised 19th March 1718, married James Millar, farmer, Cupar Grange, with issue a son, George, who died s. p.; also four daughters, Isabella, who married William Taylor, Meigle; Jean, who married John Duncan, farmer, Bothrie, and died s. p.; Elizabeth, who married Peter Crichton, farmer, Hatton of Newtyle, with issue; and Barbara, who married William Gow, farmer, Cupar Grange, with issue.

Sophia, fourth daughter, was baptised 19th April 1719. She died young.

William Roger, married, secondly, 12th August 1726, Janet, daughter of David Gellatly, factor, Lethendy.

The family of Gellatly were numerous in South-eastern Perthshire. In the parishes of Bendochy and Rattray they are to be remarked as intermarrying with the families of Roger, Playfair, and Constable, also with the family of Donaldson of Cotyards, Bendochy.

On the 10th September 1699, Patrick Gellatly and his wife, Isabel Playfair at Cotyards, had a son Peter baptised. On the 29th March 1719, James Constable in Drumend and Isabel Gellatly had a son James baptised. David Donaldson of Cotyards and Isabel Gellatly had a son David baptised, 21st February 1663; among the witnesses was Patrick Donaldson, portioner of the Mains of Rattray.

By his second wife, Janet Gellatly, William Roger had three sons, William, Peter, and David; also a daughter, Sophia.

Sophia, fifth daughter of William Roger, and only daughter by his second wife, was baptised 28th November 1729. She married, 23d August 1751, John Playfair, farmer at West Cupar Grange, with issue, four sons and four daughters (see posted).

William Roger, eldest son of William Roger, renter of Northern Cupar Grange, by his second wife, Janet Gellatly, was baptised 19th June 1727. He rented the lands of Nether Cupar Grange, and married, first, Isobel, eldest daughter of George Constable in Mains of Bendochy (see posted), by whom he had a son George, born 17th January 1762, who died in infancy; also two daughters.

Margaret, baptised 10th July 1769, died in infancy.

Janet, second daughter, married John West, farmer, Mayriggs, Bendochy. She died 22d June 1846, leaving two sons.

William, the elder son, born 1794, succeeded to the lease of Mayriggs, and there died 13th November 1868. He married, 26th December 1845, Jane, second daughter of Robert Hill, farmer, Brunty, parish of Cargill, with issue two sons and a daughter, viz.:

James Brodie, born 17th February 1849.
William, born 30th January 1853.
Mary Millar, born 15th October 1850.

John, younger son of Janet Roger and John West, was born in 1798. He rented the farm of Mid Derry, in the parish of Alyth, and there died, unmarried, 21st June 1878.

William Roger, renter of Nether Cupar Grange, married, secondly, Elizabeth, daughter of John Robertson, in Tullynydie, by whom he had a son, William, who was born 9th January 1776, and died in infancy.

David Roger, third son of William Roger and Janet Gellatly, was baptised 23d February 1735; he died young.

Peter Roger, second son of William Roger by his second wife, Janet Gellatly, was baptised 7th May 1732. He rented the farms of Ryehill and Haughs of Cupar Grange; subsequently, the farm of Laws, in the parish of Monifieth, Forfarshire. Deeply imbued with a sense of religion, he served as an elder of the Church, and was remarkable for his strict morals and becoming deportment. At a period when, owing to the prevalence of illicit distillation, intemperance largely prevailed among Scottish husbandmen, his sobriety was conspicuous. In the farm of Laws his two immediate predecessors were topers, the first being noted as "Whisky Laws," and the second as "Porter Laws;" in contrast with these, he was known by the appellative of "Water Laws," his beverage consisting of water only. Peter Roger died on the 27th January 1809.

When the parish church of Bendochy was, in 1885, extensively repaired, through the energetic efforts of the parochial clergyman, a window commemorative of Peter Roger was placed in the structure by one of his descendants; it is thus inscribed:

"Presented by James Cruikshank Roger, of the Middle Temple, Esquire, in memory of his grandfather, Peter Roger, an elder of this parish, and of his ancestors, tenants and heritable proprietors of part of the Grange of Cupar Abbey from A.D. 1454."

On the 27th June 1766, Peter Roger married Janet, youngest daughter, and eventual heir-portioner of Thomas Davidson of Wolflaw, in the parish of Tannadice, and renter of Magdalen's Kirktoun, in the parish of Mains, and of Milton of Craigie, in the parish of Dundee. Thomas Davidson was only child of Alexander Davidson, farmer at Balledsen, in the parish of Tealing. A cadet of the house of Davidson of Balgay, he was born at Balledsen in 1705. By his wife, Anne Curr, he had a son, John, also three daughters, Grizel, Margaret, and Janet.

John, only son of Thomas Davidson of Wolflaw, was baptised on the 17th April 1740; he succeeded to his father's inheritance, and died, in 1779, unmarried.

Grizel, eldest daughter of Thomas Davidson of Wolflaw, married, first, James Davidson, shipmaster; secondly, Charles Roger, manufacturer, Dundee. Margaret, second daughter, born in 1731, married James Neish, brewer, Dundee, who died in 1824, leaving three sons and two daughters. James Neish, grandson of Mrs. Margaret Neish or Davidson, purchased the estate of Laws, formerly tenanted by his relative Peter Roger,—he died 22d May 1882. His brother, William Neish, barrister-at-law, and proprietor of the estates of Tannadice and Clepington, both in the county of Forfar, died on the 16th March 1886, aged seventy-one. Another of the grandchildren, Mrs. Elizabeth Walker, née Geddes, is proprietress of the estate of Ravensby, in the parish of Barry, Forfarshire.

Janet Davidson, youngest daughter of Thomas Davidson of Wolflaw, was born at Magdalen's Kirktown, and there baptised on the 1st May 1743. She married Peter Roger in 1766, and died 23d June 1825.

Peter Roger, renter of Ryehill and Haughs of Cupar Grange, afterwards of Laws, had by his wife, Janet Davidson, three sons and four daughters.

Anne, the eldest daughter, was baptised 23d July 1769; she died in 1780.

Margaret, second daughter, was baptised 17th July 1774; she died 24th November 1858, unmarried.

Sophia, third daughter (a twin with her brother Charles), born 5th November 1780, died 7th May 1822, unmarried.

1 See supra.

2 Members of the family of Neish rented lands in the parish of Tannadice during the sixteenth century. On the 5th November 1588, was entered in the Commissariot Register of Edinburgh the "Testament Testamentar and Inventar of William Neische, in Easter Balgillie," parish of Tannadice, who died 8th May 1587. As witnesses are named Andrew Neisch in Tannadice, and his son Andrew.
Isabella, fourth daughter, born 21st April 1777, died 23d December 1854, unmarried.

Of the three sons of Peter Roger, John, the second son, baptised 20th March 1772, died in 1780.

James Roger, the eldest son, was born at Ryehill, in the parish of Bendochy, on the 24th June 1767. By his father dedicated to the pastoral office, he was early sent to the best schools of his neighbourhood, and in his fourteenth year was deemed competent to enter the University. To the Professors at St. Andrews he was as a youth of high promise introduced by his relative, the celebrated Professor John Playfair, who then held office as minister of Lif. Professor Playfair was in his thirty-third year; but young as he comparatively was, he impressed his younger companion with a deep sense of his sobriety and virtue. He counselled him to write frequently to his parents, prepare his lessons vigilantly, and eschew unprofitable diversion.

James Roger entered upon his academical career with distinction. The youngest member of his class, he, at the annual competition, was declared the winner of one of the four foundation bursaries—a success which so rejoiced his latest teacher, who was also prosecuting his studies at College, that he bore him triumphantly upon his shoulders into the presence of the Senate. Throughout his first College session sustaining his reputation as a classicist, he at its close received from the hand of the Earl of Kinnoull, the Chancellor, a premium, awarded by him to the student of the first Latin class who had made the most marked proficiency. That premium, consisting of a handsome copy of Ruddiman's edition of Livy, in four duodecimo volumes, was presented in the common hall by the noble donor, who expressed surprise at the recipient's youth. Each volume bears the Chancellor's arms; and on the first, in the handwriting of Dr. John Hunter, the celebrated Professor of Humanity, is a commendatory inscription, subscribed by Dr. Joseph M'Cormick, Principal of the United College, in the name of his colleagues. With Professor, latterly Principal Hunter, the prize-winner commenced a friendship which subsisted for nearly fifty years. From the farm of Ryehill his father had removed to that of Laws, on the estate of Sir Alexander Ramsay Irvine, a circumstance which attracted towards him the notice of that patriotic baronet, who, presenting him with one of the valuable Ramsay bursaries, recommended him to pursue his theological studies at Marischal College. At the northern University he attracted the notice of the celebrated Professor George Campbell, afterwards Principal, also of his learned colleague, Professor Alexander Gerard. By these eminent theological teachers he was encouraged to publicly criticise the discourses delivered as trials in the Divinity Hall, and he had the satisfaction to find that his strictures were usually approved.

