INTRODUCTION.

The Register of Apprentices for the City of Edinburgh, from 29th May 1583 to 30th May 1666, was edited by Francis J. Grant, W.S., now Lyon King of Arms, and was issued in 1906. The present volume carries on the work to the end of the year 1700, and owes much to its predecessor.

There are no separate registers of apprentices; the entries occur along with those of Burgesses and Guild-brethren in the scroll registers of the Dean of Guild Court, from which the Burgesses and Guild-brethren were carefully and legibly entered in their own register volumes, some of which still exist. Whether the entries of apprentices were so transferred I cannot say; if so the volumes have disappeared.

The writing of those scrolls is execrable, utterly hasty and often almost illegible. The regular form of the entry can, of course, always be followed, and as a rule the christian and surnames can be deciphered without much risk of error, but the local names are so badly written, and often so evidently a wild attempt at phonetic spelling, that even the experts, whose help I most gratefully acknowledge, have in some cases been forced to rest content with little more than conjecture.

In many—perhaps most—cases the local names refer to lands quite beyond reach of identification.

Some notes and a glossary will be found at the end of the book when completed.

NOTES.

David Sime from Saintfort, 14 May 1740, showing how old that form of the name is.

DALVELL-MENTEITH connection (see p. 62).

Sir Thomas Dalyell of Binns, Bart. of Nova Scotia, married Catherine, daughter of Sir William Drummond of Riccarton, by whom he had a son Thomas and two daughters, the elder being Magdalen. This son Thomas, the second Baronet, died unmarried.

His sister Magdalen married, 1688, James Menteith of Auldcathy, heir-male and representative of the family of Menteith, Earls of Menteith, and bore him seven sons and three daughters.

The eldest son, James Menteith, succeeded his uncle Sir Thomas Dalyell as the third Baronet of Binns, assuming the additional name of Dalyell. He also succeeded as heir-male to James Menteith of Milnhall, 1728. He had three sons and a daughter.

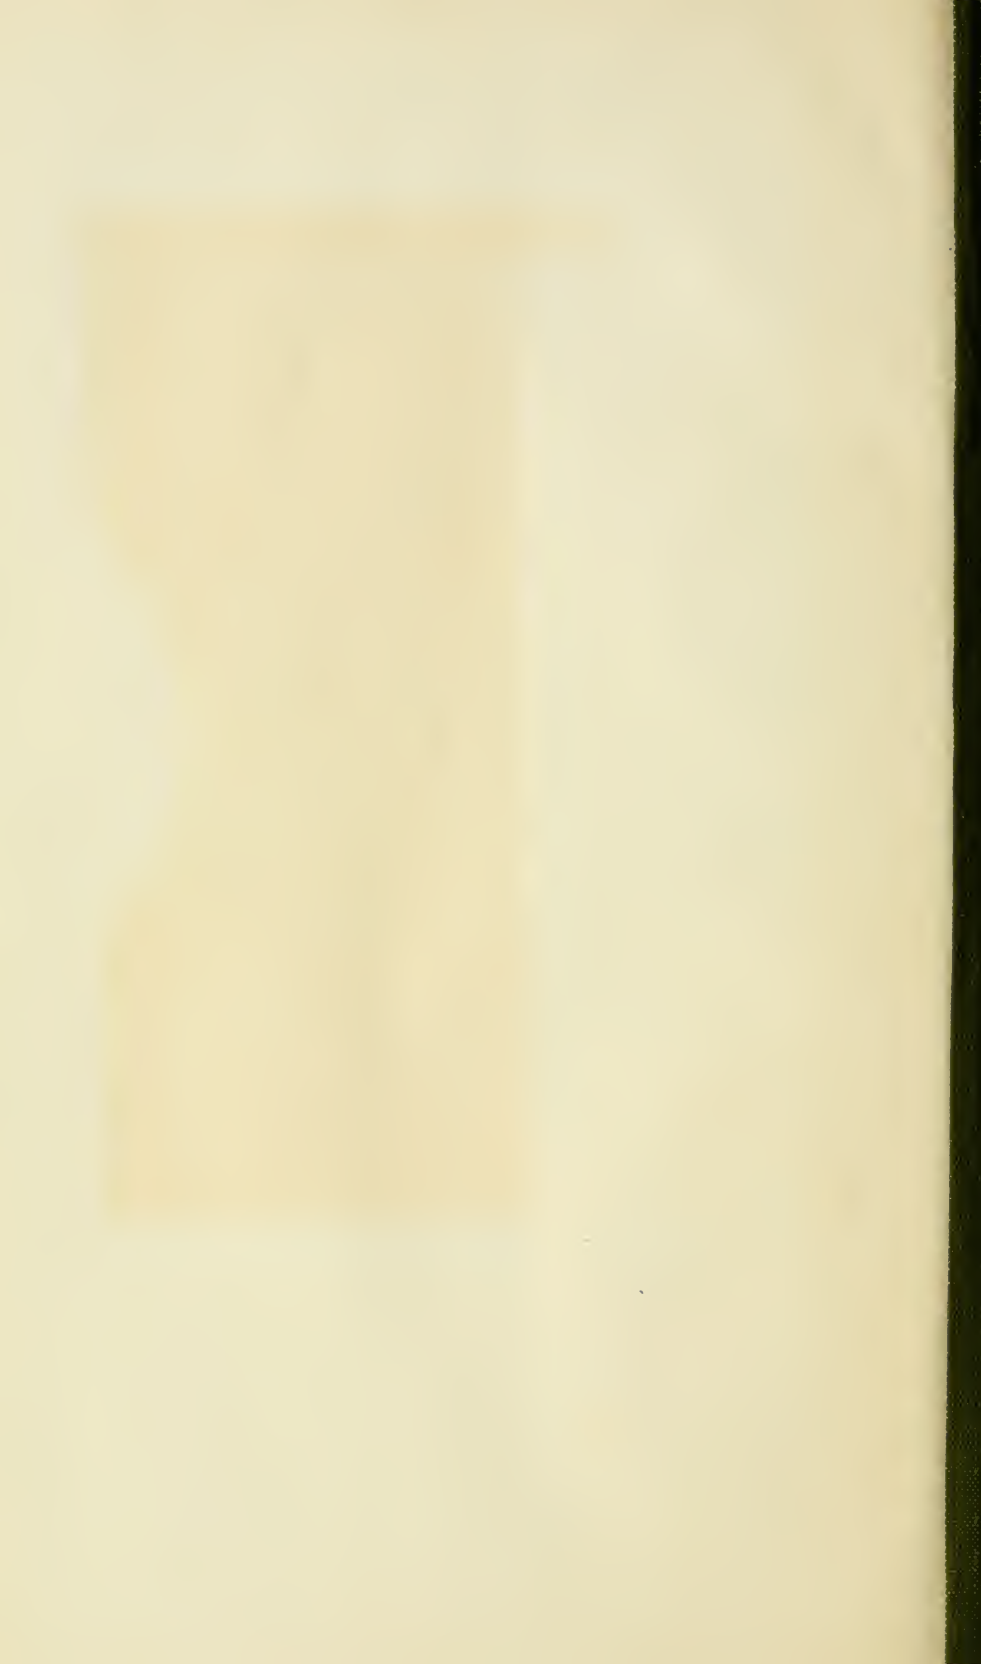

Sir Thomas Dalyell of Binns,
1st Bart., created 1685.
