ON THE FRONT COVER

Native Tennessean Dolly Parton’s song, “Smoky Mountain Memories,” provides the theme for the 2012 Annual General Meeting highlights.
We continued to celebrate this special year for Grahams worldwide at our 2012 Annual General Meeting (AGM) in Tennessee by commemorating the birth of one of Scotland’s greatest heroes and patriots—the renowned James Graham, 5th Earl and 1st Marquis of Montrose, who was born in 1612—400 years ago.

Celebrations have also occurred in Scotland, especially at a memorial service at the High Kirk of St. Giles, Edinburgh, during the same weekend as our 2012 AGM in May. Our chief’s son, the Marquis of Graham, attended the service, since our Chief himself, the 8th Duke of Montrose, joined us for a similar celebration during our AGM in Tennessee.

Our Chief also attended a silver arrow competition at St. Andrews University in Scotland where the 1st Marquis of Montrose attended as part of his education. The silver arrow was won twice by the 1st Marquis during his stay there. The BBC was on campus in the pouring rain as they were completing the shooting of their proposed one-hour documentary on the Great Marquis’ life, narrated by Professor Ted Cowan of Glasgow University.

Moreover, our Chief recently attended a ceremony in Plymouth, England, to present Diamond Jubilee medals to the crew of the Type 23 Frigate HMS Montrose. This year marks the Queen’s Diamond Jubilee (60th anniversary) of her reign on the throne.

Our 2012 AGM in May went off very well indeed! It took place concurrently with the Smoky Mountain Highland Games on the campus of Maryville College, in Maryville, Tennessee, which made it very convenient for everyone. Our Chief, His Grace, the Duke of Montrose and his wife, the Duchess, attended all events and were very happy to join us again and very interested to see, for the first time, that part of the USA. You will be able to see and read more about our 2012 AGM in the following pages of this issue and on our website.

When the Mayor of Maryville, Tom Taylor, found out that our Chief was interested in agriculture and that he had farms in Scotland, he invited him on a tour of the University of Tennessee dairy cattle research farm where cutting edge technology is used to grow pastures, raise cows and produce milk. We were able to fit this in on Monday morning after the AGM, just before their planes took off for the United Kingdom where our Chief had an appointment with peers in the House of Lords, Westminster, and the Duchess had to fly back home to Scotland.

This year’s AGM included a changing of the guard when Larry Nichols retired and Jim Nethery took over as president of the Clan Graham Society. Larry has done a great job for us over the last four years and this was recognized during the AGM banquet. Once again I say thanks, Larry, for all you have done for us. I do hope that you will continue to support the Clan Graham Society and I do hope that you will continue to be in the loop with us, especially with Editor/Webmaster Ekena B. Parkinson and Vice President of Communications Wrifton Graham, with regard to their communications work for us.

Also, please join me in congratulating Jim Nethery on his new position as president. Please give Jim your support as he takes hold of the reins of the Society. I will give Jim as much assistance as he may need and I'm sure that Larry will do this, too.

My sincere thanks go out to all those of you who worked so hard in arranging the 2012 AGM this year. In particular, my thanks goes out to Cliff Fitzsimmons, our membership chair vice president, who somehow managed to also be the Games chair as well as chair of the AGM arrangements this year. Cliff was greatly assisted in many respects by Jeremy Dick, the Society’s treasurer, and his wife, Betty. Thanks, Jeremy and Betty, and all those who attend and represent the Society at Games and gatherings across this continent. I hear such good comments on the hospitality that our representatives provide at these events and the enthusiasm exuded by these Grahams.

So let us continue this year by celebrating the life of the Great Marquis, who had such an impact on Scottish history and is an inspiration. To think that he was a Graham certainly adds to our enthusiasm, of course! My wife, Kate, and I expect to attend the Seaside Games in Ventura, California, during the weekend of October 13-14, 2012. Since we celebrated the 400th anniversary on the East Coast this year we hope to encourage those on the West Coast to join us to continue the celebration.

