PUNCH LIBRARY OF HUMOUR

Edited by J. A. Hammerton

Designed to provide in a series of volumes, each complete in itself, the cream of our national humour, contributed by the masters of comic draughtsmanship and the leading wits of the age to "Punch," from its beginning in 1841 to the present day.

"N.B."

An English friend of ours called many years ago at Inverness Post Office for some letters awaiting him there. They were addressed to the Poste Restante, "Inverness, N.B." In handing him the letters, an elderly lady who then graced the postal staff remarked: "You might tell your freen's that 'N.B.' is quite superfluous. Hoo wad they like us to write 'London, S.B.'? And we don't think that muckle o' London up here." Now, whether we use "N.B." as meaning "North Britain," or "Nota Bene," we shall leave you to guess!

Unless we are mistaken, we have seen more than once in English papers a suggestion that the Scots are a race devoid of humour. "He joked wi' deesiculty" is, we believe, a reference to a Scotsman. "A surgical——." But no, we shall not repeat that! Oddly enough, the pages of Mr. Punch, true mirror of our national characteristics, yield an abundant harvest of Scottish humour. Have we not already in this same series made merry with "Mr. Punch in the Highlands"? And we are now to laugh with him again at this banquet of Scottish humour, which by no means exhausts his store. We have already heard that some seventy-five per cent. of the jokes appearing in Punch contributed by those not on the permanent staff come from Scotsmen; so it is a reasonable assumption that the bulk of the anecdotes in the present collection have originated north of the border, even when they tell against the Scot; for it is not the least of his good points that Sandy is able to appreciate a story that does not present him in the most favourable light. No humour in Scotland! Here is Mr. Punch's reply!

Let this be noted by the Southerner: there is much confusion as to the Highlander and the Lowlander. Here is not the place, even did space allow, to attempt a definition of the difference between the two races which Sir Walter Scott typifies in Rob Roy and in Bailie Nicol Jarvie. In "Mr. Punch in the Highlands" we have something of the humour of the one; here we have a good deal of the humour of the other.

Of course a portion of the present book would be properly described as "the Scot through English glasses," and in this respect it is none the less valuable, being the next best thing to that for which Burns sighed—

"O wad some power the giftie gie us,
To see oursel's as others see us!
It wad frae monie a blunder free us,
And foolish notion."

Mr. Punch has striven to leave the Scot with no illusions as to the characteristics he presents to his fellow Britons. We may gather from these pages that Mr. Punch, as spokesman for John Bull, has detected in Sandy an occasional affection for that whisky which he produces so industriously—and chiefly for English consumption—and that he has noted in him a certain inclination "to keep the Sabbath day—and everything else he can lay his hands on." Who shall say that Mr. Punch has been mistaken? But we are not here to moralise; mirth is our motive; and if the fun be good—as none will deny who fingers these pages—enough is said.

This, at least, we may add: No artist who has ever been on Mr. Punch's staff has made anything like so much of the dry, pawky humour that obtains north of the Tweed as did Charles Keene. More than fifty per cent. of Mr. Punch's illustrations of Scottish humour come from his pencil; and he is ahead of his confrères not only in quantity but in quality—none of them has beaten him in the pictorial representation of Scottish character. The shrewd, dour faces of some of his Scotsmen are inimitable.

["‘He is a Scotsman and therefore fundamentally inept.’—The Tiger.]

Ah, baist nae mair the bard o' Ayr
That whiles was Scotland's glory,
An' dinna rave o' Bruce the brave
An' Bannockburn sae gory;
But greet yer lane an' mak' yer maen
That ye are ca'd a Scoatsman—
There's naught but scorn for him that's born
'Twixt Tweed an' John-o'-Groat's, man.

By cultured wits that thrang the pits
O' Surrey music ha's, man.

Oor manners, tae!—my heart is wae
When I compare the races,
Contrastin' oor behaviour dour
Wi' English airs an' graces.
We Scots maun hide oor humbled pride
An' greet in sorrow dumb, man—
We canna baist the perfect taste
An' canny tact o' Brum, man.
CANDID

Tam (very dry, at door of country inn, Sunday morning). "Aye, man, ye micht gie me a bit gill oot in a bottle!"

Landlord (from within). "Weel, ye ken, Tammas, I daurna sell an'athing the day. And forbye ye got a half-mutchkin awa' wi' ye last nicht (after hoors tae); it canna be a' dune yet!"

Tam. "Dune! Losh, man, d'ye think I could sleep an' whisky i' the hoose? !"
Mr. Punch's Scottish Humour

An' oh! ye ken, as beesness men,
   In dealin' wi' an order,
We aye maun find oorsels behind
   Oor brithers owre the Border.
We vie in vain wi' English brain;
   Hoo can we mak' a haul, man,
Until we start tae lairn the art
   That's practised in the Mall, man?

ing, "for the first fault" to a fine of £3, "or in case of inability or refusal, to be put in jogges or jayle for the space of six hours." What was "jogges," as distinguished from "jayle"? Possibly a somewhat milder place of detention for the rather, than that appointed for the very, drunken.
If so, "jogges," in the lapse of time, we may suppose, having lost its distinctive sense, came to be regarded as simply a synonym of "jayle," and, as such, now passes current in ILLUSIONS!

McStaggert (on his way home, having jumped over the shadows of the lamp-posts, &c., brought up by that of the kirk steeple). "E—h!" (Pauses.) "Ne' mind! 'Sh no help for it." (Pulls up his pants.) "Shall have to wade this h!"

LINES BY A SCOTSMAN

(On reading that an Act of the Australian Legislature against the Growth of Thistles received the Royal Assent)

What's this? Forbid the growth o' thistles,
Auld Scotia's cherished symbol-flower—
The hair upon ma head it bristles,
At sic an awfu' waste o' power!

'Tis idle wark, as time will show,
To root the bonny plant frae ground;
For Nature still gars thistles grow
Where canny Scots are to be found.

