P R E F A C E.

THE Protocol Book of Sir William Corbet, which is here printed in abridged form, is in H.M. General Register House, being No. 4 of the series of Protocol Books preserved there. It is a small octavo volume of ninety-six folios embracing the years 1529-1555, but as there are only four entries dated prior to 1540, it may be said to cover the period 1540-1555 only. Several of its leaves are wanting, and what remain are by no means in a good state of preservation, the handwriting being very often faint and unreadable. The notary describes himself as "priest" and "chaplain" (Cf. Nos. 33 and 63), but the editors have been unable to find any further information regarding him, or to throw any light on his parentage. Attention may be drawn to No. 93, which contains a very interesting note of his private expenditure for part of the months of June and July 1542. The transactions recorded in his Protocol Book deal almost entirely with subjects in the counties of Roxburgh and Berwick, chiefly in the parishes of Linton and Merton.

Same date and witnesses as above, 78a.
72. The same day, "Margaret Ker, laydye Hwym," obliged herself to warrant John Hwym of Coldenknowis, knight, at the hands of Thomas Fairbarne, his heirs, &c., of the above sum of £80 ; and if Alexander, Lord Hwym, her spouse, returns to these parts of Scotland before 3rd May, she shall cause him within ten days after his return to give an obligation similar to this for relief of Sir John. Date and witnesses same as above, 78b.
73. The same day, Thomas Fairbarne of Gordonmyll constituted Alexander, Lord Hwym and Margaret Ker, his spouse, his assignees in and to a reversion given to him by George Jhonsoun for the redemption of one of the five husbandlands of the Myddylthrid alienated by said Thomas, and he obliged himself to deliver the reversion to the above Margaret Ker, Lady Hwym, within 15 days. Date and witnesses same as above, 79a.
74. Instrument narrating that Thomas Bauarach, bailie in that part of John Crenstoun of that ilk, passed to the lands under described, and there

John Hoppringill, after designed, presented to him a Precept of Sasine (dated at Jedburgh 7 November 1551), by John Cranstoun of that ilk, lord of the lands of Smalem, setting forth that, by a retour to Chancery, it was found that Cristina Boid, mother of the said John Hoppringill, died last vest and seised as of fee at the peace and fealty of the queen in the lands commonly called Boidislandis alias Cokburnlandis, lying in the granter's barony of Smalem and sheriffdom of Roxburgh; that said John is the lawful and nearest heir of his mother in said lands, that he is of lawful age and that the lands are held of the granter in chief; and that, by a precept from the Queen's Chancery, the granter is commanded to deliver sasine to said John, which he directs his bailie, Thomas Beuarage, to do accordingly. Sasine given on the ground of said lands and at the principal manor thereof, 9th November 1551. Witnesses to the precept, John, Lord Borthik, Gavin of Borthik, Michael Borthik, Thomas Cranstoun and Master Walter Pille, notary public. 75. Instrument narrating that there compeared a young man, George Rutherford, of Glasgow diocese, and Katherine Haliburton, a woman, of same diocese, who produced the apostolic letters in manner of a dispensation, after described; and that further, they, holding said letters in their hands, humbly craved Sir George Haliburton, canon of the Monastery of Dribrocht, to dispense mercifully with them in terms of the letters, which being seen, shown, read and understood, the said venerable father dispensed with the said George and Katherine in terms of the dispensation, of which the tenor follows:—Peter Lambert, Bishop of Caserta, etc., to all sons of mother church, chaplains in cures and not in cures within the kingdom of Scotland: Whereas a petition was offered on behalf of George Rutherford, layman, of Glasgow diocese, and Katrine Haliburton of same diocese, spouses, narrating that they formerly, knowing that they were related in the fourth degree of consanguinity and affinity, contracted marriage between themselves "per verba de presenti" publicly, intercourse following; and since the said spouses cannot remain in matrimony without a dispensation, and if there were a divorce between them, grave scandals would likewise arise, they have humbly petitioned that the benefit of due absolution and fitting dispensation may be mercifully provided to them by the apostolic See. The bishop, therefore, to avoid scandal and by the power granted to him, commits (to the chaplains, etc.) that, if it may be, the spouses may be absolved from the general sentence of excommunication they have incurred, and having enjoined to each of them, for their fault, a salutary penance, the chaplains may at last dispense with them that, the impediment notwithstanding, they may lawfully remain together in contracted marriage so that the woman shall not be taken away by anyone, decerning the offspring to be legitimate. Given at Rome 28th January 1551. These things were done in the chapel of John Haliburton of Murroslaw on 31st January 1551. Witnesses, John Haliburton, Thomas Bell, Sir George Haliburton, vicar of Mertoun, and Sir William Tailfar, vicar of Maxston, 81a.