Sincerely,

P.S. By the way, and digressing from what I have said so far, four of my grandchildren, ages 3 to 12, recently went to see the movie which our editor, Ekena, featured in the Society’s last Clan Graham News. The children thoroughly enjoyed the movie “Brave” (an animated Disney*Pixar production) and so did their parents who took them!
From the Desk of the President
W. James (Jim) Nethery

The United States recently celebrated their Independence Day, a time to remember the sacrifices that their forefathers made to gain their freedom and what so many other brave American men and women have done since then to protect that freedom. Our Canadian brothers and sisters have similar experiences as they join the United States and Britain in trouble spots around the world.

We should not forget that our ancestors in Scotland also faced an enemy and proclaimed their independence more than 450 years before the United States was formed. The Declaration of Independence was inspired in part by the Declaration of Arbroath, which was signed by three Grahams, David, John and Patrick, in 1320. Twenty-one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence were of Scottish descent and two (John Witherspoon and James Wilson) were born in Scotland.

Today the United States enjoys the results of the terrible risks that their founding fathers took to establish their nation. The possibility of defeat was enormous and the results would have been fatal for every man who signed the Declaration of Independence if the 13 colonies had not prevailed. In addition, their wives and children would have suffered at the hands of the English with the loss of everything they owned, followed by a lifetime of hardship and poverty as indentured servants.

Generations of Americans have built and contributed to the life we are privileged to enjoy and hopefully to strengthen and protect for coming generations—all this, without risking our lives and homes as our forefathers did.

Part of the quality of life we enjoy is the celebration of our Scottish heritage through studying and sharing our cultural inheritance. This involves the organization of clan societies that are centred around our common ancestry and family ties. Like any voluntary organization these societies require volunteers to make them work effectively. As is usually the case there is a chronic lack of willing members available to ensure effective function of many societies.

From the United States Independence Day to the Declaration of Arbroath to clan societies, you may ask, “Where is he going?” Here is the pitch. If you get a call from the Continental Convener, the Nominating Committee, a regional commissioner or any one else in the Clan Graham Society asking you to take on an assignment, please remember our ancestors who signed the Declaration of Arbroath while fighting Edward Longshanks, or our forefathers who signed the Declaration of Independence at risk of life and home, then give your answer.

We all can step forward and contribute to make this a better place even if the US is not at war with England today. Thank you for your willingness to help.

Ne Oublie,
The Grahams made memories and lasting friendships at the 37th Annual General Meeting (AGM) this year in Maryville, Tennessee, at the Ruby Tuesday Lodge, whose grounds are located on the Maryville College campus where the Smoky Mountain Highland Games were held during the same weekend.

The Clan Graham was also distinguished during the festivities, due to the presence of James Graham, His Grace, the 8th Duke of Montrose, clan chief, who was the guest of honor at the Games.

The Society’s very own Clifford Fitzsimmons, vice president of membership, did double duty over the weekend, since he is also president of the Smoky Mountain Highland Games.

Thursday, May 17, 2012

The Clan Graham Society officers and other members met in the morning to discuss important Society business. The meeting was chaired by outgoing President Larry Nichols.

In the evening, musicians Conny Ottway and Mark Douglas Murray entertained members in the Ruby Tuesday garden area at an informal welcome reception. The Duke and Duchess just arrived in Tennessee that afternoon to meet and greet everyone.

Friday, May 18, 2012

A group of Grahams toured the Great Smoky Mountains and were lucky to see not only interesting historical sites, but at least two bears. Unfortunately, park staff was on hand to prevent the wily Grahams from recruiting the bears as new Society members.
and putting them to work at the clan tent over the weekend.

Shuttles also took members to downtown Maryville for dinner and shopping, while the Society’s executive officers, the Duke and Duchess and sponsors attended the Games cocktail social and gala later that night.

In a departure from tradition, the Mugdock Auction was held the evening prior to the AGM and Banquet, with old-hand Joel Warren acting as auctioneer, helped by two lovely assistants, Norris Graham of Arizona and Dave Graham of New Hampshire. The auction raised more than $1,650! Many thanks to all who participated, voluntarily or by coercion, in the preservation of Mugdock Castle.