What soil so puir but it can keep
A thistle green amang its stanes?
What land so bare a Scotsman deep
Canna pick something aff its banes?

As weel keep bees frae honey-pots,
Keep cats frae cream, or bairns frae tarts,
As thistles and their brither Scots
Frae lands whaur goud is found i' quartz.
WELL TURNED

Minister (reproachfully, to bibulous village barber with shaking hand). "Ah, John, John! That whisky —"

Barber (condolently). "Aye, sir, it mak's the skin unco tender!"
"AU PIED DE LA LETTRE"

Free-Kirk Minister (to his "Elder").  "John, I should like you to intimate that on Monday next I propose paying pastoral visits in the High and North Streets, in which I also hope to embrace all the servant girls of the congregation in that district!"

His Wife (whom he'd lately married from the South).  "You shall do nothing of the kind, sir!  Let me see you dare to—!

THE LUNNON TWANG

I've heard a Frenchman wag his tongue
Wi' unco din an' rattle,
An', 'faith, my vera lugs hae sung
Wi' listenin' tae his prattle;
But French is no the worst of a'
In point o' noise an' clang, man;
There's ane that beats it far awa',
And that's the Lunnnon twang, man.
Mr. Punch's Scottish Humour

You wadna think, within this land,
That folk could talk sae queerly,
But, sure as death, tae understand
The callants beats me fairly.
An', 'faith, 'tis little gude their schules
Can teach them, as ye'll see, man,
For—wad ye credit it?—the fules
Can scarcely follow me, man.

An' yet, tae gie the deils their due,
(An' little praise they 're worth, man,)
They seem tae ken, I kenna hoo,
That I come frae the Nor-r-th, man!
They maun be clever, for ye ken
There 's nought tae tell the chiels, man:
I'm jist like a' the ither men
That hail frae Galashiels, man.

But oh! I'm fain tae see again
The bonny hills an' heather!
Twa days, and ne'er a drap o' rain—
Sic awfu, drouthy weather!
But eh! I doubt the Gala boys
Will laugh when hame I gang, man,
For oo! I'm awfu' feared my voice
Has ta'en the Lunnon twang, man!

"A NARROW ESCAPE"

(FRAGMENT OVERHEARD THE OTHER DAY)

"Well, Lauchie, how are you?"

"Man, I'm wonderfu' weel, considerin'."

"Considerin'—what?"

"I did last nicht what I've no dune this thirty year. I gaed to bed pairfutly sober, and I'm thankful to say I got up this mornin' no a bit the waur."

Eh, but I'd tak' my aith on this—
The King 'll be gey sweer, man,
Tae bide at hame the morn an' miss
Oor collieshangie here, man.

Although I'm tell't in Lunnon tae
They've got a Coronation,
An' even Cockneys mean tae hae
Their wee bit celebration;

But eh! I doot yon show 'll be
Disjaskit an' forlorn, man,
Beside the bonny sights ye'll see
In loyal auld Kinghorn, man.

THE EREGIOUS ENGLISHMAN

[The Scottish Education Department, not satisfied with the pronunciation in vogue beyond the Tweed, has appointed a Liverpool gentleman to instruct the teachers of Scot'and how to speak polite English.]

A PLAGUE on yon Depairtment, Jeames!
It maun be aye appearin'
Wi' sic a host o' daft-like schemes,
Forever interferin'.
'Tis past a joke when feckless fouk
Awa' in Lunnon ettle
Wi' a' this fuss tae talk tae us,
The Schule Board o' Kingskettle.

I'll tell ye hoo it comes tae pass—
The facts are easy stated:
They tak' inspectors frae a class
No richtly eddicated,
An' when the fules inspect oor schules,
I'll swear upon my life, Jeames,
There's no a man can unnerstan'
The classic tongue o' Fife, Jeanes.

An' whaur's the cure? The thing tae dae
Tae pit them on their mettle
Wad be tae raise inspectors tae
The staundard o' Kingskettle;
But eh! I fear frae what I hear
Thae fouk in Lunnon toun, Jeames,
Are bent the noo on findin' hoo
To eddicate us doun, Jeanes.

I canna weel believe it—
Deil tak' the impudence o' man
That ever daured conceive it!
They're sending doun a Southron loon
Frae far across the border.
Tae lairn us hoo tae shape oor mou'
An' set oor tongue in order.

Noo hoo could ony man expec'
We'd thole thae Angliceesms
An' lairn a 'furrin' dealees'
O' crude proveencialesms?
Tae think a fule frae Liverpool
Should undertak' tae settle.
The kind o' way we oucht tae say
Oor wordies in Kingskettle!

Providing for the Future.—The O'Hooligan

A SECOND VISIT TO SCOTLAND

(Being an additional Chapter to "The Tour in the Hebrides")

"Sir," said Dr. Johnson, "let us take a walk down Princes Street."

Finding the great man in so excellent a humour, I seized upon the opportunity to put to him many interesting questions.

"Sir," said I, "pray what do you think of Edinburgh?"

"I think, sir," replied the Doctor, "that its name is most appropriate."

"Sir," I continued, in a fever of anticipation, "I shall be very much obliged to you if you will explain your meaning in greater detail."

Dr. Johnson. Sir, I am sorry that my meaning should require explanation. I say that the name Edinburgh is appropriate, because I find the city primitive and beautiful. Adam and Eve would, doubtless, have held it in high consideration had they had the advantage of its possession. In short, sir, they would have called it the town of their Eden, or Edinburgh.

A MERE DETAIL

Friend of the Family. "Weel, Mrs. M'Glasgie, and how's your daughter doin', the one that was married a while ago?"

Mr. Boswell. A pun, sir!

"It was a pun, sir!" cried the Doctor, very angrily, and I hastened to change the subject.

"I am surprised to find, sir," said I, "that Her Majesty does not reside at Edinburgh. Do you not think, sir, that she might use her Scottish Palace at Christmas time?"

"No, sir, I do not think so," replied the Doctor, "and I can find no reason for your surprise."

