Electric Scotland News

Got the upgrade done on the Community but there are issues still to resolve which might take some time to fix. Like email doesn't seem to be working and am having problems in identifying what the issue is.

Also I note there is not a link to see if there are any new messages so will need to check that as well.

I have been able to post messages ok and I added an Article and a Blog so those seem to be working ok. I was able to add last weeks newsletter so should be able to add this one as well.

Have been getting some emails in asking why I am against Scottish Independence so thought I'd just summarise the issues I've got with it..

It is to do with the SNP Government. In my view democracy under them is worse and getting worse. First, there was the Named Persons Scheme where in my view they wanted to take away control of the child from their Parents and appoint a named person that would oversee their life and was always available for the child to contact. I saw this as undermining parents and I didn't agree with that. Also on their trial scheme they actually provided a pedophile as a named person which in my view undermined their whole approach. Also the named person would likely be a teacher or doctor or social worker who are already under extreme pressure on hours of work, etc. In any event it was against the European Human Rights legislation which is why it was taken down by the Supreme Court of the UK while it had been passed by the Supreme court of Scotland. So this also told me that the legal system in Scotland was unable to judge this legislation properly and obviously hadn't taken this into account. So that's also a problem against our legal system.

Then I was reading the reports by Kenneth Roy, the past editor of the Scottish Review, where he was discussing the double suicide of two girls in Glasgow. It was a total mess the way the social workers and the Scottish Justice system looked after them and to think this actually happened in Scotland really sickened me.

Second, the SNP are looking for central control over everything in Scottish life. They have already taken away a lot of money from our Councils meaning that local control is much less that it used to be in Scotland which hits democracy. They also took the decision to turn the Scottish police into one large organisation so again any local accountability was damaged and we already see costs have spiraled out of control. They also make poor decisions and seem to have no idea how to handle large projects. Like the two new hospitals and the new Forth Bridge continue to have major problems meaning projects delayed and costs spiraling upwards. Then the BioFad company in Fife being closed was down to them and thus was a major disincentive to any other private organisation from coming in to help Scotland out meaning in this case that all Scotland's Wind Turbines would continue to be made outside Scotland instead of inside Scotland.

Third, the SNP don't seem to have any plans in place to build up a financial base for Scottish exports and investment in future projects. All they seem to want is to be controlled by the EU which is not independence to my mind. We are already noting the major issues the EU is having with vaccine role out and their budget. Now we have several countries with growing populations turning against the EU. Also the future is in Asia but Scotland seems to want to put investment into Europe which is in decline in the world. In other words we seem to be working with the declining part of the world which is not in our long term interest.

Fourth, the SNP is in control of our NHS and Education and both are suffering under SNP control as is our Justice system. In other words the SNP are not using the talents in Scotland outside SNP backers whereas they need all of Scotland to work for them.

Going on current polling this means they are not working with at least 45% of Scottish talent.

In other words I believe that the SNP would be a disaster for Scotland if we got independence.

Now I will say that I personally recommended voting yes for Independence but that was only because I allowed myself to be persuaded that if Scotland got independence we would have the chance to vote in a new political system which would then remove the SNP from power but that now looks very unlikely.

Over all while the financial system is dire with none of our banks under Scottish control I do believe that it is possible to overcome these issues but it's going to take very clever people to do this and I don't see the SNP having the talent to do that.

So it's not that I don't support Independence bur rather that I think under the SNP we couldn't be independent unless we were outside the EU and had people that could make a real difference. Also I am concerned about the lack of transparency with the SNP as if they don't like a report they stop doing them. We need good reporting as if there is a problem we need to know about it so it can be fixed.

And I should finish by saying that in my opinion Sturgeon sees her views as being the only possible views. Like taking away the ambassador role from Donald Trump who became the most powerful man in the world even if you didn't like him personally. That's probably why we have US tariffs on whisky. When your personal views harm Scotland then you need to do something about that.

So note that I am against Independence because of the SNP mishandling of Scottish matters in all areas of Scottish life.

I would be happy to hear back from anyone that can counter these points with decent facts to back there argument.