The 400th birth anniversary of the Great Marquis of Montrose is commemorated at the Maryville College campus chapel.

A young bagpiper plays music and leads members of the Clan Graham on a march from the chapel to the Games field.
The Grahams came together the next morning to commemorate the 400th anniversary of the birth of James Graham, the 1st Marquis of Montrose, during a special service at the Maryville College campus chapel. Kathleen Fitzsimmons played piano and the Reverend Anne McKee presided. Richard Graham, Jim Nethery and His Grace, the Duke of Montrose, gave details of the Great Marquis’ life and insight into his character and times. (Full transcripts of their speeches may be downloaded from the Society website at http://www.clan-graham-society.org/400marquis.html.)
Following the service, members proceeded to the Games and opened the tent for the day. The Duke was present for the opening ceremonies.

After the Games, the AGM was held at the Ruby Tuesday Lodge. Larry Nichols passed the torch to Jim Nethery, the Society’s new president, and special gifts were presented to the Duke and Duchess. A few irrepressible Grahams followed the dinner with more merrymaking at the “Ceilidh Under the Stars” on the Main Games Field, while others enjoyed the koi pond and conversation.

SUNDAY, MAY 20, 2012

On the final day of the Games, members marched in the Parade of Tartans before bidding each other farewell later in the afternoon at an informal social at the Ruby Tuesday Lodge.

Many thanks to the organizers of the 2012 Clan Graham Society AGM for their dedicated service:

- Jeremy and Betty Dick
- Kiersten Graham Dick
- Cliff Fitzsimmons
- Angela Groenhout
- Ron and Annette Graham Jones

Thanks also to the attendees for contributing many wonderful ideas and exuding a spirit of fellowship!

Grahams gather at the Loch Norman Highland Games in North Carolina during the weekend of April 20-22, 2012

FROM BARRETT GRAHAM

NEWPORT, NORTH CAROLINA

The Loch Norman Highland Games in North Carolina opened Friday evening, April 20, 2012, to pleasant weather and a well-attended Calling of the Clans. State Convener Barrett Graham answered the call for Clan Graham, which was in attendance for the 19th consecutive year.

The weather was also splendid on Saturday, April 21, with 16 visitors who signed in, including:

- Harry Conyers
- Chad and Beth Graham
- Gary Graham
- Mike and Ann Graham
- Sue Graham
- Julie Jaramillo
- Cheryl Mitchell
- David Netherly
- Katherine Graham Pickett
- Andrew F. Sam
- Sarah Turner
- Charles Ward
- Matthew Waisner
- Graham Weaver
- Carol Godwin Wood

We also welcomed countless well-behaved children at our clan tent, who are not unlike flocks of small birds at a bird feeder, obtaining “visas” for their “passports.”

Attendance at the Games overall was steady. But several of the vendors we ordinarily expect to see were conspicuous by their absences, undoubtedly reflecting the current economic conditions. In the finest traditions of Loch Norman, the weather changed Saturday night and liquified the sunshine on Sunday, April 21.

Kudos and special thanks are due to Cheryl Mitchell who provided invaluable assistance at the tent and represented Clan Graham in the Parade of Tartans.
Despites storms in Dunedin, Grahams get together in Florida for the Dunedin Highland Games on April 21, 2012

STORY AND PHOTOS BY ROBERT GRAHAM

HASLETT, MICHIGAN

Greetings to all the Grahams from West-Central Florida, namely, Gulf Coast Dunedin, where the 46th annual Dunedin Scottish Games and Festival took place at Highlander Park on April 21, 2012.

Opening ceremonies began at noon. Seventeen drum and pipe bands led the Parade of Tartans and Clans. The Clan Graham banner was carried by young clan members Rebecca, Haley and Kyle Graham, followed by James and JoAnn Graham from Tampa, Florida, and Leo and Shea (Graham) Ford and their two sons, Charlie and William, in their strollers from Largo, Florida. Douglas Graham carried the tartan flag and Janet and Robert Graham also marched. What a fine group of representation for the Grahams.

