FOREWORD

The Irish people are an ubiquitous and individualistic folk. They originated in Ireland and are scattered throughout the world; they have individual traits, even to the spelling of their own names. Though coming from a common parent stock we find the name spelled O'Scanlan, Scanlan, Scanlon and it even appears in other forms.

1686866

Hence, the plural form of spelling appears on the title page of this brochure, though only those using the forms Scanlan and Scanlon are principally treated herein.

It has been carefully prepared from sources believed to be most reliable, such as, O'Hart's Irish Pedigrees, Burke's Landed Gentry, Who's Who In America, Who's Who In Medicine, Who's Who In the Clergy, Who's Who in Business, and traditional sources handed down by well-informed American descendants of the early settlers who came to this land of American opportunity and freedom.

Notice of any errors appearing herein will be appreciated by the compiler as well as additional historical data concerning other descendants whose names may be unintentionally omitted from this history.

I AM OF IRELAND

..

The O'Scanlan, Scanlan, Scanlon family is one and the same branch in Ireland, mentioned in the annals of Irish history since the close of the Sixth Century of the Christian Era.

Their interests were largely in the fields of religion, medicine, military service, agriculture and business.

Patrick O'Scanlan was Bishop of Raphoe, and in 1261 A.D. became Primate of Ireland. In 1268 he began the erection of the noted Catholic Cathedral of Armagh.

In the line of descent in the Sixteenth Century we find a Michael Scanlon who had seven sons and seven daughters; five of the sons left enviable military records, four of whom gave their lives in the line of battle in Continental and Peninsular wars. The Scanlans were also found among the agriculturists in Southern Ireland and in business of divers kinds.

Similarity in given names is evident throughout the line of descent in this family, e.g., Michael, Thomas, Mourice, Timothy, William, Patrick, John, Connor, Cornelius, and Charles, while the women bear the names of Margaret, Ellen, Anna, Mary, Elizabeth, Constance, Helen, Johannah, Hannorah, Bridget, etc.

The branch of the family treated in this brochure finds its immediate lineage in the County Kerry, the most western County of the Emerald Isle, and the most southern except County Cork.

Doubtless there are other branches of the family originating there who emigrated to America, but the compiler of these data has not had the opportunity of tracing their American descendants; though quite a number in this country are holding positions of honor and trust in the northern and western states, who are entirely worthy of their heritage, and giving a good account of themselves in the business and professional world.

We owe it to our ancestors to preserve entire those rights, which they have delivered to our care: we owe it to our posterity, not to suffer their dearest inheritance to be destroyed.—The Letters of Junius.

MEMO

It is fortunate to come of distinguished ancestry. It is not less so to be such that people do not care to inquire whether you are of high descent or not.—Bruyère.