Preparatory to entering on the office of preacher, James Roger so familiarised himself with the sacred volume that he could at once turn to any passage quoted without the aid of a concordance. He had also studied the principal passages in the original tongues. When on trials for probationary licence he, contrary to custom, dispensed with the use of ms. notes. Licensed by the Presbytery of Dundee on the 4th of May 1791, he in the same year was appointed assistant at Cortachy to the aged incumbent; and when a vacancy occurred four years afterwards, the parishioners earnestly entreated the patron for his appointment to the cure. But the living was already promised to another, who was accordingly presented. Mr. Roger now became parochial assistant at Monifieth, and at the request of the minister prepared a description of the parish for Sir John Sinclair’s “Statistical Account of Scotland.” This performance brought him into contact with Sir John Sinclair, who, perceiving his literary ardour, introduced him to the acquaintance of George Dempster of Dunnichen, formerly Member of Parliament, and one of the most accomplished men of the time. Mr. Dempster had undertaken to prepare an agricultural survey of the county of Forfar, but as the work proved arduous, he transferred the duty to his young friend, who, in order to efficiently perform his office, visited every parish in the county. His report was printed in 1794 under the title of “General View of the Agriculture of the County of Angus or Forfar;” it was accompanied with a preliminary dissertation by Mr. Dempster.

In 1795 the Highland Society invited persons interested in husbandry to give expression to their views on these six subjects—Farm houses; farm servants; houses in the Highlands; grain, grass, and green crops; brewing and watering; plantations and natural woods. On these several themes Mr. Roger sent to the Society a paper, which he concluded with these words: "If I have thrown out a single hint which may contribute in any degree to improve the country which gave me birth, my labour will be amply paid, and I aim at no other reward." But the directors, at their meeting on the 9th January 1796, awarded to the writer "a gold medal or piece of plate of the value of five guineas," in acknowledgment of the communication. 1 Included in the Society's collections the paper contains important information on the subjects under discussion, also some valuable suggestions. To arrest the progress of emigration the writer recommended that each agricultural labourer should be provided with a small house and garden, along with a few acres to bring under culture, and also be allowed to graze a cow with the farmer's cattle, and to have a few sheep feeding with his flock.

In 1796 Mr. Roger published an "Essay on Government," intended to allay the excitement which, among peasants and artisans, unduly prevailed through the action of the French Directory. It reached a third edition.

After assisting the ministers of various parishes in the counties of Forfar and Perth, Mr. Roger in the autumn of 1802 proceeded to London, with the view of following the profession of letters. In the Metropolis he sought counsel from his relative, William Playfair, the eminent statistical writer; and by that gentleman he was urged to abandon an enterprise in which few had succeeded so as to earn a decent competence. After a brief experience of London life he returned to Scotland, accomplishing the homeward voyage by sea in about eight days. In Scotland he on his return found ready and congenial employment. He became a leader-writer to a new journal, the Dundee Perth and Cupar Advertiser, and also obtained employment as a preacher. On the 4th July 1803, he started, along with his friend Mr. Dempster, "The Lunan and Vinney Water Farming Society," an association which continued to assemble yearly till July 1814, creating over a wide district a new and increasing interest in the cause of husbandry. To this Society Mr. Roger contributed some important papers.

On the recommendation of Principal Playfair, his cousin-german, Mr. Roger was presented by the United College of St. Andrews to the church living of Dunino, Fifeshire, and was admitted to the charge on the 2d May 1805. As his parish was situated within a few miles of St. Andrews, he was enabled by his proximity to a University Library to actively continue his favourite studies. Abundantly familiar with the Roman writers, he derived recreation in committing to memory choice passages of the Latin poets. Till upwards of fourscore he read, as a daily exercise, the Greek New Testament and portions of the Classics. Nearly every work of value in English literature he had read or looked into; and with the aid of notes he could at any interval recall and utilise the fruits of his research. When geological science was but imperfectly understood, he became a skilful mineralogist. His conversation was singularly instructive, while his description of scenes and events associated with his youth moved with interest and surprise.

Mr. Roger indulged juridical studies as a mental exercise and from the sheer love of justice; and it was the opinion of one to whom he was known incidentally—the celebrated Lord Chief Commissioner Adam—that if he had in London adopted the profession of a barrister, and sought practice in the courts, he would have reached the highest honours of the legal profession. He composed an historical novel entitled "Lord Erichtstream;" it relates to the period of the Scottish Reformation, but is still in ms. After a period of failing health he died on the 23d November 1849, in his 83rd year. He married, 23d January 1823, Jean, second daughter of the Rev. William Haldane, minister of Kingoldrum, by whom he had a son, the writer of these memoirs.

Charles, only son of James Roger and Jean Haldane, was born 18th April 1825; he has assumed the surname of Rogers. Having attended classes in the University of St. Andrews 1839-46, he was licensed to preach in June 1846, and was ordained to the ministry as chaplain of Stirling Castle in 1855, which office he resigned in 1863. He induced his countrymen to rear the national monument to Wallace, and has engaged in various patriotic undertakings. He has issued or edited about forty publications, chiefly in connection with Scottish history and antiquities. He married, 14th December 1854, Isabella, eldest daughter of John Bain, manager of the Bank of Scotland, St. Andrews; she died, 17th September 1880, without issue. Dr. Rogers is LL.D. of Columbia College and D.D. of the College of William and Mary.

Charles, third and youngest son of Peter Roger and Janet Davidson, was born 5th November 1780. A merchant burgess of Dundee, he some time served as a town councillor of that burgh. An accomplished antiquary and historical student, he contributed articles on archeological and historical subjects to the local journals. A collector of rare coins and medals, he acquired some distinction as a numismatologist. Inclined to philological pursuits, he dedicated his leisure to a comparison of the various English versions of the Scriptures, and the fruits of his research he published in an elegant quarto entitled "A Collation of the Sacred Scriptures." Industrious as a genealogist, he prepared pedigree "trees" of the kings of Scotland, which were issued in large copperplate engravings. Engaging in mechanical pursuits, he found congenial occupation in restoring objects of art which had fallen into decay, also in constructing new and ingenious appliances. For a time he held office as keeper of the Dundee Public Library. He married, first, 5th June 1810, Isabella, only daughter of John Allan, burgess of Dundee, who died without issue; secondly, 8th September 1817, Anne, daughter of John Cruikshank of the Island of St. Vincent, who died 1st April 1825, leaving three sons and one daughter.

Charles, the eldest son, was born at Dundee on the 14th April 1819. In 1832 he entered the University of St. Andrews, and subsequently became a student of medicine in the University of Edinburgh. Having settled in Canada, he devoted himself to literary pursuits, and for some time conducted a daily journal in the city of Quebec. In 1856 he issued a volume entitled "The Rise of Canada from Barbarism to Wealth." Eminently conversant with Oriental literature, he has rendered valuable assistance to those engaged in Biblical studies. A retired officer of the Canadian Civil Service, he now resides in the city of Ottawa. He married, first, 27th February 1840, Dorothy, daughter of John McRobie of the Board of Ordnance, Quebec, who died on the 30th August 1872; secondly, Betsy Millar, daughter of John Brown, Mains of Stravithie, Fifeshire, and widow of William Paterson of Dundee, the well-known horticulturist.

By his first wife Charles Roger had issue four sons and one daughter.

John Charles, the eldest son, born at Quebec on the 11th December 1841, is partner in the firm of Maclean and Roger, printers to the Government of Canada. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Nicholas M'Intyre, merchant, Quebec (born 25th December 1846), with issue three sons and seven daughters:—

Charles John, born 19th December 1867, is overseer of the Ottawa Granite and Marble Works Company.
William Henry, born 29th September 1869.
John Maclean, third son, born 28th December 1877.
Elizabeth Matura, born 21st March 1871.
Anne, born 6th September 1872.
Dorothy, born 11th August 1874.
Harriet, born 16th May 1876.
Mary Alphansino, born 3d December 1879.
Catherine, born 19th June 1881.
Emma, born 12th February 1883; she died in infancy.
William, second son of Charles Roger of Ottawa, was born in Quebec, 18th May 1843. He married, in 1870, Matura, daughter of Duncan M. Church, merchant, Harwood, Ontario, without issue.
James, third son, born in 1851, is resident in Montana, Bute City, near the Rocky Mountains.
Joseph, fourth son, was born at Quebec in 1853. He married Louisa, daughter of Captain Smith, of Gloucester, county Ottawa, with issue—
William John Cruikshank.

James Cruikshank, second son of Charles Roger and Anne Cruikshank, was born 21st June 1820. He is a barrister of the Middle Temple, and a Fellow of the Society of Antiquaries of Scotland. An accomplished antiquary, he has contributed several ingenious papers to the archaeological journals. He married, 29th April 1848, Margaret Chalmers, younger daughter of Dr. Francis Neilson, physician in Glasgow, and his wife Margaret, daughter of Thomas Chalmers of Dysart, Fifeshire; she died 15th August 1861. Of the marriage were born a son, Francis Robert Neilson, and a daughter, Anne Carolina Clementina Tytler.