After the parade, the national anthems of the United States and Canada were sung by Katherine Laursen and accompanied by the drum and pipe bands. The honored chieftain for these games was Chief Kenneth Gieson of Dunedin and the honored clan was Clan Dunbar. This was all followed by greetings from Provost Fergus Wood from Stirling, Scotland, who welcomed and invited us all to Stirling in 2014 for a summer of festivities and games. He later stopped by the Clan Graham tent to reaffirm his invitation. It should also be noted that he brought greetings from the former Stirling Provost, Colin O’Brian, who some of us may remember from the Society’s 2005 Annual General Meeting (AGM) in Scotland.

By 3 p.m., a storm forced the games to close. Who would have thought that this would happen to us two games in a row? After we were rained out, a few remaining Grahams gathered at a local restaurant for an enjoyable meal and fellowship. Attending was Doug Graham, Rosemary Graham Doyle, Robert and Janet Graham, and James and JoAnn Graham.

Thanks to Doug Graham who brought a new poster of the septs of the Clan Graham to display at the tent, which proved helpful for a couple from Dunedin, Florida, who were looking for a clan to which they belonged. Moran and Luana Bunting have now found a new home and their clan. Immediately they signed up as new members of the Society and the Clan Graham family. They are very active seniors who participate in the Senior Olympic Games. They are winners in kayaking, marathon running and biathlons. Welcome to our group!

Descendants of John and Mary Graham in Canada celebrate 90 consecutive years of family reunions in June 2012

STORY AND PHOTOS BY BILL RICHARDSON

ONTARIO, CANADA

The pride of the Grahams was evident in Oakwood, Ontario, Canada, this past June 10, 2012, as the descendants of John and Mary Graham gathered to celebrate their heritage and to pass on their enthusiasm to another generation of John and Mary’s family.

John and Mary Graham emigrated to Canada from Newtonhamilton, County Armagh, Northern Ireland, about 1842 and settled in Darlington County, Ontario. Armagh is situated 31 miles southwest of Belfast and the city of Armagh was once considered the chief city in Ireland. Armagh is situated between counties Tyrone, Down and Monaghan and the soil is fertile and well adapted to growing potatoes, wheat, flax and oats. Most farms of this period would have been subsistence farms operated with the labour of a man and his wife and the support of their family, living on the fruits of their labour. This would have been fine had not the potato famine come along, devastating the main source of food for Ireland and causing starvation for many; emigration would be the only resort for many. It has been said that this branch of the Graham family moved from Perthshire, Scotland, to the Island of Islay and then to County Armagh, Northern Ireland—about 25 miles between Islay and Ireland.

John and Mary left Ireland for Canada to endure a long, trying voyage during which John died at sea. His death left Mary to care for five of their nine children in a new land amid unfamiliar customs and no wage earner to support her and her children. The oldest child, Samuel, and his wife Ellen and two children, plus two of Samuel’s siblings, Margaret and Robert, came to Canada separately in 1847; no doubt they would be welcomed by Mary and the rest of her family. Jane, the oldest daughter, married and remained in Ireland.

As we entered the Community Hall at Oakwood, we were impressed by the genealogies that were displayed on the walls of the hall. Each branch of the Graham family was designated a colour, allowing the reader to know at a glance, whose genealogy they were seeing:

- Samuel—orange
- Jane—blue
- Mary and Eliza—yellow
- David—brown
- Margaret—green
- John—turquoise
- Robert—gray
- Thomas—mauve

Many pictures were displayed of ancestors and reunions of days gone by that would have held the interest of those who had been present in earlier times.

Some guessing games were displayed on tables for a little fun and later prizes for the correct answer:

- How many jelly beans were in a jar?
- Strange tools—what were they used for?
- Steal the clothespeg

We were given a clothes pin at the registration desk and soon learned that if we had any part of our body crossed over, the younger members of the group could claim the clothes pin, with the winner at the end of the day being the person with the most clothes pins; I soon lost mine!