"Indeed, sir!"

Dr. Johnson. Sir, were Her Most Gracious Majesty to dwell at Edinburgh at Christmas time, she would be put to great inconvenience. Her Most Gracious Majesty exhibits excellent sense in selecting Balmoral for her residence.

Mr. Boswell. Sir, I trust you do not call in question my loyalty to the House of Brunswick?

Dr. Johnson. Sir, I do not; I only question your wisdom.

Mr. Boswell. Sir, if I do not trouble you, will you explain to me why Her Majesty should avoid Edinburgh at Christmas time?

Dr. Johnson. Why, sir, the very branches put up in honour of the festive season would treat her with disrespect!

Mr. Boswell. Indeed, sir!

Dr. Johnson. Sir, if Her Most Gracious Majesty visited Edinburgh at Christmas time, would she not find Holly-rood?

Mr. Boswell. Another pun, sir!

"It was another pun, sir!" cried the Doctor, very wrathfully, and I said no more.

The next day we visited Stirling. We walked up to the Castle, and admired the magnificent view we there obtained of the surrounding country. We next examined the ramparts.

"These old walls, sir," said I, "must weigh many thousand tons avoirdupois."

"Sir," replied the Doctor, "you should have said pounds Stirling!"

"Another pun, sir!" I exclaimed.

"It was another pun, sir!" roared the Doctor, and I thought it best to hold my peace.

The next morning found us at Perth. Here we were received most hospitably by the gentry and the people. In the company of our host (a gentleman of the highest consideration in "The Fair City"), we ascended Kinnoulu Hill, and greatly admired the splendid scenery.

"A very lovely spot, sir," I ventured to observe.

Dr. Johnson. Sir, you are right. Sir, I have here found the people so kind-hearted, the city so handsome, and the scenery so magnificent, that I confess it would give me infinite satisfaction were I able to call the town in which I was born the place (as the Highlanders have it) of my Perth!

"A pun, sir!" exclaimed our excellent host, and I could not help noticing that he seemed greatly surprised.

The Doctor made no reply, but I could see by the working of his countenance that he was suffering pain.

We came to our journey's end at Wick.

"What do you think of this place, sir," I asked.

Dr. Johnson. Sir, I think that the title of "The Modern Athens" should be conferred upon Wick rather than upon Edinburgh.

Mr. Boswell. Indeed, sir! May I ask why?
Q. E. D.

Professor McPhairrson. "No, Mrs. Brown, it's not that we Scots are dull; but you English see a joke in anything! Why, the other day I was in a room with four Englishmen, one of whom told a story, and, would you believe it, I was the only man that didn't laugh!"
Mr. Punch's Scottish Humour

Dr. Johnson. Why, sir? Sir, you must be very dull. I say, sir, that Wick should be called "The Modern Athens."

Mr. Boswell. I confess, sir, that I am dull, and yet I cannot perceive why Wick should be called "The Modern Athens" rather than Edinburgh.

Dr. Johnson. Sir, you indeed must be dull if you do not associate Wick with the centre of Greece!

I was silent for a few minutes, and then I ventured to make a remark.

"Sir," said I, "you once expressed a very strong opinion about pun-makers. Sir, you asserted your belief that a man who would make a pun would be capable of picking a pocket."

Dr. Johnson. Sir, I believe so still.

Mr. Boswell. And yet, sir, during the course of our tour, you have made a large number of puns.

Dr. Johnson. Sir, you have good grounds for what you assert. I admit, sir, with a feeling of sorrow, that I have made many puns during our tour.

Mr. Boswell. Sir, may I venture to ask you why you have made so many puns?

Mr. Punch's Scottish Humour

"Sir," said Dr. Johnson, "the puns you have noticed are symptoms of a painful disease, known to men of letters as 'the Silly Fever.' I attribute the commencement of this melancholy malady to the depressing effects of a Scottish climate upon a Londoner in September!"

The best Scottish joke we ever heard.—A clever Scotsman being told that Demosthenes was in the habit of making speeches at the seaside with small stones in his mouth, exclaimed, "Hoot, mon! then he must ha' been the first Member for Peebles." (Loud cries of "Apology," which not being given, the Reader proceeds to groan.)

KINGHORN AN' LUNNON

(A Comparison)

THE sichts we've seen! The punds my wife
Has spent instead o' bankit!
But eh! we're back in bonny Fife,
Sae let the Lord be thankit!
An' Lunnon? Weel, ye ken, it's gay
An' busy, nicht an' morn, man,
An' there's a pickle fouk—but eh!
It's no—it's no Kinghorn, man.

Ye'll wanner on, an' on, an' on,
Through miles an' miles o' men, man,
An' yet in a' the crood like yon
There's de'il a face ye'll ken, man.
Na! Lunnon's oot the warl', ye see,
For look ye, I'll be sworn, man,
Sic unco things could never be
In ceevilised Kinghorn, man.

The shops? Ou, aye, there's shops indeed,
But faith, they're rale unhaundy:
Ane keeps yer butter, ane yer breid,
An' yet a third yer braundy.
Noo here, gin ye be wantin' outh,
Boots, butcher's meat or corn, man,
Shag, bonnets, breeks, they'll a' be boucht
The gither in Kinghorn, man.

Upon the cars an' 'busses.
But dinna think owre much o' yon,
For sure as I am born, man,
For style, it's no a patch upon
Our floo'er show at Kinghorn, man.

An' then sic ignorance! Losh me,
I'm feared ye'll no can doot it,
But nane kent whaur Kinghorn micht be,
Nor onything aboot it.
Tis awfu'! Yet 'twad seem to ca'
For peety mair than scorn, man,
For mind ye, 'tisna gi'en to a'
To live aboot Kinghorn, man.