Patrick, third son of Charles Roger and Anne Cruikshank, was born at Dundee on the 6th September 1822. First officer in a merchant vessel, he perished at sea in 1867. Twice married, he left by his second wife a son, George, and a daughter, Catherine.

Anne, daughter of Charles Roger and Anne Cruikshank, was born 19th March 1825; she married, in August 1855, James Strachan, and has issue two sons and three daughters:

Charles Roger, born 26th May 1856; died 26th February 1857.

James, born 6th March 1862, is A.M. of the University of Glasgow, and has otherwise acquired academical distinction.

FAMILY OF PLAYFAIR.

PLAYFAIR is a surname of uncertain derivation. It occurs in "The Jew's Daughter," a Scottish ballad preserved by Bishop Percy in his "Reliques," thus:—

"Then out and cam the Jewis dochter,
Said, 'Will ye cum in, and dine?'
'I winna cum in, I canna cum in,
Without my play-fieres nine.'"

The word "fiere," which denotes a companion, has been made familiar by Burns in his "Auld Lang Syne." In ancient Scottish "fiere" also signifies a furrow, while the instrument of tillage is described as "the plew." Hence the compound word plew-fiere or play-fair may have been applied to some successful husbandman.

On the 19th August 1290 "William Playfayre," described as "the Earl of Orkney's messenger," received from Edward I. a payment of thirteen shillings and fourpence for "bringing letters to him from Sir John Comyn, intimating the arrival of the Maiden of Norway."

A branch of the family of Playfair was, in the sixteenth century, settled in Kent. William Playfere of Kent married Alice, daughter of William Wood of Bolling, about the middle of the century. Their son, Thomas, born about the year 1561, entered St. John's College, Cambridge, in 1584, and after obtaining D.D. and various preferments, was, in 1596, elected Margaret Professor of Divinity. He became chaplain to King James, and was successively rector of Chean, in Surrey, and of Shipdam, in Norfolk. He died on the 2d February 1609, and was buried in St. Botolph's Church, Cambridge, where, on a tombstone representing his bust, is a long eulogistic epitaph, partly in Latin verse. He printed many separate discourses, which have been published in a collected form; he also composed a work on Predestination, which was issued posthumously. By Phineas Fletcher he is celebrated thus:—

"Who lives with death, by death in death is lying;
But he who living dies, best lives by dying,
Who life to truth, who death to sorrow gives
In life may die, by death more surely lives.
   My soul in heaven breathes, in schools my fame;
Then on my tombe write nothing but my name."

On the 23d of April 1431, William Playfair, bailie of Dundee, rendered to the Exchequer an account of the revenue returns of that burgh. At Stirling, on the 13th August 1463, the Receiver of the Ward of the earldom of 2 vols. 4to, vol. i. p. 509.

Errol rendered his account, in which there is a receipt of forty-five shillings and one steer from the land of John Playfere.¹

Descendants of John Playfair, husbandman at Errol, or of his sept, effected settlements in the adjacent parishes. Janet Playfair and her husband, Thomas Wright of Corrilmynle, Perthshire, were, along with William Blair, younger of Balthyock, and others, conjoined in a legal instrument, executed at the Kirk of Kinnoull, on the 16th April 1590, for implementing a marriage contract between their son Thomas Wright and Bessie, daughter of the deceased Dean Pitcairn, Canon of Scone.²

A member of the Errol family settled at St. Andrews. On the 4th May 1579, Patrick Playfair, deacon of the cordiners of St. Andrews, appeared before the Privy Council at Stirling Castle in support of a new grain measure adopted by the local authority, but which the Council had discharged.³ With other burgesses of St. Andrews, Deacon Playfair was summoned before the Privy Council, which met at Edinburgh on the 23d June 1591, charged with taking part in a popular demonstration in which Mr. Andrew Melville, Principal of the New College, was subjected to personal discomfort.⁴

But the deacon of the cordiners personally espoused those principles which Principal Andrew Melville conspicuously upheld. At the University of St. Andrews he educated his son Andrew, who became indebted for his first preferment to his relations in Perthshire. On the 17th March 1594 the kirk session of St. Madoes (a parish adjoining that of Errol) agreed that "Andrew Playfair, son to Patrick Playfair in St. Andrews, be elected to teche the bairnis in the parische and the otheris about the parische," for which he was to be allowed "his buirde and service daylie; alswell for every bairne 6s. 8d. quarterlie."

When elected to the office of schoolmaster at St. Madoes, Andrew Playfair was in his fifteenth year. At the University of St. Andrews he graduated A.M. in 1600. Licensed as a preacher, he was, on the 4th February 1613, ordained minister of Aberdalgie, Perthshire, by Bishop Alexander Lindsay of Dunkeld. He died about 1658, in the forty-fifth year of his ministry. He had a son Andrew and a daughter Margaret.

Andrew Playfair, son of the minister of Aberdalgie, resided in Perth, and there died without issue, prior to the 21st May 1698. He specially bequeathed his moveable estate to his sister and her surviving children.

Margaret Playfair, only daughter of the minister of Aberdalgie, married Mr. George Halyburton, her father's successor in his parochial cure. Cousin-german of Bishop George Halyburton of Dunkeld, George of Aberdalgie was descended from the Halyburtons of Pitcur, who, derived in turn from the house of Halyburton in Berwickshire.

Walter de Halyburton, confirmed a gift made by David his father in 1176 of the church of Halyburton to the Abbey of Kelso. Sir Henry Halyburton swore allegiance to Edward I. in 1296, and on the 23d May 1308 became one of the sureties for the liberation of Bishop Lamberton of St. Andrews. Walter, his great-great-grandson, and a younger son of the first Lord Halyburton of Dirleton, obtained by marriage the barony of Pitcur, to which he had a charter in 1432. James Halyburton, of the family of Pitcur, was Provost of Dundee, and a zealous military leader in the cause of Reformation. He died in 1588.1

George Halyburton graduated at the University of St. Andrews 12th June 1652, and by the Presbytery of Glasgow was licensed on the 10th November 1656. On the 6th August 1657 he was ordained assistant and successor at Aberdalgie. For his attachment to Presbytery he was deprived by the Acts of Parliament 11th June, and of the Privy Council 1st October, 1662. Thereafter he resided at Dupplin, being indebted for a residence to Mr. George Hay of Balhousie, who shared his sufferings. Mr. Halyburton was, by the Privy Council in August 1676, denounced for keeping conventicles. He died in October 1682, at the age of fifty-four, and in the twenty-sixth year of his ministry. His wife, Margaret Playfair, is described as "remarkable for her knowledge, memory of the Scriptures, and gift of prayer."2

At Rotterdam, on the 23d November 1685, she, by a legal writ, empowered her brother, Andrew Playfair, "residerter in Perth," to uplift and discharge her rents.\(^1\)

Of eleven children born to George Halyburton by his wife Margaret Playfair, two only, a son and daughter, survived him. The daughter, Janet Halyburton, who was noted for her piety, married, in June 1682, Mr. Patrick Couper, minister of St. Ninians, afterwards of Pittenweem: she died in 1702, leaving three sons, Andrew, Thomas, and Joseph; also six daughters, Janet, Jean, Margaret, Isabel, Sophia, and Isobel. Janet, the eldest daughter, married, 18th August 1708, Andrew Burn, minister of Anstruther-Wester; she died, 15th April 1771, aged eighty-seven, leaving seven sons and four daughters.\(^2\) Her grandson, Major-General Andrew Burn (born 1742, died 1814), was remarkable for his piety.\(^3\)

Thomas Halyburton, son of George Halyburton and Margaret Playfair, was born at Dupplin in December 1674. Having studied at Rotterdam under Erasmus, he returned to Scotland, and entered St. Leonard's College. He there graduated 24th July 1696. Licensed by the Presbytery of Kirkcaldy on the 22d June 1699, he simultaneously received calls to Ceres, Elie, and South Leith. Preferring the first, he was, on the 1st May 1700, settled in that cure. Eminent as a theological scholar, he was, on the recommendation of the Synod of Fife, appointed Professor of Divinity in the New College, St. Andrews; he entered on his office in April 1710. Professor Halyburton died on the 23d September 1712, at the age of thirty-eight.¹ His chief work, "The Great Concern of Salvation," has frequently been printed, and, with the works of Baxter, Bunyan, and Rutherford, has obtained a wide acceptance among the Scottish peasantry.