A good assortment of races was ongoing outside, keeping the young and the not-so-young entertained for about an hour. By far the most popular contest was eating a donut that was strung on a rope—no hands the last person whose donut hole was complete and still on the rope was the winner.

All of this activity was watched over by a falconer and his bird, a Harris hawk—how like the Grahams to have a falconer on hand to watch over the day’s proceedings. I had been asked to bring my bagpipes to play for the reunion and my playing was to be the signal for all to go inside for the short meeting and the potluck meal to follow.

I was also asked to say a few words from Clan Graham and had the honour of presenting to Margaret Graham, the reunion chairwoman, a ‘Certificate of Recognition’ acknowledging the 90 consecutive years that this family had gathered to celebrate their Graham heritage. The document displayed the armorial bearings of our Chief, His Grace, James Graham, the 8th Duke of Montrose; Chieftain of the Clan Graham in North America, Richard Graham; and the arms of Clan Graham Society. The document was signed by His Grace; Richard; W. James (Jim) Nethery, president of Clan Graham Society; and myself, William Richardson, Vice President for Canada, Clan Graham Society. With our Chief’s and Chieftain’s signatures this certificate should become a valuable addition to the archives of the family of John and Mary Graham.

At the completion of my presentation I played the pipe tune, “Song for Mary,” in remembrance of Mary Graham.

It is times like this that one feels proud to be a part of Clan Graham. Ne oublie—“Do not forget”.

Scenes from the celebration (clockwise from top left): Bill Richardson plays the pipes to signal the beginning of the event and to remember ancestor Mary Graham; children have fun during various games throughout the day, such as eating donuts from a rope; a falconer and his bird, a Harris hawk; and a special presentation of a certificate, signed by the 8th Duke of Montrose, and Society officers, to Margaret Graham, 90th reunion chairwoman, from Bill Richardson, Vice President of the Clan Graham Society in Canada.
The call went out, “Rioghail agus maraon!” and the Grahams in the stands answered “Loyal and united!”

According to tradition, we gathered on MacRae Meadows, near Linville, North Carolina, for the moving torchlight ceremony and for the calling of more than 87 clans who came to Grandfather Mountain over the weekend of July 12-15, 2012, for the 57th annual Grandfather Mountain Highland Games (GMHG).

It was a chilly 66 degrees high on the mountain—a little before sun set. A cool breeze had picked up that afternoon, shifting the thick mists that rolled across the infield. In the meadow that evening the long-sleeved Graham tee shirts sent by Dave and Jane Graham of New Hampshire kept us warm, and those of us lucky enough to have remembered our good wool blankets huddled in them waiting for the service to start.

Bill Coburn brought his Border Collies. As we waited for the clans to be raised, his dogs Maggie and Luke herded sheep around the ankles of amazed spectators. Out in the infield, the mist was so thick the sheep couldn’t be seen.

Highland games are athletic, dance and musical competitions. Games are also about family, about tradition and about unity found in common bonds of pride in who we are and from whence we came. The food, music, competitions and the beauty of a natural setting, so like a wee bit of Scotland, are inspiring. All these elements (as well as anticipation for the weekend ahead) were on most people’s minds that night as the calls went out and as each clan answered with applause, and in the Graham’s case, with a united response.

What a perfect beginning for a weekend full of everything Scottish! We had plenty of rain, good spirits and some warm sun, too. The weekend was especially memorable for me because it marked the 50th anniversary that my two siblings and I last gathered on Grandfather to enjoy the games. My sister, Ellen McDaniel, brought plates commemorating the 400th anniversary of the birth of James Graham, 1st Marquis of Montrose, the sale of which will be donated toward the restoration of Mugdock Castle in Stirlingshire, Scotland, stronghold of Clan Graham since the 13th century.

My brother, James Graham Speidel, proudly called the Grahams at Friday’s torchlight ceremony—he was COLD! He also carried the Graham tartan in the Parade of Tartans on Sunday.