Scottish News from this weeks newspapers

Note that this is a selection and more can be read in our ScotNews feed on our index page where we list news from the past 1-2 weeks. I am partly doing this to build an archive of modern news from and about Scotland and world news stories that can affect Scotland and as all the newsletters are archived and also indexed on Google and other search engines it becomes a good resource. I might also add that in a number of newspapers you will find many comments which can be just as interesting as the news story itself and of course you can also add your own comments if you wish which I do myself from time to time.

Beth's Newfangled Family Tree

Your Section A for February is attached here. There are lots of things I think you will enjoy in its pages.

Dr. Pete Hylton sent us photos of the "Burns Night in a Box" that some creative person thought of in Scotland. What a fantastic idea!

There's a super article to help us all be less of a dude when we go to Scotland. It's Scottish Slang and Sayings: How to talk like a local. I'll bet you'll get a kick out of that one.

Little Finlay, the Scottish wildcat kitten being cared for by the Wildcat Haven team is going back to the wild before long. His story will touch your heart. I hope these folks can make Finlay (and others to follow) a really nice half-way house and grounds so he will be prepared to be on his own. I seldom wish to be rich, but now is one of those times as I would like to ensure Finlay's good start at living his life wild.

My Tom asked to write my Letters from the Editor page this time. He made me cry as his letter is so lovely. Thank you, Tom dah'lin.

We have sadness too. One of my dearest friends in the world has died. Horace Loftin, who was so important in the formation of the Clan Henderson Society at Stone Mountain 33 years ago and my friend for all of those years has left us too soon.

Please everyone, be safe. We've had our first Covid shots with the others to follow February 18. We won't be protected for two more weeks after that. We all will have to continue to be patient.

Let me know about changes in your email. Be sure and send me your Flowers of the Forest and your genealogical queries and just notes. It's bethscribble@aol.com.

Aye,
beth

Story

Reasons for Scots Moving to England

I emailed Kirsty at the National Records of Scotland to see if she could provide any information on why so many Scots went to England and I got this reply...

You asked if we had any figures on why so many Scots moved to England. The attached table taken from the NOMIS website gives some information about the characteristics of people born in Scotland who were living in England at the time of the 2011 Census.

It shows that there were 709,000 usual residents of England who were born in Scotland. They represented 1% of the total population of England.

(The figures are for England only. There were 24,346 usual residents of Wales who were born in Scotland – giving a total of 733,218 for E&W,)

The figures show that this group of the population of England were:

- mostly adults – 4% aged under 16, 71% aged 16 to 64 and 25% aged 65 and over
- predominately white (98%)
- mainly reported their national identity to be “Scottish identity only (53%), ‘British identity only’ (27%) or ‘Scottish and British identities only’ (10%)
- mostly living in England one year before the census - 5.5% were living in Scotland one year before the census, with this proportion being highest for those aged 1 to 4 (34%), aged 18 to 19 (24%), aged 20 to 24 (34%) and aged 25 to 29 (21%). These older age groups are likely to relate to people who moved south for reasons of work or study.
- Of the 680,000 aged 16 and over residents of England who were born in Scotland, 390,000 (58%) were in employment, 23,000 (3%) were unemployed and 264,000 (39%) were economically inactive (mainly retired)

In 2011, there 459,000 Scottish residents who were born in England, 9% of the total population of Scotland. Of these people,

- the proportions aged under 16, 16 to 64 and 65 and over were 8%, 74% and 18% respectively
- mostly identified as ‘British identity only’ (33%) , ‘English identity only’ (25%) , ‘Other combinations of UK identities’ (15%) or ‘Scottish identity only (14%)
- mostly living in Scotland one year before the census – 8% were living in England one year before the census, with this proportion being 30% for those aged 18 to 19, likely to reflect people coming to Scotland for reasons of study.

You may also be interested in the chapter entitled ‘Migrants in Scotland’s population histories since 1850’ at the following link - <https://www.nrscotland.gov.uk/statistics-and-data/statistics/stats-at-a-glance/registrars-generals-annual-review/invited-chapters>

It describes historical reasons for people moving between Scotland and England, many of which were work related.

END

And that's it for this week and hope you all have a great weekend.

Alastair