A younger son of Deacon Patrick Playfair of St. Andrews studied medicine, and practised as a physician at Dalkeith. By the credulous and gossiping Sir John Scot, he is, in his strictures on the noble family of Lothian, described as "a notable warlock," an apppellative probably due to his medical skill.²

John Playfair, a nephew of Deacon Patrick Playfair of St. Andrews, rented the lands of Randolph-hill, and subsequently owned the estate of Cairney, in the parish of St. Madoes. In that parish he was, in 1593, and subsequently at the annual election, chosen to the eldership; and on his recommendation, his relative, Andrew Playfair, was in 1594 appointed parish schoolmaster. In the parish church his banns of marriage with Catherine Young were proclaimed on the 15th January 1592.³ He married, secondly, Isobel Sharpe, who died 26th May 1606, when he presented to the Commissary Court at Edinburgh her testament-dative, in name of their son John, who was decreed as executor-dative; her "free gear" being valued at £296, 16s. 8d.⁴

John Playfair of Cairney died in 1615. In his will he names his three sons—John, Patrick, and Robert; and as “overseers,” his brothers—Patrick Playfair in Cairney and Andrew Playfair in Kirktoun of Errol.¹

On the 26th July 1617, Patrick Playfair in Cairney, uncle on the father’s side to Patrick Playfair, son of the late John Playfair in Cairney, was served heir to his nephew, the said Patrick.²

John Playfair of Cairney, son of John Playfair and Isobel Sharpe, married Elspeth Anderson.

Peter Playfair, grandson of that “John Playfere” who occupied a farm in the earldom of Errol in 1463, rented the lands of Kirktoun in Errol. He married Helen Cluny, by whom he had two sons.

John, elder son, was baptised at Errol on Sabbath the 6th April 1578. Among the witnesses (described as “sureties”) of the baptism is “John Plafeir in Carnye.”³

Andrew, the younger son, was baptised at Errol on the 27th November 1579.⁴ He was, on the 26th July 1596, “decernit” in the Commissary Court of St. Andrews as executor-dative to his father, who died intestate on the 13th December 1595, the free inventory of his father’s “gear,” consisting of farm produce and household goods, being valued at £120.⁵

Patrick Playfair, one of the sons of Andrew Playfair, son of Peter Playfair in Kirktoun of Errol, rented the farm of Mains of Errol. He married, and had two sons:—

Patrick, baptised 22d August 1644.

Thomas, baptised 25th March 1649. He rented the lands of Balgay, in the parish of Kinnaird. By his wife, Margaret Mathieson, he had an only son—

Peter, who, on the 31st December 1713, obtained sasine of a tenement in Errol to himself in fee, and to his parents in liferent.²

Thomas Playfair, renter of Clashbennie, in Errol, and commemorated on a tombstone in the parish churchyard, with the date 1699, is now represented by his great-grandson, George G. Playfair, manufacturer, Wakefield.

James, brother of Thomas, renter of Clashbennie, settled in Fifeshire, and from him has descended Thomas Playfair, who, in 1885, was Mayor of Sydney, New South Wales.

Robert Playfair, renter of Cupar Grange, prior to 1649, was, it is believed, one of the sons of Andrew Playfair in Errol. He married Christian Ritchie, by whom he had three sons and two daughters:—

Janet, baptised 10th June 1649.
Agnes, baptised 25th September 1652.
John, baptised 17th April 1659.

Patrick, eldest son, baptised 29th January 1644, rented a portion of the land of Cupar Grange, and there died on

"His vertues life and actions have exprest
That now in heaven his soul's at rest."

He married, first, Jean Baxter, by whom he had a son and daughter:

Patrick, baptised 12th December 1673.
Margaret, baptised 1st December 1672; died in childhood.

Patrick Playfair, renter of Cupar Grange, married, secondly, Janet Donaldson, with issue four sons and five daughters:

Isobel, baptised 10th September 1678, married Patrick Gellatly, renter of Cotyards, Bendochy.
Janet, born 1680.
Margaret (second of the name), born 1682; died young.
Beatrix, baptised 22d May 1689.
Margaret (third of the name), born 29th January 1695.
James, third son, baptised 3d February 1687.
John, eldest son, baptised 10th July 1684; rented the lands of Cupar Grange. By his wife, Jean Ure, he had four sons and five daughters:

Isobel, married James Scott, farmer at Whitefield.
Elizabeth, married Patrick Bower, bookseller, St. Andrews.
Janet, married John Butter, farmer, Keith.
Christian, married William Harris, farmer, Millhill.
Helen, married John Alexander, merchant, Perth.

Patrick, eldest son, baptised 23d May 1708, died in infancy.

Charles, baptised 23d September 1710, died in infancy.

James, baptised 6th November 1712, studied at St. Salvator's College, and graduated 4th May 1731. In May 1739 he went to Shetland as chaplain to the Laird of Busta, and was there, on the 6th September, licensed as a probationer. Returning to Perthshire in 1741, he was on the 23d March 1743 ordained minister of Benvie. In terms of a decreet of annexation, he, on the 19th November 1758, became minister of the united parishes of Liff and Benvie. He died on the 28th May 1772, in the thirty-first year of his ministry.1 He married, first, Isobel Ure, without issue; secondly, 9th September 1746, Margaret Young, who died at Edinburgh 31st January 1805, aged eighty-five. Of the second marriage were born seven sons and two daughters:—

Margaret.
Barbara.

John, eldest son, born at Benvie 10th March 1748, studied at the University of St. Andrews. While still a student he was chosen by the Professor of Natural Philosophy, during an illness, to deliver his lectures. In 1765 he graduated in Arts, and in the following year became one of six competitors for the Mathematical chair in Marischal College. Though unsuccessful in the competition, he so highly distinguished himself as to establish a scientific reputation. Completing his theological studies, he was licensed by the Presbytery of Dundee on the 3d October 1770, and, in succession to his father, was ordained minister of the united parishes of Liff and Benvie on the 30th June 1773. To the office of Joint-Professor of Mathematics in the University of Edinburgh he was inducted on the 21st May 1785; he, in 1805, exchanged this chair for that of Natural Philosophy in the same University. Professor Playfair died unmarried on the 19th July 1819. Illustrious as an expounder of mathematical and geological science, a monument to his memory has been raised on the Calton Hill of Edinburgh.

Robert, second son of the Rev. James Playfair and Margaret Young, married Margaret Macniven, with issue four sons and four daughters:

James, died unmarried.

Robert, settled in London. By his wife, Elizabeth White, he had four sons and two daughters:

(1) Albert, born 1824.
(2) William, born 1825; married Georgina Montague.
(3) Edward, born 1827.
(4) Henry, born 1830; married, but died without issue.
(1) Eliza, born 1834; married, first, W. Newton; secondly, S. Harris.
(2) Isabella, born 1837, married H. Vickers.

James, third son of the Rev. James Playfair, was an architect in London. He married Jessie Graham, by whom he had two sons and one daughter:

James George, elder son, born about 1786, was M.D., and practised as a physician in Florence. He subsequently resided at Ventnor, Isle of Wight; at Sevenoaks, Kent, and in the city of Edinburgh. Ultimately settling in London, he there died in 1857. He was unmarried.

William Henry, younger son, was born in Russell Square, London, in July 1789. Having completed a literary course at the University of Edinburgh, he devoted himself to architectural studies. Settling as an architect in Edinburgh, he has, in the words of Lord Cockburn, "rendered that city more indebted to him than to the taste of all other modern architects it has produced or employed." Confining himself to two styles—the earlier and severer Grecian,—and the latest stage of the English Gothic, to which the terms Tudor and Elizabethan are usually applied, he has illustrated these in a tone of high polish. He advantageously modified Adams' design of the Edinburgh College, and designed the Free Church College with its cathedral towers. In classical architecture he reared the Surgeons' Hall, the National Gallery, and the Royal Institution. In St. Stephen's Church he has accommodated the exigencies of classic art to the peculiarities of a difficult site. In Donaldson's Hospital, his greatest triumph, he has brought out the true capacities of the Tudor style, and developed its forms with a beauty and completeness which the English architects of the fifteenth century failed to accomplish. Mr. Playfair died at Edinburgh on the 19th March 1857, at the age of sixty-eight.

Emma, daughter of James Playfair and Jessie Graham, resided in Edinburgh, and died unmarried.
William, fourth son of the Rev. James Playfair, was born 1759. A mechanical engineer, he was employed in the works of the celebrated James Watt. Subsequently he prosecuted the mechanical arts at London and Paris, and became advantageously known by the number and utility of his inventions. At Paris he held the editorship of Galignani’s Messenger. Latterly he resided in London, and acquired distinction as a statistical writer. Among his more important literary undertakings is his “British Family History,” in five quarto volumes. He died on the 11th February 1823, at the age of sixty-four. He married, and had two sons and three daughters:—

John.
Andrew.
Betsy.
Zenobia.
Louisa.

Andrew, fifth and youngest son of the Rev. James Playfair, settled in London, and there died without issue.