Many Clan Graham Society members dropped in to say “hello” at the Clan Graham tent. We visited with John Lowry (California), Todd and Donna Hull (Florida), and John Harmon (North Carolina)—all experienced conveners whose help was welcome as we greeted and talked with visitors from 11 states as well as the United Kingdom and Canada. John even treated us to several verses of Killiecrankie. We will practice up and give him some harmony next time.

Eighty-eight visitors signed the guest register and sampled yummy home-made graham crackers made from the recipe found in the Fall 2010 edition of The Clan Graham News. Four new members filled out applications: Charlotte Graham, Graham Graham (yes, Graham is very proud of his heritage!), Graham and Susan McArver and James Graham Speidel.

We are ready for next year, because all of these new members have indicated that they will answer the call to help with next year’s games.

NOTE: The experience of putting the items together to create an informative and inviting display for our Clan Graham tent has been very rewarding. It was all taken on at the last minute, when I found that our clan was not formally scheduled to attend these important games.

Thanks to the Society’s National Convener, Bill Graham, for all of his help and to our Chief, Richard Graham, and our president, Jim Nethery, for trusting a newbie! Thank you, too, to JoAnne and Bill Graham (Greensboro, North Carolina) who lent a complete stranger their beautiful tartans, books and banners.

Any new members wondering how they might become active in our clan’s Society have only to jump in. Those who have not yet joined the Society may visit us at http://www.clan-graham-society.org/.

Young Highland dancer Katelyn Fraker wins scholarship; sends personal note of thanks to Clan Graham Society

Dear Members,

Thank you for the scholarship! It helps so much to pay for dance lessons and workshops. That saves my family’s dance money for wardrobe and travel to competitions. I appreciate the scholarships that Clan Graham has given me the past 5 years. They’ve made it possible for me to continue highland dancing!

A Service of Commemoration was held for the life of James Graham, 5th Earl and 1st Marquis of Montrose (1612-1650), at St. Giles Cathedral, in Edinburgh, Scotland, on Monday, May 21, 2012. The Service was led by the Very Reverend Gilleasbuig Macmillan, Minister of St. Giles.

There were about 180 present in the congregation, including over 20 clan chiefs either present or represented, such as Ronald MacDonald of Keppoch, The Earl of Airlie, Donald Cameron Yr of Lochiel and several Stewarts including Sandy Stewart of Ardvorlich. Professor Ted Cowan gave an excellent eulogy. In addition to 20 members of the Graham family, Janet Dawson and Dr. Catriona MacDonald also attended. John Craig was present as well (he is godfather to the Marquis of Graham).

The Marquis of Graham fulfilled his role to perfection, giving an excellent reading and laying a wreath.

At the reception in the Signet Library, he also presented to Pipe Major Alan Johnston, who composed the pipe tune “The Great Marquis of Montrose,” with a wee gift from the Society and received, on behalf of the Society, in return a framed copy of the sheet music.

Unfortunately, the tune will not be performed in this year’s Royal Edinburgh Military Tattoo (REMT) but the Director has promised to give it a special spot next year. The director, David Allfrey, has also promised to publish and promote the tune.

The University of Wisconsin-Stout Alumni Choir was also present at the ceremony and sang various hymns in tribute to the Great Marquis of Montrose.

Christine Grahame, MSP, who also attended the Service, had put down a motion before the Scottish Parliament which was debated on Thursday evening (May 17, 2012). The debate lasted for about 30 minutes and was a great credit to the Marquis of Montrose but also to the members of the present Parliament who took part.

To read about the motion on the Scottish Parliament website, go to http://www.scottish.parliament.uk/parliamentarybusiness/28877.aspx?SearchType=Advance&ReferenceNumbers=S3M-07441. Lord Donald Graham was also present at the debate.
MONTROSE MUSEUM IN SCOTLAND FEATURES EXHIBIT ENTITLED “TO WIN OR LOSE IT ALL” THIS SUMMER

The Montrose Museum in Angus, Scotland, is featuring a special exhibition entitled “To Win or Lose It All” from July 14 - September 22, 2012.