"DEPRESSION"
Mr. Punch's Scottish Humour

A SKETCH IN SCOTLAND

Since the immortal meeting of the Brick Lane Temperance Society, at which the Messrs. Weller and the Reverend the Shepherd attended (after refection elsewhere), and the latter, in response to the Chairman's fat smile and invitation to address the meeting, declined, on the ground that the meeting was drunk, we have seen nothing so good as this, which we take from the Dundee Courier:

"On Sunday last, the minister of a large congregation in Dundee was interrupted in the course of his forenoon sermon by the repeated coughing of his auditors. Pausing in the midst of his observations, he addressed his congregation to the following effect:—'You go about the streets at the New Year time—you get drunk, and get cold, then you come here and cough, cough like a park of artillery. I think I must give you a vacation of six weeks, that you may have time to get sober, and to regain your health again.'"

This lenitive application did good, for the congregation sat quiet, and coughed no more than they would have dared to do had they been in presence of the Queen, or any other great person, instead of being in a mere church. But one
"MOST UNFORTUNATE!"

Bailie McScrew (to Smith, on a short visit to the North).
An' what are ye daen' to-morrow nicht, Mester Smeth?
Smith. "To-morrow? Oh, nothing particular."
Bailie. "An' the next nicht?"
Smith. "Ah! on Friday I'm to dine with the Browns——"
Bailie. "Man, that's a petty! Aw was gaun t' ask ye to tak' yer denner wi' us o' Friday!!"
IN VINO MEMORIA

Major Portisken (a pretty constant guest). "I say, Buchanan, this isn't—(another sip)—the same champagne ——!"

Scots Butler. "Na, that's a'dune! There was thrutty dizzen; and ye've had yere share o't, major!!"
TITLES TO DISTINCTION

Passenger (from the South, waking up). "Pray, sir, what station is this?"

Native. "Thes es Paisley, sir!—Paisley! Celebrated toon, sir!—Berrth-place o' th' poat Tannahul, sir! And—'hem?—ah'm a Paisley man mysel', sir! Ah was born i' Paisley—ah was—"

[Luckily the train had now run into the station, and stopped.]
A PRACTICAL VIEW

First Parishioner (to recently-appointed Minister). "Verra gled to fall in wi' ye, sir, an' mak' yer acqua'ntance! I hinna been at the kirk syne ye cam', as I wis in Ross-shire."

Parson. "Well, I am very pleased to meet you. You may have heard whether my serm——"

Parishioner. "Oh, a' the fowk are greatly taken wi' yer menners an' appearance, yer attention to the puir bodies o' the parish, yer visitin' the sick, an'—wha cares for preachin'!"

seat-holder, though he held his seat, could not hold his tongue, and declared that the congregation was insulted. We suspect that the minister knew best. In fact, had the incident occurred anywhere but in Scotland, where every man is proverbially sober, we should have been sure that the minister knew best. Hurrah, for the toddy of Bonnie Dundee!
COMMERCIAL INSTINCT

Dugald. "Did ye hear that Sawney McNab was ta'en up for stealin' a coo?"

Donald. "Hoot, toot, the stipit bodie! Could he no bocht it an' no paid for't?"
SPORTIVE SONGS

(An enamoured Southron endeavours to address a Highland Damsel in her own tongue)

Yon sky is bonny blue, fair lass,
    But you boast bluer een;
Yon sun is bricht the noo, fair lass,
    Your locks hae brichter sheen;
The fowl ahint the windy scaur
    Flees to its hame awa',
But, oh! my heart is fleeter far
    Whene'er I hear you ca'.

The cushat seeks the hazel broch
    Therein his mate to woo,
But I hie to the mountain loch
    To lilt my lays o' lo'e.
For here it was I speered you first
    In a' your pride o' race,
You set my ardent soul athirst
    When I gazed on your face!

I sat me down beside that cairn,
    And looked, a feckless loon,
On you, the great MacMuckle's bairn,
    Wi' ne'er a pair o' shoon!
Wi' winsome feet sae white as milk
    You paddlit i' the faem,
Your snoodless locks, sae soft as silk,
    Whished roun' your gouden kaem!
NOT TO BE MADE A FOOL OF

Farmer. "Noo, if it's a fair question, hoo much wull ye get for thae kye when ye've feenished them?"

Artist. "Oh, perhaps sixty guineas, or so."

Farmer. "Wha-a-t! Diuna tell me, man; A'l no get that for them leevin'."
Mr. Punch's Scottish Humour

I looked and looked, and marvelled sair
If human you might be;
You laughed to see the wonder-stare
That came frae oot my ee.
And then you broke the eerie spell,
And oh! your voice was douce!
Like water trickling frae a shell,
What time the ebb runs loose!

An' noo I maun my heart declare!
(Would you could hear its beat.)
I've lands, and siller, too, to spare,
An' sic a hamestead sweet!
I ken you are MacMuckle's chiel,
His only dearest ane,
But tell him that I lo'e you weel,
And canna bide alane!

"Hech, sirs! Aulder shots sud be better shots I'm thinkin'!"
"The Old Adam."—The Minister (coming on them unawares). "E-e-h! Sandy McDougall! Ah'm sorry to see this! And you too, Wully! Fishin' o' the Sawbath! A NEW "ADDRESS TO THE DEIL"

(A long way after Robbie Burns)

Oh, thou! whatever name, great Sir,
Prince Lucio, or plain Lucifer,
As up-to-date, thou may'st prefer,—
They're nane great catches,
Whether derived frae classic or
Frae brimstone matches!—

Hear me, great Alias, for a wee!
The leddies winna let thee be.
Ye'd think sma' pleasure it could gie,
E'en to she-novelist,
To drag thee frae the obscuritee
Wherein thou grovellest.

But leddies wi' an eye to fame,
Take leeberties wi' thy dread name,
Thy wanderings frae thy woefu' hame,
Lang fixed afar;
Painting thee neither black, nor lame,
As auld fients are.

True, Wullie Shakspeare ance did say
Thou wert "a gentleman."
But to-day
The leddies limn thee masher gay,
Modish and maudlin',
Weel-groomed, about the public way
Daundering and dawdlin'.
A WARNING TO LAWSONITES

First Scois Boatman. "Weel, Geordie, hoo got ye on the day?"