John, third son of John Playfair and Jean Ure, was born in 1714; he rented Nether Cupar Grange. By his wife, Catherine Moncur, he had issue three sons and seven daughters:—

James, born 1742, settled in Aberdeen. He married Mary Thomson, and had issue two sons and three daughters:—

(1) John, born 1766.
(2) David, born 1767; married, with issue three sons:—
Alexander, born 1797, married Jane Kilgour, with issue two sons and three daughters:—

(1) David, born 1830, married Ann Sim, with issue two sons and three daughters: Alexander, born 1860; David, born 1864; Mary, born 1853, married D. Mackay; Jane, born 1855; Eleanor, born 1861; Agnes, born 1872.

(2) Charles, born 1836, married Jane Simpson, with issue a son, Charles, born 1872.
Margaret, born 1833, married William Cruikshank.
Sarah, born 1840, married William Smith.
Janet, born 1843.

Charles, second son of David Playfair, born 1799, married, first, Mary Sanderson, with issue—
Charles, born 1823, married Louisa Bentley, with issue—

(1) Charles, born 1865.
(2) Louisa, born 1858.
(3) Helen, born 1863.
(4) Kate, born 1868.
Charles Playfair (son of David) married, secondly, Margaret Smith, by whom he had—
Robert, born 1829, died unmarried.
George, born 1831, married Elizabeth Bruce, without issue.
He married, thirdly, J—— Thomson, by whom he had a daughter, Charlotte, born 1871.

John, third son of David Playfair, born 1801, married S—— Tredwell, but died without issue.
James Playfair's three daughters, by his wife, Mary Thomson, were—Anne, born 1769.
  Margaret, born 1771.
  Mary, born 1774.

Patrick, second son of John Playfair and Catherine Moncur, was baptised 2d September 1750.
  John, third son, baptised 19th May 1764, married Jane Watson.
  Margaret, eldest daughter of John Playfair, born 1745, married — Nasmyth, Edinburgh.
  Isobel, baptised 20th December 1748, married Samuel Hanna, Dundee.
  Grizel, baptised 16th August 1752.
  Sophia, born 1758, married Robert Mitchell, Muirhead.
  Elizabeth, } twins, born 30th May 1762.
    Jean, }
  Catherine, baptised 5th January 1766, married James Neish, Officer of Customs at Dundee, with issue a son and daughter, John and Katherine Sophia, twins.

David, fourth son of Patrick Playfair, renter of Cupar Grange (by his second wife, Janet Donaldson), married, 21st December 1717, Anne Donaldson, of the parish of Bendochy, with issue three sons and three daughters:—
  Janet, baptised 10th February 1719.
  Isobel, baptised 15th March 1727, married William Kirkaldy.
Margaret, baptised 7th December 1729, married John Bower, Glen Ogilvy.

James, eldest son, baptised 4th December 1720.

Patrick, third son.

John, second son, baptised 2d May 1723, rented the farm of West Cupar Grange. He married, 23d August 1751, Sophia, fifth daughter of William Roger, renter of Cupar Grange, with issue four sons and six daughters:—

Anne, eldest daughter, baptised 28th February 1753, married, 20th December 1774, Thomas Myles, merchant, Perth, by whom she had three sons, John, Robert, and Thomas. from the University of St. Andrews 2d July 1779, and was repeatedly invited to preside as moderator of the General Assembly—an honour which he persistently declined. On the 20th August 1800 he was appointed Principal of the United College, St. Andrews. He published in 1784 a "System of Chronology," in large folio, and in 1808-14 a "System of Geography," in six quarto volumes, and a "Statistical Description of Scotland," in two octavo volumes. He died on the 26th May 1819, in his eighty-first year, and the forty-ninth of his ministry. He held the honorary office of Historiographer to the Prince of Wales.

Principal Playfair married, 30th September 1773, Margaret, elder daughter of the Rev. George Lyon, of Wester Ogle, in the county of Forfar, and minister of Longforgan; she died at St. Andrews 4th November 1831, aged eighty-six.

A member of the ancient house of de Leonne in France, attended William of Normandy in his conquest of England. His son, Roger de Leonne, accompanied King Edgar, son of Malcolm Canmore, to Scotland about 1091, and in guerdon of his services against Donald Bane, the usurper, received lands in Perthshire, which were consequently named Glen Lyon. From him descended Sir John Lyon, who, about 1342, had a charter of the lands of Forteviot, in Perthshire, and of Curteston and others, in the county of Aberdeen. His son John, a man of superior abilities, was Chamberlain of Scotland, and in reward of service received from Robert ii., in 1372, the thanedom of Glamis. In 1376 he married the King's second daughter, Jean Stewart, receiving with her the barony of Kinghorn. The grandson of Sir John Lyon and of the Princess Jean was, before 1450, raised to the peerage as Lord Glamis. By his first and second sons were perpetuated the family honours. William, his third son, received the lands of Ogle, in the county of Forfar; his descendant, George Lyon of Wester Ogle, had a son, William, who in 1700 was admitted minister of Airlie. He died in 1743, leaving a son, George, who in 1738 was admitted to the ministry at Longforgan. George succeeded to the paternal estate, and died in 1793. He married as his second wife, 16th June 1744, Margaret Roger (who died 9th April 1793), with issue, James, D.D., minister of Glamis, and two other sons; also two daughters, of whom Margaret, the elder, became wife of Principal Playfair.¹

Of the marriage of Principal Playfair and Margaret Lyon were born five sons and four daughters:—

George, eldest son, was born at Meigle on the 4th January 1782. Educated at the Universities of St. Andrews and Edinburgh, he entered the medical service of the East India Company on the Bengal Establishment, and attained the rank of Inspector-General of Hospitals. He died 26th November 1846. He married, 8th November 1814, Janet, daughter of John Ross, Edinburgh (born 16th April 1795, died 13th April 1862), with issue five sons and four daughters:—

(2) Lyon, second son, was born at Meerut, Bengal, 21st May 1819. Educated at the University of St. Andrews, he at a very early age devoted himself to chemical studies. In 1834 he studied chemistry under Professor Thomas Graham at the Andersonian University, Glasgow; and after a period spent in India, he rejoined his friend Graham, then Professor to the London University. In 1838 he commenced the systematic study of organic chemistry under Professor Liebeg at Giessen, and became qualified for the Professorship of Chemistry in the Royal Institution, Manchester, to which he was elected in 1843. In the following year he was appointed one of the Sanitary Commissioners, and in recognition of his important services was, by Sir Robert Peel, appointed chemist to the Museum of Practical Geology. In connection with the Great Exhibition of 1851 he was appointed to visit the manufacturing centres. He also held office as Special Commissioner of the department of Juries, and had conferred upon him the decoration of C.B. in recognition of his services. At the Exhibition of 1862 he was intrusted with the appointment of jurors—these consisting of upwards of six hundred eminent persons of all the countries of Europe. In 1853 he was appointed Joint-Secretary of the Department of Science and Art, and in 1856 was nominated Inspector-General of Government Museums. In 1858 he was appointed Professor of Chemistry in the University of Edinburgh, an office which he held till 1868, when he was elected M.P. for the Universities of Edinburgh and St. Andrews. In 1873 he was appointed Postmaster-General, and honoured with a seat in the Privy Council. From 1880 to 1883 he served as Chairman of Committees in the House of Commons. In 1885 he was Vice-President of the Council. After representing the Universities for seventeen years, he retired from the constituency, and was thereafter, at the general election in November 1885, returned as M.P. for South Leeds. By the same constituency he was again returned at the general election of 1886.

In 1884 Dr. Lyon Playfair was created a Knight Commander of the Bath. He is Commander of the Legion of Honour, and of the Austrian Order of Francis Joseph, Knight of the Portuguese Order of the Conception, Knight of the Swedish Order of the Northern Star, and Knight of Württemberg. In 1840 he graduated Ph.D. of the University of Giessen, in 1865 was created LL.D. of St. Andrews, and in 1869 LL.D. of the University of Edinburgh. He is a Fellow of the Royal Society, and in 1857 was chosen President of the Chemical Society of London. He has served on a large number of Royal Commissions, either as member or as President, and has published numerous scientific papers as well as addresses on educational subjects.

Sir Lyon married, first, in 1844, Marjory, daughter of James Oakes, of Riddings House, Derbyshire, with issue a son and a daughter.

FAMILY OF CONSTABLE.

The Constable or Count of the Stable was in the royal household an office of the highest rank. The Constable of France commanded the army in the absence of the sovereign, and was the supreme regulator at tilts and tournaments. Soon after the Conquest a Lord High Constable became judge in the Court of Chivalry in conjunction with the Earl Mareschal, but the office was abolished by Henry VIII. on the attainder of the Duke of Buckingham. A Lord High Constable is now appointed only on the event of a coronation.

