SOLDIERS AND SAILORS OF THE REVOLUTION

Printed records of the Revolutionary soldiers and sailors are generally incomplete and unsatisfactory. Only Massachusetts, Connecticut and New York have compiled and published, by state authority, lists that are at all thorough and properly arranged for ready reference. In other states attempts have been made to bring together these records but for the most part with the result only of collecting a mass of heterogeneous material; muster rolls, payment rolls, pension applications, colonial and state assembly documents and so on, without the collating and arranging of lists of individual names and sometimes even, as in the case of the Pennsylvania Archives, without an index. In the eighth annual report of the state library of Virginia, there is a good and well arranged list of names with a valuable reference list of original sources. Many original papers containing the names of these soldiers and sailors have never been published, although still preserved in the archives of the state to which they belong or in the Government departments in Washington. We present herewith the names of Bells who served in the army or navy, as far as obtainable.