Second Ditto (drouthy, he had been out with a Free Kirk Minister, a strict abstainer).

"Nae ava. The auld carle had nae whisky, sae I took him whaur there was nae fush!"
DRIVING A BARGAIN

Economical Drover. "A teec't tae Faa'kirk."
Polite Clerk. "Five-and-ninepence, please."
Drover. "Ah'll gie ye five shillings!"
Clerk (astonished). "Eh!"
Drover. "Weel, ah'll gie ye five-an'-thrippence, an' deil a bawbee mair! Is't a bargain ?!"
UNCOMPROMISING

The Doctor's Daughter. "I declare you're a dreadful fanatic, Mrs. McCizzom. I do believe you think nobody will be saved but you and your minister!"

Old Lady. "Aweel, my dear, ah whiles hae ma doobts aboot the meenister!"
Mr. Punch's Scottish Humour

The Prince of Darkness as a dude,
Callow and cantin', crass and crude,
Compound of prater, prig, male-prude,
And minor poet,
Is—weel, I wadna' here intrude
The word—ye know it!

Milton and Goethe whyles might summon
Thine image forth, a grand, grim, glum 'un;
But 'tis beyond the scribblin' woman
Wi' truth to paint ye.
She'll mak' ye a reedeeculous rum 'un,
Unsex, half saint ye!

Thrasonic Bobadil the bard,
Wha deems Parnassus his backyard,
Tried to invoke thy presence—hard;
As did great "Festus."
But somehow their attempts, ill-starred,
Scarce eenterest us.

They havena' the true grit and grup
In mighty shape to raise ye up.
They wha'd on genuine horrors sup,
And scare a body,
Are not inspired by raw pork-chop,
An' whisky-toddy.

But oh! a leddy-novelist's Deil
Wad scarcely gar a bairnie squeel!
Like Hotspur's "sarcenet oath," we feel
It hath nae terror.
Is lathen dagger ta'en for steel
A greater error?

THE DECAY OF THE KILT

Mr. Briggs loquitur:

I am going down to Scotland, to the country of the kilt,
For a little salmon-stalking in a place they call Glen Tilt;
And as I always like to be a Roman when at Rome,
I've purchased the correct costume and it has just come home.

The kilt is most becoming, and it hangs with grace and ease,
Though perhaps a little draughty in the region of the knees,
And if there should be midges—but no doubt the Scotch are drest
In the clothes Experience has found to suit the climate best.

The dirk that dangles from my waist looks very comme il faut,
And the sporran in my stocking gives a finish, don't you know?
The girls are all in raptures as they gaze at me in turns,
And mother says they'll take me for another Robert Burns.

Sandy loquitur:

Oh, mony are the fallacies that Ignorance 'll breed,
An' mony the mistakes a man 'll get intil his heid,
But the maddest o' delusions mad wi' which some folks are fillt,
Is that ye suld gang tae Scotland, gin ye want to see the kilt
For a' the year I hevna seen a single kilt but ane—
A wee bit white-legged Coackney wha' was trudgin' through the rain;
First Lady. "Losh, but the doctor was gran' the day!"

Why sit ye on the stair, ladie,
Why sit ye on the stair?
It's merry dancing in the hall,
And partners still are there.

Ye arena in a cosy neuk,
But in the lamp's full glare;
No gentle whisperin' words are spoke—
Why sit ye on the stair?

The runkled carle that's by your side
No tale of luve can tell;
He fain wad win ye for his bride
By talkin' o' himsel'.

Your voice is clear, your laugh is cheer,
But oh, your eyes are sad;
You answer what the gaffer says,
You're lookin' for the lad.

(They winna stint their prattlin' talk—
Oh, but her eyes are sad!—
'Tis vain to cherche the fammy here,
I'll gang and speer the lad.)

Why prop ye up the wa', laddie,
Why prop ye up the wa'?
Your lissom shoes are stickit oot,
Ye'll gar the dancers fa'.

Will pin ye to the wainscoat fast
As wild boar in a jungle.

The floor's as smooth as summer grass.
Sma' feet, like crickets, caper,
And whirlin' kirtles, as they pass,
Sair waste the swealing taper.

The lassies' gowns are creased and rent;
The lads are oot o' knowledge;
They are as hot wi' twirlin' roon
As blacksmith frae the village.

The fiddles pour their love-sick pray'rs.
The flutie-man is whis'lin',
Just like when ancient madam scares
A thrummock-touzle hisslin'.

There's young folks movin' like a fair,
There's auld folks quaffin' sherry.
An' you sae weary, fu' o' care,
When all the world is merry?

Gin ye maun feed your dowie grudge,
At least fill up your programme,
And come victorious from the crush
Like Bonaparte from Wagram.

Nay, dinna off the lassie score;
Her heart sings, "Waly, waly!"
She's talkin' with that awfu' bore,
The Laird o' Lanthorn Jawley.
"LIVE AND LET LIVE"

Village Doctor (to the Grave-Digger, who is given to whisky).

"Ah, John! I'm sorry to see you in this pitiable condition again!"

Grave-Digger. "Toots, sir! can ye no' let a'e little fa'it o' mine gae by? It's mony a muckle ane o' yours I ha'e happit owre, an' said naething aboot!"
"SCOTCH MIST"

"The rain seems to be clearing off at last, Sandy."
"Ay, I doot it's threatenin' to be dry!"
PROPHETIC!

Guest (late for dinner, the delicious odour of the Haggis, just coming up, met him in the hall).—"A—h!" (On second thoughts.) "E—h! I'll be bad the morn!!"
Quit, quit, for shame! This winna do.
Rouse up and play the man, sir!
For they should dance who have the chance,
And they should sup who can, sir.

Ah, see, she smiles! Could any word
More eloquently call ye?
Now go and soothe your bonnie burd,
And banish Lanthorn Jawley.