In Scotland a Constable was first appointed in the reign of Alexander I. He kept the king's sword, led the royal army, and was chief of the barons. By David I. the office was made hereditary in the family of De Morevile. It was subsequently conferred by King Robert the Bruce on Sir Gilbert de la Haya, and by a royal charter, dated 12th November 1314, was made hereditary in his house. As the descendant and representative of Sir Gilbert de la Haya the Earl of Errol is High Constable of Scotland.

Subordinate to the High Constable were the governors of the royal castles, who were usually styled Constables. They exercised jurisdiction not only in the stronghold, but within the constabulary, which usually included a considerable extent of precincts. In connection with the principal castles the office of Constable became hereditary.

During the thirteenth and the early part of the fourteenth centuries, when surnames were generally adopted, the custodiers of castles might naturally assume as a family appellative the designation of their office. Thus, on the 5th April 1365, David II. confirmed a charter whereby Alexander, called Constable, son and heir of the deceased Roger Constable, burgess of Aberdeen, granted, on the 14th May 1350, to the Carmelite Friars of Aberdeen, an annual rent of four merks sterling, out of his land lying in the castle street, on the west side of the said castle.\(^1\)

Old Scone, in Perthshire, was the capital of Pictavia, one of the four kingdoms into which Scotland was anciently divided. Here, at the Mote Hill, Pictish sovereigns exercised judicial authority, and when in 844 Dalriada and Pictavia were united under Kenneth Mac Alpin, that sovereign chose Scone as a centre of government. He brought thither from Dunstaffnage Castle the Stone of Destiny, depositing it in the Culdee church. Early in the twelfth century this church was extended into an abbey, of which the precincts extended to 12 acres. The structure was also adapted as a royal residence, and place of coronation. Hence the building was assigned to the care of a secular guardian or constable. In the account rendered at Scone, in July 1329, of the obligations of the Chamberlain, is included the item of 13s. 4d. allowed by the clerk of the Liverance to Symon the Constable, for his robe. And at Perth, on the 21st April 1360, John the Constable and two others rendered their account as collectors of the third contribution for the King's ransom, within the quarters of Dundee and Kerymore [Kirriemuir].

On the 28th July 1364 David II. granted to John of Pitscoty, burgess of Perth, a charter of certain tenements in Perth, especially of that tenement in the North Street, on the north side thereof, between the land of John Bell in the east, and that of Thomas the Constable on the west.

On the 16th February 1373-74, John the Constable is named as one of the collectors for the contribution "de Starmound," that is, of the district of the Stormont.

A portion of land at Kinclaven, in Perthshire, and in the vicinity of the Stormont is, in 1456, described as "The Constable Lands."

On the 2d September 1458 John Constable is witness to a charter in which is confirmed a charter, dated at Callander 29th June 1448, by which Janet de Fenton, younger of the co-heirs of Walter de Fenton, Lord of Baky, and relict of Robert Stewart, grants to William Haket, Archibald, who was born at Carnbee, 24th February 1774. Educated at the parish school, he was, in 1788, apprenticed to Mr. Peter Hill, bookseller in Edinburgh, the friend and correspondent of Burns. Becoming a bookseller in the city on his own account in 1795, he afterwards added the business of a publisher. In 1801 he acquired the property of the Scots Magazine, and when, in October of the following year, he issued the first number of the Edinburgh Review, he suddenly emerged into fame. In 1804 he admitted as partner Mr. Alexander Gibson Hunter of Blackness, who in 1811 retired from the concern. His connection with Sir Walter Scott, with whom his name is so largely identified, commenced in 1805, when, in conjunction with Longman and Co. of London, he published the "Lay of the Last Minstrel." In the introductory epistle to the "Fortunes of Nigel" he is, in 1821, commended by Sir Walter Scott as one "whose vigorous intellect and liberal ideas had not only rendered his native country the mart of her own literature, but established there a court of letters which commanded respect even from those most inclined to dissent from many of its canons." Notwithstanding the commercial disaster which attended his publishing house in 1826, Archibald Constable will continue to be remembered as a munificent patron of literary genius. His Maurice, born 6th September 1872; William Vaughan, born 10th March 1876; Lucy Constable, born 26th February 1874.

(2) Lucy, born 22d March 1849, died in May 1864.

(3) Mary, born 27th December 1850, married, 17th January 1872, James Noel Forsyth of Quinish, Isle of Mull, with issue three sons and four daughters:

James Somerled, born 3d December 1874.
Noel Constable, born 19th June 1878.
Thomas Constable, born 23d March 1885.
Lucy Magdalene, born 11th May 1873.
Julia Gladys, born 22d February 1876.
Amy Millicent, born 29th December 1880.
Mary Dorothy, born 1st August 1882.

(4) Katharine Augusta, born 5th December 1852, married, 14th October 1884, William Patrick Bruce, papermaker, Kinleith, with issue a son, Harry, born 4th September 1885, died 23d January 1886.
Eliza, eldest daughter of Archibald Constable and Mary Willison, was first wife of Robert Cadell of Ratho Park, the well-known publisher of Sir Walter Scott’s works. She died in 1818.

Anne, second daughter, born 7th July 1805, married in 1835 George Skipton, of the Indian Civil Service; she died, 13th February 1863, without issue.

Mary, third daughter, died unmarried.

Margaret, fourth daughter, died unmarried.

Catherine, fifth daughter, died unmarried, 28th December 1824.

Archibald Constable the publisher married, secondly, 12th February 1818, Charlotte Neale, with issue three sons and a daughter:—

(1) Archibald George, born 22d March 1822. For many years employed in the establishment of Messrs. Harper, publishers, New York, he died at Brooklyn on the 25th October 1882, leaving two sons, George and Henry.

(2) Marmaduke, born 8th November 1823, settled at Sydney, New South Wales. He married, first, in 1852, Anne Mary Bramah, who died in 1864, without issue; secondly, on the 8th July 1865, Josephine Gougenheim, of New York, with issue two sons, Marmaduke and Archibald; also two daughters, Josephine and Adelaide Charlotte.

(3) John, M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, born 12th March 1825, is rector of Marston Biggott, Somersetshire. He married, 14th January 1856, Emily Walker, of Scarcroft Hill House, Leeds, with issue six daughters, viz.:

Emily Dora.
Martha Millie.
Margaret Eliza; married, 24th May 1885, James Elphinstone Erskine, R.N., with issue, David Victor Fairfax, born 4th March 1886.

Ethel Mary; died 18th February 1867.

Ellen Rawson.

Charlotte, only daughter of Archibald Constable by his second wife, married James Thomson of Camphill, Lanarkshire; she died in 1855 without issue.

John Constable, farmer, Leuchars, married, secondly, Anne Robertson, by whom he had five sons and three daughters:

Charles, fourth son, born 1714, was bred a farmer, and settled in Berwickshire, where he acquired the estates of Peelwells and Moorhall. In the county of Berwick he introduced an improved mode of husbandry. He sold his estate of Peelwells; that of Moorhall was inherited by his son John.

Thomas Constable, burgess of Dundee, executed a testamentary settlement, dated 8th February 1593.¹

John Constable, trader at Dundee, who died 23d April 1773, married Barbara Kirkaldy, with issue two sons and five daughters:—

George, the elder son, solicitor in Edinburgh, purchased in 1789 the lands of Wallace Craigie, for the sum of £2170, and as the area of the estate has since been included within the burgh of Dundee, the rental has by feuing become largely in excess of the purchase-money. Inclined to antiquarian pursuits, George Constable attracted the attention of young Walter Scott, who rejoiced to accept his hospitality. In the course of visiting him at Wallace Craigie, Scott became familiar with those scenes which he has depicted in "The Antiquary." In that novel the Laird of Wallace Craigie is represented in the character of Jonathan Oldbuck of Monkbarns. George Constable died in 1803, unmarried.

David, second son of John Constable, a prosperous grazier at Dundee, died 14th July 1778. By his wife, Agnes Watson (who died 30th May 1822, aged eighty-nine), he had four sons; also four daughters, Matilda, Agnes, Barbara, and Christian, who all died unmarried.

Thomas, the eldest son, was licensed to preach by the Presbytery of Dundee in 1783, and in 1785 was ordained minister of Liff. In 1809 he received the degree of D.D. from the University of St. Andrews; he died, 17th April 1817,¹ aged sixty-seven.

James, second son, practised as a physician in Jamaica, and there died, 21st October 1821.

David, third son, a Captain of Marines; died in 1791.

George, fourth son, was Colonel of the Bengal Artillery. He is the prototype of Captain M'Intyre of "The Antiquary." He died 12th July 1838.

Of the five daughters of John Constable and Barbara Kirkaldy, Christian, Helen, and Jean died unmarried. Barbara married Captain Hill, and died without issue.