With a great deal of help from 1st Marquis of Montrose Society Chairman Malcolm McVittie, this exhibition is part of the 400th anniversary commemoration year, and Malcolm and the museum curator, Rachel Benvie, have managed to put this on against all the odds and with very little funding.

Secretary Brian Robertson reported, “At the Annual General Meeting (AGM), our Society did approve a donation to the museum of £2500 to assist with the costs of the exhibition.”

Despite limited financial resources, however, and with the great good will of many of the contributors, the exhibition contains a number of stunning portraits and artefacts which you really should not miss. These include original portraits, personal items which belonged to the Marquis and the blood-stained clothing which he was wearing at the time of his execution. Also on display is Montrose’s heart which was removed from his body after his execution although it must be clearly stated that there are two honourable custodians who currently claim to be holding this relic and as yet there are insufficient means to be able to verify which heart is authentic.

Malcolm is due to give three Montrose-related lectures during the time of the exhibition and more information is available at the museum, which is located at Panmure Place Museum Street, Montrose, Angus, DD10 8HF. The website is at http://www.angus.gov.uk/history/museums/montrose/.

The 1st Marquis of Montrose Society will visit the museum on September 9, 2012, as part of its autumn weekend itinerary. Members are encouraged to make an effort to visit the museum sometime during the dates of the exhibition.

MONTROSE’S LIFE INSPIRES POEM; FRANKA ROSE Writes “FOUNDATIONS”

As the Clan Graham worldwide continues to celebrate the 400th birth year of James Graham, the Great Marquis, in 2012, one fan recently expressed a tribute to Montrose by writing a poem.

Franka Rose (1958-), who was born in Sardinia, Italy, and moved to Canada when she was 2 years old, was inspired to write “Foundations” after reading extensively about Montrose’s life.

“History is a love of mine but never have I become as interested in an individual as I have in James Graham, Marquis of Montrose,” explained Franka. “He was many things, a knight, warrior, gentleman, a Lord, kind, generous, husband, father and friend. Many other labels can be attached but mainly he was a man.”

Franka admitted that she first learned about Montrose from “a romance novel—of all things—and it was on the very last page that the author mentioned that James Graham was a real man who fought during the Civil Wars in Scotland and was hung and quartered in 1649. I was immediately drawn to find out who the real Montrose was, as the character in the book was ninety percent fictional.”

She continued, “When I did a bit of research and looked at all that was written about the man, I did not want to read just anyone’s book because there were a few books that were considered fictional. The only two authors I thought worthy of reading. Perhaps there are others but I started with [the book by] the Rev. Dr. George Wishart. (Montrose’s friend) “Memoirs of The Most Renowned James Graham,” published in 1819, and Mark Napier’s “Memoirs of Marquis of Montrose” Volumes I and II), published in 1864. These two books or three gave me everything I could want to find out from beginning as a child (Napier) to end, the real man’s life.”

Read Franka’s inspired poem online, as well as other poems written by Montrose himself and Poet Laureate and former Society Bard, Father Drew McDonald Graham, at http://www.clan-graham-society.org/poetry.html.

GEORGE EDWARD GRAHAM LISTED AMONG PASSENGERS WHO DIED FROM THE TITANIC

This year marks the 100th anniversary of the sinking of the R.M.S. Titanic. The famous film, “Titanic,” starring Leonardo DiCaprio and Kate Winslet, under the direction of James Cameron, was re-released as a 3-D movie. Several museums have showcased in special exhibits recovered artifacts from the Titanic in their collections. And documentaries and performances about the Titanic still draw large audiences throughout the years.

Rich Graham from Vermont, who watched “Titanic-The Musical,” shares that he saw in a theater lobby a list of the passengers on the ill-fated ship. He found the name George Edward Graham, who was traveling first class, and did not survive. He was a Canadian traveling back to Winnipeg and was born in 1873.

Rich hopes that this tidbit of information could increase interest in genealogy stories related to the Titanic passenger.

George Edward Graham (1873-1912) was a first-class passenger from Canada who did not survive when the Titanic sank a century ago.