So prop nae mair the wa', laddie,
So prop nae mair the wa'—
(Ye dinna ken that on your coat
Yon candle-droppin's fa'?)

FOLLOWING THEIR NOSES.—We read a report of whales running ashore on the Orkney coast last week. They were of the bottle-nose kind, and probably followed their noses, tempted by the free flow of "het-pint," a very tempting new year's tipple, largely indulged in north of the Tweed.

Question. Why may Scotsmen be supposed to Answer. Eh, sirs, it's just because they're vera fond of the Bawbees.

DEAR MAISTER
PUNCH, — I've heerd often enough aboot ye as a kind sort o' buddy, whae putts the warld richt, when it has gaun wrang, and

I'm thinking to write tae ye, a screed about thae feckless critters, the South'ren tourists whae ower-run Auld Scotland at this time o' the year with their coo-ponds and their excursion tuckets, thinking to tak their pleasures on the cheap. Noo, the hotels in this country are famed for their vera moderate charges. I mysel have had a real good breakfast (they ca' it dijohnny now) for no more than five shullings—that's cheap enough. And as for a bed! weel, no one can find faut with half of a sovereign? And yet thae tourists are aye complainin'. Hotel folk in Scotland should have fixed charges throughout. I, for yin, will make free to say that I will cheerfully pay them, when I find it necessary, one pound ten shillin's for bed and breakfast and maybe half-a-croon for a good glass of the cratur, as a settler afterwards. If the hotel folk would all agree to some moderate charge like that, they could think aboot Culloden with equanimity!

A BALLAD OF EDINBORO' TOON

The lusty sun did glower aboon,
    Wi' welcome in his cheerfu' rays;
I walked in Edinboro' toon,
    A' in ma caller claes.

For I had donned ma coat o' cheiks
    That cost me guineas twa an' three,
But and ma pair o' ditto breeks
    That luiked sae pleasantlie.

On ilka breek were creasies twa;
    And they did hang sae fine, sae fine,
Frae John o' Groats to Gallowa'
    Were nane sae fair as mine.

An' first I honoured Geordie Street,
    An' syne I walked the Princes ane,
To gie to ilka lass a treat
    An' a' the laddies pain.

An' mony a laddie's hert was sair;
    An' mony a lassie's een, ay, mony,
Uplicht wi' joy to see a pair
    Sae canny an' sae bonny.

I hadna walked an hour at maist,
    I hadna honoured half the toon,
The air grew drumlie lik' a ghaist,
    An' syne the rain cam' doon.

TO EDINBURGH *
IN EXPIATION

Thou dear and gracious town, where I
Have sojourned for a fleeting spell,
The hour has come that bids me fly;
Edina, fare thee well!

I've met so—down, poor fluttering heart!—
And more agreeable men.

His Companion. "I' the front! Aye, mun"—(viciously)—"he'd be i' the hea-arse if he could!"
Forgive me that I spake in haste
Winged words that I would fain forget;
Thy welcome seemed in doubtful taste,
And I was very wet!

But rather hold his memory dear,
Whose sunny presence brought thee forth
The finest weather of the year,
And warmed the watery North.

Now onward speeds the busy train,
O hospitable town and kind,
Farewell! *Until I come again,
I leave my heart behind.

("MR. PUNCH'S PRIZE NOVELS.")

By J. Muir Kirrie, Author of "A Door on Thumbs,"
"Eight Bald Fiddlers," "When a Man Sees Double,"
"My Gentleman Meerschaum," &c.

[With this story came a glossary of Scots expressions. We have referred to it as we went along, and found everything quite intelligible. As, however, we have no room to publish the glossary, we can only appeal to the indulgence of our readers. The story itself was written in a very clear, legible hand, and was enclosed in a wrapper labelled, "Arcadia Mixture. Strength and Aroma combined. Sold in Six-shilling cases. Special terms for Southrons. Liberal allowance for returned empties."]

CHAPTER I.

We were all sitting on the pig-sty at T'nowhead's Farm. A pig-sty is not, perhaps, a strictly eligible seat, but there were special reasons, of which you shall hear something later, for sitting on this particular pig-sty.

The old sow was within, extended at full length. Occasionally she grunted approval of what was said, but, beyond that, she seemed to show but a Scrupulous Waiter. "A what? A sangwitch! Na, na! I'll gie ye breed an' cheese, an' as much whisky as ye can drink; but, tae mak' sangwidges on the Saubberth day!"

Drover (writing the receipt). "Naebody could spell wi' this pen. There's been owre mony drucken bodies usin' it!"

Northerner. "Ken McScrew? Oo' fine! A graund man, McScrew! Keeps the Sawbath,—an' everything else he can lay his hands on!"
faint interest in the proceedings. She had been a witness of similar gatherings for some years, and, to tell the truth, they had begun to bore her, but, on the whole, I am not prepared to deny that her appreciation was an intelligent one. Behind us was the brae. Ah, that brae! Do you remember how the child you once were sat in the brae, spinning the peerie, and hunkering at I-dree I-dree I droppit-it? Do you remember that? Do you even know what I mean? Life is like that. When we are children the bread is thick, and the butter is thin; as we grow to be lads and lassies, the bread dwindles, and the butter increases; but the old men and women who totter about the com- monty, how shall they munch when their teeth are gone? That's the question. I'm a Dominie. What!—no answer? Go to the bottom of the class, all of you.

Second Ditto (who has got over the wall to inspect). "He's draain' wi' paint."

Chapter II.