Matilda, the eldest daughter, married, 17th January 1756, Laurence Brown, an officer in the Royal Navy, who in 1777 was appointed to the command of the Princess Caroline, a ship cruising in the revenue service. Third and youngest son of the Rev. Laurence Brown by his wife Elizabeth Lyon, his brothers were Robert, minister of the English Church, Utrecht; and William, Professor of Church History at St. Andrews, father of Principal William Laurence Brown of Aberdeen. Of the marriage of Captain Laurence Brown and Matilda Constable (who died 12th October 1796) were born two sons and a daughter—Barbara, who married William Chalmers, town-clerk of Dundee.

George, the younger son, died June 1839. He married, with issue three sons—Laurence, George, and Robert Mansel; also a daughter, Matilda Barbara.

Laurence, eldest son, succeeded to the estate of Wallace Craigie, by virtue of a deed of entail executed on the 23d February 1796 by his uncle, the Antiquary, and under which he was called upon to add to his patronymic the name of Constable. He died 13th September 1824. He married Anne Saunders (who died in June 1810), with issue six sons and two daughters:

(1) Laurence Brown-Constable, succeeded his father in the estate of Wallace Craigie, and died unmarried, 25th December 1829.

(2) William Brown-Constable, born 14th February 1804, succeeded his elder brother in the family estate. He married Lady Mary Margaret, eldest daughter of Henry David Erskine, Earl of Buchan, and died without issue, 19th July 1852.

(3) George, an officer in the Mercantile Marines, died unmarried in 1830.

(5) Henry, died in 1819.

(6) Alexander, sixth son, died young.

(4) Charles Brown-Constable, born 20th March 1807, succeeded his brother William in the estate of Wallace Craigie. He served in the 18th Regiment Bengal Native Infantry, and is now Lieutenant-Colonel. He has been twice married, and has issue eleven sons and six daughters.

The families of Nicol Constable of Balmyle and Cally, in the county of Perth, derive maternally from the stock of Constable of Wallace Craigie.
FAMILY OF HALDANE.

Of Norse origin, Haldane is a surname common in Denmark. In the twelfth century a younger son of Haldane of that Ilk in Roxburghshire married the heiress of Gleneagles, in Perthshire. Aylmer de Haldane of Gleneagles was one of the barons who, in 1296, swore fealty to Edward I. On the 16th September 1376, Robert II. granted to Sir James of Lindesay, his grandson, the lands of Aberbothry, and the castle of Invercuyth, etc., which belonged to Bernard of Hawden (Haldane) and others, in the thanage of Alyth.¹

At Pentecost 1457, the Abbot of Cupar leased one half of Polkak, Blarachnoch, and Achnekathyl to William Haldane, and the other half to John Roger. A descendant of the former, James Haldane, obtained from the Abbot of Cupar in 1542 a lease of the lands of Wester Drummy.² On the 27th April 1481, Patrick Haldane of Keillor, in the parish of Newtyle, and Walter Haldane witnessed at Perth, on the 27th April 1481, a charter by Thomas Fotheringham to Silvester Rettre of that Ilk, of the lands of Ballewny.³ And on the 8th September 1493, James iv. confirmed a charter, granted on the 4th April 1492, by Patrick Haldane of Wester Keillor to Silvester Haldane, his son and apparent heir, of the lands of Wester Keillor. Patrick Haldane in Keillor is witness to a charter, dated 22d June 1496, granted to William Haliburton, son of John of Gask. At Perth, on the 27th September 1489, James, Earl of Buchan, confirmed to George Blair, son of David Blair in Bendochy, a charter of half of the east lands of Ketnys [Kettins], which were held in ferme by Alexander Haldane and others. And on the 28th April 1528, John, Earl of Buchan, confirmed a charter granted to John Haldane, son of Silvester Haldane of Keillor, and Elizabeth Gray his spouse, of half the lands of Easter Keillor. At Pitcur, on the 24th June 1526, James v. confirmed a charter by Silvester Haldane of Wester Keillor to his grandson and apparent heir, Robert Haldane, of the lands of Wester Keillor.

In 1574 George Haldane, of the family of Keillor, was reader in the parish church of Newtyle, with a salary of £20. In 1645 Easter Keillor fell to Susan, heiress of her brother, Alexander Haldane. The estate afterwards passed from the family of Haldane to that of Haliburton of Pitcur.

In the thanage of Alyth, where we found Bernard of Hawden or Haldane in 1376, the family continued to hold lands. According to tradition, a member of the sept extended hospitality to James v. when he was benighted in hunting, and was rewarded by receiving his lands under an easy tenure. The king humorously designed the conditions of occupancy in these words:

"Ye Haddens o' the Moor ye pay nocht
But a harren tether if its socht,
A red rose at Yule, an' a sna'-ba' at Lammas."

The lands of the Haldanes in the Moor of Alyth comprehended the farms of Barmony\textsuperscript{1} and Poultrywells; also St. Ninian's Park and the pendicle of Greenslade. These lands were in the eighteenth century held under a feudal superior. In a legal instrument recorded in the Commissariot Register of Dunkeld, on the 15th August 1717,\textsuperscript{2} Sir James Kinloch of that Ilk is named as superior. Prior to 1667 the lands of "The Moor" or Poultrywells, and of Barmony, were apportioned between two male representatives of the family.

In April 1667 Andrew Halden "in the Moor" had a daughter, Christian, baptised. Contemporaneously there were baptised to Alexander Halden "in Bairdmonie" two sons and three daughters, viz.:

Andrew Haldane of "The Moor" is in 1709 named as an elder of the parish. On the 1st February 1714, he is, under the designation of "Andrew Halden of Powderwells" [Poultrywells], described as having "sett in tack and asse-dation to Alexander Stephen in Couper Grange the twelfth part of the towne and lands of Bermanie."²

Andrew Haldane married about 1698, with issue two sons and four daughters:

Anne, baptised on the 9th June 1700,³ died in infancy.

Elizabeth, born 1702, married, 28th May 1727, James Brown,⁴ tenant in Barmony. Descended from John Brown "in Leitfie" and his wife Janet, younger daughter of William Roger of Cupar Grange, who died in 1562 (see Family of Roger), he purchased, 5th July 1756, the lands of Balloch, in the parish of Alyth. By his wife, Elizabeth Haldane, he had three sons—Andrew, David, and John.

Andrew, the eldest son, succeeded to the lands of Balloch. He married, first, Margaret Mathewson, by whom he had a son, John, whose surviving child, Margaret, married David Mathewson, now of Balloch. Andrew Brown married, secondly, Isabella Smith, with issue a son, David, who purchased the lands of Wester Derry, in the parish of Glenisla.

parish of Alyth. On the 27th December 1786, he was, with six others, drowned at Crathie on the Isla by the wrecking of the ferry-boat. In November 1775 he married his cousin, Margaret, younger daughter of James Haldane of Poultrywells, with issue three sons and two daughters—

James, born 22d September 1776, died in 1849. He married, without issue.

David, born 1st May 1778, died young.

Elizabeth, born 30th January 1780, died young.

Jean, born 22d March 1784, died in 1857, unmarried.

William, the third son, born 25th March 1781, emigrated in 1820 to Iowa, in the United States; he there died, 22d September 1821. He married, 1st December 1809, Margaret, daughter of Thomas Hain, of the parish of Ceres, Fifeshire; she died at Keokuk, in the State of Iowa, 4th December 1864, aged eighty-one.

Of the marriage of William Brown and Margaret Hain were born three sons and two daughters:—

(1) John Haldane, eldest son, was born 10th December 1810. He settled in Illinois, and died at Monmouth in that State on the 9th August 1839. He married, in 1836, Jane, daughter of William Struthers, a native of Glasgow, with issue two sons:—

William, who, graduating at Monmouth College, and entering the ministry of the United Presbyterian Church of North America, settled at Eugene, Iowa. He is married, with issue.

Thomas, accidentally drowned.

(2) James, second son, born at Alyth 31st October
1812. Having studied in Hanover College, Indiana, where he afterwards graduated D.D., he, on the 11th September 1840, was ordained as a minister of the United Presbyterian Church in the district of Pittsburg. Soon afterwards he accepted a charge at Madison, Indiana, where he laboured for twelve years. His next charge was at Keokuk, Iowa, where he ministered for twenty-one years. After some further pastoral service in the same State, Dr. Brown, at the age of seventy-one, retired into private life. In 1876 he presided as Moderator of the General Assembly of his denomination, and he has extensively contributed to periodical literature. He married, first, 17th May 1838, Nancy T. Anderson, a native of Roxburghshire (she died 8th July 1849), with issue five daughters:—

Margaret Janet, died in infancy.

Isabella, married, first, Captain J. J. Moore, with issue three children; secondly, Archibald B. M'Candless, M.D., of Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Eliza Jane, married O. G. Given, M.D., of the Indian School, Carlisle, Pennsylvania, with issue two sons.

Sarah Ellen, died in infancy.

Nancy Taylor, died in infancy.

Dr. James Brown married secondly, 13th February 1851, Rebecca H. White, granddaughter of the Rev. John Smith of the county of Stirling; she died 27th June 1873.