As I said, we were all on the pig-sty. Of the habitués I scarcely need to speak to you, since you must know their names, even if you fail to pronounce them. But there was a stranger amongst us, a stranger who, it was said, had come from London. Yesterday when I went ben the house I found him sitting with Jess; to-day, he, too, was sitting with us on the pig-sty. There were tales told about him, that he wrote for papers in London, and stuffed his vases and his pillows with money, but Tammas Haggart only shook his head at what he called "such auld fowks' yeppins," and evidently didn't believe a single word. Now Tammas, you must know, was our humorist. It was not without difficulty that Tammas had

The Braw Wee English Laddie. "Oh no—I don't mind you—not a bit. It's papa and mamma!"
GOSSIPS

First Gael (just come ashore from the Herrin' Fushin')
"Hoo's a' wi' you, Donal'? Hae ye ony news yonder?"
Second Gael. "Na, I hear naething,—oo, aye,—they were sayin' Mac Callum Mohr's son's goin' to get marri't!"
First Gael. "Ay! ay! An' wha's he goin' to get marri't on?"
Second Gael. "Ye ken the Queen—e-ch?"
First Gael. "Ay—I ken the Queen."
Second Gael. "A—weel, it's on her young dochter he's goin' to get marri't."
First Gael. "E—ch! Dod! the Queen mun be the prood woman!!!"

attained to this position, and he was resolved to keep it. Possibly he scented in the stranger a rival humorist whom he would have to crush. At any rate, his greeting was not marked with the usual genial cordiality characteristic of Scots weavers, and many were the anxious looks

Chapter III.

After Tammas had finished boring half-a-dozen holes in the old sow with his sarcastic eye, he looked up, and addressed Hendry McQumpha.

"Hendry," he said, "ye ken I’m a humorist, div ye no?"

Hendry scratched the old sow meditatively, before he answered.

"Ou ay," he said, at length. "I’m no saying ’at ye’re no a humorist. I ken fine ye’re a sarcasticist, but there’s other humorists in the world, am thinkin’.”

This was scarcely what Tammas had expected. Hendry was usually one of his most devoted admirers. There was an awkward silence, which made me feel uncomfortable. I am only a poor Dominie, but some of my happiest hours had been passed on the pig-sty. Were these merry meetings to come to an end? Pete took up the talking.

"Hendry, my man," he observed, as he helped himself out of Tammas's snuff-mull, "ye're ower kyow-owy. Ye ken humour's a thing 'at spouts out o' its ain accord, an' there's no nae spouter in Thrums 'at can match wi' Tammas."

He looked defiantly at Hendry, who was engaged in searching for coppers in his north-east-by-east-trouser pocket. T'nowhead said nothing, and Hookey was similarly occupied. At last, the stranger spoke.

"Gentlemen," he began, "may I say a word? I may lay claim to some experience in the matter. I travel in humour, and generally manage to do a large business."

He looked round interrogatively. Tammas eyed him with one of his keen glances. Then he worked his mouth round and round to clear the course for a sarcasm.

"So you're the puir crittur," said the stone-breaker, "'at's meanin' to be a humorist."

This was the challenge. We all knew what it meant, and fixed our eyes on the stranger.

"Certainly," was his answer; "that is exactly my meaning. I trust I make myself plain. I'm willing to meet any man at catch-weights. Now
A TARTAR

Dr. M'Currie (a chilly old soul), having ascertained from his landlady that coals are sixpence a scuttle, politely insists on providing a scuttle of his own, and begs to return, with many thanks, the charmingly tasteful article she had intended for his use.
"If I hold on, I'll lose my train; if I let go, I'll fa'! Did ever anybody hear tell o' sic a predicament?"
"THE GARB OF OLD GAUL"

Native (to visitor from the South). "Ah, you've donned the kilt! Quite killing, I declare! But why do you wear the Macdonald tartan when your name is Thompson?"

[Retires in a huff.]
here," he continued, "are some of my samples. This story about a house-boat, for instance, has been much appreciated. It's almost in the style of Mr. Jerome's masterpiece; or this screamer about my wife's tobacco-pipe and the smoking mixture. Observe," he went on, holding the sample near to his mouth, "I can expand it to any extent. Puff, puff! Ah! it has burst. No matter, these accidents sometimes happen to the best regulated humorists. Now, just look at these," he produced half-a-dozen packets rapidly from his bundle. "Here we have a packet of sarcasm—equal to dynamite. I left it on the steps of the Savile Club, but it missed fire somehow. Then here are some particularly neat things in cheques. I use them myself to paper my bedroom. It's simpler and easier than cashing them, and besides," adjusting his mouth to his sleeve, and laughing, "it's quite killing when you come to think of it in that way. Lastly, there's this banking-account sample, thoroughly suitable for journalists and children. You see how it's done. I open it, you draw on it. Oh, you don't want a drawing-master, any fellow can do it, and the point is it Sandy McPherson, in a moment of abstraction, put half-a-crown in the collection plate last Sunday in mistake for a penny, and has since expended a deal of thought as to the best way of making up for it. "Noo I might stay awa' frae the kirk till the sum was made up; but on the ither han' I wad be payin' pew rent a' the time an' gettin' nae guid o' t. Losh! but I'm thinkin' this is what the meenister ca's a 'releegious diffculty!'" never varies. Now," he concluded, aggressively, "what have you got to set against that, my friend?"

We all looked at Tammas. Hendry kicked the pail towards him, and he put his foot on it. Thus we knew that Hendry had returned to his ancient allegiance, and that the stranger would be crushed. Then Tammas began——

"Man, man, there's no nae doubt 'at ye lauch at havers, an' there's mony 'at lauchs at your clipper-clàpper, but they're no Thrums fowk, and they canna' lauch richt. But we maun juist settle this matter. When we're ta'en up wi' the makkin' o' humour, we're a' dependent on other fowk to tak' note o' the humour. There's no nane o' us 'at's lauched at anything you've telt us. But they'll lauch at me. Noo then," he roared out, "'A pie sat on a pear-tree.'"

We all knew this song of Tammas's. A shout of laughter went up from the whole gathering. The stranger fell backwards into the sty a senseless mass.

"Man, man," said Hookey to Tammas, as we walked home; "what a crittur ye are! What pit that in your heed?"

152
"THE QUEEN'S ENGLISH" (OR SCOTCH)

Minister. "Weel, John, an hoo did ye like ma son's discoorse?"

John. "Weel, meenister, ah maun admeet he's vera sounding, but, oh man! he's no deep! His pronoounciation's no vera gweed; but ah 've nae doobt he'll impruv'!"
"It juist took a grip o' me," replied Tammas, without moving a muscle; "it flashed upon me 'at he'd no stand that auld song. That's where the humour o' it comes in."

"Ou, ay," added Hendry, "Thrums is the place for rale humour." On the whole, I agree with him.

Gamekeeper (with a sniff). "Weel, gin ye're no to be 'cook,' I'm nae to be 'keeper'! Ye'll be as gude as gie me 'Maisther Forr-biss'!!"
VACCINATION RE-NAMED

The New Doctor. "Well, Mac, how is the little girl's arm going on?"

Mac: "Weel, sir, my gudewife says it's looking just fine whaur ye tattoo'd it."
"WHAT IN THE CAPTAIN'S BUT A CHOLERIC WORD"

The Laird (to his Gardener, who had caught somebody trespassing). "Hum! And you say, Saunders, that the fellow was impudent?"

Gardener. "Impudent! 'Deed, sir, if he had been the Laird himsell he could na hae been mair ill-bred!"
MacNab (whose wife has met with a slight accident on the railway, to Railway Agent, who has called to offer condolence, and produces one or two pounds by way of solatium). "Na, na, if she dees it will likely be twa or three hunders!"
A MODERN ATHENIAN

Southern Tourist (in Edinburgh). "Can you direct me to the Royal Institution?"
Native. (Vacant Stare.) "What est?"
Tourist (giving a Clue). "Pictures, you know—Statues—and—"
Native (after much thought). "Oo!—et's the Stukky Feggars ye mean!"—(Pointing.)—"Yon's et!"
A POSER

Fair Client. "I'm always photographed from the same side, but I forget which!"

Scots Photographer (reflectively). "Well, it'll no be this side, I'm thinkin'. Maybe it's t'ither!"
A NICE DISTINCTION

Porter. "Train's awa, man. Ye should hae ran faster."
Passenger. "Ran faster! Dod, I ran fast eneugh, but I should hae startit sooner."
"ALARUMS, EXCURSIONS

Perplexed Old Lady (at Scottish Junction in a fog). "Ah hae ma bundle—an' ah hae ma teeck't—but fa's the Dee-side Rel-ro'd!!"
Excited Scotsman (who has just hooked a fish). "I'm dashed feared I'll loose my half-crown flee!"
"WHEN GREEK MEETS GREEK." SCENE—District Court in a Colony

 Scots Judge (with a very marked pug-nose). "Weel, noo, sir, if ye gae along the ro'd in question where'll ye gang tae?"

 Scots Witness (deliberately). "That a' depends, yer honour, on how far ye gae!"

 Judge (snappishly). "Ye understan' vera weel, sir. If ye follow yer nose, mun, where'll ye gang till?"

 Witness (after a pause). "Ah've always heer-ed it said, yer honour, that if ye follow yer nose too far, it'll tak' ye t' the moon!"

 Judge. "Step doon, sir!"—(In an angry aside).—"The mon's a fool!"
Traveller (to Colonial Squatter). “Hullo, McDonald! I didn’t expect this of you! All your men working on a Sunday!”

Mac. “This is nae Sunday, mun!—it’s Wednesday——”

Traveller. “Not a bit of it! This is Sunday, I assure you——”

Mac. “Aweel! Think o’ that, noo! We hinna seen a sowl for three months, an’ there’s nae an almanack i’ the hoose, an’ we’ve gotten jummelt up a’ th’gether!!”
Malcolm (to the Colonel, who had been narrating his fishing adventures all over the globe). "Ye must ha'e had gran' sport among the black men, sir! Had they ony releegion?"—Colonel. "All kinds, Malcolm. Some worshipped idols, some the sun, some the moon, some the water—"

Malcolm. "The watter!" (Musing.) "Aweel, sir, I couldn'a' bring mysel' to care for that!"
Keeper (to the two Tourists, who find canoeing more difficult on the Highland rivers than on the Thames). "Hi! Hoy! Hoy! D'ye no ken this is the McChizzlem's private water!"
MAGNIFYING HIS CALLING

Peter. “Na, laddie, this is ane o' thae things a body can never learn. 'There's no nae use in a man takin' tae this job unless he has a naiteral born aptitude for'd!’"
GOING TO EXTREMES

He of the ruffled temper. "As sure's ma name's Tammas Paterson, I'll hae the law o' ye, though it should cost me hauf-a-croon!"
CARBINE PRACTICE

Sandy McGuttle and a friend of his marking in butt. Officer in charge of squad at the shooting-range wonders why the deuce they don't signal that last shot. He has also grave doubts about the number of bulls'-eyes already recorded.
Old Lady (who had been buying eggs). "'Deed, Mr. McTreatfe, butchers' meat's sae dear now-a-days ah'm no able to buy't!"

Grocer. "You should turn a vegetarian——"

Old Lady. "A vegeetarian!—Na, na! ah was born an' brocht up i' the Free Kirk, an' a'm no gaun ta change ma releegion i' m' auld days!"
Officer of Militia. "Well, sir, who are you? and what's the matter?"

Excited Citizen. "Me? I'm the bailie—the heid bailie, mon! I caught this wee laddie feshin' on the Sawbath day! Says he's a Caath'lic—a Roonan Caath'lic!! E-h, it's just dreadfu' to think o'—feshin' in a Protestant loch!! And o' the Sawbath! Lord save us!"
REIGNATION

He (Third-Class). "Come awa'! D'ye no see that's a first-class?"

She (little). "Aweel, on a busy day like this, we maun just put up wi' any accommodation we can get."
DESECRATION.

English Angler (on Saturday evening). "Anybody ever fish up here on a Sunday, m'um?"

Scots Landlady (in consternation). "Hech, mon! ye'd be jail’t!!"