Thomas, third son of William Brown, was born 6th September 1814. A minister of the United Presbyterian Church of North America, he is settled at Welda, Anderson county, Kansas. He married, 20th February 1838, Elizabeth Nesbit Hamil (she died 11th July 1871), with issue two sons and five daughters:—

Thomas Hugh, born at Cambridge, Ohio, 7th March 1855. A zealous minister of the United Presbyterian Church, he, after a period of failing health, died on the 8th September 1886.

The surviving daughters are:—

Jessie E. Craig, a widow, with two sons and two daughters.

Martha; unmarried.

Margaret, wife of Hibbard Hall, Centralia, Illinois.

Jane, elder daughter of William Brown, born 20th July 1816, married Henry Liggett (deceased), with issue ten children, of whom survive:—

Thomas, residing at Mount Ayr, Ringgold county, Iowa.

James, who resides at Gerlaw, Warren county, Illinois, and is married, with two children.

John Haldane, who resides in Crawford county, Kansas.

Mary Jane, married Joseph Garside, Gerard, Crawford county, Kansas.

Margaret Agnes, married Fletcher Tennent, Gerard, Kansas, with issue six children.

Margaret, younger daughter of William Brown, born 18th June 1819. She married, 25th September 1845, John S. Watson, Mitchell county, Kansas, who died 25th June 1876. She has had ten children, of whom survive—

James Allan.
Robert M‘Cheyne.

Rebecca Maria.

Helen, third daughter of Andrew Haldane of Barmony, was baptised on the 15th June 1704.
Anne, fourth daughter (second of the name), was baptised on the 22d January 1707.
Andrew, the second son, married, 7th December 1735, Elizabeth Christie, of the parish of Alyth, by whom he had a daughter, Susanna, baptised 28th December 1736.¹

James Haldane, elder son, succeeded his father in the family inheritance. He erected a family residence, placing over the principal entrance the date 1749 on a carved lintel stone, with his initials and those of his wife. He married, about 1736, Jean Donaldson, a descendant of Patrick Donaldson, portioner of the Mains of Rattray, and sister of the Rev. James Donaldson, ordained in 1741 minister of Glammis. Of the marriage were born one son and two daughters:—

Janet, elder daughter, baptised 18th March 1739, died unmarried.
Margaret, younger daughter, baptised 27th May 1749, married her cousin, John Brown, with issue (see page 114).
James, only son of James Haldane of Barmony and Jean Donaldson, succeeded to the paternal estate; he also rented a farm at Bendochy. He died in May 1766. He married Christina, daughter of William Mackintosh, farmer at Millhill, parish of Alyth, second son of John Mackintosh of Ballochraggan, a scion of Mackintosh of Dalmunzie. Of the marriage were born a son, William, and two daughters.

Jean and Margaret, twin daughters of James Haldane, were born on the 5th May 1765. On the 6th August 1766, the testament-dative and inventory of their deceased father was produced in the Commissary Court of Dunkeld by John Crockat and Robert Soutar, as "tutors nominated by the defunct on the 15th May on behalf of his daughters." His moveable estate was valued at £215, 16s.

Margaret died young, and unmarried.

Jean married John Milne, parish of St. Vigeans, Forfarshire, with issue two sons, William and David; also two daughters, Anne and Helen. William and Helen died young.

Anne, elder daughter, married her second cousin, James Mackintosh, residing in Alyth. She survives, at the advanced age of ninety.

David, younger son of John Milne and Jean Haldane, was born 25th May 1800. He married Priscilla, daughter of John Kerrigan, of the county of Westmeath, with issue several children, all of whom died young, save Jean, the eldest child (great-granddaughter of James Haldane of Barmony), who married, 9th August 1856, William Gee, Lecturer on Physical Science, and agent to the Lancashire and Cheshire Institutes, Manchester, with issue four sons and a daughter:—

William Winsor Haldane, born 29th June 1857, is B.Sc. of the University of London, and Demonstrator in Physics at Owens College. He has, conjointly with Professor Balfour Stewart, published a work on Practical Physics.

Arthur Gilbert David, born 24th February 1864.
John Albert, born 23d August 1870.
Tom Harold Charles Milne, born 8th April 1876.
Annie Elizabeth, born 24th July 1862.

William Haldane, only son of James Haldane, portioner of Barmony, was born on the 1st August 1763. At the University of St. Andrews he distinguished himself by his acquirements in Greek literature. Licensed to preach by the Presbytery of Meigle 18th June 1788, he was, on the 7th April 1795, ordained minister of Glenisla, from which parish he was translated to Kingoldrum on the 20th March 1803. An earnest and faithful pastor, he was also distinguished for his private virtues. He died, 27th May 1836, in the seventy-fourth year of his age, and forty-second of his ministry. He married, 16th May 1796, Anne, second daughter of the Rev. Charles Roberts; she died 18th September 1846. Mr. Roberts was son of Alexander Roberts, who rented the Mains of Phesdo, in the parish of Fordoun, Kincardineshire, and was born in May 1727. With orders in the Scottish Episcopal Church, he sometime ministered at Dundee; he afterwards proceeded to Antigua, where he died in 1772. He married Anne, elder daughter of Sir John Ogilvy, Bart. of Inverquharity.

The family of Ogilvy are of ancient lineage, deriving from the Maormors of Angus, one of the seven Scottish hereditary chiefs, who, in the eleventh century, exchanged the Celtic appellative of Maormor for Earl, its Anglo-Saxon equivalent. Gilchrist, Earl of Angus, who flourished in the reign of King Malcolm Canmore, was succeeded by his son Gilibrede, whose third son, Gilbert, assumed the name of Ogilvy from land so called, of which he in 1172 received a grant from William the Lion. From Gilbert Ogilvy descended Sir Patrick Ogilvy of Wester Powrie, a devoted adherent of King Robert the Bruce, and more remotely, Sir Walter Ogilvy of Auchterhouse, who held office as Sheriff of Forfar. Descendants of the Sheriffs were—Ogilvy, Earls of Findlater and Seafield; Sir Walter of Lintrathen, Lord High Treasurer, ancestor of the Earls of Airlie; and the family of Ogilvy, baronets of Inverquharity. Sir John Ogilvy, fourth baronet, married as his second wife Anne, daughter of James Carnegie of Finhaven, grandson of David Carnegie, second Earl of Northesk. Their elder daughter, Anne, married, first, the Rev. Charles Roberts, with issue two daughters, Anne and Mary.

Mary, the younger daughter, married, 28th April 1792, the Rev. Thomas Ogilvy, minister of Kirriemuir, with issue.

Anne, the elder daughter, married the Rev. William Haldane, with issue five sons and three daughters:—

(1) John Roberts, baptised at Glenisla 3d April 1797, was a physician in the Merchant Service; he died in 1835.
(2) William, born at Glenisla 26th May 1800, died in 1817.

(3) Walter, born 9th May 1802, prosecuted merchandise; he died in 1838. He married Susan, daughter of Charles Hill, Forfar, with issue a son, William, who died in infancy; also two daughters:—

Margaret.

Anne Stirling, married, 6th August 1863, Nicholson Cumming, second son of the Rev. John Cumming, D.D., F.R.S.E., minister of the Scots Church, Crown Court, London, and author of numerous theological works. Of the marriage were born two sons:—

Walter John Haldane.
William Nicholson.

(4) James Ogilvy Haldane, fourth son of the Rev. William Haldane and Anne Roberts, was born 31st August 1809. Having studied at the Universities of St. Andrews and Edinburgh, he was licensed to preach 3d October 1832. On the 20th October 1836, he was ordained minister of Kingoldrum, in succession to his father. Having attained his jubilee in the pastorate, he in November 1886 retired from active ministerial labour, and settled in Edinburgh. He married, 23d November 1871, Helen, daughter of John Gunn, Esq. of Risgill, Caithness, without issue.

(5) Thomas, born 23d June 1813, died in infancy.

(1) Anne, eldest daughter, born 7th November 1798, died in infancy.

(2) Jean, second daughter, baptised 19th January 1804, married, 23d January 1823, the Rev. James Roger, minister of Dunino. (See Family of Roger.)

(3) Innes, third and youngest daughter, born 20th August 1806, died in 1827.

Anne Ogilvy, widow of the Rev. Charles Roberts, married, secondly, John Duff, of the family of Duff of Drummuir, Banffshire, with issue two sons, Robert and John; also three daughters. The sons held commissions in the Army, and both fell at the siege of Seringapatam. Barbara and Margaret, the second and third daughters, died unmarried. Innes, the eldest daughter, married, as his second wife, the Rev. John Skinner, Dean of Dunkeld, author of "Annals of Scottish Episcopacy," son of Bishop Skinner of Aberdeen, and grandson of the Rev. John Skinner of Linshart, Dean of Aberdeen, the celebrated author of "Tullochgorum" and other popular songs. Mrs. Innes Skinner died in April 1872, at the age of ninety-four.
